Although strongly supported by leading labor and educator groups, the National Chamber of Commerce opposes it on the grounds that it would lead to federal control, and that education is a state and local responsibility.

A Chamber statement says: "We contend that no specific state has yet been identified as being unable to meet its school building needs without federal aid."

Maximum Loan

Under the present program, a student may borrow in one year a sum not exceeding $1,000 and during his entire course in higher education a sum not exceeding $5,000.

The borrower must sign a note for this loan, showing his obligation to interest and repayment terms established by Villanova. The law itself requires that repayment of the loan begin one year after the borrower ceases to be a full-time student and be completed within ten years thereafter.

Eddie Collymore Raised Eye-brows By Sticking to Jenkins As Frosh

By TOM TROY

It was spring of 1956. Charley Jenkins, soon to depart for California and the Olympic trials, was loosening up, preparing to run a practice quarter mile. Alongside him pranced a strong, well proportioned freshman—one of the lesser lights in the galaxy of Villanova stars.

Now they set themselves in the starting blocks, arched their backs and raced. Jenkins moved into the lead, gliding effortlessly along. But the freshman stayed right on his heels!

His singular gait was now attracting attention: head pushed forward, arms extended at about a sixty degree angle from his body, palms turned upward, long legs rapidly chewing up the quarter-mile, he "pushed" Jenkins the entire race, finishing only a few yards behind the future Olympic winner.

A few observers were heard to mutter, "who is that guy'"

"Oh, that's Ed Collymore. Another Rindge Tech man. He's a real comer."

It didn't take Ed Collymore long to arrive. By the end of his sophomore year Ed was being referred to as "the sensational sprinter from Villanova." Today he is recognized as being one of the greatest track stars in the world.

Ed first attained fame through his unexpected wins in the 1957 IC4A outdoor finals. Having run only 600 yards and the quarter-mile while at Rindge and during his freshmen year at Villanova, Ed surprised many by sprinting to victories in the 100 and 220 yard dashes.

Jim Elliot, his coach, wasn't surprised though. He had been grooming Ed for this the entire year.

"I had switched courses in my freshman year, so I had to make some credits up," explained Ed one day last week. "I was going to school during the summer, and, wanting to keep in shape, I entered a few meets which were held around my home in Cambridge.

They only had sprints in these meets, so I competed in these. I won a few, and Jumbo read about it. Then, when I came back to Villanova in the fall, Coach had me practice all year."

Ed's great start at sprinting was a portent of things to come. In his junior year, he moved indoors and competed against the top stars at a still shorter distance—60 yards.

Firmly established as a star, Ed lived up to his billing in every meet. He streaked to victories in both the National AAU and the IC4A indoor championships, finishing in near record time of 6.2 seconds.

By the time the outdoor season opened, Colly was recognized as one of the most versatile runners in America. He could enter any race from 60 to 600 yards and probably win; that's just about what he did.

Along with Ron Delany, George Syndor, Charley Stead, Bob Godesky, and Vic DeMaio, Ed participated in the Penn Relays. And these six completed an unprecedented feat—winning three relay championships for the third year in succession.

And it was Ed Collymore who played the most prominent part in this task—outshining even Delany. Running the first leg of the sprint medley and the second of the distant medley, Ed was selected by Jim Elliot to anchor the mile relay team.

Taking the baton from an obviously tired Delany, Ed trailed a Morgan State runner by almost 12 yards. But Colly brought the crowd roaring to its feet by turning in a blisternig 46.0 quarter to win by nearly 15 yards, and help establish a new meet record.

His greatest days were yet to come, however. After having been shelved for several weeks because of a bad leg, Ed returned to competition in the IC4A outdoor meet held at Villanova.

Facing the Middle Atlantic Conference's outstanding star, LaSalle's Ira Davis, Ed finished second in the 100 yard dash, then roared from behind to win the 220 in a spectacular 23.0 seconds.

The nine points Ed contributed enabled the Wildcats to win the IC4A outdoor crown for the second year in a row.

Two weeks later, Ed dashed to a 20.7 second victory in the National Collegiate 220. This insured Colly a place on the U. S. men's team which was to tour Europe.

"I guess that trip was the biggest thrill I ever received," said Ed. "We went to Russia, Poland, Hungary, and Greece. I think the trip got better as we went along, too. The people in Russia were all right—they never hooted or anything like that at us—but I was glad to leave.

"I was running the 220 and a leg on the relay team, and we met some pretty good athletes. I guess the big difference between the Russians and us is that they think of running as a job. But they're real good."

Ed, who is modest to the point of being almost shy, characteristically didn't mention that he won every race in which he competed. The Russians and others saw just his back.

This year has found Ed in a strange position. Now a confirmed sprinter, Ed prefers the shorter dashes to running the quarter-mile or 600.

But Jim Elliot is interested in preparing Ed for the 400 meter run in the 1960 Olympics. Consequently he had Ed run the 600 during the winter indoor season.

Ed responded in what is now accepted fashion for him. He won every 600 invitational in which he competed. Then, when Coach Elliot was looking for points in the IC4A indoor meet, Ed was shifted back to the 60 yard dash.

His performance was typically All-American. He bolted past Penn State's Bob Brown in the last ten yards to win the 60 in 6.2. Then he returned to the boards to lead the mile relay team to a second place finish in a fast time of 3:18.8.

Right now Ed Collymore is preparing himself for the outdoor season. The Russian team is scheduled to come to Philadelphia in late June for a return match with the U. S., and Ed Collymore will undoubtedly be a member of that team. But Ed isn't even thinking of this. Like practically every other man on the track team, Ed thinks of Villanova and the team first. Personal considerations are pushed aside.

Thus, he is now busily preparing to run whatever Coach Elliot wants him to.

"I like the sprints, but I'll run whatever the Coach thinks is best for the team. The Pan-American games and that meet with Russia are coming up, but it's more important to win for Villanova."

That's Ed Collymore. Admittedly influenced by two other men who were always for the team—Charley Jenkins and Phil Reavis—Ed is an All-American in every aspect.

Raveling Will Lead Cagers Next Year

George Raveling, a junior who prepped at St. Michael's in Scranton, Pa., was named captain of the 1959-60 basketball team at the ninth annual court banquet of the Villanova Club of South Jersey last Wednesday in Camden, N. J.

More than 300 alumni and friends heard Coach Al Severance call Raveling "the most loyal and most sincere boy I've ever met" when he announced the selection of the 6-5 forward to lead the Wildcats.

Raveling, in turn, said that he would "try to be a good captain in appreciation for the many opportunities this great university has afforded me."

The Negro captain-elect said that he was "privileged and proud" to be the first member of his race to lead a Villanova sports team.

Joe Ryan, the only senior started on this year's team and the retiring captain, was given the Most Valuable Player award.

Severance congratulated the team, especially seniors Ryan, George Emma, Ken Harrison and Ralph Kowalkowski, on its 18-6 record and its invitation to the NIT.

Joe Barry, of Westville, N. J., was named the outstanding alumnus of the year. Barry was captain of the 1928-29 basketball team and the first president of the Villanova Club of South Jersey.

Joe Walters, assistant basketball coach, was given an award by the club for his efforts on behalf of sports at the university. Walters was captain of the 1944-45 court squad.

Jim Henry, a 1930 Villanova graduate and the athletic director at LaSalle College, was the guest speaker.

Boss Choice Upsets

Eight teams qualified for last Wednesday's quarter finals in the intramural bowling league. At the Main Line Bowling Center the teams represented according to their leagues were; Tues.—Quin Caps, Yoo Hoos, and Boss Choice; Wednesday—Pencil Pushers and Chugalugs; Thursday—Monks and Tigers.

The top seeded Munks were the first upset victims being beaten by the under rated Boss Choice team two games to one. Jack Renia and Joe Petrecca rolled like champs and were helped by the fine team play of Al Napoli and Bull Famigletti. Mike Carguilos 554 series was high for the losers.

The Pencil Pushers had no trouble with the Yoo Hoos as they crushed them in two straight games. It was a different story between the Chug-a-lugs and the Tigers as it took three games and clutch bowlery (852 to 821) before the Chugs came out on top.

The real excitment of the quarter finals was in match between the Quin Caps and Mainliners. After splitting the first two games the Mainliners made their bid for a semi-final birth. They were in the semi-finals till the tenth frome. Hal Sohn and Willie Silvers held up the Mainline attack to this point. Then marks by Paja and Nardo gave the Quin Caps victory.

Track Fete April 27

Tickets are now available for the banquet on April 27 which will honor the track team and outstanding Villanova track athletes of the past.

The tickets are priced at $6 and are on sale in the Alumni office. The Valley Forge Alumni Club is sponsoring the event, which will take place at the Covered Wagon in Strafford, Pa.

Dr. Samuel Johnson: The chains of habit are generally too small to be felt till they are too strong to be broken.

Burlington, Iowa, Hawk-Eye Gazette: The genius of American industry is in building things to last 20 years and making them obsolete in two.

Harold W. Ruopp: Loneliness is not so much a matter of isolation as of insulation.

Lao-tse: Doing nothing is better than being busy doing nothing.

George Bernard Shaw: Few people think more than two or three times a year. I have made an international reputation for myself by thinking once or twice a week.

Joseph F. O'Donnell, president of the General Alumni Association, George Raveling, captain-elect of the 1959-60 basketball team, and Joe Ryan, retiring captain of the team, pose with the Most Valuable Player plaque awarded to Ryan by the Villanova Club of South Jersey.

Football Team Is Ready To Go Through Spring Paces

By DENIS CARDONE

A note of uncertainty marks the opening of spring football practice at Villanova. They don't know when to start.

It seems that word has not been received from the NCAA concerning the length of the spring program. Rumor has it that the 30 day overall period has been extended to 36. Unless this is confirmed, Frank Reagan's charges will have to wait until this Friday.

Whether Coach Reagen gets the extra six days or not pales to insignificance when you look at his returning lettermen.

No less than 20 lettermen will be on the field this fall, barring academic and other difficulties. Combining with these lettermen will be a bountiful crop from last fall's freshmen team.

O'Pella Gone

At end, the loss of mammoth All-East Gene O'Pella may not be felt. Returning will be Tom Heron, (6'3-190) who held down the starting right end post last year.

Besides Heron there will be Paul Tomczyk, (6'-185) and Chuck Walsh, (6'-180). Both will be seniors next year and have seen some action in the past.

From last year's freshmen squad comes the outstanding prospect for the end post vacated by O'Pella. He is Ron Meyers (6'4-215) from St. Michael's in New Jersey. Besides his play at end, Ron is a punter deluxe.

Also from last year's frosh will be Charley Friel (6'-207), Russ Frantz (6'3-190), and Sam Gruneisen who hails from the same high school in Kentucky as Bob Haner, past great at Villanova.

Craig Returns

At tackle, two big names loom. One is Bill Craig who was the team's outstanding linesman at the end of the '57 campaign. A knee injury shelved Bill for the '58 season but his 225 lbs. will no doubt be felt about the gridiron next fall.

The other tackle should be 'Pud' Negle. Pud was the surprise of last season. He was truly one of the outstanding linemen, particularly in the Army game. Pat Brennan (6'3 230) may be the Paul Morra of next fall's squad.

At guard, there is a wealth of material.

Lettermen Frank Cappelletti, Jim Osborne, Larry Sopho, Joe

Luzzi and Jerry Wenclawiak return. All of these saw considerable action either in the first of alternate units last fall.

The center position finds another first string performer returning. He is Ed Lemkin (5'11 200) who was an outstanding linebacker last year.

Pressing him will be soph Regus Magnus (5'11-200) from Munhall, Pa.

Backfield Question Mark

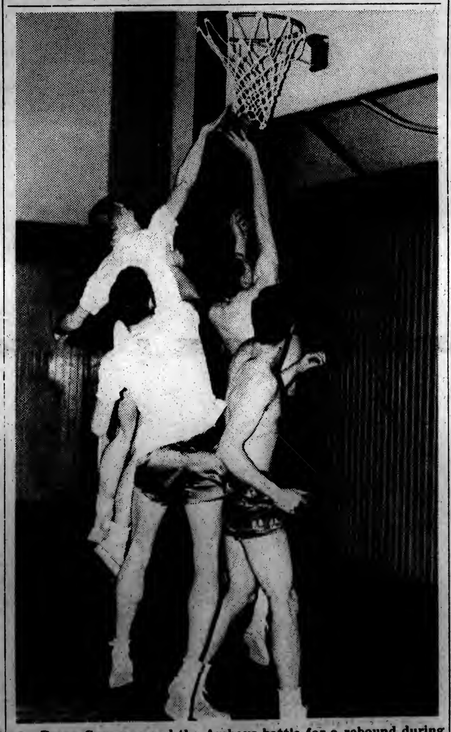
Moving to the backfield, the loss of quarterback Jim Grazione and halfback Dave Intrabartolo will undoubtly leave us weaker in these positions.

In Coach Reagan's offense, a quarterback who can roll out effectively is not only important but essential.

There is no doubting Eddie Roehre's passing ability but he must show some adeptness in running if the "T" is going to click. That is 'IF' Villanova uses the same offense.

Perhaps the 'T' formation won't seem the same without Dave Intrabartolo, but John Daniels and Frank Ficca can make it go.

The return of Daniels, who showed fans some strong defense, Ficca, and Jim Ward, a bulling-type halfback, brightens the halfback picture.



Reggie Powe came on tremendously at the close of last year and must be reckoned with. Also, there are some standout prospects from the frosh squad.

Nick Russo (5'10-170) hailing from Atlantic City, just might be the breakway runner Coach Reagan wants. His spectacular run-backs in last year's West Chester freshmen game showed he has the capability.

Another sparkler in last year's frosh games was Ed Bohan.

Closing out the squad at fullback we see more strength. Both Leon Horin and Billy Paczkoskie return.

These two buldozers, if they stay fit, will provide the power blocking of the "T" and the drives of the straight "T".

Bravo Company and the Amboys battle for a rebound during the Intramural Basketball Championship game. Bravo Company capped top position by a score of 56 to 48.

Casey, Nikita, T. S. Eliot And Springtime Sports?

By TONY MACKLIN

It is the time of the year when the Philadelphia sports fan's interests turn from the last place Warriors to the last place Phillies and last place horses. It is spring and soon Connie Mack Stadium and Garden State Park will be buzzing with activity.

Most certainly, Robin Roberts will pitch a three hitter, bat in a run, and lose 2-1 and Willie Hartack will again be the most hated "darling" in New Jersey.

The grounds keepers are at their busiest now and the venders' school is swamped with uplications.

Action Everywhere

It is spring and Dad is bringing out the Ben Hogan books and Mom is dusting off the croquet set.

Spring has hit the campus; the days grow shorter and the minutes grow longer. At Villanova University, garden spot of Pennsylvania, white pants, sunglasses, shade and picnics are on the way.

It is the time when the young man's fancy turns to short-sleeved shirts and short shorts. Ties are misplaced and convertible tops convert.

Spring Shift

On the sport's scene the change is great, if a little bit slow. The hoopballs have been moth-balled for another year, the intra-mural playoffs are over, and track has moved outside. George Emma, Jim Huggard, and Don McGinley have traded sneakers for spikes, Joe Ryan has received the Villanova MVP award, and George Raveling has been selected as next year's cage captain.

No one can completely avoid the spell of the pre green-gold season. Golf clubs wake up. Even we normally sedentary individuals take the old mitt out to toss a ball around. The alleys are full of halfback enthusiasts making like "the Mick", or Ted, or Willie.

Those who aren't partial to softball or "catch" go for the tennis balls or the reel and tackle. There are even a few very rare individuals who leave the car behind and walk at this time of year. Occasionally a television set is turned off here or there.

Problems

There is an "absurd" theory going around that the way to get ahead of the Russians is to send them all our automobiles and TV sets. Any fool can see that this is thoroughly ridiculous—it would make us backward, we would have to talk and walk.

Thinking of the Russians brings up the usual problems of spring. The Russians will again make their annual claim of credit for inventing "bezball" which will occasion a huge debate between Khrushchev and Stengle. Gene Kelly and By Saam will again create vivid pictures of outfielders catching fly balls that wind up in the upper deck. This will bring on ulcers to some who are less strong than you or I. But at least the Phillies won't wind up in last this year—they have more "speed."

It does seem a shame that there is no organized tennis or crew at VU, but we do have a football team. Its members will be knocking heads in preparation for the crucial fall season that lies ahead.

Coming Up

Closer to the present we have the bright prospect of the Penn relays at Franklin Field, Blue and White day on campus, May 9, and the diamond city series.

Jim Elliott's track team opens outdoor competition on April 11-12 in the Quantico Relays at Quantico. They engage Pitt on B and W day, and they will participate in the IC4A Championship on May 29-30.

We are happy to see that Jim Elliott's (the coach is a busy man) golfsters have twelve matches.

The stalwarts of Art Mahan take on a fine list of opponents, among them: Navy, Army, Penn State, and the city four.

April

The sharp crack of ball against bat, the ump-thump of tennis balls, the swish of rod and reel, the twack of driver on golf ball, the frantic shuffle of spikes on cinder, the time of the roar of a million crowds are here.

Whom was it that said that April is the cruellest month, he missed third base.

April swings.

'Cats Go For Two In Row At Home Against Hoya Nine

By JIM MURRAY

Coach Art Mahan's baseball nine goes after its second straight home win on Friday afternoon, at 2:30 p.m. against Georgetown.

The results of yesterday's game between Villanova and Temple were received to late for publication.

Temple was undefeated and unscored upon in their first two games, beating LaSalle, 1-0, and West Chester, 14-0. The Cats have particular incentive in the game since it's a Big Five contest.

The first game was scheduled for Tuesday, March 31, with Gettysburg but was postponed because of rain. The game was rescheduled for Thursday and the team was half way there before a call reached the turnpike police to stop the bus heading for Gettysburg and tell the ballplayers the game was called off—same reason—wet grounds.

History repeats itself and on Saturday, April 4, the game with LaSalle was postponed. Reason? You guessed it—baseball field underwater.

Between Rainstorms

Last Wednesday the season opened on a bright note as the V.U. nine downed a determined Wagner team by a 2-1 score. The game was marked by great clutch pitching and fine defense.

The pre-season prediction that Villanova won't win if they don't hit went up in smoke after the first game. Although outhit the Cats were not out hustled as they played real good baseball.

The pitching was the story of this game. Joe Michell went six innings and looked like he could have gone sixty. Joe was particularly effective with men on base and ended several rallys with clutch strikouts.

Lee Parry, seventeen pounds heavier than last season and twenty miles faster, finished up the game and got credit for the win. Lee's ball was really moving and it looks like the Wildcats' "not so strong pitching staff" may prove everybody wrong.

The Wagner centerfielder. Ralph DiLullio, got the first hit of the game when he lined a long single off the right field wall in the first inning. The Seahawks got single base knocks in the second and third frames but left both Frank Milos and Ralph DiLullo stranded on second.

The Cats could not reach Matty Ditersa in his three inning stint for the Staten Island nine. That is all except Eddie Monahan who cracked out two singles his first two times at bat.

Wagner started a rally again in the fourth when they had the bases loaded and one out but Michell answered the call by striking out pinch hitter Frank Lanza and leadoff man Dennis Margaris.

Second Run Vital

Villanova broke the deadlock in the lucky seventh, when Bobby Klinck walked and George Emma almost ripped a hole in the right field screen with a booming double that scored Klinck. Rookie, Joe Cramer laced a single to center and knocked in Emma with the run that was to mean the ball game.

The game moved along quickly and the ninth inning set the stage for what will have to be called the "typical Villanova jitters". The Cats had a two run lead but Bill Wilson and Ralph DiLullo (there that name again) didn't give up as they hit for one and two base hits respectively. Parry got the next two batters on flyouts to Monohan.

Lee threw a beautiful third strike to John Brady and that should have been the ball game. The ball got lost under Jack Fahey's spikes and all hands were safe. Harry Orlando tapped a grounder to third baseman Jim Huggard. Hug lost the ball and it trickled into left field.

One run scored and everybody was moving, including Freddie Anthony the ever husling shortstop. He backed up Hug beautifully and held the Sea Hawks to one run. Lee threw out Milos, pitcher to first, and that was the ball game.

The coach said after the game "This was a good one to win for two reasons. It was the first game of the season and it was a close one."

Don't forget to support the team by going to the home games.

Joe Cramer is thrown out by Wagner first sacker, Jim Powers. Wildcat nine won ball game 2-1.

Borian, Huggard and Fahey round third after Anthony flies out to center field for third out in fifth inning of Wagner game.

Thinclads Open at Quantico

By TOM GOLDSCHMIDT

Track coaches Jim Elliott and Jim Tupenny are taking a full squad to the Quantico Relays on Friday and Saturday to kick off the outdoor campaign, but who'll run what was still very much up in the air as this was written.

Elliott said on Sunday that his intention was to enter as many relays as possible so that the greatest number of varsity and freshman runners can see action.

"I hope to put varsity teams in the mile relay, sprint medley and 880-yard relay," said the veteran coach. "But just who will run on each quartet won't be determined until this week's drills are finished."

Ed Collymore and Charlie Stead are expected to be key men in Elliott's juggling to come up with peak performances. Collymore got plenty of work during the indoor season, running the 60-yard dash, the quarter-mile on mile relay attempts, and esky, it will be remembered, helped the Wildcats set a meet record in the distance medley at Quantico last year, making up a big deficit on his three-quarter mile jaunt. the 600.

Best Season

Stead had his finest high-jumping season, and now appears set for a good outdoor running campaign. He ran a bristling 300 to anchor the Wildcats to the indoor national AAU title in the sprint medley.

Junior Jim Blackburn seems ready to blossom forth as a truly outstanding runner. The crew-cut speedster from Somerville, Mass., is fast enough to run the sprint distances and strong enough to cover the 440 in quick time.

Sophomores Joe Manion and Nick DeAngelis have shown terrific development in the past three months. They both ran on the mile relay squad (along with Blackburn and Collymore) which broke the Milwaukee Journal Meet record by winning in 3:17.8.

Bob Godesky, Vic DiMaio, Bill Tinney and Gene Rogers are middle-distance runners who are due for some heavy dutv. God-

Individual Entrants

Villanova will be well-represented in the field events as well as the relay races. John Buckley, who won the outdoor IC4A broad-jump title as a soph last year, will compete in his specialty. John Van Dusen, who is a senior, will compete in one of the hurdle events. Soph Norbert McNulty and junior Kent Lydic are entered in the pole vault.

Coach Elliott says he hopes to be able to enter a good many of his outstanding freshmen, but whether or not a mile relay team will run is not known at this time. Elliott is still dickering with Quantico officials to allow a frosh quartet to compete against the colleges.

Sprinters Frank Budd and Paul Drayton will definitely appear in the dashes, however. Bob Coffill and Bob Raemore will run in the 400-meter hurdles. Leon Pras will wear the Villanova colors in the 120-yard high hurdles. Gerald Donini will put the shot.

There is a chance that two freshmen will run in the invitation 880. They'll be picked from a trio composed of Jon Dante, Pat Nicastro and Frank Hegarty .

Intramural Champions

By GENE HEWITT

An aggressive defense and a hot handed offense enabled the future admirals of Brovo Co. to rake in the championship of the intramural Basketball league in Alumni Gym before Easter as they defeated "The Amboys" by a 56-48 count.

These two finalists were the best of the 92 teams that competed over the season and showed why they were in a game that was close down to the last three minutes.

With Alumni bursting to capacity (cap. 100) including players the Amboys although hampered by the loss of their captain, Prisance and Jimmy Hanker controlling the ball and the score it enabled them to leave the court at halftime ahead 17-15 and seemed very much the better of the teams. But a change seemed to come over Brovo at the half and they came out looking like they wanted to play ball.

With John (The Horse) Gallen picking the boards clean and their captain Murphy directing play smoothly and quickly and the adeptness at steals displayed by Monahan and McElhenny and the almost phenomenal shooting of Mitchell who hit for straight baskets ended the court at 25 all, and then went out to lead by seven more points until the Amboys began to move. With the hot shooting of Wall giving them two quick baskets and a top in by Constankis putting them a point behind the Amboys seemed on the move.

A quick time out was called by Brovo and this forestalled any drive at the moment. This proved to be smart, they switched into a man for man and went out to a nine point lead at 40-31. Again the Amboys came back with goals to tie it as 40.

But this proved to be their dying splurge as Bravo again spurted out to another eight point lead and dominated the play by their ball hawking and rebounding, while picking up four points via the charity line.

The relentless sweep of the minute hand caused the Amboys to become desperate. A steal and a layup by Murphy and a sweeping hook shot by Gallin ended the scoring as Brovo sailed in with the win and the championship for 59.

REAGAN SEES GOOD YEAR AHEAD FOR HIS ELEVEN (See Page 14)

Alumni Hall Sole Polling Site As Pollock Withdraws

By PAUL A. BUCKLEY
of the Villanovan Staff

There will be only one polling place for student council elections this year.

This became apparent last week when Sheldon Pollock failed to re submit his motion for a separate polling place for Commerce and Finance students.

Tom Hoffman, council vice president, said the elections would be held again in Alumni Hall. The council, at the meeting in March, passed after heated debate a proposal to have the polling place in the Classroom Annex building.

Pollock had announced after the March meeting that he intended to reintroduce the bill because he thought the additional polling place was needed for the students at the eastern end of the campus.

Hoffman's proposal to have matriculation cards punched by a paper punch having an unusual design was tabled pending the submission of motions dealing with multiple voting. He said that the punch would expedite voting.

Election Rules

John P. Kelly, chairman of elections, read the recently revised list of election rules.

Those that provoked discussion concerned the VILLANOVAN.

Kelley proposed that "No paid political advertising will be permitted in the VILLANOVAN or on WVIL."

Larry O'Rourke, editor of the VILLANOVAN questioned Kelley's position to impose the non advertising rule. "I have spoken with the moderator of the VILLANOVAN, Father Louis Rongione, about the advertising situation. Father said he left the problem to the discretion of the VILLANOVAN," said O'Rourke.

At this point the Rev. Dante Girolami, O.S.A., moderator of the council, said he was personally opposed to paid advertising in the VILLANOVAN.

Will Run Histories

Bob Murphy, council chairman asked O'Rourke if the VILLANOVAN was willing to publish free the pictures and histories of candidates. O' Rourke said "yes, but not according to the terminology of the Kelley procedure regulations."

If we have the space, we can run pictures and histories although we may not be able to run all the candidates' pictures. We will run the pictures for candidates for all top offices, then in order of descending important, we will run other pictures.

"No candidates will get advantages over their competitors," O'Rourke said.

O'Rourke asked the council, "Is there any objection to the candidates spending their allotted $50 campaign money in the VILLANOVAN?"

Stop Discussion

Murphy refused to hear any more discussion on the point. "I expect that the moderator, editor and managing editor may want to discuss this problem at great length later," he said.

There was then a discussion on the posting of campaign notices.

Father Girolami said that posters and notices during the recent freshmen elections were pasted to blackboards and desks. This referred particularly to the classroom annex.

"No notice may be posted in any classroom," Father Girolami said.

Post Nominations

Council member Gerry McGrath then suggested that the

Jr. Dinner Dance Tickets On Sale

Individual seat tickets for the Junior Dinner Dance will be put on sale today, according to chairmen Ray Rafferty and John Driscoll.

Costing $11.50, they will be available after 10 a.m. in 125 Sheehan. There is a supply of both floor and balcony seats. Table tickets have been sold out.

Bob McCauley notes sale of first Jr. Dinner-Dance Ticket.

The affair will be held in the main ballroom of the Broadwood Hotel, Broad and Wood Streets in Philadelphia. Adequate special parking facilities have been provided for Juniors.

Rafferty announced that the theme is "A Special Night . . . Sentimental Memories". The committee has contracted the band of Al Raymond, familiar at Villanova affairs. There will be a pianist and vocalist during dinner.

The dance will begin 6:30 p.m. and grace for dinner will be said at 7. Rafferty urged everyone to be on time. Every effort will be made to seat every Junior at a table with his acquaintances.

Bob McCauley is Tickets and Program chairman, and Jon Rietzke is publicity chairman.

Food Poll Results Tallied Student Preference Wide

By TOM GOLDSCHMIDT
of the Villanovan Staff

John Gozo, left, seems ecstatic over that Old Brair aroma emanating from Don Kempf's Meerschaum, in rehersal for T 'n T's "Piper-Heidsieck '98".

All the following items have been stricken from the composite menu used by Dougherty Hall Administrator Paul Spescia for the resident cafeteria:

New England Boiled Dinner (Corned Beef);
Poached Filet of Sole;
Creamed Frizzled Ham;
Clear Lamb Stew;
Shrimp and Apple Salad;
All forms of turnips;
All sweet potatoes except candied;
Baked White Lima Beans;
Stringless Beans with tomatoes;
Brussel Sprouts;
All forms of cabbage;
Creamed carrots with parsley;
Creamed Pearl Onions;
Ham and Mushrooms in Cream;
Red Salmon and Macaroni in Casserole;
Browned Roast Beef Hash;
Hungarian Goulash;
Salmon Salad, and Ham and Celery Salad.

Spescia met with representatives from the Student Council, led by Student Body President Bob Murphy, last Thursday, and after hearing the results of the recent Food Poll, agreed to do away with all those dishes which met with approval from less than an agreed-upon percentage of those resident students who voted (approximately 1300).

Not Prime Move

Since many of the departed dishes only appear on the menu infrequently, their disposal was not considered by the Student Council representatives the most important move taken in response to the poll.

Some of the other agreements made by Spescia seemed to have more far-reaching significance. After hearing the comments of various students read to him, Spescia said that he would do all he could to improve the preparation of the food.

He said that he would check into the complaint that peas and baked potatoes often seem not completely cooked. Also, Spescia said that he would look into the method of preparation of chicken and double pork chops, both of which dishes were subject of countless student complaints.

The affable administrator agreed that his kitchen help often cook spaghetti too long, causing it to be gummy. He'll try to cut down on the boiling time, add some "pep" to the sauce, and schedule that meal on days other than Friday so that meat balls or meat sauce can be served with it.

The entire meeting went off quite smoothly and both Spescia and the members of the com-

Turf and Tinsel Tickets Go On Sale In Pie Shoppe

Tickets for this year's Turf n' Tinsel production of Piper Heidsieck "98" will go on sale today. The sale of tickets will continue up to and including April 24.

They can be purchased in the Pie Shoppe, Athletic Office, from the members of the production, and at the door. In addition, there will be a door-to-door sale of tickets the week of the show.

Students Night, in keeping with previous tradition, will be the opening night production on Wed., April 22. A special ticket price of $.75 is being offered to Villanovans and their dates on this night only. Local colleges have been notified of the production and a large attendance is expected. These students will also be given the reduced price.

Student tickets, at all other performances will sell at $1. General admission tickets will sell for $1.50.

A special Mother's Day performance will be given Sunday evening as the opening function of Junior Week. Mothers in the company of their sons will be given free tickets.

Curtain time for all performances is 8:30 p.m. The production is expected to cover a two and a half hour period. Eight hundred tickets are available for each performance.

According to Robert Whelen, co-producer, "Piper Heisetck" is more complicated than past Turf n' Tinsel productions. Piper requires eight changes of scenery and involves over one hundred people. The large cast and frequent changes of scenery are necessary because of the worldwide coverage of the musical.

Piper Heidseick "98" is divided into two acts, with a prologe and four scenes in the first act and threee scenes in the second act.

The curtain rises on a tenemant scene in Brooklyn N. Y. From here on the heroic Murphy family is followed frantically around the country; from Brooklyn to the Main Line and then to Atlantic City. Finally in a state of exhaustion, they return to the Main Line and the curtain falls.

Around the World

The second act finds the Murphy family adrift on the continent. Again, as in the second act, the Murphy family is off to the races with appearances in Vienna, London and Paris.

The "59" production of Piper

NFCCS Plan Dance

The National Federation of Catholic College Students will Sponsor a Regional Dance this coming Friday night, April 17.

It will be held in the LaSalle College Auditorium, which is located at Broad street and Olney Avenue in Philadelphia.

The musical mood will be set by the Debonaires, a local Orchestra.

Admission to the dance, which is open to the public, will be $1.50 a couple and $1 stag.

John J. Curtin (left) and Frank J. Dynan, senior English majors, resigned this week as editors of The VILLANOVAN. Curtin was managing editor and Dynan was news editor on the 1958-59 staff. Their resignations will make room on the staff for underclassmen who will take over the operation of the student paper in May.

Three Awarded Grant

Three awards for graduate study have been granted to seniors in Chemical Engineering, it was announced by Dr. Robert E. White of the Chemical Engineering Department.

The awards were to: James R. Clark, The Nuclear Science Fellowship from the Atomic Energy Commission; Joseph Krackeler, a Fellowship at Columbia University; Ralph Pasceri, a Fellowship at Johns Hopkins University.

Sigma Xi Open For Science Studies

The Society of the Sigma Xi has granted permission to Villanova University to form a chapter on the Campus. The Society has as its sole purpose "the encouragement of original investigation in science, pure and applied."

It was founded in 1886 and currently has some 134 Chapters and 80 Clubs. Any group wishing to form a chapter must first pass through a probation period as a club. The essential difference between the two groups is that only chapters have the privilege of electing members to the Society.

The Sigma Xi Club at Villanova has been formed by 16 Faculty members who were elected to the Society at other schools. Dr. William Rice, of Chemical Engineering, has been elected Chairman and Dr. Kenneth O'Driscoll, of Chemistry, has been elected Vice-Chairman.

There will be an installation meeting later this Spring. Next fall the Society will sponsor a series of lectures which will be open to the public.

Sophs To Pick Rings

Information on specifications and ordering procedures of class rings for the class of 1961 is now available, announced John Fitzgerald, C and F, Chairman of the Ring Committee.

Fitzgerald urged that all sophomores check details on the sophomore bulletin board in the University Shop.

Orders for fall delivery will be taken in the VILLANOVAN office from April 28 to May 1. A ten dollar deposit is due at that time. No order placed after those dates will be delivered with the class order, due to arrive early next fall.

Ring options for consideration include weight, color, stone, finish, and engraving.

Council Suspends Three Societies

Three campus organizations were suspended last week from the student council for failure to submit monthly reports.

Suspended at the request of Joe Mason, council chairman of fraternities and societies, were the VILLANOVAN, the Villanova Band, and the Society for the Advancement of Management.

Larry O'Rourke, editor of the VILLANOVAN, and Carlo Le Vecchio, representative for the Villanova band, objected to Mason's request.

O'Rourke said that a staff member of the VILLANOVAN had promised to submit the report, but did not. Le Vecchio said the report had been submitted late and placed in the wrong folder in the student council office.

Mason declined however to withdraw on his motion which promoted the first in a long series of loud debates.

Answering LeVecchio, Mason said, "If you want gum from a gumball machine, you don't put the penny on top of the machine. You put it in the machine. The same applies to the band. They should have put their report in the right box at the right time."

Mason said he felt the VILLANOVAN should be suspended for one week because "of the principle of the thing."

The council members did not discuss SAM because representative Bob Cunius was not present at the meeting.

The discussion was touched off when chairman Bob Murphy asked O'Rourke to explain the position of the VILLANOVAN at the outset of the meeting.

Rochester U. Offers Graduate Scholarship

Graduate courses and special seminars in mathematics are now being offered by the University of Rochester.

Working assistantships and full scholarships are available for M. A. candidates and Ph. D. degrees.

Tax-exempt fellowships and contract fellowships financed by the National Science Foundation are also being offered to Ph.D. candidates.

Information may be obtained by writing to Professor W. F. Eberlein Department of Mathematics, University of Rochester, Rochester 20, New York.

Start Series Of Lectures On Augustine

The first lecture of a new series on St. Augustine and the Augustine Tradition will be presented by Villanova University, on Sunday, April 8.

The general theme, as announced by the Reverend Robert Russell, O.S.A., Chairman of Department, will concern St. Augustine's influence on the intellectual life of the West past and present.

Augustine was the exclusive Christian authority until the 13th century and now shares this position with St. Thomas'. The idea for the series will be to study concepts of Augustine for their own value, for "They are timely and timeless," as Fr. Russell so aptly stated.

First Lecture

The individual lectures will be concerned with various aspects of Augustine, both ethical and speculative. "St. Augustine on Personality" will be the first subject. The speakers will be outstanding American and European scholars in the field of philosophy, especially Augustinian philosophy.

The first lecturer will be the Reverend Paul Henry, S. J., the world-wide authority on St. Augustine and Neo-Platonism. He is a professor of theology at the Institut Catholique of Paris but is presently serving as visiting professor at Duke University.

His teaching experiences have been many and varied. They include visits in America to the Universities of Pennsylvania, Fordham and Iowa State; and Oxford, Louvain, and Paris in Europe.

Born In Belgium

Fr. Henry was born in Louvain, Belgium in 1906 and spent a few years in England at Oxford during the War. He entered the Society of Jesus in 1923 and completed his philosophical and theological studies at the University of Louvain. His study of the classics was completed at the Universities of Belgium and Paris.

He obtained his B.A. in 1933 and the Ph.D. in 1938 from the University of Paris. In 1941 the Gregorian University of Rome conferred on him the degree of Doctor of Divinity.

Fr. Henry has also published many books, mostly in field of the Classics and "Plotin et l'Occident," and La Vision d'Ostie de Saint Augustin" are two of the more noted ones.

Arts Fraternity Nominations Held

Tom Labrecque, Harry Rowe, and Jim Merkangas, were nominated for president in Delta Pi Mu nominations last Wednesday.

Other nominations include Bill Vincent, John Berkenhauer, Terry Curley, and Denis Cardone, for vice-president, Dave Beecher, Tom Peretti, Ken Kraemer, Bill McManus, and Tom Wolf for treasurer.

Also nominated were John Quinn, John Williams, Kraemer, Berkenhauer, and Peretti for recording secretary; Al Fisher, Cardone, Al Bauso, Bob Viola, Bill Bufford, Peretti, and Matt McCue, for corresponding secretary; and T. Labrecue, Herb Lettau, and Bufford for Student Council representative.

German Unification Aired By Rudhart Before IRS

Dr. Alexander Rudhart, of the History Department, speaking before the International Relations Society last week, declared that, in his opinion "German unification will not come in our time."

This admittedly pessimistic viewpoint of Rudhart's is soundly based on a wide understanding and a penetrating analysis of history and current events related to Germany.

Rudhart's topic, "The Problems of German Reunification," attracted a large audience. His rapid-fire delivery and sense of humor kept proceedings very much alive.

Marshall Plan A Cause

After a discussion of German unity and disunity from the 17th Century to the days of Bismark, the Iron Chancellor, Rudhart explained the many political, social, and economic situations leading to the present crisis. In particular, the division of Germany after the war, and the subsequent economic fusion of the three western zones under the Marshall Plan, are responsible for today's problem.

Economic fusion made political fusion of the western zones a most practical step; this was accomplished in 1949 and the West German State was formed.

Russian Position

Rudhart declared that, objectively speaking, the Russian position regarding Berlin and unification is understandable. None of the allies suffered so great a loss of life and destruction of property as did Russia. Fear of a repetition of this by a reunified Germany is undoubtedly influencing Communist policy.

Another factor affecting Russia in this regard is the present economic pre-eminence of East Germany. Moscow simply cannot afford to surrender her star satellite.

Rudhart's succinct summation of the complex problems of German unification prompted interesting questions and sustained appiause from the floor.

will be the second performance of the musical at Villanova in the past nine years. It was played here previously in 1951. In addition, "Piper Heidsieck" ran for a week at Town Hall in Philadelphia during World War II. This production was put on by the combined Armed Forces in the greater Philadelphia area.

Turf n' Tinsel was organized at Villanova in 1933 under the direction of one of the Four Horsemen, Harry Stuhldreher, Struhldreher at that time was serving in the capacity of football coach. Since that time the Turf n' Tinsel has appeared annually; with the exception of a brief period during the War.

This year's production will be operating on a budget of $3500. According to Whelen, "the budget is sufficiently large to allow for the number of scenes necessary and the colorful costumes depicting the gay nineties".

Cast Spirited

Whelen is optimistic with this years production. "The scenery is of higher quality, the dancers are better and the cast is excellent", he says. "In addition the participants on the whole are showing an avid interest".

Recalling past shows, Whelen revived his store of memories of some of the more notable performers of past T n' T performers.

He was particularly emphatic on the role Gene Filipski played in the musical, Robin Hoodwink. "A good performer with a fine voice", said Whelen. Other notables mentioned were Ron Delany and Don Bragg. Whelen also commented on the excellent cooperation shown by all concerned.

It was announced that John Gozo Sr. CF, will star in the role of Morticia. George Nooke was named co-director of the show's dancers.

V.U. Hikers Thanked By Fire Fighters

Mr. Eugene Ruane, Villanova Public Information Director, forwarded the following letter addressed to the Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, Villanova President by the recording secretary of the Swedesburg Volunteer Fire Department. The letter was dated March 22, 1959.

Reverend and Dear Father:

On Saturday, March 21, 1959 a fierce woods fire damaged several homes and swept over some 30 acres of forest in the Gulph Mills area of Upper Merion Township.

Three of your very fine students who were hiking in the vicinity volunteered their services in aiding our company, with 300 other firemen representing 13 companies to combat the blaze.

James Vaccaro, Charles S. Bacse, and Timothy Kornowski, are to be complimented for their kind assistance. Their quick action and mannerism have made a deep impression on our company members.

These students are truly representative of the spirit of Catholic men so well known with the traditions of Villanova.

We would appreciate very much Father, if you would thank these men for us.

As citizen firemen, we were proud to have them work side by side with us in preventing a far more serious fire.

Respectfully yours,
Edward J. Dybicz
Recording Secretary

Hornbeck Tells Law Forum Of U.S. Stand In Far East

By LAWRENCE M. O'ROURKE
of the Villanovan Staff

Stanley Hornbeck, former chief of the State Department's Far East Division, told the Villanova Law Forum last week that intellectuals in this country who advocate the recognition of Communist China are doing a "great disservice".

Hornbeck said that these intellectuals "fail to realize that the offshore islands for which the United States nearly went to war to protect late last year are vital to the morale of the free world.

"Matzu, Quemoy, and Formosa, with the dozens of other smaller islands in the group, stand as a rallying point, a symbol to which all free men can look."

Hornbeck said that more than ten million people live in these islands. More than two million are refugees from the Communist dominated mainland.

'Elite' Chinese

"The Chinese refugees are the elite of all Chinese in the Far East," Hornbeck said. "They know why there are there; they are opposed to Communism, or want freedom, or want to determine their own existence, many reasons."

Hornbeck said that the United States must run the risk of war rather than surrender the offshore islands or in anyway retreat from the present nonrecognition stand.

"In opposing any group as powerful as Red China on the international level, we run the risk of war, but we must do that if our ideals of freedom are to survive."

Hornbeck said that "those who advocate the recognition of the Peking government and their admission into the United Nations are ignorant or indifferent to the facts-moral, psychological and strategic.

Dulles Position Sound

The former state department expert applauded the Far East position of Secretary of State Dulles.

"Dulles' position is sound and in line with this Country's ideals of peace, security, and justice," he said.

Hornbeck said he didn't expect any near future rebellions.

Will Retreat

"The Communists are careful to push the people just so far. They will retreat if necessary." Hornbeck said the recent lessening of the harsh commune system demonstrated this.

"If we were to discard our principles for a little trade, as Great Britain did in their recognition of Peking, we would sacrifice for procedure," the Far East expert said.

"We have no indication that recognition would be to our advantage anyway," he said, That assumption is speculative, hazardous and incompatible with good judgement."

Tickets On Sale For Mother's Day

Ticket sales for Junior Week Mothers Day went on sale April 8 and will continue until April 22, according to chairmen Ed Scott and Jack King.

They emphasized that positively no tickets will be sold after that date, in order that complete arrangements can be made for catering and other events of the day.

A ticket costing $8.50 will cover the entire affair.

Tentatively, plans call for Mothers Day to begin with an 11 a.m. outdoor Mass on April 27. Festivities will be concluded by 6 p.m.

A definite time schedule for the day will be announced at a later date.

Arrangements will be made to accommodate traveling companions of the mothers.

WVIL-PaperDance To Be Held May 16

Tickets for the annual Villanovan-WVIL Dinner Dance will go on sale this week. The affair will be held at the Warwick Hotel, 1701 Locust St., Philadelphia, on Saturday, May 16.

Tickets are five dollars and are available to all members of both organizations. Tickets may be obtained from WVIL Publicity Director Bob Rafano, 314 Sullivan, and from VILLANOVAN Associate Editor Tom Goldschmidt, 316 Sullivan.

VILLANOVAN Editor, Larry O'Rourke, and WVIL Station Manager, Bill Washington, will announce next year's staff organizations.

Vote For Top Athlete

Voting for the Outstanding Senior Athlete will take place in the Pie Shoppe tomorrow. All students are urged to cast their vote for a single favorite.

Nominations for the award were conducted by the coaches in football, track, baseball, basketball, golf, and swimming.

The award will be presented at sports night of junior week.

B.L.O.B. Solicits Books For Shipment To South Africa

The B.L.O.B., by-name, of the College and University Relief Administration book drive which means "bring lots of books," will be conducted until this Friday.

The Books are being collected at the main bulletin board in Dougherty Hall and in the C&F cafeteria.

"The only qualification is that the books be legible," said Pete Devlin chairman of B.L.O.B. They may be fiction or text or anything. If the books are unfit as reading material they will be sold to help pay transport costs. All books will go to Pius XII College, Basutoland, South Africa.

"The B.L.O.B. will be beneficial to us in many ways," said Devlin. "It affords us an opportunity to give to a worthwhile charity and it gives us a chance to get rid of unused old books."

"Since its conception in 1949," said Devlin, "Pius XII college has been a struggling institution overcoming insurmountable obstacles in the true missionary style. Up to now the College has been provided for by the spirit of Catholic missionaries and lay men. But now its foundation must be supplimented with something more tangible. A good library will be a step in the right direction.

"Get into the B.L.O.B. spirit and do some spring cleaning," he urged, "Pick up the old books, blow off the dust and give them to the BLOB."

nomination lists be posted on bulletin boards in Dougherty Hall. Father Girolami agreed with the suggestion.

Instead of pressing for an additional polling place, Pollock withdrew his proposals at the meeting.

"I wish to thank the Veteran's Club for their endorsement of my stand as well as all others who have given me support," he said.

NO COMPLAINTS HERE

There is only one serious complaint about Friday night's senior prom.

Not enough seniors were there to enjoy it.

The prom committee, under chairman Gregory Dean, lined up an outstanding band, provided suitable, although too few favors, and made every effort to provide the traditional success.

The feeling however among the senior class this year was that it wasn't fashionable to go to the prom.

There were pre-prom mumbles of "day-hop-ism," charges that the band was poor for dancing, and annoyance at the traditional place of the dance, the field house.

All of these objections proved to be unfounded Friday night. Those who foolishly accepted the pre-prom complaints and stayed away missed another outstanding Villanova class affair.

Someday (soon, we hope) the mumblers will realize that their way is not the only proper one.

Council 'Closed Thinking' Alarms Two Senior Members

Student Council representatives are mature responsible student leaders who realize the seriousness, if at times, the uselessness, of their decisions.

Council members, as such, generally maintain they have a right to their votes and opinions. When those rights are challenged, it was shown at last week's meeting, the members bristle.

Unhappily, however, the meeting pointed out a flaw in the thinking of various council members.

We concur with senior class president Oz Scogna who charged that the council was approaching a state of "closed thinking." Scogna said many of the members were not voting and thinking as STUDENT representatives. They were worrying about the reaction a particular motion would receive from the administration.

The time for expression of administration approval and disapproval, pointed out senior chairman Bob Murphy, was not on the council floor, but at the regular faculty-student committee meeting.

We hope the advice of Scogna and Murphy will be heeded at subsequent council meetings. They will be the first to admit that where there is no freedom of opinion, there is no need for a student council dedicated to the expression of that opinion.

Letters To The Editor

To the editor:

Again, my date to the class prom left the field house without a favor.

Last year, the committee admitted they had underestimated the numbers of couples that would attend. I gave my name and address. The chairman said he would mail the favor to my home.

I am still waiting.

Last Friday night at the senior prom, my date again was gypped.

The chairman said he had purchased 400 favors. Only 260 couples showed up at the prom. Despite this, my date still was left out. Where are the other favors?

This time, however, there was no pretense. One illiterate helper that I questioned said to me, "We ain't got any more, so I won't mail you more."

I don't expect the favor from the junior prom to arrive ever, really.

Unfavored

To the editor:

Why don't we lynch those conniseurs who pronounced last Saturday night, "That dinner was one of the best I ever ate?"

Upset

To the editor:

I have noticed in the past year a dire lack of scientific news and features in the Villanovan. The only significent article in the scientific vein was the series on Mars published some months ago.

Let us hope that the Villanovan doesn't become so completely monopolized by the Arts school that they overlook the interests of the rest of the school.

A Short Voyage Home

By LARRY O'ROURKE

To some Spring means more than just another season. . . .

The early April sun smiled generously on the inmates in the workyard of county prison.

Two old codgers—neither knew how old he really was—puttered almlessly about the twenty-five by thirty foot patch of grass that looked so out of place in the hollow formed by the drab prison buildings.

The fellow with the red suspenders held a pair of shears which now and then he snapped at the year old grass that had survived the winter.

His partner on what the guard captain listed as the "yard-fresh-up detail" scrapped the brown earth with the fingered end of the six foot rake.

Every few minutes they would do a little of the freshing up that the detail called for.

But mainly they stood and looked off, up to the blue sky with its freshly laundered look, or at some of the other prisoners scrubbing down the cell block houses they called home.

The day was Friday, April 3, 1959, just three months since they applied for "registration".

The two old men on the fresh-up detail had spent Christmas at the mission house near the Philadelphia aproach to the Benjamin Franklin Bridge to New Jersey.

From Christmas to New Year's they slept in tenderloin hotels. The per day tab was 75 cents. A bottle of cheap wine cost about the same. The little food they needed didn't come to any more than the wine.

Then the day after the great Mummer's parade the two old men did what they had been doing for 15 years.

They bought a fifth of cheap whiskey, drank it slowly and then wandered to Independence Square. Their motives were clear in this. City police generally are watchful in National park areas. And Market street was the northern boundary for the 19th police district.

Cops of the 19th didn't let drunks wander around loose.

So the two old men went peacefully when the last-out shift sergeant pushed them into the emergency wagon. Nor did they murmur when the magistrate the next morning pronounced the expected sentence.

"Three months in county prison. Who's next?"

In the warmth of Moyamensing the old men spend the bitter winter months. It's a dull time of the year for panhandling anyway.

Now it was April 3 and the old men were spending their last few hours on the patch of grass in the windy but warm prison yard.

Tomorrow they would be released to return to the tenderloin, to spend nights on park benches, to spend the days selling blood for wine or watching automobiles dart onto the Benjamin Franklin Bridge.

Summer was their time of year. Autumn would mean chilly weather. Then Christmas and New Year's. Another cycle.

To some Spring means more than just another season. . . .

New Scapegoat Blasts Off To Nowhere In Particular

By JIM McATEER

EDITOR'S NOTE: What this campus needs is something to throw rocks at—something so pointless that, in ridiculing it, students will be working off all the tensions that build up in an average day. Therefore, as a public service, we present this column. Its author is a gentleman (we use the term loosely) of absolutely no repute. Bombs and threatening letters can be delivered care of this newspaper.

Three, two, one, zero . . . and we're off. I think. It's difficult to begin a column, especially when I was expecting wild ovations and instead, the editors tell me I am elected campus scapegoat. But I have agreed to write and am a more or less honorable man, so I'll begin with a review of my capabilities for this job, department by department:

I. Body—In nineteen years I have grown approximately six feet, which is pretty good considering that I started from scratch. I am large enough to be easily seen whenever a volunteer is needed for an unsavory project, and small enough to make a miserable basketball player. I am thin enough to squeeze between fat people and grab seats on buses and fat enough so that decent people don't point, laugh and call me names.

Battle Scars

I have a scar on my chin from where a girl hit me for pushing her off a swing (we were both quite young) and another scar that I got from not seeing a parked car one New Year's Eve.

II. Mind—My mind, whose existence is frequently questioned, really does quite well, all things considered. It used to be more stable (when I concentrated on drinking only milk), but to examine it now you have to sneak up from behind, throw a burlap bag over it, and pin it down with a forked stick.

My mind is bent on making me appear debonaire, personable, loyal, generous, brave, and contemplative, which may account for its bedraggled state. It still doesn't realize what it's up against in this regard. Sometimes it becomes slippery and tries to get out through my ears. It's gone now, as a matter of fact.

III. Knowledge—Here I shine. I probably know more useless and fewer usefull things than anyone else on campus except for a certain professor of my acquaintence. I know that Communism and Democracy are opposed, but I'm not sure where Liberalism comes in.

The Sublime . . .

I know that all human happiness is contained in service to others, but I generally let it go at that. I know that if hot fat is poured down a drain, it may cool and block the pipe, and that Tananarive is the capital of Madagascar.

I can make a car go if nothing is wrong with the engine, and I know a song called "Maggie O' Day Is Queen Of the May".

IV. Abilities—I can ride a bicycle. I can give a passable imitation of Noel Coward singing. I can't slide down bannisters because I'm afraid of the knob at the end. I can sail in a boat, but will try to jump overboard if anything breaks.

And the Ridiculous

I can replace a fuse if I have an affidavit from the Electric Company that the power is turned off both at my place and at theirs, and I can send a ten word message in Morse code if it makes no difference to the person at the other end whether or not he can understand it.

Only a few things remain: my chief fear is to be caught in a night club with only one entrance when someone tells me "There are a couple of guys who want you outside". My chief delight is women, but I think men are easier to understand and get along with. I enjoy occasional periods of solitude, but after a couple of hours by myself I have to go and stand in railroad stations to get back to normal. I haven't the vaguest idea what to write about next week.

Demagogue's Manifesto

St. Joseph's College again won the "Big Five" Sportsmanship award. Some students have no real desire to go all out attempting to cop this award. In a recent edition of St. Joe's "Hawk", student Adam Wright neatly summed up some opinions of pro-sportsman fanaticism.

When I am eight and twenty,
When I'm a score and eight;
I want to be a demagogue,
With a bass drum and tin plate.
I'll bring the drum to school some day,
Which is against the rules;
And make the children laugh and sing,
And make the teachers fools.
I'll make the playful kids think
It's their bounden duty;
To jump and scream like Barbary apes,
Joy forever is a thing of beauty.
Like Ghenghis Khan I'll lead a parade,
And incite the moldy horde,
To defy the forces of law and order;
And I'll roar like a drunken lord.
I'll see my likeness in the morning Inquirer,
And my bosom will swell with pride;
I'll be a hero to the lunatic fringe,
And I'll be to my classmates a guide.

Czech Reds Hold Grad

John Robert Kennedy, a Villanova graduate serving with the Army in Germany, inadvertently crossed the border into Communist-dominated Czechoslovakia on August 23, 1958.

The Reds arrested him for "criminal and dangerous action" and sentenced him to 14 months of hard labor in the Pankraz Prison.

Two weeks ago, his worried parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kennedy of Philadelphia, were informed by the Czech government that their son can expect no clemency.

This tragedy in the life of one so close to Villanova raises a number of questions. What kind of a man was Kennedy? The people who knew him as an undergraduate agree that he was a quiet, reserved person. Members of the English Department, and particularly Dr. Edward McGrath, recognized that he was a student of superior caliber. His interest in English literature, it was realized, would prove to be an excellent foundation for his planned career as a teacher.

JOHN ROBERT KENNEDY
Held by Czech Reds

All-Around Man

Fellow students regarded Kennedy as a fine basketball player, but he was not exclusively sports-minded. Other hobbies in which he engaged were extensive reading in almost every field of literature, and collecting albums of operatic performances. In short, Kennedy was an all-round college student.

Staff members at the Villanova Library, where he worked as a student employee, liked Kennedy. He was a good worker one who always took his position seriously.

What can the Communists hope to gain from imprisoning an obviously inoffensive man? Since no serious charge has been brought against Kennedy, his captors must regard him as only a minor offender.

The Communist plan for world domination by any possible means is the sole basis for the arrest of a man recongized by all who know him as a perfect gentleman.

Sprouts Doomed By Poll

(News Item: The food polls, having been tabulated, indicated a general dislike for several foods, among them brussel sprouts. They were forthwith removed from the menu.)

With a rash, impetuous stroke of the pencil, hundreds of resident students have sentenced the Brussel Sprout to oblivion. The food polls have signified that this vegetable, along with an assortment of other foods, has got to go.

Is this dissatisfaction merely local or is the American stomach in general growing tired of the miniature cabbage? Is the market due for a setback, with all the federal price supports that this entails? A bit of investigation gives evidence to the contrary.

Popular Acclaim

The Ardmore food markets inform us that Main Line housewives are consuming Brussel Sprouts with unprecedented eagerness. Wayne and Bryn Mawr stores give the same report. It's clear that the man in the street still likes them.

This suggests the the vegetable might have received snabby justice as a result of our reckless haste. It's altogether possible that we gave it such a miserable rating simply because of the distressing way in which it was cooked. But the tabulators of the poll apparently construded the poll to mean that we abhor the Brussel Sprout itself. Of course, nothing could be farther from the truth. Nevertheless, it was banished from the menu.

But it seems that banishment on these grounds is like giving up cigarettes just because the brand you smoke gives you nosebleeds; the thinking man merely switches to a milder brand. Maybe all the Brussel Sprout needs is an extra fifty seconds on the burner. Now we'll never know.

Campus Politicians

By J. P. KELLEY

In a few weeks your luncheon in our immaculate cafeteria will be disturbed by what you might consider a college demagogue. Residents might be interrupted during study by a Villanovan rapping at their door and screaming, "I will give you outstanding leadership." Yes, the campus politician will be making his fatiguing rounds in contemplation of nothing but victory.

What motivates this man? He usually gives as the reason that he wants to do something for the class. There is nothing wrong with such a motive. We all want prestige and recognition, but only the campus politician is willing to suffer the indignities of his classmates in his quest for it.

Friend or Foe?

The little cards which these gentlemen pass out will enumerate the virtues that they supposedly posses, a campaign slogan, and possibly the telephone numbers of neighboring race tracks. Perhaps they have not spoken to you all year, but now they want your vote and try to become your best friend. When the election is over you might meet them again and they will show no sign of recognition—not out of conceit, but because they forgot your name and are too embarrassed to let you know it. Forgive all this because you would do the same and the same would happen to you if you were a campus politician.

When judging candidates, do so on their merits and abilities as you know them, rather than on their "nice guy" approach. Anybody can be a nice guy; it is just that some have the knack of being nicer than others. Remember—the most personable is not always the most able.

With the divisional system of electing Council representatives, the opportunity of personally meeting each candidate is much greater. If you don't know them—meet them and rate them according to your standards of leadership. Elect the general class officers on the basis of their previous record. What have they done for the honor of your vote? Are they putting on a good campaign? Efficiency in a campaign often means efficiency in office.

Knowledge Essential

On the other hand, campus politicians should know something about the office they are seeking. If they intend to become a candidate for the Student Congress they should attend some of the meetings and observe student government in action. If they want to become Class President they should talk with the incumbent and pay close attention to his handling of class affairs. In fact, the first question to be asked of candidates is—What have you done to prepare yourself for this office?

Candidates should not slander their opponents, for slander is immoral, and politically, it breeds loss rather than gain of votes. It does not do the class any good; for the animosity is continued after the election and we all know that a class without unity functions poorly. Do not even speak of your opponents; publicity or of any type will often bring them votes.

Candidates should not be radicals, nor should students vote for radicals. Many students want a taproom on campus, but imagine the disgrace if such a thing were ever to come about or were even sought after. Yet, there are some goofs on campus who would seriously consider sponsoring such an immoral proposal.

Reciprocate Necessary

Aspirants for office should not be vehemently anti-administration. When elected they should express reasonable points of view in a sane manner and expect the same from the Administration. Remember we are here at the invitation of the Augustinian Fathers, not they at our invitation.

Candidates must realize that when their classmates confer prestige upon them they must reciprocate—by carrying out the duties of their office to the best of their ability, exerting as much energy as is necessary for the success of the class and the welfare of the school.

Elected office holders are of paramount importance in promoting the name of Villanova. The whole student body is rated by their actions since these campus officials deal with the public, the Administration, and the students, faculties, and administrations of other schools. If ther are lazy, lax, and stupid, how can the student body which elected these "best men among them" be interpreted as being anything but the same? When election day rolls around remember all of this and vote wisely.

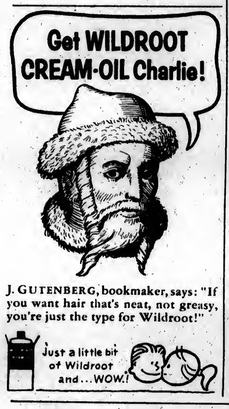
ACES Plan Second Annual Dinner, Panel Discussions

The ACES (Americans for Competitive Enterprise System) will hold its second annual dinner and panel discussion at Villanova Tuesday, May 12.

ACES is a non-profit organization whose primary purpose is the economic education of society.

Its directors are high echelon business leaders in southeastern Pennsylvania. Each year they travel to local colleges and high schools for panel discussions on questions having contemporary economic importance.

The panelists will be management officials of Philadelphia and local businesses.



They will consider such practical economic topics as the threat of automation on small businesses; the inflation problem; and the problem of competition with Russia. Questions will be posed by students from the floor.

Various industries will be represented on the panel with men from the banking and retailing fields, as well as small and heavy industries.

1947 Graduate Joins Montgomery-Scott Co

Mr. Michael A. Cruise, Villanova '47, has recently become associated with the firm of Montgomery, Scott and Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange. He will serve as registered representative.

Cruise, who served with the United States Marines in the second World War, is active in civic affairs and financial circles.

Grant Approved For Chem Project

An application for a Grant-In-Aid to Villanova has been approved by the Petroleum Research Fund, announced Prof. William J. Rice of the Chemical Engineering Department.

A project entitled "The Viscosity of Suspensions of Particles and of Fluidized Beds" will be supported by the grant. The grant includes provision for the support of a Graduate Fellowship to a student working on the project.

The project, under the direction of Rice, will investigate a new method of measuring viscosity and surface tension especially applicable under high temperature-pressure conditions.

The Petroleum Research Fund is administered by the American Chemical Society.

Degree Awarded To Dean Sodeman

The Very Reverend James A. Donnellon, O.S.A., President of Villanova University, announced last Tuesday that Dr. William A. Sodeman, Dean of Jefferson Medical College in Philadelphia, will receive an Honorary Degree from Villanova.

The Degree will be conferred on Monday, June 1, during Villanova's 117 Commencement Exercises.

Before Dr. Sodeman was named Magee Professor of Medicine and head of the Department of Medicine at Jefferson, he was a member of the faculty at Tulane University of Missouri Medical School. In 1958, he was appointed Dean of Jefferson's Medical School.

Dr. Sodeman, father of two children, is a native of Charleroi, Pennsylvania. He is an active member in many professional societies and is currently President of the American Society of Tropical Medicine, a subject in which he is a recognized authority. He is also serving as an official examiner of the American Board of Internal Medicine.

Dr. Revesz To Lecture

Dr. Andres Revesz will give a lecture at Bryn Mawr College on Friday, April 30 at 8:30 p.m. Revesz is the publisher of a weekly journal in Madrid, Spain.

The lecture is under the auspices of the Bryn Mawr Spanish Club. No admision will be charged. All students and faculty of Villanova are invited.

Student Council Votes To Initiate Training Program

By MICHAEL D. DONAHUE
of the Villanovan Staff

The Student Council announced that it has instituted a Student Leadership Training Program for those interested in running for class offices and student council this spring.

Gerry McGrath, secretary of the Council, disclosed that the council undertook the venture to acquaint candidates for election with the duties and responsibilities of the student leader, and to familiarize them with the workings of the University student government, and the responsibilities of particular offices.

The first in a series of three meetings will be held next Monday at 7:30 p.m.

After a brief outline of the program is presented, the candidates will be divided into the following groups for individual instructions:

a) Student Council candidates

b) Candidates for minor class offices (vice President, Secretary, and Treasurer)

c) Candidates for Senior Class president

d) Candidates for Junior Class president

The second meeting is scheduled for April 23rd. At that time a panel of four, two representatives from the Administration and two from the Student Council, will discuss the responsibilities of a student leader. After that, nominations will be held for each of the above mentioned offices.

The final and most important meeting will take place May 4th. At the outset of this session the constitution and by-laws of the Student Council will be discussed and explained. Immediately following this, a short objective quiz on the subject matter will be conducted.

McGrath said that the council weighed the matter of the exam very carefully. It finally decided to hold one because, "any person who wants to be, or considers himself to be, a student leader, must have at least a working knowledge of the document by which he and his fellow students are governed."

As an afterthought, McGrath mentioned that attendance at the meetings is not compulsory for those expecting to run for campus offices. However, he emphasized that the results of the exam will be published for the student body to evaluate.

Marketing Club To Visit Plant

The Villanova chapter of the American Marketing Association will hold its annual field trip on tomorrow to the Armstrong strong Cork Co., in Lancaster, Pa.

Prof. George Burgess of the Marketing School division will accompany the students. Upon arrival, the students will be given a tour of the plant, and will also attend lectures later in the afternoon.

Burgess expects about 30 of the Marketing club members to attend.

Do You Think for Yourself? (THIS SHORT QUIZ WILL TIP YOU OFF!*)

1. When your friends impart confidences, do you feel (A) uncomfortable, or (B) complimented? A☐ B☐

2. Do you prefer a task which demands (A) the organization of complex details, or (B) a constant flow of ideas? A☐ B☐

3. Would your first reaction to a difficult committee appointment be that you had been (A) "stuck," or (B) honored? A☐ B☐

4. If you were a contestant on a quiz program which of these question categories would you prefer: (A) popular songs of today, or (B) current events? A☐ B☐

5. Do you find that you work or study more effectively (A) under supervision, or (B) on your own schedule? A☐ B☐

6. Is it your feeling that close friendships with superiors would be (A) a great help, or (B) actually a hindrance to your career with a firm? A☐ B☐

7. Which, to your mind, has the greater influence on you in making a good grade: (A) the instructor, or (B) the subject matter of a course? A☐ B☐

8. Do you believe that the saying "haste makes waste" is (A) always true, or (B) often false? A☐ B☐

9. Which would weigh more heavily in your choice of filter cigarettes: (A) the opinions of friends with similar tastes, or (B) your own considered judgment? A☐ B☐

It is usually the case that men and women who really think for themselves come around to VICEROY as their brand of filter cigarette . . . for two very good reasons: VICEROY is the one cigarette that gives them a thinking man's filter and a smoking man's taste.

If you checked (B) on any six of the nine questions . . . you really think for yourself!

Pay Motion Starts 'Think Big' Debate

By LAWRENCE M. O'ROURKE
of the Villanovan Staff

The student council last week moved to have the athletic department reimburse students who referee intramural contests.

The motion to pay the referees a token fee was made in an amendment to a proposal by representative Pete O'Brien to "effect a new system of officiating."

But the 45 minute debate that began with the introduction of this motion concerned more than the payment of referees.

At one point in the rather heated exchange senior class president Oz Scogna challenged the student council members to "think big."

"It seems to me," said Scogna, "that there is an all too prevalent attitude among council members that we should not pass anything that the administration would reject.

Administration Position

"The fact remains that the council floor is the place where student views are to be expressed. Then the council motions go to a student faculty committee. That is the place for the administration to voice its position."

Although the Rev. Dante Girolami, O.S.A., moderator, said reimbursement was definitely unacceptable he said, "I do agree with Oz Scogna's view of the council purpose.

"This is indeed," he said, "the place where the student views are to be discussed and debated. But considering that, we cannot treat any motions lightly.

Urges Prudence

"You must be prudent and consider all the ramifications of such a motion," the moderator said. Father Girolami said that the plan to reimburse students sounded "good."

At this point Jim Corey asked the floor to say, "The people in the intramural department have to referee and they hate it. There is tremendous abuse of the officials.

"We need good officials. If I had my way, I would give them not fifty cents, but a thousand dollars for one game."

Father Girolami then said that "It is a matter of policy not to reimburse. If you reimburse one group, when then not reimburse all groups? If you give fees to referees, you could just as easily give them to workers on the VILLANOVAN, the yearbook, the band, or WVIL.

Students Have Rights

"Be careful as students," he said. "This is administration policy. You must be careful to avoid stepping on administration rights. You as students have some rights, but you must be careful not to infringe on the rights on the administration."

Father Girolami said that "in conscience, as the moderator of this council, I have the right to supersede you."

The council members then passed the amendment 16 to 11½. The proposal was passed by unanimous voice vote.

Other activities of the council included a long fight over one council committee challenged by another, card playing in the Commerce and Finance cafeteria, and the appointment of a committee to look into the possibility of gaining qualified psychologists to handle the Guidance program.

Frosh Regs

Tom Hoffman, council vice president, moved that the turned-up cuffs be eliminated from the freshmen regs during orientation week.

"We are on a university level now and some of the traditional policies should be discontinued. We make freshmen feel and look foolish wearing their pants rolled up," Hoffman said.

Oz Scogna then asked if any student council members had feld ridiculous when as frosh they were forced to roll up their cuffs.

Then Bob DeLisa said, "Purely from an economical view, when I was a freshman I did not like the orientation regulations. It rained during orientation week because I had to have my trousers rolled up, the cleaning and pressing bill was consequently great."

Feel Inferior

"Is it the purpose of Villanova's orientation period to make frosh feel inferior?" Hoffman asked. Scogna said "Yes!"

Another long debate evolved over Joe Mason's proposal to give letters and award sweaters to the swimming team.

Representative Jack Curtin said that he understood the swimming team doesn't want such recognition. "Oh yes we do," shouted Frank Dunne, as he bounded from his chair. Dunne, a swimmer, said that he knew 22 of 25 swimmers who wanted letters.

Mason admitted he had not talked to the coach, and only to a few of the swimmers, "most of them one or two years ago."

Swimming Team

Here the Rev. Dante Girolami, O.S.A., moderator, said he was in sympathy with the effort to honor the swimming team. He said, however, he felt any such amendment would not be advisable now.

HARRY LAWTON, JR., received his B.S. in Physics at Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., in 1950, joining General Electric that same year. He received an M.S. degree in Management Engineering from Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute in 1958.

"Long-range programs are important —for both men and missiles"

"In a company dedicated to research and development, a young man's opportunities to learn more—to increase his technical skills—are almost unlimited," says 31-year-old Harry Lawton, Jr., a General Electric engineer engaged in the development of inertial guidance and fire-control systems for ballistic missiles. "And to maintain America's scientific leadership, we're going to need all the technical training and skills we can produce.

"An important aspect of my job at General Electric is the continuing opportunity to learn more. I've been able to continue my education in the company's Physics Program for college graduates. And I also have the advantage of association with top technical experts in my work. Opportunities like this have helped me realize that long-range programs are important—for both men and missiles."

Harry Lawton is one of several hundred technical graduates who are devoting their skills to the development of 14 government missile projects to which General Electric is a major contributor. More and more our scientific progress and our national security depend on men like this—men who bring high qualifications to their work and who continue their quest for knowledge, both on and off the job.

General Electric believes that individual initiative and career growth are essential to America's continued technological leadership. To this end, the company encourages all of its employees—including more than 30,000 college graduates—to develop to their fullest capabilities by providing opportunities for increasing knowledge and working skills.

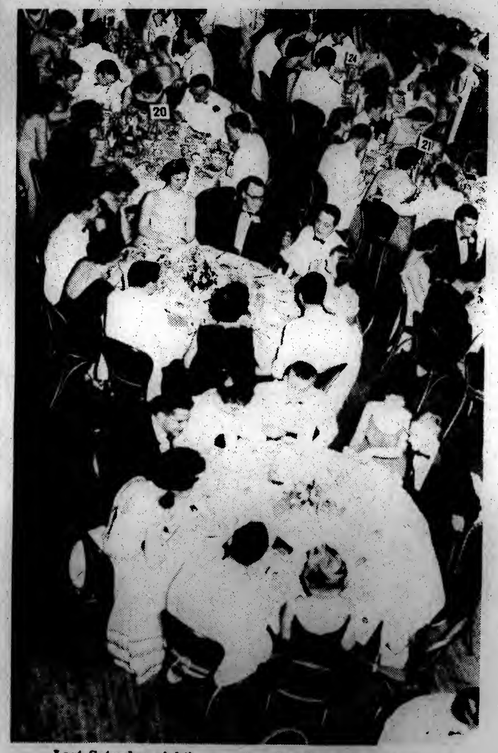
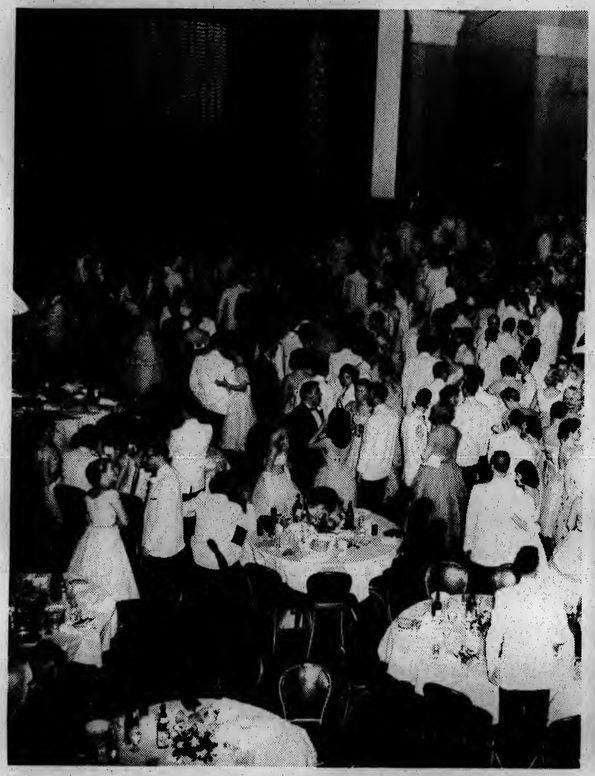
Prom, Dinner Dance Round Out Schedule



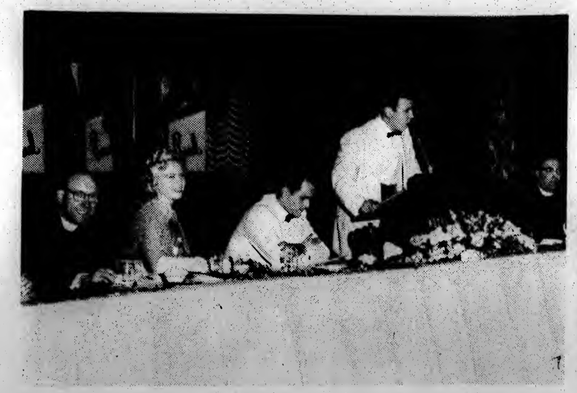
"This spit-shined toe better not be stepped on", comments one senior as a group of them compare the finer points of shining shoes hours and hours before the Senior Prom begins. Little did they know that the rain would make short work of their troubles.

Bonnie Yaecker, twenty year old sophomore from the University of Pennsylvania, happily accepts the crown, scepter, and cape, symbols of royalty, as her date Bill Gilholl stands by.



Couples swing out to a fast arrangement in one of the first dances by Paul Judge and his orchestra who supplied the music for Saturday night.

Last Saturday night's annual senior dinner-dance starts off with dinner being served at the Broadwood Hotel shortly after 7:30.



Senior Weekend Provides Climax To 1959

In the spirit of "Auld Lang Syne", the dance draws near an end. Everyone seems a little tired but the senior week-end, more then half over, is far from being complete.

Is everybody happy? It seems that way as the dinner-dance, now in full swing, continues on toward a memory that will not soon be forgotten.

"The party's over . . . It's time to call it a day," or in this case, a night. Classes will begin in less than 24 hours, and a group of seniors catch 40 winks before returning to the daily grind.

No official poll of opinion is needed to prove that everyone who attended the Senior Weekend affairs had a thoroughly enjoyable time. A glance at the pictures on these pages is proof enough.

Phila. Engineers Hold College Nite

The Engineers' Club of Philadelphia will its annual College Night program entitled "What Engineers Are and Why" on Tuesday, May 5.

The meeting will be held at the Engineers' Club Auditorium, 1317 Spruce Street, Philadelphia.

A dinner worth $2.50 will be served at the affair free of charge. The dinner will be served at 6:30 p.m. while the general meeting will take place at 8:00 p.m.

J. Stanley Morehouse, Dean of the Engineering School, urged all Villanova engineering students to attend this important meeting.

Said Morehouse, "It is to all the engineers advantage, especially the seniors, to attend this meeting since the Engineers' Club is the focal point of, all engineering activity in the area."

Byzantine Mass Planned For Ascension Thursday

A Byzantine Mass has been scheduled for Ascension Thursday at 10 a.m., co-sponsored by the Knights of Columbus and the Russian Language Society.

Called "Russian Byzantine Divine Liturgy," the Mass will be celebrated by Rev. Austin Mohrbacher of the Russian Center, Fordham University. It will fulfill Mass obligations for the holy day.

Permission for the Mass has been granted by Cardinal O'Hara, Father Donnellon, Father Whitley, Father Girolami and Father Regan.

The night before the Mass, May 6 at 7:30, a lecture will be given about the Byzantine Mass and liturgy. Both the lecture and the Mass will be opened to the public. All of Villanova and surrounding colleges will be invited.

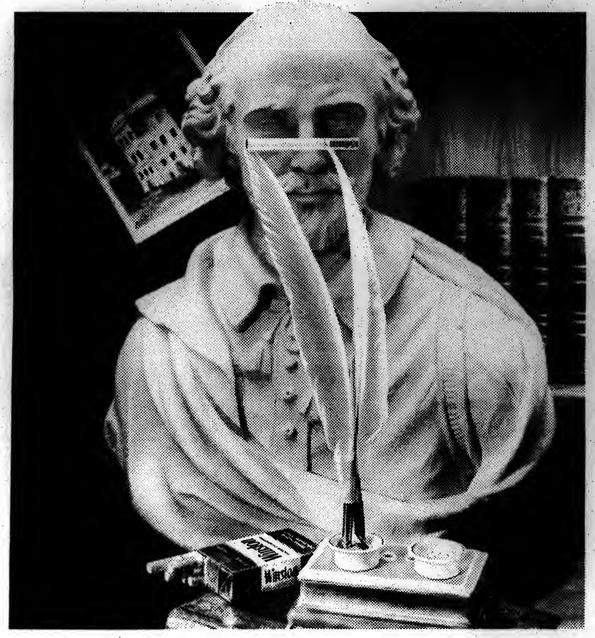
Soph Nurses See Surgery In Revised Academic Course

As part of the revised course in Medical - Surgical Nursing 220, the sophomore nurses received their first experience in the operating room last Friday.

The program, consisting of a series of classes related to various aspects of nursing care of patients in the operating room and integrated with classes in care of patients with medical and surgical conditions, was conducted by Mrs. Julia M. Paparella, R. N. M.S. Ed. nursing instructor.

Using the facilities of Fitzgerald-Mercy Hospital, Upper Darby, the students render both pre-operative and post-operative care to patients. Some were present during surgery.

The revisions in this course are aimed at giving the sophomore a more integrated experience in the total nursing care of the medical and surgical patients.



McGurk's Article In Harvard Press

Dr. Dr. Bernard Bonniwell, Chairman of the Department of Pschology, has announced the recent publication in the HARVARD EDUCATION REVIEW of an article by Dr. F. C. J. McGurk of the Villanova Psychology department.

McGurk's article was entitled "'Negro - White Intelligence — Answered".

McGurk, L. N. Recktenwald, and G. A. Dewit, attended the convention of the Eastern Psychology Association in Atlantic City April 3 and 4.

But soft! What taste from yonder FILTER-BLEND...

IT'S WHAT'S UP FRONT THAT COUNTS

This filter, be it e'er so pure and white
Must needs give flavor too, full clear and bright
Else would the trusting smoker, filled with hope
Again be dashed, dejected be... and mope.

And thus we come to Winston's obvious truth
It's what's up front that counts—and 'tis, forsooth
In that the fine tobaccos, in the end
Are by exclusive process—Filter-Blend—
Become the tastiest taste that e'er hath played
Across your dancing taste-buds, man or maid!

Be ye not slow, therefore, to test the wit
Of what we say: that Winston, friend, is it;
For that with ev'ry smoke ye do delay
Ye are not gath'ring rosebuds while ye may!

Alumni Activities Year-Round; Nearby Social House Planned

Continuing our efforts to introduce the undergraduate to the General Alumni Association we shall discuss the Association's activities. The activities which can result from our plan to accomplish our goals are many; indeed, many have already resulted.

Not only is it necessary that we do so, but we are also most desirous of perpetuating that fraternal feeling which resulted from our days on campus.

Ours is a gregarious group and to foster this we have such activities as the annual reunion, Homecoming Day, the area clubs and our publication, the ALUMNUS.

Annual Event

On the first weekend following the June Commencement we hold our annual reunion. Every alumnus is invited to return to the campus for a weekend of Villanova fellowship. A full weekend of activity is offered, the highlights of which are the Jamboree in the Field House on Friday night and the Alumni Banquet on Saturday night.

While all are urged to attend, special emphasis is placed on the five-year classes . . . those who have been out one, five, ten, fifteen, etc., years. Each of these classes has a chairman and committee to plan their "anniversary" gathering.

I can guarantee you that you will look forward to these . . . they can keep you young. The reunion is an important activity for us. If we ever look on it as obsolete, Villanova will become just another educational institution where young men may abstract so much education and go their way.

Autumn Holiday

The Homecoming Day is one of our activities with which most undergraduates are familiar. We select one of the outstanding home football games, and designated it as Homecoming.

We make special effort to attend that game for we know that our classmates will do the same and all can gather afteryard for talk of the "good ole days at Villanova".

The area club program is probably our most important activity. It is through his participation in his Villanova Club that the alumnus first realizes the scope of being an alumnus.

Here he fraternizes with Villanovans of every vintage, and becomes aware of a Villanova society.

Varied Activities

The clubs have many and varied activities. They have speakers of every type and look forward particularly to those who bring them word from their Alma Mater. Dinners, cocktail parties, Communion Breakfasts, bus trips to sporting events and university nights are a few other club functions.

Our idea of a Villanova Club is a group of Villanovans in an area who gather socially about four times during the year and thereby give our association the contact it needs with that area. This contact is necessary if we are to reach our goals.

In this respect the clubs assist in the Alumni Foundation Drive, our student interviewing programs which we shall eventually initiate to accomplish our goals.

By GEORGE PEQUIGNOT
Alumni Executive Secretary

Another important function of ours is publication of the Villanova ALUMNUS. Through this quarterly magazine we keep the alumnus informed of University and Association activities, as well as, the news items concerning his fellow-alumni.

We are currently mailing the ALUMNUS to every alumnus at no cost. Our constant aim is to improve upon this magazine by expanding its scope.

Generally, these are our activities, and it should be obvious that we are not lacking in this department. Doubtless these will be expanded as we progress.

The Alumni Office

Just a few words about the alumni office which, as you probably know, is located on the campus. The alumnus maintains his contact with Villanova through this office, and it is the duty and desire of our office to be whatever assistance we can.

The request which we receive are many and varied, and fortunately we have been successful in most cases. (Fifty-yard line seats are not our speciality!)

The business of the Association is handled through the alumni office, and here our records and files are kept. Usually, the various committee meetings are held and these are numerous because of the many facets of our operation.

We have in our dreams a much more extensive physical set-up than we have now. The association has outgrown its present quarters, and will be given larger quarters as soon as space can be found.

Our long-range plan is for an alumni house which we would like to have close to the campus. This would be a home for the association, and here we would hold as many of our social functions as possible.

The possibilities for such a place are many, and we will talk more about them when, someday, our dreams come closer to a reality.

Next week we will conclude this series when we discuss our progress and our future.

FOOD POLL

mittee agreed that the results would prove highly satisfactory to everyone concerned.

More Sandwiches

Some of the new ideas which will be tried out in the next few weeks are peanut butter and jelly sandwiches occasionally for Friday lunch and pastry or doughnuts instead of eggs once in a while for breakfast. Both came about as the result of a general student complaint that they would like to see fewer eggs, especially of the scrambled variety.

Spescia said that with the budget under which he operates, he could not see his way clear to increasing the number of glasses of milk above the present daily limit of four. The Student Council committee agreed to meet with the appropriate administration members to arrive at some solution of that problem.

Foreign Substances

In the poll, students complained about the appearance of some of the hired help. Noting that they never wear their white hats for more than a few days at a time, the students mentioned that hair and other "foreign substances" are often found in the food, particularly the milk.

Spescia said he had given a standing order that hats were to be worn, but that apparently he would have to make it stronger.

There seemed to be further examples of disregard of orders on the part of the help. One important one had reference to second helpings on vegetables. Even though Spescia had previously okayed "seconds," the committee noted that certain individuals were still refusing to give them to the students.

To solve the problem of slow ups and inconveniences at the end of the food lines, Spescia said he would have 2 more serving tables built so that 24 persons can get silverware, sugar, condiments, etc. at once, instead of the present 12.

Both Spescia and the committee agreed that some of the indifferent treatment students receive from the help is directly the fault of the students themselves. Spescia noted, "It is just human nature to be nice to those who are nice to you and miserable to those to treat you miserable."

Those who took part in the meeting, aside from Spescia and Murphy, were Student Council members Bob DeLisa, John Driscoll and Bill Vincent. Vincent was due to return to see Spescia yesterday to discuss the situation in the day-hop cafeteria and the pie shop.

VIVE LE POPCORN!

The other day as I was walking down the street picking up tinfoil, (Marlboro, incidentally, has the best tinfoil, which is not surprising when you consider that they have the best cigarettes, which is not surprising when you consider that they take the best filters and put them together with the best tobaccos and rush them to your tobacco counter, fresh and firm and loaded with smoking pleasure). The other day, I say, as I was walking down the street picking up tinfoil, (I have, incidentally, the second largest ball of tinfoil in our family. My brother Eleanor's is bigger—more than four miles in diameter—but, of course, he is taller than I). The other day, as I was saying, while walking down the street picking up tinfoil, I passed a campus and right beside it, a movie theatre which specialized in showing foreign films. Most campuses have foreign movie theatres close by, because foreign movies are full of culture, art, and esoterica, and where is culture more rife, art more rampant, and esoterica more endemic than on a campus?

Nowhere; that's where.

I hope you have all been taking advantage of your local foreign film theatre. Here you will find no simple-minded Hollywood products, marked by treacly sentimentality and machine-made bravura. Here you will find life itself—in all its grimness, its poverty, its naked, raw passion!

Have you, for instance, seen the recent French import, Le Crayon de Mon Oncle ("The Kneecap"), a savage and uncompromising story of a man named Claude, whose consuming ambition is to get a job as a meter reader with the Paris water department? But he is unable, alas, to afford the flashlight one needs for this position. His wife, Bon-Bon, sells her hair to a wigmaker and buys him a flashlight. Then, alas, Claude discovers that one also requires a leatherette bow tie. This time his two young daughters, Caramel and Nougat, sell their hair to a wigmaker. So now Claude has his leatherette bow tie, but now, alas, his flashlight battery is burned out and the whole family, alas, is bald.

Or have you seen the latest Italian masterpiece, La Donna E Mobile (I Ache All Over), a heart-shattering tale of a boy and his dog? Malvolio, a Venetian lad of nine, loves his little dog with every fibre of his being. He has one great dream: to enter the dog in the annual Venetian dog show. But this, alas, requires an entrance fee, and Malvolio, alas, is penniless. However, he saves and scrimps and steals and finally gets enough together to enter the dog in the show. The dog, alas, comes in twenty-third. Malvolio sells him to a vivisectionist.

Or have you seen the new Japanese triumph, Kibuzi-San (The Radish), a pulse-stirring historical romance about Yamoto, a poor farmer, and his daughter Ethel who are accosted by a warlord one morning on their way to market? The warlord cuts Yamoto in half with his samurai sword and runs off with Ethel. When Yamoto recovers, he seeks out Ethel's fiancé, Red Buttons, and together they find the warlord and kill him. But, alas, the warlord was also a sorcerer and he whimsically turned Ethel into a whooping crane. Loyal Red Buttons takes Ethel home where he feeds her fish heads for twenty years and keeps hoping she'll turn back into a woman. She never does. Alas.

Intramural Softball Leagues Full Of Fun, Color, And Fast Action

Spear Chuckler Butch Fath beats out a sharp grounder to the infield. Avonallive first sacker, Gordie Proud, waited for peg that never came as the ball was bobbled by the shortstop. The intramural softball teams play daily (except Friday) on Austin and Alumni fields.

Harry Blackwell digs hard down the first base line in last week's intramural softball game between the Avonallives and the Spear Chuckers. First baseman Dick Barrazotto received the throw from third base in time for inning ending putout.

George Emma Is A Leader On The Diamond and Court

By TOM TROY

Every team has a leader, a guy the rest of the players look up to, respect. In baseball, he's the fellow who belts the long double in the clutch, makes the hard stop, scoops up the bad throw when the bases are loaded.

Villanova has just such a player: George Emma. Sure, the name's familiar. Everyone knows he's a basketball player. Didn't play much this year, but he was always a hustler. And he always cool in the clutch.

But George Emma is also a baseball player. As a matter of fact, he's a very good baseball player. At least four major league teams think to.

And so do his teammates. One can tell at practice as they comment on George's smashing line drives or long, soaring flies or as he leaps to spear a high throw or picks up a skipping low one:

"Attaboy Dutch . . . way to hit 'em, kid . . . nice catch Georgie . . . good scoop, baby . . . "

Captain of Squad

And one can tell his teammates look to George as the leader of their squad. It's evident by the fact that they elected him captain. It's evident by the way the talk to him, the way they look toward him.

The big first baseman responds by providing just the leadership they appeal for. Dutch isn't a holler guy in the tradition of Eddie Stanky or Jackie Robinson; rather he's more like the Gil Hodges type.

He hits when the big hit is needed, he fields like a wizard, he takes that extra base when it isn't expected, he always thinks.

Of course, George was the same kind of basketball player to. He didn't achieve great stardom, but he was that valuable sixth man any team needs. The number one reserve and an occasional starter in his junior year, George was expected by many to start in his senior year.

Clutch Play

Things didn't work out exactly that way. George Raveling greatly improved almost overnight, and the sophomore trio of Huggard, Kenny, and Driscoll moved right in with Joe Ryan.

As a result, George only played a few minutes in the games in which he did perform. But often he dropped in that long set or smooth jump shot just when the team needed it the most.

Against Duke, Dutch drilled six long set shots in about 14 minutes in the second half to almost single-handedly turn back the Blue Devils. Against Seton Hall, he relieved a cold-shooting Joe Ryan and stopped the panic by his cool clear-head play.

And it is indicative of George's character that, although he played less in his senior year than in his sophomore, he nevertheless selects for the biggest basketball thrill the participation of this year's team in the N.I.T.

Moved to First

In doing this he passes over his tremendous personal performances against Brandeis in his sophomore year and against LaSalle in that memorable triple overtime thriller in 1957.

Yes, George only played a few minutes in that N.I.T. tussle but he has played and will play a large role in the baseball picture at Villanova.

Last year Dutch was a leading character in Coach Art Mahan's team's drive to a spot in the NCAA playoffs. Always a third baseman before entering Villanova, he was moved to first by Mahan, justifying that change in spectacular fashion with his great fielding.

He batted .260, but that .260 was a potent figure. So potent that he was selected to the NCAA District 2 All Star team.

This year Dutch has taken up where he left off. It was his ringing double that broke the ice against Wagner, enabling the Cats to win their season opener.

Team Real Good

George is confident that this year's team can go a long way: 'I didn't think we would have too much pitching with Krop gone (Bob Kropiewnicki) and Jack Kelly graduated, but the pitchers have really been hummin' that ball lately. This warm weather's great, for those guys can throw hard.

"But it's really a shame that those frosh and sophomores signed bonuses and turned pro. Boy, if they hadn't. We would be tough! But we'll do alright regardless."

George Emma will do all right too. A marketing major, George contemplates perhaps that subject. But there is another avenue open to Dutch—baseball.

Four major league teams already contacted him. "Nothing specific" was mentioned, he says, but the Los Angles Dodgers have demonstrated a great insterest in George.

Big league scouts are intelligent, perspicacious men. They recognize geniality, intelligence off the field and hustle, clear-thinking, and leadership on the field as the qualities of a big leaguer. —That's George Emma —a big leaguer.

Reagan Says Prospects Fine For His Greatest Eleven Ever

"It could be the best team I've had at Villanova," says Frank Reagan, in an interview with the Villanovan last week.

As Coach Reagan sees the team, his question marks will be at quarterback and end.

"Eddie Roehre won't be the runner 'Graz' was, but he might do the job." If not Roehre, Coach Reagan can turn to Wayne Kauter, who is expected to return to school next season.

Turning to the end position, the head coach has some big new prospects that he hopes will stay in school.

Faster Squad

Overall, he sees the team to be faster than last year's squad, particularly at end and in the backfield.

"We will sacrifice a little size in the line for speed this year."

Also, Reagan feels he will be able to field two units without sacrificing too much on offense or defense.

In the past, particularly against teams like Army, Boston College, V.M.I., Villanova has been noticeably weakened when the second unit was inserted.

Because of the wealth of material, quality and quantity-wise, it does seem that Villanova will field two capable units next fall. This will be only too necessary if Villanova's football fortunes are to continue to rise.

New Offense

There has been some conjecture whether the present offense will change. Several people have expressed desires to see something new out on the gridiron.

Last year, these would-be critics, saw the innovations of the "I" formation. This somewhat satisfied their wants.

Perhaps something new will be unveiled this spring. Why don't you go down to the practice field and see? If not, be sure to take in the intra-squad game, Blue-White day, May 9.

Spring Time-Cut Time

But the matter at hand for Coach Reagan is not fretting next year's schedule; he has time to delegate for this purpose next fall.

Right now, he must concern himself with a "weeding out" process.

Out of 80 candidates, he must find some 30 real ballplayers. This is approximately the number today's football squads must have in order to attain some sort of success.

This "process" is actually the purpose of spring training.

After several days of calisthenics and running through some plays, the scrimmages will begin. Then the coaches will have the opportunity to see who wants to play and who can't.

Golf Team Wins First Two Matches

The strongest Villanova golf team in recent years will meet the Temple link team in a match at home. The game will be played at Aronomink.

The team met Scranton at home Monday but the results were submitted too late for publication. Last year's team defeated Scranton in a closely contested match, 9-8.

On a windy Monday, a week ago, the golfers started the season by drubbing St. Joseph's 6½-2½. This match was played with each winning player receiving one point for the best ball of each twosome. Reggie Zurinskas turned in the best eighteen holes with 79.

Their second victory of the season was very convincing. The score of the match with LaSalle was 18-0. In the scoring system for this game a player receives one point for each nine holes and one for total eighteen.

Marty Connolly turned in a 75 while Reg Zurinskas and Jim Cahill both hit a 77. Nick Aquilino and Jim Gay turned in 79's and Ron Zurinskas was high with an 81.

Cats Defend Relay Titles

Track fans will get a chance to see Villanova attempt to continue the great streak of success in modern track history when the University of Pennsylvania holds its 65th annual Relay Carnival at Franklin Field, April 24-25.

Special student tickets at the bargain price of 75c go on sale this week in the Field House for each of the two days of top-flight competition.

It is expected that a large number of Villanova students will attend Friday's events, even though classes will be held that day. The college distance medley relay, one of three relays in which the Wildcats are defending champions, does not start until 3:30. Races continue until approximately 6:20 that day.

In the last four years, Coach Jim Elliott's Wildcats have won an unprecedented 11 Relay Championships of America at the Penn Relays, a major factor in Villanova's climb to the top of the collegiate track heap. Four times straight the Cats have copped mile relay and sprint medley titles. Thrice running they've won the distance medley.

As a result of the spectacular recent successes, Villanova has climbed from the bottom of the list of Relay Champions of America (with no previous victories) to a tie for twelfth. A tie for ninth place, currently shared by Chicago, Cornell and Indiana (with 13 victories) is a distinct possibility by the time this year's Penn Relays are completed.

Jenkins Key Man

Even though Villanova had very good track teams during the 40's and early 50's, it took the arrival of Charley Jenkins from Cambridge, Mass., for championships to turn up on the Main Line. As a sophomore in 1955, Jenkins ran the anchor 880 in the sprint medley, following Jim Moran (440), Warner Heitman (220) and Gene Maliff (220).

The time was 3:26.3. Later in the afternoon, the same quartet, running quarter-mile legs in different order (Moran, Maliff, Heitman and Jenkins), won the coveted mile relay in 3:17.6.

In 1956 the Wildcats were even more spectacular. There was a trio of sophomores—Ron Delany, Alex Breckenridge and Rollie Simpson—to aid Jenkins. On Friday, that quartet won the distance medley Relay Championship of America for the first time in the school's history.

But the Wildcats didn't just win the race. They set a new Carnival record while doing it —9:58.1 Jenkins ran the leadoff 880, Simpson the 440 leg, Breckenridge the 1320-yard leg and Delany the mile.

What made the victory all the more satisfying was that the Wildcats upset a favored quartet from Oxford University in England. The Oxonians had been ballyhooed in the press as "unbeatable". They looked great in winning the two and four-mile relay titles. But when Delany crossed the finish line in the distance medley, Oxford's Ian Boyd was 35 yards in arrears.

Defend Sprint Crown

Yet, that was just the beginning of a remarkable two days of competition. On Saturday, Jenkins (440), soph George Sydnor (220), Gene Maliff (220) and Delany (880) successfully defended the sprint medley crown, while slicing the time to 3:25.

For the defense of the mile relay diadem, Coach Elliott ran Sydnor, Simpson, Delany and Jenkins. The three sophs and a junior combined to set a new Carnival record—their second in two days—3:11.9.

In 1957, Villanova won its second straight distance medley crown while running "under wraps." Jenkins (880), soph Ed Collymore (440), Breckenridge (1320) and Delany (mile) were timed in 10:10.7.

Though not breaking a record the Wildcats lowered their time while winning the sprint medley championship for the third time in a row. Jenkins (440), Al Peterson (220), Maliff (220) and Delany (880) ran the distance in 3:24.3.

Charlie Stead, now a senior at Villanova, saw his first action in the Penn Relays as the Cats won the mile relay for the third time running. He ran second leg, behind Collymore and before Delany and Jenkins, as the quartet was clocked in 3:12.7.

There is a distinct possibility that the Wildcats might not try to defend in one of the three relays in which they are current champions. They may try the 880 relay for the first time since the string of victories started.

But all that is in the hands of Elliott and his assistant, Jim Tuppeny. Whatever they decide, Villanova fans can expect to see some tremendous performances. After all, the Wildcats have a modern tradition to uphold at the University of Pennsylvania's Franklin Field.

Two Awards To Be Given To Thinclads

Two members of the track team will receive trophy awards at the annual track banquet sponsored by the Villanova Club of Valley Forge on Monday, April 27, at 7 p.m. at the Covered Wagon in Strafford.

One squad member will be given the General Alumni Association Award as the most valuable player. Another will be the recipient of the George T. (Bucky) Coleman Award, named after a former Villanova pole vaulter who was killed World War II.

Tickets at $6 apiece may be obtained from George Pequignot in the Alumni Office in Mendel Hall.

Ron Delany, 1958 graduate and presently enrolled in Villanova's Graduate School of Theater Arts, will be given the General Alumni Association Award for the 1957-58 season. It was not presented at the banquet last year. Delany had also been invited to be guest speaker at this year's affair.

The toastmaster will be Reds McCarthy, sports edltor of the Norristown Times-Herald. The Rev. Joseph Kemme, O. S. A., Vice-President for Student Affairs, will head a large delegation representing the school's administration.

It's Time For 'Mural Track And Softball

The annual spring awakening of the Great American Game got under way last week on all fields as the softball leagues completed their initial contests.

In the Austin Field 3:30 League, the Sheik's defeated the Avonallive 3 to 1 and Doc's Sox did the same to the Thumbs 9-4.

In the 2:30 League The Kittens won over The Finests 1 to 0 and the Cowboys beat the Fubar Mooses 7-4.

In the 4:30 pairings, Humper's Herd-4 The N.R.O.T.C.-2 and the Burns Boys 33, the Leftovers 2. At 5:30 the Mainliners defeated the Mu Masons 6-1 and the Saints topped the Barfs 7-4.

In the Mendel League at 3:0 the Jaspers took the Calhapes 6 to 3 while the Johnny Walker Reds defeated the Magoo's Low Holes 1 to 0.

American Red Cross Senior Life Saving starts Wednesday April 15. Course open to Villanova Students only. Register at Pool.

The Villanova football team runs through some early spring training offensive drills. The team opened up spring training last week with over 80 hopefuls turning out for practice

Sports Chatter:

April-Thou Art Cruel

By TONY MACKLIN

Since the sports action on campus is slow now, there will be all season left for baseball stories and interviews, so I would like to devote my space to a somewhat startling reply to last week's column.

"Dear Columnist,

April does not, if you'll pardon the expression, swing. To any one with any powers of observation and any sensitivity April is indeed the cruelest month. It is the Judas of all months. It dulls one into a false sense of well being and hope then lowers the boom.

I read in last Wednesday's paper where the Baltimore fans actually believe that the Orioles have a chance to win the pennant. Now, I ask you. In what other month would the Bird fans actually have the nerve to say that the Orioles could win the the American League. They couldn't win in the Texas League, with all due respect to the Texas League.

Even our hometown fans become unbalanced. You hear phrases like "more speed," "tighter infield," "more depth," and if one fails to stop and think that he or she is liable to have his or her money riding on Bob Carpenter's minions. The Phillies, rest their souls, are again forced to take to the pits of Connie Mack Stadium. But the fans should come to the realization sooner or later that if the Phillies do have more speed, defense, and depth, they also have less power, less pitching, and more trouble.

Poor Phils

The Phillies, bless their hearts, led both leagues in hitting last year and excelled in pinch hitting,; but they were horrible.

Now we find out why—Mayo didn't understand them. But then again, who did. Mayo used to get pale and shaken as pop flys fell and fielders ran into each other. This year it is going to be different. Eddie Sawyer understands them, he understands they are hopeless! Rather, let us say that he knows their potential. Potential saves everything. Now that Gomez, Conley, Thomas and Freeze are with the Phillies they have bridged the gap from nonentities to potentially great stars. Under Eddie's guiding hand they will flower.

Around the rest of the league enthusiasm is at its usual April apex. And the American League is ready to demolish the Yankees. Frank Brookhouser has picked Detroit to win out over the New Yorkers. Now, just between you and I, I think the guy's bats. The whole American League combined can't slow the Stengel men. In fact, nobody in the National League is going to be able to dethrone the Braves but each team has to go through 154 games because they were foolish enough to begin under the influence of April.

Everywhere teams all across the country are making this mistake. They'd know better in March or May but every year April finds them losing all sense of reason and plunging to disaster. Pity the poor fan.

Annoyed

I must disagree with you further. I will admit that By Saam and Gene Kelly miss a few, that keeps the listener on his toes, but none gives color the way that By and "big Gene" do.

As for the idea that one should leave his car behind and should talk and walk, don't live in the past. Don't you realize that this is the space age.

How Willie Hartack could be called a darling is beyond me.

The more that I think about April the more despondent I get. Do you realize what it does to studying? Do you realize that the lawnmower starts making its appearance in April.

And any month that would have you believe that "Gigi" was the best picture of the year is not to be trusted. Have you forgotten April 15. Ah ha! I've got you there.

Agrees with T. S.

I am fully in accord with Mr. Eliot's statement that April is the cruellest month.

Signed,

"J. A. P."

I have only one thing to say. Bring on May.

rain had done its full damage, Drayton did a 100 in 9.7.

Running ahead of Raemore were Jonn Mannion, Frank Hegarty and Pat Nicastro. The overall time was 3:19.9. Nicastro ran his quarter in 49 seconds, while Raemore did the anchor leg in only slightly more than that.

Nicastro must draw some mention for his fine showing in the invitation 880. He ran an outstanding 1:51.9 half-mile while finishing fourth behind Tom Murphy, Norm Williams and Bob Seaman Murphy's time was 1:50.1.

It won't be possible, because of time conflicts, for the varsity runners to compete in both the sprint medley and the mile relay. If he wants to use his best runners, Coach Elliott will have to choose one o fthe two races. Whichever one he elects to compete in, he'll have Collymore and Stead among the quartet. Who the other two will be is a matter of conjecture at this point.

Queen's - Iona Relays Next In Outdoor Track

By TOM GOLDSCHMIDT

Track coach Jim Elliott will take virtually a full squad to Queens-Iona Relays that Saturday at Downing Stadium on Randall's Island, N. Y.

This purpose: "to give all the boys a good workout and to build up to the big climax—the Penn Relays." The Penn Carnival takes place a week later—April 24 and 25 at Franklin Field.

That was precisely Elliott's aim at the season's first relay competition—the Quantico Relays—last Friday and Saturday in Virginia.

The Wildcats failed to win a single varsity relay at Quantico, but Elliott was not disturbed in the least. "It was the first time out this spring," he said. "It was merely a testing ground for our Penn Relay plans."

Bob Coffil

Will Get Ready

"We now have a better idea where we are strong and where weak," he reasoned. "We'll continue to get ready for the big ones—the Relay Championships of America at the Penn Relays—this week at Randall's Island, even if we don't win a race doing it."

As Elliott pointed out, the Wildcats gave promise of some sparkling performances in the future by finishing a close second in three of the major relays at Quantico—the mile, the sprint medley and the 880.

Morgan State won the mile relay with Lou Smith, Tom Anderson, Hosea Smith and Nick Ellis, besting Jim Blackburn, Nick DeAngelis, Charlie Stead and Ed Collymore in the mud-slowed time of 3:17.6. The Wildcats' time was 3:17.8.

Morgan State was the National AAU indoor mile relay champion. Collymore actually ran a faster final quarter than Morgan anchor-man Ellis—47.8 to 47.9—but Eilis got the baton ahead of Colly.

Penn Wins

The University of Pennsylvania—a stranger to the winner's circle in top-flight competition in recent years—beat a Villanova foursome in the sprint medley. Dave Coffin (440), Bob Reed (220), Walt Shaw (220) and George Katterman (880) were clocked in the meet-record-breaking time of 3:24.3.

Katterman was the key man in the Quaker victory. He trailed Villanova anchorman Bob Godesky by 12 yards at the start of the final leg, but ran strongly and caught the Wildcat junior with a quarter-mile left, then went on to win by 12 yards. The first three Villanova runners were Collymore, Stead and Blackburn.

The second-place finish in the 880 relay marked a return to that event for the Wildcats after a lapse of several years. Winston-Salem Teachers took first-place in 1:28.1. Their Elias Gilbert, Charles Lewis, Bob Manning and Frank Bowens won by four yards over Blackburn, Joe Manion, Stead and Collymore.

Stead earned a first-place for Villanova by taking the high jump with a lead of 6-4, good enough to tie the record at the rain-jinxed Quantico Meet (it has rained every day in the four year history of the meet). Ex-Wildcat Phil Reavis and Shanahan CC's George Dennis first set the mark last year.

Charley Stead

Did Not Defend

Villanova failed to finish in the distance medley, the only event in which it was defending champion. Coach Elliott said on Sunday that he felt the Wildcats could have taken third place in the race in which Penn State ran the fastest distance medley—9:53.8—ever run in the East. But, figuring on conserving strength for the sprint medley, Elliott told Godesky to drop out with approximately a 1000 yards left on his anchor mile. DeAngelis (880), Manion (440) and Vic DiMaio (1320) were the other members of the Wildcat quartet.

A two-mile relay foursome of Tim McNamar, Godesky, Manion and DiMaio failed to finish among the top six teams. Another unit—composed of John Daniels, Dan Stager, John Buckley and Kent Lydic—did likewise in the 440 relay. Others who competed but did not place were Jack Van Dusen in the hurdles, Norbert McNulty in the pole vault and Buckley in the hop-step-and-jump.

In their first showing outdoors, the freshmen thinclads did right well for themselves. Bob Coffill, a 6-3, 175-pounder out of Rindge Tech in Cambridge, Mass., created the biggest stir. He broke the Villanova record for the 440-yard hurdles by being clocked in 53.9 while losing by inches to Willie Atterbury, a name-star who graduated from Michigan State.

Broke Wildcat Record

Coffill, who anchored the freshman indoor mile relay team during the winter, smashed the old Villanova record to smithereens. It had been 55.1 and was set on June 2, 1956 by Roland Simpson. Coffill is a big-striding runner whose style is deceiving. He often looks as though he's moping along, while actually se's covering big gobs of ground with his gigantic strides.

The freshman mile relay race, in which the Wildcat Frosh took top honors, was a real corker. Bob Raemore, who took the baton on the final leg trailing the St. John's anchorman, managed to catch him by inches at the tape.

The freshman sprinters—Budd and Paul Drayton—were almost as impressive as Coffil. Budd finished a yard and a half behind the winner, Ira, Murchison, who was timed in 9.8 Drayton was fourth, not far back. In a heat on Friday, before the

Wildcats Meet The Hawks on the Road In Big Five Game

By JIM MURRAY

On Friday afternoon the Wildcat baseball team meets the St. Joseph Hawks on the Hawks home diamond.

This is a Big Five game and anything can happen. This is evident from last year's results, the Hawks beat the Wildcats by a three run margin in their first meeting and four days later the 'Cats drubbed the Hawks by fifteen runs.

Yesterday the LaSalle game, which was rained out on April 4th, was scheduled but the outcome was reported to late for publication.

'Cats Down Hoyas

Last Friday afternoon the previously silent bats of the Villanova baseball team were heard. The basehit hungry 'Cats jumped right on right handed Georgetown hurler, Steve McDonald for seven runs on six bose hits and three walks in the first frame. The final score of the game was 11-7 with the 'Cats on top.

In between these eighteen runs their were many interesting highlights.

The most significant of these was the arrival of another strong arm in Villanova's "not so strong pitching staff". The latest hurler to come into his own is a big lefty named, Frank Kreutzer. Frank pitched the first four innings and was just about untouchable. He allowed two safeties while setting down seven batters via the strike out route in his short appearrance.

The big bats for Villanova were Paul Borian and Jim Huggard who went three for five and three for four respectively. The whole team got into the hitting act with all the regulars getting at least one base knock.

Hoyas Hustle

Since the game was decided in the first frame for the 'Cats, it would have been nice to call the game because of the cold or darkness. However, someone forgot to tell the Georgetown nine they were out of it and they touched winning pitcher Joe Michell for seven runs in the last five innings. They got three in the sixth and four in the ninth to be exact. The relief pitcher, Willard Smith did a fine job for seven frames.

The first Big Five game at Temple on April 7th was the Wildcats first loss 4-2.

This game did not lack the fine pitching, which has caused the smiles on coach, Art Malans face. It did not lack any hustle on the 'Cats part who were in the game till the very last out. The deficiencies came at the plate and on the field.

'Cats Away Fast

Villanova started with a two run outburst in the first inning. But winning pitcher, Don Flynn was strong 'till the ninth. Hal Bauser, pitched well in his four inning stint but was the victim of some bad breaks and faulty fielding.

Bill (Pickles) Kennedy rifled a triple to left center in the third for the Owls, then Walt Chyzomych smashed a ball right at Bauser, it careened off his knee and one run scored. Al Merando walked and then Mort Teplitsky singled, a slow roller to short by Dick Kessel and the double play went into action.

Villanova catcher Jack Fahey lines a single to left in Georgetown game. Through some timely hitting and good spot pitching, the Wildcats defeated the men from Washington by an 11-7 count.

Fred Anthony scooped up the grounder, flipped to second for one, Bob Klinck pivoted and threw wide of first for two unearned runs that is. The Owls picked up another unearned run in the fourth and that was the scoring and the ball game.

Last Ditch Rally

In the ninth inning the Cats really kept the pressure of the Owls. After Joe Cramer went down swinging, Jim Huggard drew a walk. Jack Fahey laced a single in the hole and pinch hitter Tom Griffith hit a scorcher to second, the ball was bobbled and the bases were loaded. Fred Anthony was set down swinging by left handed relief hurler, Joe Craig. Eddie Monahan hit a ball down the left field line and Mort Teplitsky gathered it in for the final out.

CATS BATS — Latest freshman sensation Phil Fidalgo, left handed hurler . . . Denny Cardone sustained broken finger in an intersquad game . . . Part of Coach Mahan's family attended Temple game (about six of his eight children). It was the first time a couple of them had seen their Dad in action—baseball wise, that is . . . Bobby (Rabbit) Klinck lost the cap on his tooth on a tough grab . . . Dave Hinnigan tough running the bases these days . . . Practice game snowed out Sunday after April showers turned to snow . . . Hank Nichols last year's catcher arrived at practice clad in his Quantico Marine baseball uniform and was well received and well kidded by his ex teammates.

Villanova freshmen who are just starting the habit of cheering on the Wildcat track team at the Penn Relays have been given the following directions for reaching Franklin Field on April 24 and 25: take the P & W to 69th St., then the "61" to 34th St., then walk south four blocks. Total cost one-way is 5oc.

Condon Tops Jazz Concert

By MICHAEL D. DONOHUE of The Villanovan Staff

The Augustinian seminary Guild's eighth annual jazz concert will be held next Wednesday at 8:15 p.m. in the Field House.

It will be presented under the joint auspices of the Seminary Guild Ladies Auxiliary and the newly formed lay group, "La Capuce".

Rev. Benjamin J. Kiernan, O.S.A., Guild Director announced that proceeds from the function will go towards the maintenance of the various Augustinian monasteries at Villanova, Staten Island, Hamburg, New York and Washington, D.C.

Eddie Condon and his jazz group will headline the all-star program.

The show, begun in 1950, has featured over the years such musical luminaries as Rosemary Clooney, Rise Stevens, The Mariners, Sam Levenson, The Four Aces and Woody Herman. Last year's show was headed by the popular Louis (Satchmo) Armstrong.

Tickets are priced at $2.00 and $2.50, and can be purchased from Jim Foley, 126 Sheehan and Lee Christensen, 134 Sheehan, co-chairmen of the junior week Activity.

Editor Named To Receive Press Award

Rt. Rev. Msgr. Anthony L. Ostheimer, Editor of the Catholic Standard & Times, official publication of the Archdiocese of Philadelphia, has been named the winner of Villanova's Saint Augustine Journalism Award for 1959.

Msgr. Ostheimer's selection as the fourth winner of the award was announced by the Rev. Louis A. Rongione, O.S.A., Dean of Villanova's Graduate Division and moderator of the VILLANOVAN.

The award is given yearly for distinction in the "broad field of journalism" in the name of the VILLANOVAN. Presentation will be made during a banquet to be held at the Warwick Hotel on Saturday evening, May 16th.

Previous winners of the Saint Augustine award are James T. Quirk, publisher of TV GUIDE Magazine, John Facenda, prominent Philadelphia television newscaster and John C. Calpin, political editor of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

Joe Lynch, Bernie Magee, and Mike Tighe pose in a scene from T'nT's production "Piper-Heidsieck '98." The musical comedy involving a Main Line family opens tonight at 8:30 at the field house and will continue untill Sunday night. Tickets may be purchased at the Pie Shoppe and at the door.

T'nT Opens Annual Show Tonight In Field House

The Turf and Tinsel production of "Piper Heidsieck 98" will open a five day run tonight in the Field House at 8:30.

Tickets for the show went on sale last Wednesday and will be sold until this Friday. They may be obtained in the Pie Shoppe, University Shop, Athletic Office, Spritzler's in Ardmore and from all T'nT members.

Mike Axt, chairman of the T'nT ticket committee, announced that tonight has been designated as "stag night". For tonight, and tonight only, admission will be $.75. Villanovans are expected to attend dateless, as will girls from neighboring colleges.

Axt said that Immaculata, Rosemont, Chestnut Hill and Maria Goretti had been contacted and agreed to cooperate with this initial "stag night."

Six Performances

For the remainder of the show's run, student tickets will sell for $1.00 and general admission will be $1.25.

Altogether, T'nT will give six performances, including the nun's matinee on Saturday and the Junior Week's, Mother's Day show on Sunday. Mothers will be admitted free on Sunday with the purchase of a ticket by their sons.

The show itself was written by Robert Whelen, Secretary of Athletics at Villanova. Produced originally in 1951 and performed in the same year in Philadelphia's Town Hall by the Armed Forces, "Piper Heidsieck 98" stars T'nT president, Gary Tackas, and senior John Gozo in the leads.

The "romantic" leads in the show will be played by John Birkenheuer and Jim Gillespie and according to the procedure in past years, members of the Villanova football team will display their proficiency in the art of dancing.

Main Line Setting

"Piper's" plot involves the efforts of a newly rich family from Brooklyn, to crash Main Line society.

The show consists of two acts and seven scenes. A kind of "Around the World in Two Hours" will take place, as the action which begins in Brooklyn, will shift to Radnor, Pa., then to Atlantic City, Vienna, London and Paris in that order.

Whelen said that the special note in this year's production is the gay, colorful costumes and the unusual number of scene changes. "A budget of $3500 has been sufficient to defer the expenses incurred by these two features," Whelen said.

Originally organized in 1933 under one of the Notre Dame four horsemen, Harry Stuhldreher, the society was disbanded at the start of World War II. It was reorganized in 1947 and has since continued without interruption.

Throughout its existence, T'nT has been one of the V.U. campus's largest and most active organizations. This year the society claims over 100 members. Work was begun on this season's show, immediately after Christmas. Finishing touches were applied to the show within the last week.

Axt urges all students, "for one of the year's most enjoyable events, not to miss "Piper Heidsieck 98."

McCarthy To Talk Tonight On Congress

Eugene J. McCarthy, U. S. Senator from Minnesota, will address students majoring in History and Political Science at 7:30 this evening in the C & F amphitheater.

Senator McCarthy's lecture, open to all students and faculty interested, will be on the subject "The Intra-Operations of the Congress of the United States". He is well qualified for this, since he was elected to the 81st through 85th Congresses and appointed to numerous committees.

He has a professional teaching background in Social Science, and was on the staff of St. Thomas College, Minnesota. The senator received his B.A. from St. John's University, Collegeville, Minnesota, in 1935, his M.A. from University of Minnesota in 1938, and St. Louis University conferred an honorary LL.D. upon him in 1955.

He also was a professor of economics and education at St.

Prom Tickets Still On Sale

By THOMAS M. WOLF

The annual Junior Week will officially commence for the class of 1960 next Monday with Mothers' Day, announced class president Sheldon Pollock.

"All plans have been completed and they should be executed without a flaw," said Pollock.

Considered to be the major social event in the Villanovan's life, the week includes, in addition to Mother's Day, the Junior prom and dinner dance, a Muff day, jazz concert, and a sports night.

Prom Tickets

Tickets for the prom can be procured until the day before the prom and today is the last day for Mothers' day ticket sales. Dinner dance tickets have been sold out for weeks, said co-chairman Ray Rafferty.

Highlighting the week, the prom will be held Friday night, May 1, in the field house, from 9 to 1, with the dance music of the Tommy Dorsey Orchestra starring Warren Covington.

Decorations for the theme, "Midnight Magic," began last Wednesday, under the supervision of co-chairmen Neil Drislane and Lee Christenson.

Convert Field House

Dan Spada, prom co-chairman along with Larry Maucher, said: "We are working to convert the Field House into a Ballroom, complete with chandelier, marble columns and Cinderella's slipper."

Maucher promised a prom "that all will enjoy and one that will make the class proud."

Tickets for the prom are available every day at tables set up in the Dougherty Hall Pie Shoppe, in the C and F cafeteria, and in 347 Sullivan. Co-chairmen for ticket sales are Dave Hayes and Lou Spevitz.

Juniors at the prom will receive for their dates what Maucher considers the finest favor seen at the prom in recent years: brandy snifters suitably engraved with the Villanova seal and a remembrance of the date.

Break Tradition

Refreshment chairman Dick Walsh has announced that his committee is "breaking with the Villanova tradition of tasteless punch and little else at proms."

He hopes to serve refreshments "that really are refreshing, along with a little something extra."

Angie DeMarco and George Fay have expressed thanks to those who made the patron sale a success and to all those who became benefactors or patrons of the prom.

The dinner dance, scheduled for the following night, will be held in the main ballroom of the Broadwood Hotel, in Philadelphia.

Dinner Dance Theme

Co-chairman John Driscoll announced the theme to be "A Spring Night . . . Sentimental Memories." The committee has engaged the band of Al Raymond, familiar at Villanova affairs. There will be a pianist and vocalist during dinner.

The dance will begin 6:30 p.m. and grace for dinner will be said at 7.

Bob McCauley is ticket and program chairman, and Jon Rietzke is publicity chairman.

Mothers' Day

Mothers' Day on Monday will begin with an outdoor Mass at Our Lady of Good Counsel shrine, at 11:00. After this, the class tree will be planted. The day includes a dinner, a complete program of entertainment in the field house, a display of the "Diaper Dan" baby pictures, and an evening benediction.

Co-chairmen for the day are Bill Galm and John Wallin who promised that accommodation will be made for tickets for traveling companions of the mothers.

The winner of the junior queen contest will be announced at the prom. The Patricia Stevens Finishing School of Philadelphia is judging the queen entries submitted by juniors.

The five finalists will appear in the special Junior Week edition of the VILLANOVAN according to Ed Olsen, chairman.

Muff Day

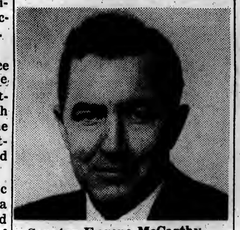
Muff Day chairman Vince Cucuzzella has challenged the senior class to a series of athletic contests, a challenge which they are expected to accept. The day includes softball and basketball games, tennis matches, and track events.

Tuesday of Junior Week, Vic Richel, chairman, has planned a "Sports Night", to be devoted to the recent athletic history of Villanova in sports. Both on film and in person, the Villanova teams will be honored.

Films to be shown include highlights of the Army and Boston College games. The track team will be seen in their victorious IC4A meet held at Villanova last June. The controversial basketball game with West Virginia of last year will be shown.

Outstanding Athlete

The award to the Oustanding Senior Athlete will be made Sports Night. This award is given each year after the results of a student poll have been tabulated.



A special issue of the VILLANOVAN will be disseminated to the juniors and their mothers. It will be a magazine-type paper, with larger pictures and articles prepared solely by juniors.

Fathers' Day Celebration Plans Announced by Kempf

The Annual Fathers' Day celebration is scheduled for Saturday, May 9.

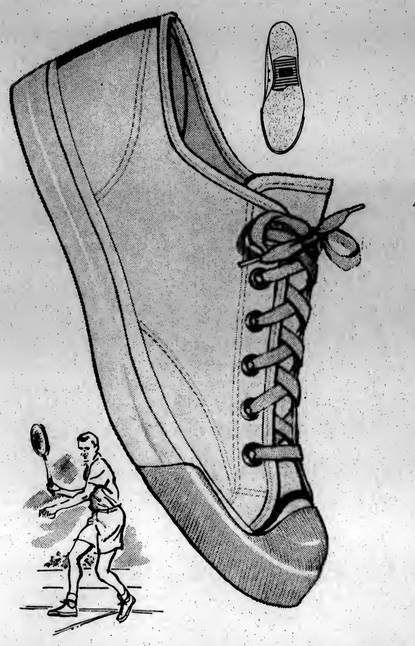
Chairman Don Kempf said that "this year's affair should be a Fathers' Day to end all Fathers' Days."

Highlights of the celebration will be a Mass celebrated at the grotto by Rev. Henry F. Weeks, O.S.A. senior class moderator. Luncheon is scheduled for noon.

Sports events, slated for the afternoon, include demonstrations and intra-squad basketball, swimming, and football games, as well as regularly scheduled track and baseball games.

Banquet chairman Jim Corey promised a meal which would be "enjoyable and tasty, with no bitter after-effects.

Bill Christy, Program Chairman, stated that "the program should be extremely interesting," while Publicity Co-Chairmen Joe Schneider and Jack Curtin declared that "publicity is where the heart is", and promised a full-scale publicity campaign.



Ticket Co-Chairmen Jim Hull and Gary Mara are selling tickets daily in the Pie Shoppe. They suggested that students buy tickets as soon as possible to be assured of admission to the affair. "Tickets are selling like hot cakes," they said.

Summing up plans for the day, Kempf thanked everyone who had co-operated with him, and declared that "this is a day that Villanovans and their Dads will long remember."

Phi Kappa Pi Elects

Phi Kappa Pi will hold elections of officers for the coming year tomorrow. Balloting will take place in Mendel Hall.

Nominations were held last Thursday before the final pledge meetings. Senior members are eligible for the office of President, Vice President, and Student Council Representative. Junior members hold the remaining offices of Secretary, Treasurer, and Sergeant-at-Arms.

New Yearbook Editor

Thomas Peretti, junior Political Science major from Grand Rapids, Mich., has been appointed editor-in-chief of the 1960 Belle Aire, the senior yearbook.

The appointment was announced by 1959 editor Robert Pinto, who stated, "I hope Tom gets all the help that I did. I'm sure he will do a good job."

Peretti stated that no other staff appointments had been made as yet. He further declared that senior pictures will be taken between May 4 and May 18, and that juniors should look for picture schedules, which will be posted shortly.

Financial Grant to V.U.

Villanova University is one of two Catholic colleges to receive financial grants this week from the Campbell Soup Co., who announced a $424,000 aid to education program for 1959.

Villanova and Loyola Universities in the United States which will participate in a program of unrestricted grants, fellowships for graduate study and other educational assistance.

Villanova received an unrestricted grant of $5,000, it was announced by the Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O.S.A., University President. The contribution represents a continuation of the company's aid-to-education program which, since 1950, has totaled over $2,500,000.

The company pointed out that its further welfare is dependent in a large measure on the caliber of employees selected, and that substantial numbers of trained men and women are being supplied by colleges whose effectiveness will be increasingly dependent upon corporate support.

Sohomore Area Test

A general assembly of all sophomores in Arts and Sciences will take place tomorrow in Vasey Hall Auditorium at 10:30 a.m., it was announced by Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, Dean of Arts and Sciences.

The purpose of the assembly is to discuss the forthcoming Area Tests of the Institutional Testing Program formulated by the Educational Testing Service.

It will be given Tuesday, May 5, at 1:30 p.m. in Vasey Hall Auditorium.

The test, is designed to aid students in planning their futures. It will leat to the Graduate Record Examination taken by all students in senior year.

Review Editor Named

John J. Guilfoyle, a second year law student at Villanova University, has been appointed editor-in-chief of the 1959 edition of the Villanova Law Review, it was announced by Dean Harold Gill Reuschlein.

Announcement of Guilfoyle's appointment came during the Fourth Annual Law Review Dinner held in Garey Hall on campus Tuesday night, April 14. He succeeds James W. Schwartz of Pittsburgh as Editor-in-Chief.

Guilfoyle attended St. Joseph's Preparatory School and is a graduate of St. Joseph's College. He entered Villanova's School of Law in 1957, and has been an outstanding student.

Charles C. Keeler, of Glenn Mills, Pa., was named comment editor of the Law Review, and Patrick M. Ryan of New York City was named case editor. David H. Moskowitz, of Elkins Park, will become article and book Editor.

The honorable Herbert F. Goodrich, Judge of the United States Court of Appeals of the Third Circuit, was the main speaker for the Law Review dinner. Other speakers were the Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O.S.A., Villanova's President, and Dean Reuschlein.

Attend Conference

The Eastern Region of the Pennsylvania Citizenship Clearing House held its annual Student Conference at the University of Pennsylvania on April 10 and 11.

The main topic for discussion was "Municipal Government and Its Problems". Informal discussion session, presided over by prominent political figures in the Philadelphia area, debated these problems.

Representing Villanova at the conference were Joseph Pultorak, Lawerence Ruth, Thomas Peretti, and Dr. Fritz Nova of the Political Science Department.

ME Frat Elects Gahm

Bill Gahm, Junior Mechanical Engineer from Castasauqua Pa. has been elected President of the Pi Tau Sigma Fraternity for the coming year. The Fraternity is an honorary organization for those Mechanical Engineers who are outstanding in their field. The Villanova Chapter has been in existence since April 10, 1953.

Bill Barron was elected to the office of Vice-President; Walt Kenney, Treasurer; Frank Perry, Recording Secretary; and Tom Bueslin, Corresponding Secretary.

French Club Contest

The French club is currently sponsoring a creative art contest in an effort to stimulate an interest in French culture and art.

Classes of entries which will be acceptable include painting, drawing, sculpture, and any form of writing.

Trophies will be awarded to the top three winners. Entries may be submitted in room 140 Mendel.

Education Needs Help

Dr. Allen H. Wetter, superintendent of schools of Philadelphia, noted in his address to the faculty and students of the Department of Education on Monday, April 13, that "America is what it is today due to its educational system."

Wetter called the teaching profession a "calling from God" due to the many problems which teachers of today have to face. Citing many of these problems from an article entitled "Guide Lines for the Year Ahead," Wetter said that schools can only face these problems if they have the understanding, co-operation and appreciation of the people.

Wetter was glad that the school and community were co-operating to a greater extent and that the public was aroused by the necessity of having good schools.

Also noted was the need for a liberal arts education integrated into the training of teachers. From this a teacher would have a more solid background in language, arts, social studies and science.

In his closing statements, Wetter called the young people of today, "wonderful", and asked them to aim at "a love of excellence."

Field Trip To Sun Oil

The Sun Oil Company of Marcus Hook was host to a field trip of the Villanova Chapter of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers on Thursday, April 9. About thirty-five Chemical Engineering Students Attended.

Highlights of the trip were the inspection of the refinery, a very well diversified example of Chemical Engineering in industry, and discussions on the role of the Chemical Engineer in industry.

DES Inductions Sunday

Induction of new members into Delta Epsilon Sigma, the National Catholic Honor Society, will take place this Sunday at 2 p.m. in the west lounge of Dougherty Hall.

Senior Class Asks Its Due Officers' Response Urged

Seven months ago, the president of the senior class at a leading Eastern university said:

"We're going to have a well organized class. We're going to have a large steering committee so that many views can be heard. And, what's more important, we'll hold frequent class meetings to keep the seniors informed."

Now, seven months later, seniors at that university, outside of a handful that have participated, say sadly, "It might have been."

Let's call the leading Eastern university Villanova. You know the leading characters.

Since that day of prophecy seven months ago there have been three class meetings. Unlike classes here since 1955, there have been no senior publicists dedicated to getting senior news spread through the university. The VILLANOVAN, administered by seniors, has at times, had to chase the officers of the senior class for news stories.

It is little wonder why only 260 couples attended the prom.

There has been no exchange of ideas between the class officers and class members in months.

With just five weeks remaining, the editor of this newspaper has yet to see one bit of information on the senior parting festival.

Rumors are plenty—There will be no parting festival—Only 300 students can attend the parting festival—Everybody can attend the parting festival, and, reminiscent of the senior prom,—what parting festival?

Senior Fathers' Day is only two weeks away. The chairman of that event has waged an all-out effort to keep plans of that day secret. It's typical, class of '59.

Will the father's day celebration go the way of the much criticized senior prom?

There is a real danger here of failure and we call on senior class president Oz Scogna to avert that failure.

We want a class meeting. It can be held tomorrow or within the next few days.

We want the president and chairman of the upcoming events to tell what plans have been made.

What we really want is a successful Fathers' Day and successful Parting Festival.

And as the class of 1959, that's what we're entitled to get.

Muff Day Challenge Issued To Seniors

To the Editor:

In the fall of 1956 the class of '59 humiliated the class of 1960 by narrowly defeating them in the annual Freshman-Sophomore Muff Day. At this time, we the Junior Class, would like to get the revenge which will be ours. Therefore:

Class of '59, you are hereby challenged to meet the Class of 1960 in the field of athletic combat on the afternoon of Thursday, April 30, 1959, in Junior-Senior Muff Day.

We want and will get our revenge.

Pollock Asks Seniors To Write Broadwood

To the Editor:

I would like to direct this message to the members of the senior class, speaking as president of the junior class.

Recently many of the seniors have complained about the service which the management of the Broadwood Hotel gave during their recent dinner dance.

For this reason I am asking that they do a favor for the class of 1960 by writing to the Broadwood management and registering their complaints.

I ask them to please list only facts in their letters. I do not think that it will require too much time to write such a letter, in comparison to the great results which it is likely to produce.

There are also reports circulated by seniors who attended the function that the food left something to be desired (I am referring to the after effects).

If the seniors who write remember to include these and other complaints they might have, I am sure the Broadwood management will take corrective measures to insure that we, the Junior Class, will conclude our Week with a satisfactory dinner dance.

I would like to thank the seniors in advance, and offer my best congratulations to them upon the completion of their college careers.

Chairmen Confused: Black, White, Blue?

To the Editor:

The recent mis-match of white and black (and even powder blue, believe it or not) tuxedo jackets at the past senior weekend certainly points out the fact that conformity on the college campus is not always bad, especially when it's a matter of being correct.

Black (which is the proper color—and will be for another month) was obviously in the minority. This was not so much the fault of those who ignored the correct attire as it was the fault of those in charge who ignored making a statement of policy which would have been helpful to many who were in doubt.

I even hesitate to think that this was a case of negligence, because it seems that those in charge forgot to even remind themselves.

Assuming, of course, that they knew the correct color.

Blasts Senior Weekend

Ex-Staffer Attacks Villanovan Editorial

To the Editor:

As a member (and a disgusted one) of the Class of 1959, I must totally and utterly disagree with the conclusions you reached in your editorial dealing with the Senior Prom last week.

You said that the only serious complaint that could be made about the prom was that "not enough seniors were there to enjoy it." I'll go along with you on that, but I'm afraid we're eons apart when it comes to placing the blame for this deplorable situation.

You seem to think that the class itself was at fault and that "the prom committee, under chairman Gregory Dean made every effort to provide the traditional success." In the face of the facts, this is ridiculous.

The blame does not rest on the class of 1959—it lies with those in charge of the affair. These men seemed to regard the prom as a "social obligation" for seniors (and Heaven knows they didn't care about underclass support), and conducted what must go down as one of the least publicized affairs in recent Villanova history.

Look at Facts

Let's take a look at the facts. As early as two weeks before the prom, almost any senior could have pointed out that the prom was well on the way to financial failure. It was evident that ticket sales were not going as usual.

What was done to push sales—to entice people to attend the prom? Nothing—nothing at all. In fact, from all appearances, those running the affair were least concerned about its success.

(Even the class officers didn't seem to give a darn what happened. No class meetings or Steering Committee meetings were called to discuss the problem — but then, we never seem to have them any more anyway.)

My argument is not with the prom itself; it is with the obvious mishandling of the affair by all concerned. The whole thing was a glaring example of incompetence.

Oustanding Band

There can be no denying that the committee, as you put it, "lined up an outstanding band." But that's all the committee did.

Isn't it a fact that this was the worst decorated dance seen in the Field House since our class matriculated at Villanova?

Isn't it a fact that the dates of the five queen finalists had not been notified that their dates had been selected as late as the night before the prom because the chairman didn't know who the finalists were?

And isn't it a fact that, despite only a meager attendance of 236 couples at the prom, there weren't enough favors to go around? (Believe it or not, they must have been expecting even less than that to show up!)

Chairman at Fault

These things were not the fault of the class—they were the fault of the men in charge of the weekend. Aside from the bare essentials (such as making sure the Field House was unlocked for the prom), they did nothing.

It would seem that the prom was either in the hands of men who didn't know what they were doing or who didn't care enough to try to make the event worthwhile. In either case, their efforts (or lack thereof) put a blight on the record of a class that can be proud of everything it has done previously.

There are plenty of other complaints that could be registered about the weekend, but since your editorial dealt only with the prom so will I.

Tip to Reporters

But here's a tip for one of your energetic reporters: check the rumor that tickets to the Parting Festival will be limited to 300 couples—or about half the class. Look into that one, because it's never happened before.

All we can do now is hope that the rest of the class affairs are handled much, much better; or those "mumbles" you wrote about might turn into a long, loud roar.

Posterity

Purple, yellow, green, and red swirled
Amidst the black and plaid,
Cloistered in filth and tradition,
Uncleaned beyond expectation.
Cheapness marked everything
Nothing new, something borrowed,
Everything old and all so blue.
There was the white so out of place, looking back without the social grace of those in midnight blue.

Combined it made a dreary sight,
Which moved on throughout the Night marked by surprises.
Running here, the females and the males, to Different corners
Fought wars against an enemy
Whose attack was unexpected.
Time consumed by sitting shortened
Dances . . . rapid movements to
The door . . . hurried steps, and Tightened lips, left partners
Stranded on the floor alone.
The night of this debacle will pass into eternity branded execrable and destined to live in infamy.

Alumni Outlook Promising; Future Growth Indicated

By GEORGE PEQUIGNOT
Alumni Executive Secretary

Now that we have told you of our organizational arrangement and of our activities, let us consider the really important thing . . . our progress.

We are pleased with the progress we have made and, in particular, with recent developments. However, by no means are we going to allow ourselves to become complacent for the road ahead is clearly visible, and it is a long, challenging one.

Our greatest progress has been without question in the updating of our records. This phase of our operation, while seemingly not so, is the most important. When you think about it for a minute you will realize that if we do not have current addresses for our members, we have no contact with them and consequently no association. It may surprise you to know that we change nearly 5,000 addresses a year.

Gigantic Job

Unfortunately, our office has not always had the manpower needed to keep abreast of this gigantic job, and we have more of our members in our lost address file than we would like to have.

Our progress here has been that we have definitely reversed this trend, and are now uncovering more addresses than we are losing. Actually, we seldom have had to file anyone in the lost address file recently. This means that there is less chance that your address will go astray when you become an alumnus, but may we implore you to keep the alumni files in mind as you move around. A postcard to us is all that is needed.

You would be surprised how many people turn to our office in an attempt to find a long lost friend or a potential employee, a recommendation, and many others. You will be wise to keep in touch with your Alma Mater, for, and remember this, you will be identified with Villanova.

Complete Mailing

We now have the finest addressing equipment available. This enables us to mail our magazine to every alumnus, promote class reunions, and tell of the progress of our Foundation Drive among other things.

Perhaps, we shall soon mail the VILLANOVAN to those interested in reading it. Our entire physical operation is steadily improving and expanding.

Our club program is now, in all probability, in the best shape it has ever been, and shows signs of improving. Over 80% of our members now fall into an area which either has an active club, or is forming one.

The student liason plan which your Student Council has initiated is a tremendous thing. A tie between the undergraduate and his home club has some far-reaching potential and we intend to support this plan all the way. Every club is anxious to have the undergraduates from their area participate as much as possible in their activities. This will become a reality under this plan.

Foundation Drive

Our Foundation Drive has been consistently showing an increase. Participation is our main interest, and we are greatly encouraged that we have averaging over 400 new contributors every year.

We do not ask the recent graduate to participate in this drive, nor do we expect that an alumnus can help much while he is getting established and raising a family. Again, participation, whatever the extent of the gift, is encouraged.

Our annual Reunion has been improving in all ways. Many feel that we held our best reunion last year, and we have every reason to believe that this year we will even do better. You will want to be certain to be on hand for this activity whenever circumstances will permit.

There is hardly a phase of our operation, in which we do not feel that we have progressed considerably. You must agree that this is a healthy sign that our Association is "getting into orbit".

Framework

Keeping in mind our purpose, the Association offers you the Framework through which you can be the most service to Villanova. The recent graduate is in the position to realize better than anyone else the assistance which is needed at Villanova, and in the alumni organization he will find the best method of giving assistance.

Only through such an organized group as ours can a class maintain the contact they desire. No matter how closely knit or how well-organized they may be, an individual class cannot foster the continual contact necessary to keep it together.

The alumni office can and does make class communication a simple matter. An extension of this is the ALUMNUS, our magazine, which publishes news about yourself.

Homecoming

We have many other things to offer you. Many have been mentioned elsewhere in this series, such as the Reunion, Homecoming Day, and the opportunity to promote yourself by promoting your Alma Mater.

The future of the Villanova General Alumni Association is as bright as the future of the University itself. We can give you one figure that will emphasize this. Nearly one-half of our membership has graduated since 1949!

It should be only too clear that we are just coming into our own. The members of the first big class (1950) are just reaching the beginning of their real potential period.

Potential Felt

We are busy now organizing the framework through which this coming potential can make itself felt. The alumni, who are directly planning for the future of the Association, are confident that they are promoting an organization which will become a mature partner to the University in its higher educational enterprise.

That we accomplish this is important to the University . . . and to ourselves. Fellows, we are counting on you, and anxiously awaiting the opportunity to welcome you into our group.

Library Gift Aids Students

The Villanova University Library has recently been the recipient of a large donation of books, it was announced by Rev. Daniel Falvey O.S.A., University Librarian.

The books approximately 1200 in number, were the gift of Rt. Rev. John J. McKenna, rector of St. John the Baptist Church in Manayunk, and a scholar of considerable note.

Fr. Falvey emphasized that Msgr. McKenna's library, consisting of many works of religion, philosophy, history and science, represents a major gain by the university library in its continuing program of enlargement.

Included among the new books are many works ordinarily difficult to obtain. These are expected to be valuable to students of all divisions of the University.

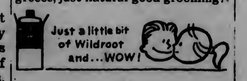
Dean Announces Favors Available

Gregory Dean, co-chairman of the Senior Prom, said Monday that more than 50 favors had "disappeared" the night of the dance.

Dean made the charge in reply to a letter which appeared in the VILLANOVAN last week. The letter writer said that his date had not received a prom favor.



The favors this year were 45 RPM recordings of the Glenn Miller band under the direction of Ray McKinley. That band played at the prom.

Dean said that if the student who wrote the letter and any other student whose date was missed in the dispensation of favors "really wanted favors, they could get them from me."

N.F.C.C.S Officers Elected

Elections for the officers for 1959-60 were held at the meeting of the N.F.C.C.S. Regional Council on Sunday, April 12, at Chestnut Hill College.

Walter J. Sullivan of St. Joseph's College was re-elected regional president. Miss Anita Kritzler of Holy Family College was elected vice-president. C.U. R.A. administrator elect is Charles Halfpenny of La Salle. A treasurer is to be picked at the May Council Meeting.

A resolution to dissolve the region for a year created a controversy, at the meeting. The proposal was made by Miss Nancy March of Chestnut Hill.

THE MANY LOVES OF THORWALD DOCKSTADER

When Thorwald Dockstader—sophomore, epicure, and sportsman—first took up smoking, he did not simply choose the first brand of cigarettes that came to hand. He did what any sophomore, epicure, and sportsman would do: he sampled several brands and then picked the mildest, tastiest, pleasingest of all—Philip Morris, of corris!

Similarly, when Thorwald took up girls, he did not simply select the first one who came along. He sampled. First he took out an English literature major named Elizabeth Barrett Grisht, a wisp of a girl with luminous eyes and a soul that shimmered with a pale, unearthly beauty. Trippingly, trippingly, she walked with Thorwald upon the beach and sat with him behind a windward dune and listened to a sea shell and sighed sweetly and took out a little gold pencil and a little morocco notebook and wrote a little poem:

I will lie upon the shore,
I will be a dreamer.
I will feel the sea once more
Pounding on my femur.

Thorwald's second date was with a physical education major named Peaches Glendower, a broth of a girl with a ready smile and a size 18 neck. She took Thorwald down to the cinder track where they jogged around 50 times to open the pores. Then they played four games of squash, six sets of tennis, 36 holes of golf, nine innings of one old cat, six chukkers of lacrosse, and a mile and a quarter of leap frog. Then they went ten rounds with eight-ounce gloves and then they had heaping bowls of bran and whey and exchanged a manly handshake and went home to their respective whirlpool baths.

"I think I'll stick with PHILIP MORRIS," he said

Thorwald's final date was with a golden-haired, creamy-browed, green-eyed, red-lipped, full-calved girl named Totsi Sigafoos. Totsi was not majoring in anything. As she often said, "Gee whillikers, what's college for anyhow—to fill your head full of icky old facts, or to discover the shining essence that is YOU?"

Totsi started the evening with Thorwald at a luxurious restaurant where she consumed her own weight in Cornish rock hen. From there they went to a de luxe movie palace where Totsi had popcorn with butter. Then she had a bag of chocolate covered raisins—also with butter. Then they went to a costly ballroom and cha-cha'd till dawn, tipping the band every eight bars. Then they went to a Chinese restaurant where Totsi, unable to decipher the large and baffling menu, found a simple way out of her dilemma: she ordered one of everything. Then Thorwald took her to the women's dorm, boosted her in the window, and went downtown to wait for the employment office to open.

While waiting, Thorwald thought over all of his girls and came to a sensible decision. "I think," he said to himself, "that I will stick with Philip Morris. I am not rich enough for girls."

ENTER OFTEN—HAVE FUN—AND WIN! But think carefully! This puzzle is not as easy as it looks. At first the DOWN and ACROSS clues may appear simple. There may appear to be more than one "right" answer. For example, the clue might read: "Many a coed will be given her best date's P- -N." Either "I" (PIN) or "E" (PEN) would seem to fit. But only one answer is apt and logical as decided by the judging staff, and therefore correct. Read the rules carefully. ENTER AS OFTEN AS YOU WISH. Good luck!

RULES—PLEASE READ CAREFULLY

1. The College Puzzle Contest is open to college students and college faculty members except employees and their immediate families of Liggett & Myers and its advertising agencies.

2. Fill in all missing letters . . . print clearly. Use of obsolete, archaic, variant or foreign words prohibited. After you have completed the puzzle, send it along with six empty package wrappers of the same brand from L&M, Chesterfield or Oasis cigarettes (or one reasonable hand-drawn facsimile of a complete package wrapper of any one of the three brands) to: Liggett & Myers, P. O. Box 271, New York 46, N. Y. Enter as often as you wish, but be sure to enclose six package wrappers (or a facsimile) with each entry. Illegible entries will not be considered.

3. Entries must be postmarked by midnight, Friday, May 29, 1959 and received by midnight, Friday, June 5, 1959.

4. Entries will be judged by the Bruce-Richards Corporation, an independent judging organization, on the basis of logic and aptness of thought of solutions. In the event of ties, contestants will be required to complete in 25 words or less the following statement: "My favorite cigarette is (Chesterfield) (L&M) or (Oasis) because . . . . ". Entries will be judged on originality, aptness of thought and interest by the Bruce-Richards Corporation. Duplicate prizes will be awarded in event of final ties. Illegible entries will not be considered. By entering all entrants agree that the decision of the judges shall be final and binding.

5. Solutions must be the original work of the contestants submitting them. All entries become the property of Liggett & Myers and none will be returned.

6. Winners will be notified by mail as soon as possible after completion of the contest.

7. This contest is subject to all Federal, State and local laws and regulations.

Intramural Track Thursday; Softball In Full Swing

Intramural track and Field Day will take place April 30th and all entries must be in by Mon., April 27th. No late entrees will be accepted.

The highlight of this year's event is the newly inaugurated mile relay contest. There will also be the 220, 440, 880 runs and broad jump for all varied track enthusiasts.

There has been a lot of softball action these days and here are just a few scored in some of the leagues.

In the 2:30 Austin League, the Cowboys bombed the Fubor Mooses 15-2 while the Sons of Italy were drubbing MLCAA 12-1.

In the 3:30 Austin League: Doc's Sox nipped Thumbs A. C. 17 to 15—Softball or Football? The Avonallivs had little trouble with the Epear Chuckers 8-1, and downed the De Lurrey Devils 5-1.

In the 5:30 Austin League Jizz AC eeked by the Ranch Hands 3-2 while the Rover Boys bowed to the East Wingers by an 8-3 count. The Rangers scared the Simpson Spooks real bad, the score 14 to 1.

In the 3:30 Mendel League, Magoo's and That's Why fought out a 12-2 decision. The decision was unaminous. Villanova A. C. lived up to its name and handed McConnells a 21-3 thrashing.

Winoes drank to the Humoresque with a 9-3 victory in the 4:30 Mendel League. The lucky Shamrocks outlasted the Fubor Nine 15-10. The Dukes shelled McConnell 19-1 while Villanova A. C. was nipping the Ramblers 2-0.

At 5:30 on Mendel Field the Playboys fooled with Jay-nips 6-3. The G.A.P.'s beat the Beaks (ouch) 15-3 achoo!! The Rinkydinks nailed the AUSTIN Hammer Heads by a 10-7 score. score.

In the 5:30 Simpson League, Mu Masons lost to the Rowdy Element 5-1.

Lose to La Salle

On Tuesday, April 14th the Cats made up a rainout with La Salle.

It should have rained again Tuesdav because it just wasn't the Wildcats day. LaSalle made good use of walks, errors and base hits for a three run lead in the first inning. Starter Lee Parry, was lifted for a pinch hitter in the fifth and Joe Michell was let down by the fielders while three more runs scored in the sixth.

The 'Cats kept pecking till they scored single runs the third, fourth, fifth, sixth and the eighth. Freddie (Gus, Sam. Granny) Anthony was four for five at the plate. Yes, they really call him all those names—he prefers Fred—who?

In the ninth inning with the score 7-5 favor of LaSalle the situation was two on and two out and Paul Borian up. Paul hit a shot to right and the right fielder caught it and he dropped it. The game was tied. Almost a good break for the Villanova team but not for long.

In the ninth inning, Joe Tropeo hit a high fly to right, Eddie Monahan lost the ball in the sun and Trodea went to third. Coach Art Mahan ordered the next two batters walked by Harry Neff, the fourth 'Nova hurler. John McNamara gave Ed O'Mara the win when he bunted on a suicide squeeze as Tropea crossed the plate with the winning run. Final score 8-7, LaSalle.

Wildcats Aim For Upsets In Penn Relay Carnival

By TOM GOLDSCHMIDT

Even though one daily newspaper says "Villanova hardly figures to retain any of its crowns," Wildcat fans are expected to throng to Franklin Field in great numbers on Friday and Saturday for the Penn Relays.

If the Cats rise to the peak they usually attain for this annual carnival, Main Line rooters might just sit in on a couple of choice upsets in the mile relay and the 880 relay—the two events on which Coach Jim Elliott's squad will concentrate.

There are still student tickets available for both days of competition. They are on sale at 75c apiece in the Field House.

Charley Stead, Jim Blackburn, Joe Manion and Ed Collymore will line up for the 880, battling defending champion Abilene Christian (anchored by sensational Bill Woodhouse), Maryland, Pittsburgh, Morgan State, Michigan and Winston-Salem.

Lineup Uncertain

In the mile relay, Stead and Collymore are certain to run, but the other two runners are question marks. They'll be picked from Manion, Nick DeAngelis and Blackburn.

Winner of 11 Relay Championships of America at the Penn Relays during the past four years, the Wildcats probably will not try to defend their sprint medley and distance medley titles. They've won four straight sprint medley and distance medley titles. They've won four straight sprint medley crowns, four straight mile relays and three straight distance medleys.

Other varsity competitors in the Relays will be John Buckley (broad jump), Norbert McNulty and Kent Lydic (pole vault) Jack Van Dusen (high hurdles) and Jack Daniels, Dan Stager, Buckley and Lydic in the 440 relay.

Four freshmen, to be picked from a group composed of Paul Drayton, Bob Raemore, Bob Coffill, Pat Nicastro, Frank Hegarty Frank Budd, Ernie Muir and John Mannion, will try to break the Relays freshman mile record, set in 1957 at 3:17.8 by Morgan State.

Find 'Gold' at Randall's

Every healthy varsity and freshman thinclad journeyed to Randall's Island for the Queens-Iona Relays last Saturday, and they came home with a tidy bundle of trophies and medals.

The big noise was created by the 880-yard relay team (Stead, Blackburn, Manion and Collymore) which won by 12 yards over Yale, Morgan State and Manhattan in the meet record time of 1:26.9. Excellent baton-passing and blistering 220's by Blackburn and Collymore were the features.

Using the race as a time trial for the Penn Relays, Coach Elliott ran Manion, DeAngelis and Blackburn with Stead in a class mile relay, giving Collymore a rest. Even without Eddie, the Cats burned to a 3:17.2 victory, faster than Manhattan's 3:17.5 in the championship mile.

Another varsity relay title was annexed in the sprint medley when Yale was disqualified for passing the baton while out of the zone. Collymore (440), Stead (220), Blackburn (220) and Bob Godesky (880) were clocked in 3:28.4.

Buckley Looks Sharp

John Buckley won his first broad jump championship of the Spring by leaping 23 feet, 5½ inches. He gave evidence of getting into the fine shape that earned him the outdoor IC4A title last year with a leap of 25 feet, ¾ inch.

The Wildcats did quite as well in the pole vault. Norbert McNulty, soph who is slowly rounding into shape, tied for first place at 12-6, while Kent Lydic tied for third at 11-6.

The two-mile relay team finished second behind Yale, who won in 7:53.6. The Wildcat quartet of Vic DiMaio (1:56.6), DeAngelis (2:00.6), Tim McNamar (2:04.2) and Godesky (1:55) was caught in 7:56.

In the 440 relay, the Cats were a surprising fourth. Jack Daniels, Dan Stager, Buckley and Lydic were clocked in 43.8. The winner, Morgan State, did its quarter-mile in 42:2.

Budd Was Century

Freshman Frank Budd won the AAU handicap 100-yard dash. Running from scratch, he took his heat in 9.8, semi-final in 9.9 and final in 10.1, while never being pushed after the first 70 yards.

Bob Coffill, who set a Villanova record of 53.9 in the 440-yard hurdles at Quantico two weeks ago, won the same race in 55.3 at Queens-Iona.

Rather than group his best four freshman quarter-milers and most certainly win a mile relay, Coach Elliott mixed his men thoroughly and gave everyone a good workout.

In the freshman mile relay race, Paul Drayton (48.9), John Mannion (50.1), Frank Hegarty (50.3) and Pat Nicastro (48.9) broke the meet record in the first heat with a 3:18.2 clocking. Running in different order three hours later, Hegarty (50.8), Mannion (51.7), Drayton (49.1) and Nicastro (50.3) were beaten by two yards at the tape by St. John's which came in at 3:20.6 to the Cats' 3:20.9.

Fourth In AAU Mile

Another frosh quartet took fourth in an AAU mile relay, trailing New York Pioneers, New York Community College and Fort Lee. Budd (50.7), Ernie Muir (51.4), Bob Raemore (48.4) and Coffill (48.9) did 3:19.4 to the winner's 3:18.4.

Villanova took second in the frosh distance medley. Bob Collins (2:02.4 for the 880,) Muir (24.1 for the 220), Leon Pras (52.5 for the 440) Angelo Sivieri (4:27.8 for the mile) were clocked overall in 7:46.8.

Soph Lance Hugelmeyer and freshman Jerry Hackett took thirds in different sections of the AAU three-quarter mile handicap. Soph Hank Neil was fifth in one section.

Others who competed throughout the long day were senior Jack Van Dusen in the high hurdles, frosh Art Crowley in the three-quarter mile and junior Jack Donohue in the discus.

Baseball Team Plays Host To West Chester, Temple

By JIM MURRAY

Tomorrow afternoon on their home diamond at 2:30 the Villanova baseball nine take on the Teachers from West Chester. It will be the second meeting of both teams in less than a week with the 'Cats winning last Saturday's contest 6-4.

On this Saturday afternoon at 2:00 P.M. the 'Nova Nine will be seeking to average an early setback by the Temple team 4-2. In this home contest, Villanova will be seeking to raise its Big Five record to an even 2 and 2 count.

Teachers Tough

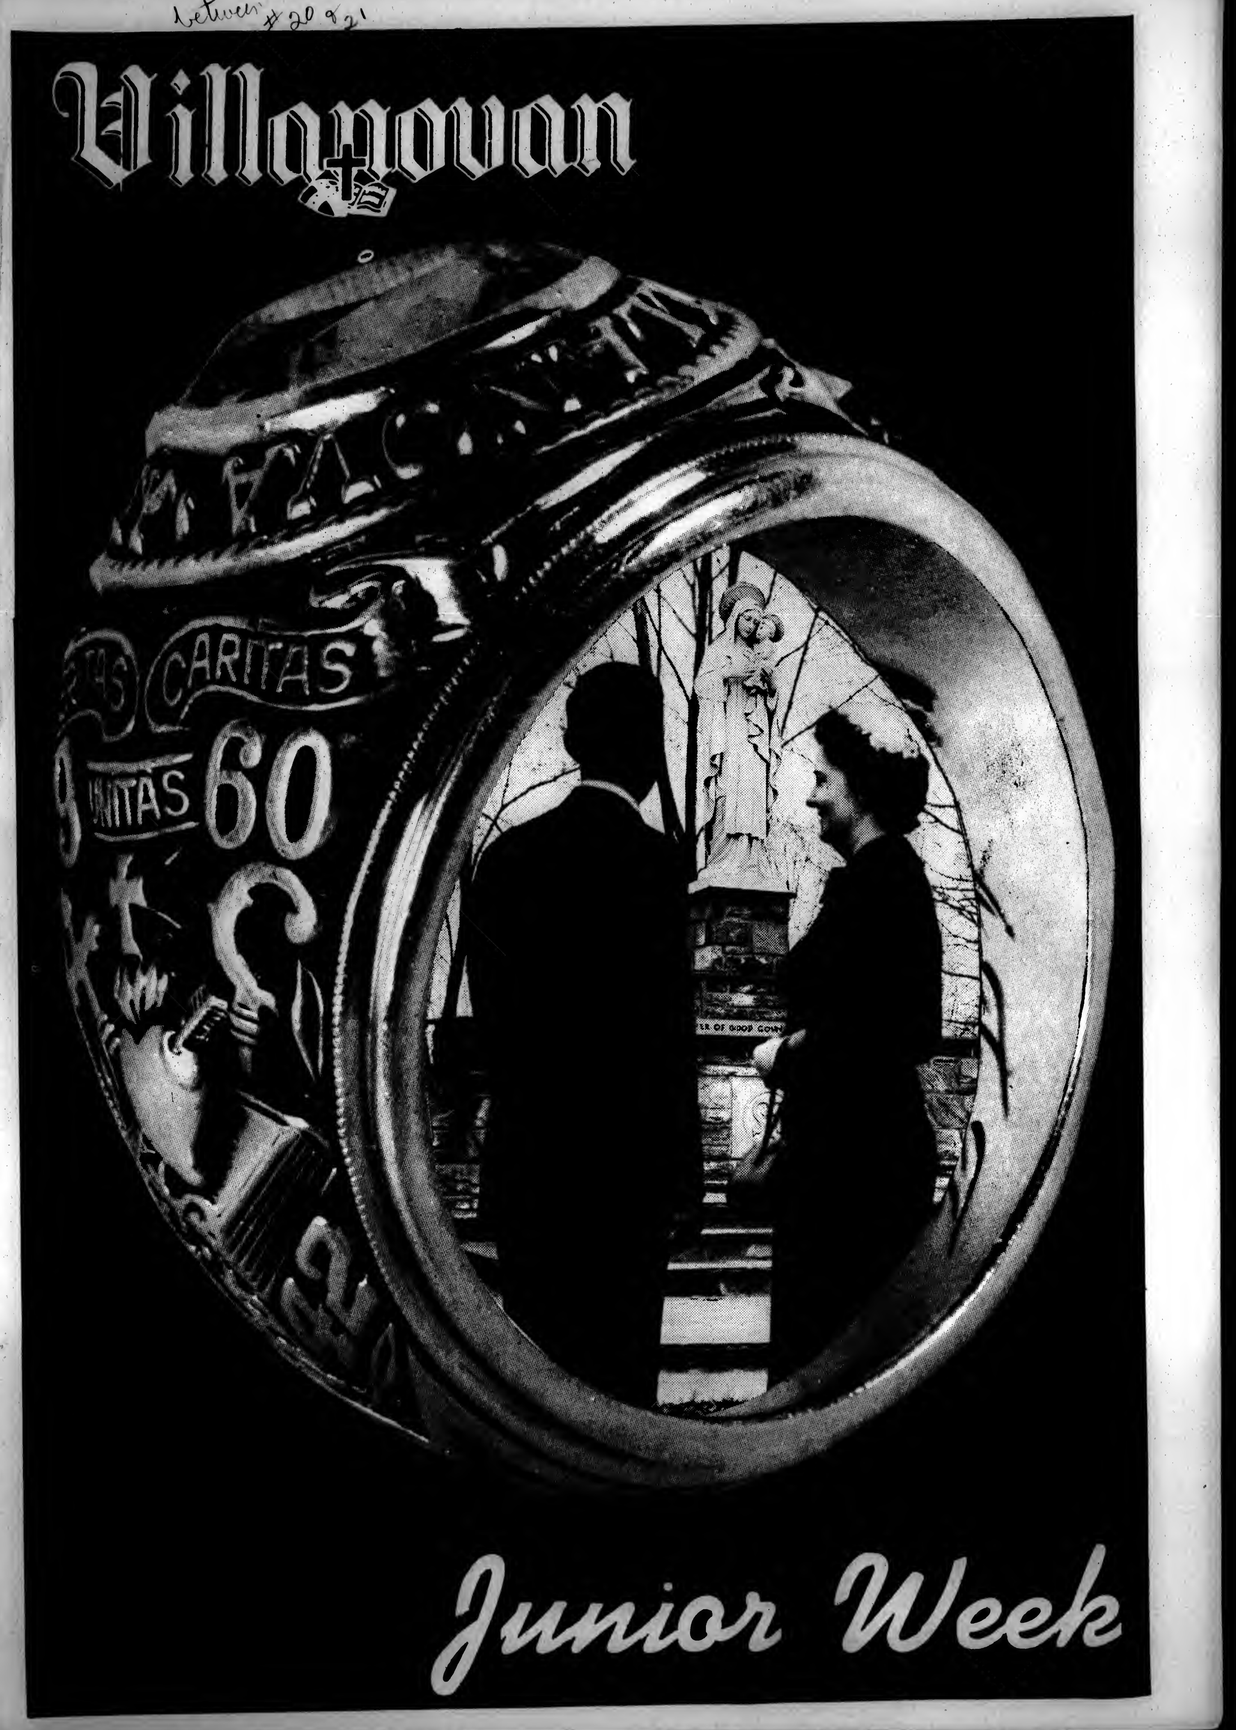
Hal Bauser and the home plate umpire had trouble finding the strike zone. In the bottom of the first after getting the leadoff batter, Bauser walked the next three men. After a passed ball, Jack Wendland tried to take home and was thrown out with a perfect peg from Jack Fahey to Bauser. Two unearned runs came across when Jack Kuchinsky, first sacker, hit a single to left but Kuchinsky was thrown out trying to make it a two base hit. Score now 2-2.

Bauser knocked in two runs himself, with a single in the second to score Fahey. In the fourth it was again Jack Fahey who had tripled home Joe Cramer, that Bauser brought home, this time with a sacrifice fly. The Wildcats other run came on a circuit clout by George Emma.

West Chester scored two more times, on a home run by losing pitcher, Paul Chenger and right fielder, Abe Werdman. Both pitchers were great in the latter innings but it was Bauser's big test and he passed with flying colors.

Hawks Hammered

On Friday, April 17th, Villanova met St. Joseph's and the game was decided on the first inning. Freddie (Andre, Tony, Filip) Anthony, started the base hit parade with a booming triple. When the parade was over the Cats had seventeen hits and nineteen runs.



In between George Emma was going five for five, everybody was playing, and almost unnoticed Joe Mitchell was throwing a pretty six hitter. Joe threw his fast and breaking stuff with such variety there was rarely a ball hit to the outfield. In fact, the Cats racked up four double plays. Losing pitcher for St. Joe's was Dick Killhoef. The final score was 19-1.

The win against St. Joe's was Villanova's first Big Five win this season.

Class meeting hears committee report from Jon Rietzke on advisability of garter as Junior Week souvenir. President Pollock stands to right.

Credit to Committees

It's a week when time and money fly on winged feet, Junior Week.

Here's an opportunity to witness an age-old phenomenon —more than twelve months of feverish planning joyfully enacted in one swift week. For example, Mother's Day, after months of human toil, will be alloted only seven hours to prove itself a success today.

Prom chairmen Larry Maucher and Dan Spada can't remember when they first manned the drawing board in preparation for the dance, it was so long ago. A year of planning for a five-hour prom.

Dinner Dance chairmen Ray Rafferty and John Driscoll began contacting prospective hotels a year ago. Menu, band, hotel, theme and arrangements required an inestimable number of man-hours of work—for an affair which will last only five hours.

Comparable amounts of strenuous work are involved in the planning of Sports Night, Muff Day, and the Jazz Festival.

It is a distinct human characteristic that, when exhaustive plans for social events happen somehow to go awry, the chairmen receive all sorts of comment, most degrogatory. But when such functions are well-coordinated, smoothly run without a hitch, the planners usually receive not the last bit of attention or congratulation.

The sundry committee workers neither desire nor expect open displays of appreciation. Perhaps they believe that this would detract from complete, pure enjoyment of the affairs.

Nevertheless, some reflection on their efforts is indeed called for. We can start by publicly recognizing Class President Sheldon Pollock and the staggering coordinating role which he so deftly filled.

Tribute should also fittingly be extended to all the chairmen and co-chairmen who are mentioned throughout this issue. Theirs was a tremendous task which each of them, without exception, handled in tremendous fashion.

We take the liberty to congratulate them, even though the fruits of their work will not be evident until this week is over. We are supremely confident that each affair will be an unqualified success, and that Junior Week 1959 will be the best ever.

Mother's Day: Tribute and Reflection

By TOM O'KANE

Today marks the start of the most memorable week in the four years of college life for the members of the class of 1960. For nearly three years now, we have been anticipating this week, mostly, however, in terms of the Prom and Dinner Dance. But as Junior Week was approaching we suddenly began to realize—or should have realized—that there is another day with an even deeper significance to us. And that day is Mother's Day.

This is the day that the members of the Junior Class pay tribute to the most deserving "girl" is their lives—their mothers. But in honoring our mom, each one of us, in order to extract the full value and meaning of this day, should reflect upon what our mother means to us, who she is, and what our past relations

Too often, we view our mother solely in an objective manner—as the person who brought us into the world, who washes our clothes, cooks our food, and straightens up the things that we leave littered around the house.

Sure, we know in our hearts that our mother is more than just our launderess, our cook, our maid, and our nurse, but too few are the times that we bring these feelings to the surface and express our love and gratitude to her.

Exclusively Mom's

Of course we honor her on her birthday and the annual Mother's Day, but too often the only difference between these days and any other day is the fact that we give her a present or send her a card; then we are off to pursue our own activities for the rest of the day. Today, however, for many of us will be the first time that we devote a whole day exclusively to our mother.

So today let us consider with some feeling and sentiment just who our mother is and what she has done for us. Let's bear in mind the great pain she happily endured in giving us life.

And let's try to recall the distress that we have caused her, perhaps unwittingly, through our misbehavior. We should all keep in mind how our mom fed us and dressed us when we were unable to do it for ourselves and how she helped us with the complex elements of arithmetic and spelling.

Strained Her Patience

And it was mom who stuck by us in thick and thin, even though we strained her patience to the breaking point. It was mother who often saved us from a well-deserved spanking, after being caught playing hookey from school or breaking all the windows in a neighbor's garage or coming home with our new suit all torn and covered with mud.

And just try to comprehend the seemingly infinite number of things she has done without, in order that we could receive the education which would enable us to obtain some of the things that she could not.

Today, in paying tribute to our mother, let us show our deep appreciation and gratitude for the aid and direction that she has always given us. Let us strive to make this day not only one of the most memorable in our life but also one of the most memorable in hers. We can do this by showing her what's in our heart.

Your Day, Mom

Today, Mom, is your day. Proudly we welcome you to the world which has been an integral part of us for the past three years. Forget any problems or worries, just relax, and have a wonderful time. And, Mom, thanks for everything.

President's Message

Dear Mothers:

May I express to all the mothers of the members of the Class of 1960 my most cordial welcome on this—the 21st Annual Mothers' Day.

This day is the Villanova Junior's way of expressing in some small way his appreciation for how much his mother has done for him on his way to success at Villanova. In order that the expression of gratitude may be fitting, the chairmen have worked untiringly to make it enjoyable for all.

For the students, this is just the beginning, of the most important social even in their under graduate days—Junior Week. Each day in this week will, we hope, be unforgetable for all who are a part of it. If the amount of work put into the events of the week is any indication of success, this will be the most successful Junior Week ever.

Today I would like to wish our mothers a most enjoyable day, and my fellow juniors, a successful and happy week.

Thank you,
Sheldon Pollock

Jr. Week Issue

This issue of the VILLANOVAN is a Junior Week edition, specially prepared by Juniors, written about Juniors, and intended primarily as a souvenir paper for mother of Juniors. The cover is considered appropriate for the day because of the Mother's Day motif, the religious suggestion, and the class ring, which symbolizes class unity.

The editors would like to thank the following men who assisted in the paper's make-up: Bill Rogers, Lee Christensen, Jim Foley, Ken Kraemer, Tom O'Kane, Matt McCue, Bill McManus, Tom Peretti, Ray Rafferty, Tom Hoffman, Bruce Sturm, Jim Merikangas, Joe Durocher, John Castano, Lou DesFosses, Chuck Ward, Ed Scott, Frank Boes, Jay Touhy, Tom McAvoy, and Frank Murtha; and of course, Freddie.

Special thanks must go to the paper's staff, to Sheldon Pollock, and to Joe Perozziello, who made a supreme effort to provide the paper with the best photos.

Mother's Day Stems From Long History

By TOM WOLF and CHUCK WARD

Welcome, Mothers, to Villanova. Today the campus is yours. You are in for a fruitful, is somewhat exhaustive, survey of the world in which we live and toil from day to day.

The day is full and complete, the tremendous product of Mother's Day co-chairmen Bill Galm and John Wallin. Contrary to public opinion, their work did not stop when the last ticket was sold. In fact, they won't be through until the last chair is removed from the outdoor shrine Monday evening.

Record Sales

They have recorded ticket sales in excess of 460 for the event, a record 75 percent of the junior class.

According to their plans, Father Girolomi, class moderator, will open the day promptly at 11 a. m. by celebrating a High Mass outdoors before the shrine of Our Lady of Good Counsel.

Adding to the inherent beauty of the Mass, the Villanova Singers will sing. In the event of rain (like last year), Mass will be said by Father in the Field House.

After Mass at the shrine, the mothers will participate in the annual tree-planting ceremony. The tree will be planted by Class President Sheldor Pollock, assisted by Mother's Day co-chairmen Galm and Wallin.

Tree Site

The site chosen for location of the tree will be some undetermined spot between Austin and St. Rita's Hall. A formidable engraved stone will signify the spot.

From here we travel to the Field House where a worthy dinner will be waiting for student and mother. Bob Whalen, chairman of the dinner, has announced that seating is not reseved and that delightful organ music will pervade the hall during dinner. Roast Beef appears to be the planned dish.

At 2:45, also in the Field House, afternoon entertainment will take the stage. After selections from the Villanova Concert Band, sophomore arts student Bob DeLisa and Pete Nolan will offer a carefully prepared comedy skit.

Jazz Festival

Furthermore, the Villanovans Band will preview the fabulous Jazz Festival scheduled for Wednesday night. With skillful renditions of Dixieland, the band bids for afternoon favor.

Ron Delany will be on hand for a selected number of remarks, to be followed by Lou Martucci's piano solo and harmony from the Villanova Singers.

All this takes place in the Field House at 2:45.

"Diaper Dan"

At 4 o'clock, a crowd of grinning mothers will file past a fascinating collection of infant photos in Dougherty Hall West Lounge, each mom searching gleefully for her own "Diaper Dan." Sample pictures can be found in this paper.

Closing off the day, Father Girolomi will say Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament in the outdoor shrine at 5:15. Festivities should be over around 6.

LONG TRADITION

The traditional Junior Week at Villanova has had a long and classic history. From its birth in 1924, the Week has seen many of the greats of the entertainment world here on campus.

Tnis unforgettable event was inaugurated by a group of Villanovans thirty-five years ago. The Class of 1924 danced and roared to the theme of "The Roaring Twenties."

In 1925, the Juniors danced at the Majestic Hotel to the music of 'Weingate's Pennsylvaians.' A note of interest regarding this event was that each Villanovan had to carry a cane, the mark of a distinguished gentleman. A "Grotesque Dance" became a part of the week in 1926. This dance was later to become as the "Blazer Ball."

Fathers Day

Fathers' Day became a reality in 1931, when Dad came down to examine the bottomless pit into which all his money was going. To the Class of 1934 belongs the credit for having the mothers visit the campus.

The year 1935 saw the first Junior Dinner Dance, and in 1938, an official "Mothers' Day" was held. This year also, the Juniors swayed to the music of Tommy Dorsey amidst a scene of sofas lining the wall of the Field House. At the Dinner Dance Gene Krupa provided a lively atmosphere.

Full Week

1942 saw the last of Junior Week until after the war years. Les Brown and his band soothed the hearts and minds of all in the Field House. The Class of 1947 enjoyed the first full Junior Week after the War. They introduced the custom of giving each mother a corsage. The Prom-goers enjoyed the music of Ray Eberle.

Mother had her fun in 1948, when the "Diaper Dan" contest was inaugurated. Now "junior" was really in Junior Week.

Tony Pastor and his famous vocalists, Rosemary and Betty Clooney, provided the memories for the Class of 1949. The junior of 1955 kept the beat to the jazz of Eddie Condon, and Turf 'n' Tinsel presented a show on the Sunday before Mothers' Day. This program has now become an integral part of Junior Week.

Also in 1955, the outstanding athlete was honored, and to top it all off, Guy Lombardo rendered "the sweetest music this side of heaven" for the Prom.

John Wallin and Bill Galm survey prospective class tree.

The Class of 1960 is endeavoring to surpass all other Junior Weeks. The Field House is full of men working on decorations both day and night. All are chipping in and lending a hand.

The spirit is there for a good week, for an unforgettable week. In order to see this spirit become a reality, all Juniors must lend their support.

The tradition of Junior Week can be summed up in one word—BIG. Nothing is being left out this year.

Mother is treated today; Eddie Condon will play his famous jazz on Wednesday evening. Tommy Dorsey will provide the music on Friday, and the climax is the Dinner Dance on Saturday.

Today this tradition continues its lustrous pattern. Certainly customs have changed throughout the years in the strict format of the Junior Week, but it is a fallacy to assume that Junior Week is a changing, unstable, unpredictable matter from year to year.

It is basicly a tradition, and like all traditions, it will be terribly difficult to change radically, as long as there are so many of us conservatives around.

But even if some of the traditional features undergo the erosion of time, it appears certain that Mother's Day will remain as long as Motherhood itself.

Prom Decorators Work Overtime To Create Exotic Ballroom

By TOM PERETTI

This Friday evening marks the highlight of Junior Week: the long awaited Junior Promenade, the dance which is the culmination and zenith of the Villanova social season.

The Prom, to be held in the Villanova Field House, will feature the danceable music of the Tommy Dorsey Orchestra under the baton of Warren Covington.

Juniors will dance hours away to the music of the "Sentimental Gentleman," which lives on under Warren Covington. They will be in the midst of a setting which can only work "Midnight Magic". The Prom, which is formal, is open to all underclassmen.

Arrangements

Directing all the complex arrangements which go into making a successful Prom are Larry Maucher and and Dan Spada.

The arrangements for the band were made by Carlo LoVecchio and Vic Manfredi. After many long and painful sessions they were finally able to sign one of the prominent names in the entertainment world, the Tommy Dorsey Orchestra.

The Dorsey group needs no introduction. The music of the "Sentimental Gentleman" is quite familiar on this campus. With the present leader, Warren Covington, a native of Upper Darby, Pennsylvania, the great music made popular by the fabulous Mr. Dorsey will re-echo on Friday night.

Long nours are being put in by Neil Drislane, Lee Christensen, and Con O'Donnell and their decorations committee.

They can be found every night painting scenery in the basement of Sheehan. Through their ingenious touch, the mundane Villanova Field House will be transformed into a regal ballroom fit for a Cinderella.

When the nearly 1200 people file into the Field House this Friday, they will find themselves attending a Grand Ball in some lofty chateau. They will come completely under the spell of Midnight Magic.

Ticket Committee

Spending their mornings and afternoons in the Pie Shoppe are Dave Hayes and his ticket committee.

The publicity for the grandiose affair is in the hands of Fred Smolinski and Tom Peretti.

Angelo DeMarco and George Fay have assumed the responsibility of procuring patrons for the Prom program. Dick Walsh will provide the unusual refreshments which prom goers will look for during intermission.

Favors are to be brandy snifters suitably engraved with the Villanova seal and a remembrance of the date.

4 Aces, Condon To Supply Beat When Jazz Comes To Villanova

By LEE CHRISTENSEN and JIM FOLEY

On Wednesday night, April 29, the Villanova Jazz Festival will he held in the Field House, featuring the finest in musical entertainment for your listening and dancing pleasure. The concert will start at 8:15 P. M. and continue to 11, with dancing from 11 to 1 to the music of the N. B. C. Orchestra.

Among the many stars performing that night will be Decca Record's great singing stars, the fabulous Four Aces. The Aces, irrefutably the world's leading quartet, have been at the top of the musical ladder since 1951.

Constant Demand

They have had six records selling over a million copies each, with one of them over the two million mark. In constant demand by the biggest theatres and clubs in the world, the Four Aces became the only quartet to ever sing at an Academy Award ceremony in 1957, singing their hit song for 1956, "Written on the Wind."

Often called the "Elder Statesmen" of quartets, they were, of course, the forerunner of the current tremendous popularity of vocal groups. The fact that they have remained on top of the musical heap despite the rising competition is noteworthy indeed.

For you fans of Dixieland music, we have the great Eddie Condon and his band, with Dick Carey on cornet, Dick Wellstood on the piano, Jack Lessberg on base, George Wettling on drums, Lou McGarrity on trombone, Lee Parsons on clarinet and Eddie himself on guitar. This gang set loose in our Field House will satisfy the low downers and bring out the best in progressive.

Newest Prophet

Some ten years ago when Eddie Condon was termed "newest prophet of American music," he was offering programs of early original jazz in New York concert halls. They called his music part Dixieland and part Chicago Style; now with the blend of progressive, we have the wild form of great music.

It is said he made jazz concerts an important part of the New York concert seasons. His first concern in Town Hall confused the audience when they opened the program and read, "Today's clambake will get off with the usual barefoot mob from the saloon downtown."

It caught on, he soon became number one man in the "up-beat" contracts with recording firms bringing him some $50,000 and with his unrehearsed band cutting some twenty records with Bing Crosby.

It was this same Eddie Condon that brought American Jazz through the State Department, to Berlin, Stockholm, Paris, London, Dublin, Copenhagen and many other European cities. His jazz diciples are as many abroad as at home.

Barbarshop Harmony

For those who like their music "square" but with tremendous harmony, we have SPEBSQSA! What is it? It is the Society for the Preservation and Establishment of Barbershop Quartet Singing in America, a group of forty male voices.

These men will harmonize to many of our favorite songs, including songs of Villanova.

There will be many other great stars performing in the show, and all told, it will be the finest musical aggregation ever put on one stage in Villanova history. So don't miss it!

Bring your best girl, your parents, your friends, and most important of all, bring yourself. It will be one of the most memorable evenings of your college years.

The Four Aces, Decca recording stars, will appear at the Jazz concert on Wednesday night in the Field House. Winners of the Cashbox, Billboard and United Press music polls as the leading quartet, the Four Aces are in constant demand. Now we have them, so come and listen to the best.

Class Officers Set Pace

By JAY TOUHY

To be elected a class officer is a great honor. It however, entails endless hours of work. Meetings to attend, reports to write, people to see, in addition to the special duties that each office requires. In short, the class officers earn every bit of credit they receive.

Pollock President

The President of the Class of 1960 is Sheldon Pollock, a twenty year old resident of Yonkers, New York. Shelly, a graduate of Iona Prep at New Rochelle, New York, is a student in the accounting division of the school of Commerce and Finance. Among his many activities are: Steering Committee, Sanctuary Society, Spirit Committee. Pre-Law Society and the Knights of Coloumbus.

During the summer Sheldon likes to fish in the Pocono Mts. Besides fishing, Shelly is intcrested in photography and baseball.

Upon graduation Sheldon hopes to enter Law School and to eventually practice in New York.

Dobies Vice President

The number two man in the executive branch of the Junior class is Ron Dobies. Ron, an Electrical Engineer, hails from Novelety, Ohio. He attended West Geauga High School where he played football, basketball and baseball. Ron was also the student body President in his senior year.

At Villanova, which was Ron's first choice, he became active in the Pershing Rifles, Phi Kappa Pi, Steering Committee and Orientation Committee.

As a member of the N.R.O.T.C., Ron has traveled to the Virgin Islands, Cuba, and Brazil.

After graduation, Ron intends to spend three years in the Marines, while doing work in aeronautical engineering.

Heffernan Secretary

Jack Heffernan, another Iona Prep grad, holds the position of class secretary. Jack comes from Pelham Manor, New York, and is majoring in Industrial Administration. While at Iona, Jack was a member of the track team, running in the 200 and 400 yd. events. Wnile at Iona, Jack was voted "The Most Typical Ionian".

An honor student, Jack is active in a variety of activities, among them, the Orientation Committee, S.A.M., Steering Committee, Spirit Committee, I.A. Student Committee, Intramurals, Ticket Committee for the Junior Prom and the Knights of Columbus. In his free time Jack likes to wander in the wilds of Maine.

Jack hopes to do graduate work at Columbia's school of business administration, upon graduation from Villanova.

Fay Treasurer

Then there's George Fay. George is a product of Wetherfield, Conn., and is majoring in Industrial Administration.

While attending the local high school George played football, baseball, and was a member of the swimming team. He was active in Student Council, and was chairman of the school's student banquet. George was also Chief of Police in his home town, making numerous arrests in his short tenure. (One day).

His present activities include I.A. student committee, D.P.E., Steering Committee, S.A.M.; he is also Co-Chairman of the Patron's Committee for the prom.

In the summer, Mr. Fay is employed by the State Highway Dept. of Conn. In his spare time George likes to golf, water-ski and attend sporting events. He hopes to attend Law School at the University of Conn. at Hartford.

STEERING THE CLASS

By FRANK BOES

"A large measure of the credit for the success of this year's Junior Week must go to the Class Steering Committee", and its efforts in assisting the class Administration in the formulation of policy and program," said Junior Class President Sheldon Pollock.

"Throughout the year it has been the voice of the rank and file of the junior class, and among its members can be found representatives of all the interests in the class."

He went on to state that although this was the largest body of its type on the Villanova campus, each member was personally selected for his interest and enthusiasm.

As outlined by Pollock, this was the method of selection: during last summer, interested students were asked by mail to address to the president their reasons for desiring membership in the committee and their ideas for the future of the class.

Letters Were Judged

When the fall semester began, the president met with the class executive committee (a group of the class officers) which read and studied each letter. Then the decision was reached as to whom should be a member of the class legislative body.

The high attendance at the meetings and the enthusiasm shown by the members at the meetings has proven the wisdom of this method of choice.

During the year the committee was called upon to decide such matters as the location and menu for the class dinner dance, and the program for Junior Week.

It heard reports from the appropriate committees on the many functions of the class.

Junior Class Night

The steering committee, through two of its members, Ed Scott and John Whalen, was responsible for the institution of the Junior Class night at the Palestra during the basketball season.

Perhaps the most important function of the steering committee has been to provide a ready and active group of workers for the many needed committees and groups.

Ring Chairman John Mulcahy was drawn from the Committee membership. The highly successful class float at the Homecoming Game was a product of the committee under Con O'Donnell, another member.

All three of the chairmen of the Charity Ball-Orphans Outing weekend, Ron Dobies, Joe DuRocher and Don McCoy, are on the Steering Committee.

Junior Week Chairmen

The group provided Junior week with all its major chairmen: Bill Galm, John Wallin, Vic Richel, Vince Cucuzzella, Larry Maucher, Dan Spada, John Driscol and Ray Rafferty.

The new post of Junior Class Alumni representative was filled from the group by John McGinley.

The Half of Knowledge

By WILLIE AND I

It was one of those days when your cord jacket still smelled of moth balls and you could walk across Mendel Field without getting mud in your armpits. The year was 1957. Willie and I were freshmen, and it was spring.

We were strolling back from the post office empty-handed when we noticed a crowd making its way into a large, grey-stoned building. We paused, looked at each other, nodded our heads, and made our way to the edge of the crowd. Very likely the season influenced our move. At the very least, it put an edge on our hunger for adventure.

"Well, here we are," said Willie.

"Yeah, but where are we?" said I.

From behind a stack of dusty books a pair of horn-rimmed glasses looked at us, and the voice behind them said, "Sh-h-h, you're in the library." Now we knew. This was not just an ordinary building, this was the Villanova Library. This was it.

Knoll of Knowledge

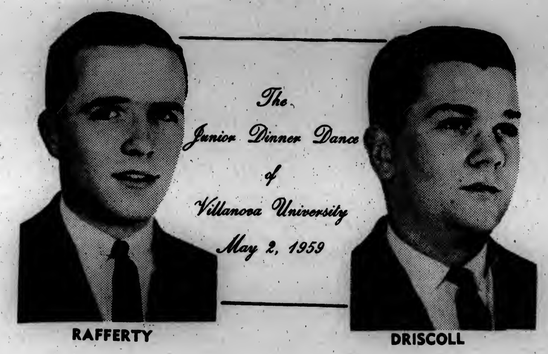
This building was the center of culture on the campus, the knoll of knowledge, the stable of study, the inn of the intellect. To mark this eventful day Willie adopted this motto, "The half of knowledge is knowing where to find it," and to celebrate we spent the remainder of the day wandering in the stacks.

Those were the good old days. There were no "security officers" checking your books at the door. You were able to pack a lunch and enjoy an indoor picnic on the second stack level. If you felt like abandoning the study of Chaucer, accounting, physics or chemistry, you could always wander up to the music room to listen to the "Top 99." That was our freshman year.

Sophomore year I turned my attention to the football field, the baseball diamond and the Covered Bridge. But Willie continued to frequent the library even to the extent of getting a job there. I would see him leaving the library at 6 in the evening loaded down with books. My usual comment was "Hi, book-worm," and he would smile and reply, "the half of knowledge."

Out of the Rain

Don't get me wrong. I went to the library once in a while to step in out of the rain, to get a drink of water or to see if any of the Rosies were around. It's easy to see that I wasn't very interested in exercising my mental powers. But Willie was in there plugging away at the books. That was our sophomore year.



I don't see Willie much any more, but the last time I talked to him he told me all about the inn of the intellect. Seems as though things over there have changed now. People are no longer able to get lost in the maze of books mainly because they can't get to them.

Willie still says, "The half of knowledge is knowing where to find it," but now he shrugs his shoulders and adds, "the other half is trying to smuggle it out of the building."

But who am I to criticize? After all, Willie is a junior now, and here I am—a worker in a Camden cupcake factory.

'SPRING NIGHT' AT THE BROADWOOD

By RAY RAFFERTY and JOHN DRISCOLL
Co-Chairmen

RAFFERTY DRISCOLL

The Junior Dinner Dance is May 2. You know the details: Broadwood Hotel, main ballroom; Al Raymond to play; "A Spring Night . . . Sentimental Memories:" 6:30 p. m. starting time; and dinner promptly at 7.

But here we elaborate on the problems involved in realizing the big event.

It was just about a year ago that the first preparations were begun. We contacted 26 possible places, but only two of them were capable of handling a crowd as large as the Class of 1960. Finally we settled on the Broadwood.

Summer Progress

Summer came, but progress could not be halted. Heat or no heat, there was plenty of work to be done. Urgent communiques were posted to the members of the committee concerning the latest decisions.

Came September, and the real drive was on. Verbal reports were made to the Steering Committee, to whom fell the job of deciding the ultimate location of the dinner dance.

The next big step was choosing the menu, a task which was also accomplished by the Steering Committee.

With the necessity of more important decisions, the committee retired behind closed doors.

The question of an appropriate theme was predominant in the minds of the committeemen for quite some time. Finally, "A Spring Night . . . Sentimental Memories" touched the weary hearts and contemplative minds of committee chairman Jon Rietzke and his men.

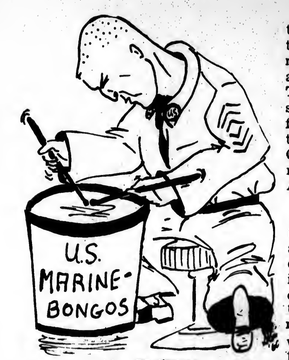
Success Formula

An important ingredient in the formula of success was numerous nocturnal meetings with our class moderator. Assurance and guidance were among the useful by-products of these meetings.

The problem of programs and invitations was ably overcome by Chairman Bob McCauley. A certain few pledges of D.P.M. will remember the pleasurable experience of reserving tables.

As the time drew near, the relentless call of our class president for a written report was answered, and peace reigned supreme as a gleam came to his eye while he paged through our 18-page manuscript.

Final arrangements and those last minute details are now being taken care of by Nick Samango.



All that remains, and all that really matters, is that everyone have a good time.

The dinner dance will be held in the main ballroom of the hotel. The band of Al Raymond was considered by us to be exceptionally wise, considering the quality of music that he is known for, and also because Raymond has been favorably received at Villanova affairs many times in the past.

The flow of music will not cease during the dinner. A pianist and a vocalist will create the necessary music for dining.

HOW THINGS LOOK IN 1998

By JOHN D. WILLIAMS

MacGROTTY

BURLINGAME

The time is the early twenty-first century. The locale is the north bank of the Potomic River, former sight of our nation's capitol. Tradition has it that about the year 1998 a certain Dr. THOMAS HOFFMAN, soldier and statesman, was delivering a speech before Congress when some unknown catastrophe struck. Proper legislation by Congress had our nation's capitol removed to it's present sight at Fairbanks, Alaska.

Evacuation Done

It was not until the last decade that the former site was declared safe for archeological excavation. At the present time, our scientific expedition working out of Fairbanks, Alaska, is working on the District of Columbia area. At the head of this expedition is the famous Dr. JAY SANDS, who won world-wide fame when he unearthed Ebbets Field in Brooklyn, New York.

The expedition only recently excavated the National Archives Building and has released for publication the files relating to incidents which occured during the last quarter of the twentieth century. Some of the following items, first-time published, will be of interest to the Class of '60.

Hobo Invasion

RUSS MAC GROTTY was decorated by the President for valor when, at the head of a Marine regiment, he turned back the hobo invasion of the White House. PETE BONFONTI, foremost Italian-American chemist, won world-wide fame when he turned the Siberian wasteland into productive soil for raising ready-made popcorn for the American movie trade.

ALLAN WILLIG won an Academy Award for his startling performance in "Son of Lassie". BILL WALSH was honored with a testimonial dinner as being the oldest living undergraduate of any university in America.

JIM DONOGHUE, elected head of the New York Public Library, in his memoirs traced his humble beginnings to a library in Pennsylvania. JOHN CASTANO opened the first winery in Ireland in 1996. Voiuble SKIP BURLINGAME broadcast 72 continuous hours, keeping the world informed of Admiral TOM MOAKLEY'S progress in his attempt to circle the globe in an iceboat going due north.

Longest Sleep

JOHN MULCAHY amazed medical science as he broke all records by a solid sleep of 35 years while locked up in a room of 98 degrees. JACK DANIEL was appointed Winter Director of national sanitation operators (garbage men). He grants contracts for snow clearance, that is professional snow jobber. BOB SARRA was first to unionize department store Santa Clauses, now he heads the union.

BILL HENRY, engineering genius, started out as sanitation engineer on the Fairmount Park bridle path, worked his way up to head stable boy at $55 thousand per year.

JOHN DRISCOLL, mayor of Brooklyn, appointed FRED WIELE as head of a navy force to patrol the waters from the Staten Island ferry to Coney Island. RON MAGRAY was sentenced to life imprisonment for hitting a deer on a fog-laden highway. Psychology major HARRY ROWE won fame when he cured the incurables at Sing Sing.

Like the men mentioned, other members of the class have also made progress. However, before all the files could be uncovered, the expedition was halted.

And we leave you with this sage thought: Most of us know when to say nothing; few of us know when.

Fr. Dante Girolomi, O.S.A., Junior moderator, confers with junior Student Council representatives Fred Wiele (Engineer) and Tom Hoffman (Arts). Father expects to see the "most successful Junior Week ever."

Moderator Lauds Junior Class Cooperation and Initiative

By BILL ROGERS

"I am well pleased, said Fr. Dante Girolomi, O.S.A., "with the cooperation and the spirit of the class of 1960." Father is class moderator.

"All indications point to the most successful Junior Week ever," he added. "I am especially pleased with the class officers and chairmen of the various committees. They work hard, plan well, and show good cooperation.

I hope this spirit will carry over into the next year," he said.

Catholic University

Father first came to Villanova in 1934, and was graduated with the class of 1938. After this, he attended Catholic University in Washington, D. C.

The same year Father received his master's degree in math and physics (1942), he came to Villanova again, this time as Associate Professor of mathematics.

Father's three years as Dean of Discipline have demonstrated a knack for directing class behavior into moderate channels.

President Sheldon Pollock expresses the mutual relationship between Father and class:

Invaluable Advice

"Father has given us invaluable advice concerning the many difficulties and problems which arise during the organization of class functions. He is always available and always interested."

'Father is eagerly looking forward to attending all of the Junior Week activities. He is especially looking forward to addressing the class at the dinner dance, and also to celebrating Solemn High Mass on Mother's Day.

HIGH MEN

ACADEMIC LEADERS: COYLE, MASTRANGELO, SCHANNE

By KEN KRAEMER

As the Class of 1960 approaches the end of its Junior Year, 693 students remain from more than 1000 who enrolled in 1956.

The class has gone a long way in achieving success in all fields of scholastic honor. Those who have attained the highest cumulative averages in their respective schools are:

Michael Mastrangelo, Arts and Science; William Coyle, Commerce and Finance; and Joseph Schanne, Engineering.

Arts and Science

Mastrangelo, a pre-med student from Phoenixville, Penn., possesses the highest average in the Junior Class, having scored a 4.0 for three consecutive semesters. Besides the high average, he finds time to engage in extra-curricular activities.

He is a member of Lambda Kappa Delta, and has worked on the circulation staff of the Villanovan.

Coyle, a Philadelphian, is an accounting major in the business school. A West Catholic graduate, he is a member of the Knights of Columbus, the Accounting Society, and the Sanctuary Society. In addition, he has been active in Junior Class affairs, a member of the Steering Committee.

Schanne, an Electrical Engineer, lives in Philadelphia and was graduated from Northeast Catholic. He was in the Navy for four years, and has attained dean's list every semester. He's a member of X.E.M., he is active in the Knights of Columbus, Madonna Council. He participates in the All Saints Dramatic Society of his parish and at present is an instructor of electronics for the Naval Reserve.

The top students in the various fields of each school, listed alphabetically, are:

Engineering—Joseph Camp, Chemical; William Galm, Mechanical; Joseph Lauzon, Civil; and Joseph Schanne, Electrical.

Commerce and Finance

In Commerce and Finance—William Coyle, Accounting; Peter Farrell, Finance; James Kearney, Marketing; John Kennedy, Industrial Administration; and Anthony Mirabile, Pre-Law.

In Arts and Sciences—Thomas Hocman, Science A.B.; Kenneth Kraemer, General Arts; Michael Mastrangelo, Biology; Vincent Minkiewicz, Physics; Nicholas Tenaglia, Biology; and Thomas Wolf, General Arts.

Turf 'n Tinsel Scores Hit with "Heidsieck"

By BILL McMANUS

The final curtain call sounded last night for one Turf 'n Tinsel's most recent and successful productions, Piper-Heidsieck-98.

The enthusiastic audience of well over two hundred Juniors and their mothers acclaimed the show to be as sparkling as the champagne whose name it bears.

During its five night run last week, the show proved to be two and one-half hours of laughter and melody as it directed a good-natured jab at Main Line society.

Piper-Heidsieck set the stage for what promises to be the greatest Junior Week in the history of Villanova.

Climb in Society

In brief, the story revolves about the ludicrous activities of the Murphy family from Brooklyn and their energetic attempts to join Main Line society with their newly acquired fortune.

The social climber, Mrs. Murphy, in the person of Gary Tackas, tries to secure entrance to society by marrying her son Larry, portrayed by John Birkenheuer, to the phony Madamoiselle Gavotsky, played by Bob Dilks.

The careful plans of Mrs. Murphy are stymied, however, by the romance between Larry and her social secretary, Kitty Randolth, who is ably portrayed by James Gillespie.

Senior John Gozo played Morticia, Anthony Bateman portrayed Mr. Murphy, while Don Kempf was Detective Ryan, and Joe Barbero played Burrows the butler.

Whelan Writes

The book, music, and lyrics of Piper Heidsieck-98, were written by Villanova's own Robert Whelan in 1950 when it was first performed by Turf 'n Tinsel.

Mr. George Noake lent his professional experience as the show's masterful director; the musical numbers were staged by Betty Green and Fr. Henry Syvinski, O.S.A., served as moderator.

Junior Star

In addition to the major role played by John Birkenheuer, the junior class contributed to the show in all departments.

Jim Merikangas was a member of the singing and dancing chorus. The skilled and entertaining performance of the Keystone Lifeguards, and the vocal octette was furnished by the following junior athletes: Paul Tomczyk, Leon Horin, Jim Osborne, Jim Ward, Ed Lemkin, Dick Keyser, Furman Nagle, Chuck Walsh, Frank Cappelletti and Fergus Norton.

Tom Hoffman and Ford Prime contributed their services to the business staff, while Ed Paulson and Tom Rogers were on the stage crew.

Queen To Receive Scholarship To Phila. Finishing School

Ed Olson, chairman of this year's Junior Prom Queen contest, has announced that the winner will receive a $250 scholarship in the program of her choice at the Patricia Stevens Finishing School.

The Queen and the four members of her court will also receive brass loving cups with walnut bases. On the cups will be engraved a suitable caption giving the date, place and the honor received.

The 80 entries to the contest were judged by the faculty of the Patricia Stevens Finishing School, 1621 Chestnut St., Philadelphia, and have been appearing in the VILLANOVAN for the past several weeks.

Larry Maucher and Dan Spada Prom chairmen, will crown the Queen and her court during the evening of the Prom. Until then the identity of the Queen will be secret.

Now I'm Somebody

By LOU DesFOSSES

Well here it is, Junior Week, and I have to find something to do. What will I tell mother when she comes here Mother's Day, and starts asking questions like; "Did you help to organize all these wonderful things? Your father was a wonderful organizer when he went to school." Of course dad did everything when he went to school. He was a regular BMOC. And what am I? Nothing, just a poor lazy slob.

I'm not sure what I want to do. Larry Maucher is co-chairman of the prom. Maybe he can help me, or better yet, reinforce my bankroll for the Junior weekend.

I found Larry in Tom Pretti's room. "Hi Tom, wh . . . the beard Tom, what happened to the beard?" "I heard there there was a petition going for the removal of your beard because it was a fire hazard, but I never thought they were serious." Tom didn't take kindly to my words of jest, the beard must have meant a great deal to him.

I turned to Larry. "Larry, old buddy, I've come to salvage the prom from the disaster into which it is falling. Just give me some insignificant job such as prom co-chairman or one of the committee chairmanships and my services are yours".

Door Kept Open

Larry approached slowly, placed a hand on my shoulder, and steered me towards the open door, "Lou, I'm sorry, but all the committeee chairmen have been picked and Dan Spada has been appointed along with me as prom co-chairman. However, we do need people to serve on the different committees. Tom here is in charge of publicity along with Fred Smolinski. If you're interested in publicity, see Fred since Tom here is in charge with a few last minute snags. Here is a list of the other committees; take your pick".

Fred's door was open so I walked in. Fred was in the throes of a violent argument on a subject peculiar to campus intellectuals—girls. "Fred, how is the sale of tux's coming along?" Fred turned to pick up his tape measure and said, "not too bad, and when are you going to order yours?" I had to back up as he advanced on me with his tape measure.

"Fred, what I wanted to see you about was the opportunity to display my talents as a publicity man." A look of disappointment crossed his face. Placing a hand on my shoulder he told me that all the positions on his committee had been filled.

Queen Contest

Who else is on the list? Here's Ed Olsen—Queen Contest chairman. Some guys have all the luck. The patron committee under the combined direction of Angie Demarco and George Fay. With a combination like that, even I would become a patron.

Well, those two possibilities are out. Carlo LoVecchio and Vic Manfried are in charge of getting the band. Warren Covington and the Tommy Dorsey Band have already been put under contract, so that's out.

The decorations committee is under Neil Drislane. I'll run over to see him.

"Hi Neil. Say what's wrong with your roommate, John Sullivan. How long has he been lying there staring at the ceiling?" Neil emerged from a pile of prom plans, looked at his roommate and smiled. "Lou, you know Sullie is irresistible to women but so far he has been able to avoid them. One girl feeling the pain of frustration, finally cornered and kissed him. He has been in a state of shock ever since."

C'est La Vie

Such is life, but having my own problems, I pressed forward with the reason for my visit. "Neil I'm here to offer my constructive talents to the decorations committee". Neil cocked one eye and prepared to dive back into the pile of plans. "What can you do?" Now he had hit my strongpoint—experience. "Well I can raise hell with a hammer; built a treehouse once; and I'm so skilled in art that I take my lecture notes in picture form. Almost gave it up though, after a lecture on infinity."

There were only two committees left—tickets and refreshments. The tickets were under the co-chairmanship of Dave Hayes and Lou Spevitz and refreshments under Dick Walsh.

I found Dave in Lou Spevitz's room. Dave was measuring Lou for a new tailor-made shooting jacket with explosion-proof ammunition pockets. Turning to Dave, I said, "I would like to help if there's anything left to do. I mean I'm feeling patriotic, and my parents are coming down; my dad was a BMOC. Am I on your committee?" Again no luck.

I was beginning to wish I had spent the afternoon in the sack when I saw Dick Walsh moving in the flood of humanity gushing the C&F building and racing towards Dougherty.

Last Chance

"Hey Dick", I yelled, pulling myself towards him. "Dick, let me be on your committee, please. I've got to get on a Commmittee!" Although he was back-pedaling furiously, I knew I had reached him. "Well, alright Lou, there is one job left—putting fortunes in fortune cookies. It isn't much but that's all that's left. You should have asked weeks ago."

I was crushed and disheartened as he led me to his cookie bins, but now at least I had an identity. One . . . two . . . three . . . four . . .

Queen Candidates Await Prom

By JIM MERIKANGAS

It was a difficult job to choose from so many beautiful girls only five to reign over Junior Week. One of these lovely ladies will be Queen, but no one will know until the night we have all been waiting for, the night of the Junior Prom.

Rose Marie Hill lives in Trenton N. J. where she is a secretary at American Bridge Co. and is majoring in business at Rider College night school. Rose Marie is 21 years of age, 5'6" tall, with brown eyes and auburn hair. Her escort will be Chemistry major Thomas Pfeiffer. Who said scientists are narrow minded?

Diana Johnson is the date of marketing major Jim Gay. Eighteen year old Diana lives in White Plains, N. Y. and is a student at St. Margaret's Academy in Connecticut. With brown eyes and raven hair, pretty Diana will cause heads to turn.

Marty Sue Nowak is 18 years old and a senior at Port Washington High School in Port Washington, New York. Marketing major Bill Bradley is her lucky date. Marty is 5'6" tall and a blue-eyed blonde.

Elaine Pulizotto is a secretary for Equitable Life Insurance and lives in Plainview, Long Island. Nineteen year old Elaine, 5'4", with brown eyes and brown hair, is the date of Electrical Engineering student Anthony Freda.

Patricia Stephens is a model from Edison N. J. Five foot seven with brown eyes and brown hair, 21-year-old Patricia is the date of Carl Baratta, an accounting major.

Surrounded by spring and these lovely girls, a sentimental poem for the Junior Queen:

NOW are the warm winds silently blowing,
Now are the May fields smothered in bloom,
Now does the sun spray dazzle the heavens,
Now does my loved one come to my side.

SEE in her eyes she knows I've been lonely,
See in her smile the laughter we've known,
Far from our spring the thoughts of our parting,
Now for the moment we are alone.

"The World's A Stage"

By JOHN CASTANO

Just as every play has its actors, every class has its characters. In accordance with Junior Week, it is the purpose of this column to present to you a few of the idiosyncracies and peculiar happenings in the lives of several Junior 'characters' which had formerly been restricted to themselves (through modesty), their mothers (through loyalty) or to their hometown (through unfortunate obscurity).

To continue, did you know that . . . AL LAWLER, debonair photographer, considers himself to be the greatest lover ever to matriculate at Villanova . . . TOM McAVOY had his first job of social importance, gravedigger, at the age of fourteen . . . JACK GALLAGHER once ran the mile at West Catholic in the recorded time of 7:12.0 . . . IRV KELLER was once employed as a Good Humor ice cream salesman in his carefree days . . . GUY BALL was once made an honorary campfire girl for boosting the local organization's cookie sales with his sparkling personality.

Subterranean Sanitation

LARRY KELLY was recently engaged in the field of sewage disposal and was professionally known as a "honey-dipper" . . . TOM TEPPER won a most beautiful baby contest at the early age of seven. (What made it exceptionally difficult was the fact that the other contestants were girls) . . . TIM SHEA, true to his charitable and self-sacrificing nature, decided to room again this year with TOM HOFFMAN . . . JOHN CASTANO, 2/c midshipman, has never seen the Atlantic or Pacific Oceans, has never been aboard a naval vessel nor has even seen one for that matter.

Van Hook

BILL VOITLEIN once attained the rank of tenderfoot. (You say that isn't odd! Try doing it in the Girl Scouts as Willie did) . . . JACK DANIEL, who is known for his Ivy-league apparel, was of late employed as a summertime garbage collector. . . PAUL VAN HOOK, actor extrordinaire, is currently and exclusively appearing in Warner Bros. production of "John Paul Jones". (Not exactly a starring role but he was an active extra for two minutes)...

Professional Pallbearer

JIM DONOGHUE was a professional pallbearer during the past summer in Holyoke, Mass . . . JIM BISING recalls having 20-20 vision as recently as fourth grade in public school . . . BRUCE STURM was once locked inside a Stop-and-Shop Supermarket in New York and held captive for two hours. (He was determined to get those Green Stamps) . . . DON FERERICO is the regional title-holder in the 140 lb. Brown Bagger Division with 25,517 traveling commuter miles to his credit. (As Federico goes, so goes PTC).

TOM LABREQUE was a master of ceremonies at a variety show in Red Bank, N. J., at the tender age of six. (That's sweet) . . . JOHN TEDESCHI, who recently won the State Public Speaking Championship in New Jersey, recently received a "C" in Speech . . . LEE CHRISTENSEN worked as a sewer inspector last summer . . . FRED WIELE was a notorious rum-runner during the recent 'summer cruise'.

Dinner With Grace

JACK DANIEL once had dinner with Grace Kelly prior to her rise as a star and his rise as a garbage collector . . . TOM HOFFMAN once had dinner with Jack Daniel . . .

Daniel

CARLO LOVECCHIO was arrested at the age of eight for breaking windows with a high-powered, double-action Daisy pump B-B gun. (Nice going, Wyatt). Two years later he was arrested for stealing beer kegs from the J. W. Adams Warehouse in Sayre, Pa. (Believe it or not, "Lucky LoVecchio maintained that he had been playing kick-the-can with a friend at the time. Furthermore, he beat the rap).

DON ROPAIN attributes his basic knowledge in Biology to the fact that he learned to milk a cow at the age of three . . . TIM SHEA, former attendance record holder at St. Patricks' Day activities in New York, was forced to relinquish his crown by his noted absence from the gala festivities in 1959. (We understand it was a sad day for the Irish and a low closing weekend average for Annheuser-Busch stock on the market) . . . JAY SANDS suffered an embarrassing laceration in his posterior region attempting to enter his Alumni Hall room via a transom in his freshman year . . . And the tales go on and on . . .

Father Time Goes On

However, as the senile figure of Father Time continues on his journey through life, the events, honors, and tribulations of the Class of 1960 continue to be added to that large volume of obscure history. Agnus Gooch was right when she said "all the world's a stage, and the men and women merely actors".

Bewitched, bothered, bewildered, and broke, "Are you sure these ties are imported challis?" a demure freshman asks a white hat.

"Mah friends, and you are mah friends . . ." An inconspicuous group of whitehats whip up enthusiasm among the frosh during Orientation Week.

A large attendance marks the beginning of a Steering Committee meeting from which Junior Week activities first begin to materialize.

A HISTORY

OH WELL, THIS IS COLLEGE...

By TOM HOFFMAN and RAY RAFFERTY

Although it was only 8:00 that morning, there I stood—on the curb—just a bewildered newcomer. Before me sprawled the infamous "Pike," beyond it was the campus, so resplendent on that balmy sunny morning.

Already that line with which I was to become so familiar was stretched to Ithan Ave. By 9:00 I had acquired six different slips to fill out, met a ruddy faced, sandy-haired, effervescent junior named Pat, and shook hands five different times with the same twenty chaps whose names I never could remember, rolled up the cuffs of my best trousers twice, and found out that a matriculation number meant measurably more than my baptized Christian name.

But this was college . . . and I was going to be a member of the Class of 1960.

Dink Too Small

I went in one door self-confidently; stumbled out the other with an idiotic blue and white bow-tie, a big button, and a dink ½ size too small. These articles were to forge a certified Villanovan out of me. As individuality became muddled in confusion, our class began to form; soon all 1100 of the grand and glorious Class of 1960, were prepared for the tumultuous assault upon Villanova.

Thence followed a period of immense discovery. In contrast to that first day the weather could be best described as "monsoonal". By the end of the first week my dink was about the right size and getting larger all the time.

On orders from upperclassmen, we purchased tickets for all the dances, socials and parties of the first semester besides being patrons for the Senior, Junior and even Sophomore and Freshman Proms.

Finally, our day of liberation was at hand, but the Class of '60 failed to "move up Forward", as we freshman lost the deciding, hotly-disputed football game by the score of 2-0.

But this was college . . . and the Sophomores always win Muff day.

T-House Commandos

Our class learned fast—the more alert discovered Rosemont the very first day. Those were the good old days, when Rosemont registered at the same time Villanova did. Most of us found out about the "Rosies" at the mixer that served as a finale to our pre-class week and even the slowest found it necessary to explore the T-house or other such similar establishments before our first college dance—the now deceased "Owl Hop".

This was the opening of the fall social season and with it went the pandemonium of the college football game and it's subsidiary, the Student Trip.

"Everybody's going to Boston!" screamed one white hat.

"Boston?" I questioned.

"Boston!"

Boston! This excursion, sweetened by the taste of victory, served as the high point of the football season. Well, this was really college . . . Boston next year!

Report Cards

Matriculation numbers are so important. Our parents got a letter right after Thanksgiving that had no name on it — only our student numbers. Everything on that flimsy white paper was evaluated in terms of a number. At the bottom there appeared another number which was evidently very important. Not the numbers themselves but where the decimal point was located, before or after the first significant figure. So these were our report cards!

But this was college . . .

Politics made an entrance into our college life during February. On the strength of some free combination can-bottle openers, Frank J. Wagner put the election in that "brown bag" he toted up to Dougherty Hall, while some obscure pre-med won the Resident election.

These were merely the preliminaries before the main bout. In May, W. Stephen Mahle became our class president for the Sophomore Year. John J. Sullivan became vice president, while Ron McGray and Joe Durocher filled the other class posts. The new Student Council representatives were Tom Moakley and a tweedy Arts Division day hop.

Well, this is college . . . we're ready for our sophomore year.

Orientation

"What do we eat? Bear meat?" was the cry that ushered in our sophomore year. The Class of 1960 squared away the frivolous freshmen with one of the best Orientation Periods in the school's history. Over the deafening din of the screaming, scurrying freshmen constantly rose the commanding voice of that one happy, pudgy little sophomore—J. J. Sullivan, the outstanding white hat of this Orientation.

Shortly the freshmen could be contained no longer. They moved forward en masse, crushing our class amid the Muff Day proceedings.

Well, this was college . . . and maybe our class isn't so athletically minded.

The Class of '60 put it's best foot forward upon the social scene, at Villanova, when it presented its Sophomore Cotillion. It was a success due to the efforts of Chairman John Mulcahy, the music of Charlie Gresh, and the decorations prepared by John Holas and Ron Dobies around the theme "A Persian Night".

Snowbound Victory

The weekend was not over until we sat snowbound through the victory over Witchita. The weather always seemed to be against us.

"Boston?"

"Next year?"

"Damp—very, very damp!"

"Well, wait and see . . . who wanted to go there anyway?"

As January came our class finally got those long-awaited blazers. The 500 orders for blazers set a new record, almost doubling the previous mark.

February brought "the fabulous Satch" to our campus with a jazz concert we will never forget. March, April and May saw elections dominate the scene, because the Class was interested in choosing the finest officers for their junior year.

Pollock for President

When the storm clouds had passed and the class was recovering from a state of relative shock, because of the vigorous campaigning, Sheldon Pollock emerged our junior year president. Ron Dobies was installed as the new vice president, Jack Heffernan as secretary with George Fay as the new treasurer. For the Student Council the Class chose John Driscoll, Tony Godwin, Fred Wiele, Bill Henry, Bill Vincent and Tom Hoffman.

June hosted the outdoor IC4A Track Meet, at Villanova, in which John Buckley, a member of the class of 1960, took the broad jump event to give the track team the victor's trophy.

Well, this was college . . . our Sophomore year . . . coming soon: the big year.

Some of us returned for our Junior Year; the Class of 1960 had dwindled down to a mere 734 members. Some of us conducted interview sessions with the freshmen, some divised methods to fool the library staff and gain entrance to the stacks, and others severely disciplined themselves to become accustomed to that new found paradise of off-campus living.

The Student Trip invaded West Point this year and saw the 'Nova team put up a determined but fruitless battle against the leading team in the nation. However, that strong, although lagging, Villanova vanguard remained in New York that evening to suppress another "uprising."

Steering Committee

Meanwhile, the Junior Class bulletin board proudly exhibited what seemed to be the class list. We later discovered that this list had ninety-four names, and that it was the celebrated Steering Committee.

Oh well, this was college . . .

Before Thanksgiving we received our class rings which brought on a new storm of class fission and fusion. The rings also showed our intense class spirit as an unusually high percentage of students received them.

After Thanksgiving recess the charity and good will of the Class of '60 expressed itself in the wonderful, rewarding Orphan's Weekend. It began with the Charity Ball, the second dance that our class sponsored to the stimulating, refreshing, scintillating music of the "Sentimentalists." The next day over 200 juniors visited St. John's to show the orphans the splendor of the Christmas season. We all strolled through "Zorro's Hacienda" and watched D. Crockett barely beat Mike Fink's "Golly-wamper."

Orphans' Party

The Orphans' party on Monday was a fitting end to a tiring but enjoyable weekend, although many a junior found his legs a bit tired and his eyes a little damp as he left the the orphanage. The gratitude of the class went out to those juniors who unselfishly made this a successful weekend and especially General Chairmen Ron Dobies, Don McCoy and Joe Durocher.

Now, the keen minds of our class are geared to the tremendous task of organizing a successful, unforgettable week of carousing—the inimitable JUNIOR WEEK. Months of preparation for the highlights of our social season are fast being drawn into molds for the memories we will never forget.

Well, this is college, our college, our class—we're proud to be a part of them.

Signs, matchbooks, cards, and promises make their annual appearance heralding another class election.

McFotch At Farquhar

A Tweedy Junior Reflects on Matters Social and Financial

By FRANK MURTHA

Leonard Q. McFotch stood staring awe-stricken at the impressive slate gray building. It was raining; it was registration day and therefore, it was, of course, raining, but McFotch didn't connect the torrential downpour and the fact that it was registration day. How could he? He was a freshman and this was his first day at his new home away from home.

He was not, however, totally ignorant of the hallowed traditions that were so much a part of old Farquhar U.; already he knew that the menu

"It HAD to rain that day."

at school consisted of a highly unbalanced and unvaried diet, aggie meat (probably some foreign dish), and that the good word, whatever the heck that meant, was "beat Texas A. and M."

Shrewd Business

He had also put over a shrewd business deal, trading $2.50 American coin of the realm for a faded bowtie, a button, and one supposedly new beanie which he had tipped exactly seventeen times before a compassionate upper-classman (a rare breed), assured him that the nurses didn't really expect such courtesy. Actually he had picked up a number of Farquhar customs, the "hello system" for example.

It was really quite simple when you got down to it; Freshmen said hello to other Freshmen, (except nurses), and to Sophomores, while Sophomores said hello to Freshmen nurses and vice-versa.

Finds Room

He shook off the droplets of rain which had formed on his nose and, dragging his huge suitcase, entered the stately building. Everything was black: "Good Lord, I've stumbled into an abandoned coal mine!" But no, there was a faint hint of light from above. He mounted the staircase, tugging at his massive burden; creak . . . went the stairs, creak . . . creak.

It was useless to tip-toe so McFrotch gave up trying and creaked up the remaining two flights. Arriving at the third level, he put down his bag and while idly brushing the plaster from his short clipped hair, he surveyed the scene. Let's see, he thought, 320. There's 310 . . . 311 . . . it must be down the hall. He again wrestled his bag from the floor and stumbled forward.

Mid-way down the hall he was suddenly confronted by a half-clad, bear-like creature who glared at him sullenly, turned and re-entered his den, I mean room. McFotch hurried on. He stopped, raised his arm, then lowered it; after all he reasoned, it's my room! Throwing back his shoulders he twisted the knob and abruptly staggered back.

Home Away from Home

This was his home away from home? He sized up the room, it took him roughly 3 seconds—a long time considering what there was to be sized-up. A dresser; two desks, small; one double bunk; a broom closet; whisk broom; and a three foot square area of nothing but pure floor space.

He looked around again, surely he must have missed something! He had; he had missed the long, soggy lump reclining in the upper bunk. The outstretched form stirred, rolled over and opened its eyes; it extended a limp paw over the side of the bed.

"Scrunch".

"How's that?"

"Scrunch. Theodore F. Scrunch".

"Oh. My name's McFotch, Leonard Q. McFotch. Just call me Leonard for short."

"Pleas'a meetcha Fotch."

"Not Fotch! McFotch; Mc, as in McDade and Fotch . . . as in Fotch."

"I'll just call you Leonard for short, okay?"

"Okay."

New Adventure

Thus did the first year of a new adventure begin. From then on the days passed with increasing speed. Yes, McFotch found out after a few days that aggie meat wasn't really served in the cafeteria . . . and after a few weeks he kind of wished it was.

Yes, he went out with a nursing student. And yes, he flunked Biology . . . twice. But despite this, in summing up the first two semesters, McFotch could say with not a little satisfaction; it has been a good year. A two flunk, four picnic year. And truly, for a Freshman that was a good year.

Three months of summer living had matured Leonard Q. McFotch, and as he strolled toward his new dorm he looked about the campus and whistled—whistled and cast benevolent looks back on the two, panting, beanie-clad Freshmen who struggled to keep up with his brisk pace and at the same time support his luggage, 150 pounds of it, all necessary.

It was after registration and surprisingly enough it was a nice day. There was always one nice day between Registration day rain and the plain old ordinary Autumn rain, and this was that day.

Critical Eye

McFotch, without hesitating, entered his new room and cast a critical eye on his surroundings; one long metal desk; two bookcases, small; two broom closets, ordinary; one double decker and a long, soggy lump reclining in the top bed.

"Scrunchie boy!"

"Fotchie boy!"

"How's the kid?" "Great, and you?" "Never better."

The two shook hands, called each other curse words, affectionately punched each other on the shoulder, and in the ribs. After five or ten minutes of this nonsense they wore themselves out and returned to normal.

Theodore F. Scrunch rolled over and went back to sleep while Leonard Q. unpacked his bags. Amicability was retired for another year.

McFotch Joins

In Sophomore year McFotch joined. He joined the Ancient Lebanese History Club; the Industrial Society of "Picnics . . . ah picnics."

Affiliated Colleges and Secondary Schools of America (I.S.A.C.S.S.A.), a local organization; the debating society, Beta Sigma (B.S.); and a fraternity, Phi Kappa Phu.

He could have been an officer in the Ancient Lebanese History Club, as a matter of fact he could have been all the officers if he had so desired but he figured that a club with three officers should have at least three members, and including himself there were only two. So, by mutual agreement, he and the other ancient Lebanesians dissolved the club.

As the weeks passed, Leonard wrote home more and more frequently. At first his parents were overjoyed at receiving a letter every other week, but soon their elation diminished as their son's motivation became increasingly apparent.

"Oh—!" exclaimed the old man, "Does he think money grows on trees?"

"Well maybe he's buying a lot of books dear."

"Books, by—, I doubt if he reads that many books in a month, let alone in a week!"

And if the truth be known, young McFotch didn't read that many books in a year. But he had other expenses; his parents just didn't understand the needs (financial) of a growing college boy. However, as Leonard himself said. "The old folks usually come across if you use the right approach." McFotch was a past-master of parent psychology.

September Again

Again June rolled around two months after September and McFotch was able to recall many happy experiences; but boiled down it amounted to a one flunk (yes, Biology), eleven picnic year. He was progressing, it was really a top-drawer Sophomore year.

"Put those bags over there, that's right . . . thank you."

Ah, he thought, it's good to be back. All the familiar sights, that same old two by one bookcase; the reliable broom closets; and . . . "Fotchie boy!" "Scrunchie boy!"

Scrunch had staggered through with a big 1.7 and was still holding down the fort, or mattress if you prefer. The inevitable hand shaking, shoulder pummelling ritual took place and the third year was officially ushered in.

The third year; a wonderful time in a collegian's life. No longer is he one of the rabble, he is a Junior. He has the dignity of a Senior with none of a Senior's worries. For the Junior, there is still time to pull his index over 2.0. While the Senior has the Service, and what is worse, work, facing him, the Junior has a whole year of uninterrupted bliss ahead; an infinite series of picnics.

Unlimited Cash

McFotch, with a little aid from his private, inexhaustible treasury, was enjoying it immensely. Two and a half boxes of No-Doz coupled with twenty-twenty vision had secured an acceptable report for the first semester.

Four dances, five parties and two early picnics considerably shortened the second half of the "school" year and suddenly it was here: The Big Week, the Grand Blast.

It, Junior Week.

There would be the Prom and the Dinner Dance and all sorts of parties later, but today, today was Mother's Day and Leonard stood on the station platform eagerly awaiting his mother's arrival. What fond thoughts crowded into his mind as he remembered all she had done for him, all she meant to him. There she was now, getting off the train. Hardly able to restrain himself he hurried to her side.

"Say mom . . . er . . . you know . . . the Prom's coming up and er . . . everything and . . . well . . . I could use . . . "

"Mother!!"

Mrs. McFotch sighed and reached for her pocketbook. Young McFotch smiled down on her gently, blinking away a tear. Gosh, he thought, I'm lucky to have such a wonderful mother.

If you're a Junior, you might do well to take a closer look at these "Diaper Dans" . . . one could be you! These are just a few samples of the hundreds of treasured snapshots sent in by cooperative moms for the "Diaper Dan" contest.

It all started just about two months ago when members of the class of '60 were asked by helpful Religion teachers to self-address envelopes to their homes. Little did they know that friendly letters would be enclosed soliciting the baby photos from enthusiastic mothers.

Until now the pictures were guarded with tight security, with only the contest officials getting a chance in the wee hours of the morning to snicker over their diapered classmates in less dignified disposition.

The photos will be on exhibit throughout the day in Dougherty Hall, and the class's "Best Baby" will be announced after the banquet this afternoon.

VINCE MINKIEWICZ: "Some day I'll own this place."

KEVIN McCLATCHY: "Okay baby, being as I forgot my sandbucket."

DAN ZIEGLER: "You, too, can have a body like mine."

DON MARZ: "A good woman is just a woman, a good cigar is a smoke."

BILL STEVENSON: "Well, you see judge, it was like this . . ."

Muff Day and Sportsnight Highlight Junior Week Sports Activities

Softball In Full Swing

As Terry Whalen and Harry Rowe look on, Fred Wiele takes the pitch. With Vince Cucazzela umpiring and Bob Sara behind the plate.

Here is a chance to settle those arguments that always come up in the bull sessions around campus.

Now you'll be able to prove that the last cool one you might have had before the game didn't blur your vision, because Chairman Vic Richel has announced that tomorrow, the second night in Junior Week, will be Sports Night.

The men who make up both the intercollegiate and the intramural teams will be honored and seen in person and on film.

Without hindrance from wind, rain, or internal forces ,the highlights of the hard-fought Villanova-Army and the Villanova-Boston College games may be viewed. Both these games proved the Wildcats to be rough men with good teamwork.

The films from the 1956 Olympics at Melbourne ,and the Villanova track victory in the IC4A. Championships held here last une will be shown.

Remember all the shouting about last year's basketball game with West Virginia? Tomorrow night there will be another chance to view that questionable call made by those eagle-eyed referees.

The outstanding senior athlete will receive the annual award given on the basis of student poll. Intramural awards will be presented to the top men, whose efforts were recognized during the past year.

Tomorrow evening's entertainment will surely be enjoyed by all those who love sports and participate in them.

A Junior-Senior MUFF day will be held this Thursday beginning at 3:30, affording the juniors an opportunity to gain sweet revenge on the class of '59, announced Vince Cucuzzella, MUFF day chairman. Gene Paja, of varsity football fame, will lead the seniors.

The class of '60 has yet to win a MUFF day. As freshmen, they lost to the sophomores. As sophomores, they lost to the freshmen. On Thursday, they expect to vindicate the first loss. The seniors are favored, but the juniors are not yet willing to go down for the count.

All juniors are asked to participate either on the field or in the grandstands. A scoreboard will be erected on Austin Field showing the running score of the afternoon.

There will be five points awarded for each of the four contests. Winners in basketball and softball will take the full five points, which will not be split. Split points are possible in track and tennis, however.

Softball Highlight

Highlighting the day will be the softball game scheduled for 5:30 in Austin Field. The members of both teams have been in spring training throughout the various spring intramural leagues.

Bob Sarra, education major, will manage the juniors. Harry Rowe will pitch and Leo Siglinski and Terry Whalen are the men expected to wield the big bats. The seniors will bank on the strong arm of fast-balling Don Brass.

Tom Derr, Industrial Administration, will lead the track team as captain and potential top scorer. The meet will consist of a 100 yard dash, a 880 ard run, a mile relay, 120 yard hurdles, broad jump, high jump, and shot put.

Basketball Team

The basketball game will be played in Alumni Gym. Mike Marinak, Chem. Engineer, will head the team. John Gallen and Fred Wiele are expected to star. Gallen led his Bravo Company team to the current intramural championship. They defeated the Amboys just before Easter by a 56-48 count.

Lee Christenson, Civil Engineer, will captain a tennis team of two members who will play two singles and a doubles match on the seminary courts.

Juniors In Sports

By JIM MURRAY

The Junior athletes have played and will play a large part in the success of Villanova athletic endeavors.

In general, what is the junior's place on the varsity team? It is a junior who will be elected to lead his team mates as captain. It is the junior who evolves into the senior star because of his experience and talents. It is the junior who will come off the bence unnoticed to fill the injury spot and become the "new found" hero. It is the junior who has proven himself to be a mainstay on the varsity teams.

These are general things and part of the reason the Class of 1960 has done their part in sports so well.

To be specific, Villanova has great prospects for an athletic boom year in 1960.

In BASKETBALL, the junior class is represented only once,, but don't be fooled by numbers. They just aren't too many around like Villanova cager captain, George Raveling. He will be the only junior mentioned specifically for two reasons. First of all, George is singular in being the first Negro to captain a Villanova basketball team and secondly, because George Raveling typifies all the junior athletes in his ability, sincerity, and leadership. His team has all kinds of talent returning and coming up and should be a squad of championship caliber (BIG FIVE that is.)

In BASEBALL, if you give a glance down the picture page you'll see a good number of Villanova baseball caps. The baseball team with these juniors as a nucleus could be viewing for all kinds of honors in this present season and the next. .

In FOOTBALL, the juniors fill the main part of the front line defense and the junior backs should reach their peak season.

The schedules call for some tough games next season. Some of these teams will be surprised to see just how tough the 1960 Wildcats really are.

In TRACK the 1960 season should vault Villanova back to the top of the track world. (If they can go any higher than the place they have already established). Every year seems to be a great year in track and from the looks of things 1960 might just be the "greatest".

In SWIMMING, the Wildcats are planning to keep surprising schools by getting better and better each year. The swimming schedule is getting bigger and better and the team is following suit.

After reading this, one mighf think that Villanova is going to be champs in everything next year. Well, that's the way it is supposed to read Mom, cause it's Junior Week and you know your boys are the Champs.

BLUE-WHITE DAY NEXT SATURDAY (See Page 12)

Father's Day Plans Made, Activities To Run All Day

Sport activities of all kinds will keep seniors and their fathers scurrying around during the annual seniors' Fathers' Day festivities to be held on Saturday.

Activities will open with an outdoor Mass at Our Mother of Good Counsel shrine at 11 a.m., and will close at approximately 4:30 p.m. with the completion of the annual intra-squad football game between the Blues and the Whites.

Some 400 seniors and their dads—or uncles, godfathers, or older male friends, if their fathers are unable to attend — are expected to participate.

Chairman Kempf

Fathers Day Chairman Don Kempf stated that "the regularly Scheduled Blue-White Day activities should provide a great deal of enjoyment for the dads."

Following the Mass will be a luncheon banquet in Dougherty Hall. The menu will include sirloin steak and strawberry shortcake. Banquet Chairman Jim Corey said that the luncheon will be served cafeteria style this year, to enable the dads to see the sports events they like best.

The meal will be served between 12 noon and 1:30 p.m. Corey asked all students to buy their tickets early, so that an accurate count may be made of those planning to attend.

Lasting Remembrance

Program Chairman Bill Christy has promised a program which will serve as a lasting remembrance of the day. It was also announced that the dads will receive favors to further remember the day.

Athletic events of the day include baseball, Villanova vs. Seton Hall; basketball, Varsity vs. Old Timers; track, Villanova vs. Pitt; swimming, Varsity demonstration; and football, Blue vs. Whites.

Other chairmen for the day are Joe Driscoll, Mass arrangements; Jack Curtain and Joe Schneider, publicity; Frank Cavalier, miscellaneous; and Jim Hull and Gary Mara, tickets.

Tickets may be purchased through tomorrow in the Pie Shoppe, Hull and Mara stated, at the price of $6.50. This price includes favors, programs, holy cards, luncheon, and all Blue-White Day events.

FATHER'S DAY SCHEDULE

Here's a thumbnail sketch of Father's Day this Saturday.

Byzantine Mass To Be Celebrated

By JOHN McDONNELL
of the Villanovan Staff

A Byzantine Mass under the Russian Rite will be celebrated tomorrow morning in the Field House at 10 o'clock.

The Rev. Austin Mohrbacher of the Russian Center, Fordham University, will celebrate the Mass, and a mixed choir from the Russian Center will sing.

The Bysantine Rite is one of the six main rites in the Catholic Church today. Unity on faith and morals is always maintained among these rites, but liturgical laws and customs have differed from the earliest days of the Church, and the Holy See has insisted that they be preserved in their purity.

Liturgical Laws

According to these special liturgical laws and ceremonies, Catholics are mainly divided into Western (Latin) and Eastern (Oriental) Catholics.

Most Latin Catholics know very little about the Eastern Rites, and generally confuse them with the Eastern Orthodox Church.

It must be remembered that the Oriental Rite Church is as truly the Church of Christ as is the Western Catholic Church.

The division originated when the Apostles separated and traveled all over the world. New prayers and customs which were suitable for the people among whom the Apostles were preaching, were added to the Mass.

Thus separated, the different liturgies grew up, remaining always essentially the same, but with local customs and ceremonies introduced.

Schismatic Body

The Eastern Orthodox Church, however, is a schismatic body which originally broke away from the true Church in the Fifth Century.

Since the Orthodox Church differs from Rome on certain basic truths, Catholics are not permitted to take part in Orthodox ceremonies.

The Byzantine Rite developed around the city of Constantinople and from here missionaries were

Elections Now In Progress; Polls Stay Open Until 4:30

Evidence of the campaign spirit infecting the campus: Only a few of the signs and posters urging students to "get out there and vote!"

By MICHAEL D. DONAHUE
of the Villanovan Staff

Upon conclusion of one of the most spirited campaigns of recent years, general class elections got underway this morning.

Recent Student Council dickering notwithstanding, the lone voting site is still Alumni Hall gym. The polling place is open until 4:30.

J. P. Kelley, chairman of the Elections Committee, in releasing the list of nominees for the various offices, noted that most of the withdrawals from the campaign were purely voluntary.

Administration Sanction

As Kelley put it, "There were very few nominees whom the Administration did not sanction. This indicates that the students selected the best possible candidates for these important student offices."

Kelley also emphasized the work undertaken by the Elections Committee, spearheaded by Jerry McGrath, Pete O'Brien, Francisco Pacheco, and Student Council Chairman Bob Murphy.

To avoid the confusion resulting from employing different monitors, Kelley has assigned several of the senior members of his group to be on hand throughout the entire day.

Election Results

Election results will be disclosed as soon as the votes are tabulated. However, no results will be made public, Kelly emphasized, until all campaign posters are removed from the campus.

A joint meeting of the old and newly-elected congresses will be held tonight for the nomination of new officers for next year.

Nominations will be held for the four offices on next year's Student Council, and also for the senate.

Senate nominations will be held to fill the seats allotted to four seniors, two juniors, and two sophomores.

Elections to these posts will be held on the following Monday.

The official list of candidates for student offices for 1959-1960 is as follows:

Senior Class

Senior Class—nominees for President are Raymond Rafferty, Ronald Dobies, and Victor Richel. Nominated for vice-president were Gilbert Hirscher, Michael Marinak, Joseph DuRocher, Lawrence Maucher, and Robert Godwin.

Candidates for secretary are Richard Wines, Richard Gerstner, and Howard Silcox. Nominees for senior class treasurer are Michael Carozza, Charles Ward, Terence Connell, and Richard Walsh.

The following students were nominated for Student Council

Essay, Plays Featured In Spring LYNX

The Spring issue of the campus literary magazine, the Lynx, will go on sale Monday, May 11 in the Pie Shoppe, and in the University Shop.

The price of the magazine will remain at 25c.

A notable change in the policy has been embodied in the new Lynx. In the past it has been the custom to accept only one submission for publication from any author, except in the case of short poems.

The Spring Lynx, however, will contain two and three works from several authors.

This decision was influenced both by the quality of the articles, and by the relatively small number of manuscripts found to meet Lynx requirements.

Something else not seen in recent issues of the Lynx will be two one-act plays, one by Tony Macklin, who had a short story in the Fall issue, and the other by Donald Murphy, new to the Lynx.

Macklin's play, which concerns the dream world of a repressed young man, has recently been successfully staged at an experimental theatre at Harcum Junior College.

Besides the plays, there will be three stories, each in their own way critical of the pressures of modern life. Also included are several essays, one dealing with the musical art of Louis Armstrong, and a number of poems.

Costs Soar, Tuition Up Next Term

A general increase in operating expenses has compelled Villanova University to raise its tuition for the 1959-60 school year, it was announced yesterday by the Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O.S.A., University President.

The tuition raise has been authorized by the University's Board of Trustees and will become effective with the opening of the academic year in September of 1959.

Letter To Students

In a letter mailed to students this week, Father Donnellon said, "the change is the result of a continuing study of University finances and a further attempt to strengthen our educational program."

"Economic inflation", Father Donnellon continued, "in all aspects of operating overhead, demands an ever increasing budget, hence the present need to increase income."

Tuition increases varied among the University's four divisions with an average increase of about $75.00 a semester. The increase also affected the University's School of Law and the undergraduate part-time program. Room and Board costs remain the same.

Lowest Level

Father Donnellon pointed out that the University will continue to endeavor to retain fees at the lowest possible level by seeking further gifts, grants and bequests from alumni, friends, corporations and foundations.

Peretti Makes Plans For 1960 Belle Air Yearbook

Plans for the 1960 Belle Air are presently being formulated by Thomas Peretti, newly appointed editor-in-chief.

Peretti, whose appointment was announced by co-moderators, Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A. librarian and Rev. Robert M. Sullivan, O.S.A., Dean of Arts and Science, is optimistic over future prospects of the publication.

No stranger to the Belle Air, Peretti has worked on the staff this past year when he put together the junior section.

A native of Grand Rapids, Michigan, he graduated from Catholic Central High School where he was active in school publications. His activities at Villanova have been extensive.

Class Committees

The former NFCCS regional treasurer, he has served on class blazer, steering, and prom committees. An active member of Delta Pi Mu Fraternity, the K. of C., and I.C.G., he plans to devote a large part of his time to the Belle Air next year.

Peretti noted the difficulties and complex problems encountered in yearbook planning.

"It's not an easy job, but if you have people with ideas and the desire to work, half of your problems are solved." He expressed his confidence in the ability and spirit of the Class of 1960.

"With the cooperation and assistance of the class, there is no doubt that the 1960 Belle Air will be of high quality.

Business Staff

For those who feel they have no creative ability, but are inclined toward business or selling, the business staff would be the proper outlet for their energies, he said. "This is a very vital part of the Belle Air and people who fit the description are urged to join."

He reminded juniors that senior portraits for the 1960 Belle Air are being taken the rest of this week and the next. He stated that those who have made appointments should realize that they have an obligation to appear at their scheduled time. Failure to do so will cause delay and may possibly result in no picture being taken.

No pictures will be taken in the fall and if a picture is to appear in the 1960 Belle Air it must be taken at this time, he emphasized.

Portraits are being taken on the second floor Dougherty Hall, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Attire for the picture, according to Peretti, is dark coat, dark tie and white shirt. No khakis are allowed and $1 deposit is requested at the time of sitting. Proofs will be mailed during the summer to the student's home, he said.

Summit Parley Will Fail, History Prof Declares

By RICHARD A. DELANEY
of the Villanovan Staff

"The forthcoming Geneva summit conference will be a complete, and absolutely worthless failure."

Mark Sholofsky, of Villanova's history department, bases his opinion on the past history of summit conferences and Russia's constant refusal to bargain with the West.

A graduate of Georgetown University Foreign Service School, and Saint Louis University, Sholofsky is currently working on his Doctorate for Diplomatic History at the University of Pennsylvania.

No Tangible Steps

Although he believes in agreement with President Eisenhower that the conference will produce no tangible steps in the direction of world peace, Sholofsky realizes that attendence is better than no attempt at all.

Russia has set a May 27 deadline for the western powers to get out of Berlin. In recognition of this threat, it is only logical for the U. S. to make some attempt towards peace.

In any case, according to Sholofsky, the West has a solidly united front in the problems facing them. These issues include ending the cold war, disarmarment, German unity, and the Berlin problem.

Towards Appeasement

Some people believe that Great Britain is turning towards appeasement to ward off any trouble over Berlin. Sholofsky believes that Britain has a very serious problem in the shadow of a possible war with Russia.

"Britain wants out of her problem through a more flexible foreign policy, not through appeasement. She will give concessions to Russia, if in return, Russia gives concessions which will be acceptable to the West." In other words, Britain will do nothing without the full agreement of her partners.

As for France and Germany, Sholofsky is hopeful that these formerly bitter enemies are in the strongest mutual agreement since 1879. "France will back West Germany in any position and Adenauer's government will not give in to any pressure on the part of the Communists."

Stronger Policy

United States policy is somewhat stronger than England's. The U. S. wants free elections for all of Germany while England would settle for a confederation of the two German states in hopes that democracy, along with Poland's seemingly anti-Communist feelings, would eventually lead to a complete withdrawal of Communist government in both Germany and Poland. Sholofsky believes that this argument is workable.

MARK SHOLOFSKY of The History Dept.

As to Russia's peaceful intentions at Geneva, Sholofsky is very pessimistic. "When dealing with Russia you are simply in the dark. As shown in the past, Russia is for Russia and she involves no morality at all when seated at the peace table."

Sholofsky believes that the only policy to be held in connection with the U.S.S.R. is to "arm to the point where you can contain them."

Inspections Problem

Another subject which will be brought up at the summit conference is the question of inspections. The United States is in favor of any land or air inspection as long as Russia agrees to a mutual inspection of her territory.

According to Sholofsky, Russia's attitude towards inspection is that it is a form of spying. Sholofsky agrees that it is exactly that. He thinks the United States should agree with this and tell Russia she does agree.

Sholofsky believes that with the cold war in the critical situation it is in, both sides should be blunt with each other in stating what they stand for.

Russia has recently proposed a plan of land and air inspection including territory from the Ural Mountains in Russia to the Atlantic Ocean.

Limited Inspection

Sholofsky said, "There is not much sense to an inspection of a limited area. In fact it is useless. Who knows what Russia has in the line of long range missles behind the Ural Mountains? The plan is completely senseless in that both the U. S. and Russia could still maintain agressive weapons deep in the heart of their homelands."

Probably one of the first issues to be discussed at the summit parley will be Russia's refusal to allow U. S. planes to fly over 10,000 feet in the corridor to Berlin. Sholofsky states that there is nothing in the Potsdam Agreement ruling out flights at any altitude.

"If we go down to 10,000 feet, the U. S. S. R. will want us down to 5,000 feet and so on." Sholofsky does not think the U. S. should give in to any Russian demands on this subject.

What will happen at the Geneva talks, only time will tell. However, most people are assuming a pessimistic attitude and it is difficult to hope for anything else, he concludes.

Rolls Elected To S.E.A.

James Rolls, junior education major, has been elected vice-president of the Student Education Association of Pennsylvania.

The election was held at the Association's convention at Slippery Rock State Teachers College on April 23 and 24.

Rolls, attending Villanova on a John McKee scholarship, is presently the president of the Villanova chapter of the SEA.

Edwin Shultz and Dr. George Cressman, moderator of the association, attended the convention along with Rolls.

Senior Officers Stymied; Parting Festival A Puzzle

To part or not to part—and if so, when and where—that is the question facing the Class of 1959 following the first class meeting of the second semester, held last Thursday.

Confusion was the keynote of the meeting, Which many observors believe to have come about as a result of a VILLANOVAN editorial and several letters to the newspaper criticizing the class officers a week earlier.

The Parting Festival—annually one of the biggest and most popular events in the senior realm—was the center of all the controversy, a lively discussion breaking out immediately after Fathers' Day chairman Don Kempf had neatly explained the details of this Saturday's affair.

Clear Things Up

With class president Oz Scogna and festival chairman T. Walker Lloyd alternately "clearing up" what the other had said (with contradictory statements), the scant number of students in attendance found themselves in a turmoil.

"We want you to tell us what to do," said Scogna, pointing out that the class had at least three choices as to time and location of its final function. He announced that instructions on how every member of the class could cast a vote would be posted on the class bulletin board in Dougherty Hall.

As of this writing, however, the possibility of such a vote was still in doubt. Lloyd, a day-hop Arts student from Chestnut Hill, told the VILLANOVAN, "the vote was Oz's idea—I don't think it's such a good one."

Alternatives Offered

In a nutshell, the alternatives offered the class at the meeting were Fountainhead (near New Hope, Pa.) on Saturday or Medford Lakes, N. J., on Sunday. In conjunction with the latter choice, the class could also plan, in the words of Lloyd, "a picnic at an undisclosed spot in Fairmount Park." A minority group also proposed that this "picnic" serve as the whole Parting Festival.

Originally, Scogna reported, the class had signed Fountainhead for the affair, but it had been sold from under them and turned into a nightclub. He and Lloyd disagreed as to the date they were informed of the sale, but both agreed that the site was not as enticing now as it was earlier. They said that prices would be high and that the class would be "cramped."

That would seem to make the French Art Contest

The deadline for the French Creative Art Contest in painting, drawing, sculpturing, and writing, sponsored by the French Club of Villanova, is May 11, according to Frank Murtha, president.

Any member of the student body of a participating college is eligible to win one of three individual trophies and the memorial trophy to be held for one year by the school which submits the winning entry.

Any object is acceptable as long at it is an original creative effort and deals with a French theme, said Murtha.

The purpose of the contest is to establish a greater degree of harmony between the various collegiate language clubs in the Philadelphia area.

Entries should be submitted to room 40 Mendel Hall.

Fr. Falvey Honored

Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A., librarian at Villanova University, received an honorary degree from St. Francis College at Loretto, Pa., on Saturday, May 2nd.

Father Falvey was honored during dedication ceremonies for a new library at the Pennsylvania school. The new structure is called the Pius XII library and is one of the most modern buildings of its kind in this area.

The honorary degree of Doctor of Library Science was conferred upon Father Falvey during morning ceremonies. The Rev. Kevin R. Keelan, T.O.R., President of St. Francis, made the presentation.

Father Falvey has been in charge of Villanova's library for the past twenty years. It was largely through his efforts that Villanova built its own library building ten years ago.

Father Falvey headed a fund drive that helped raise money for the structure which houses about 200,000 volumes as well as the university's literary and art treasurers.

WVIL-PaperDance

Tickets for the annual Villanovan-WVIL Dinner Dance will go on sale this week. The affair will be held at the Warwick Hotel, 1701 Locust St., Philadelphia, on Saturday, May 16.

Tickets are five dollars and are available to all members of both organizations.

Given Fellowship

Dr. Ih-Sen Hsu of the Industrial Administration Department has been selected to receive one of the Case Institute of Technology fellowship, for the 1959 Economics-in-Action program.

The session begins on June 13 and ends July 11.

Hsu was selected from among many college teachers who indicated their interest in the program. He will travel to Cleveland to participate in the program.

Steel Executive Talk

Two executives from United States Steel addressed Industrial Administration majors and members of the Villanova Chapter of the Society for Advancement of Management, April 30.

H. Robert Nye and Warren R. DeWalt, discussed forecasting at U. S. Steel; how the forecasts are prepared, and how they are used, and specific examples of the application of forecasts to specific management decisions.

Nye is manager of the market economics section while DeWalt is coordinator of market studies for U. S. Steel Normal Volume Program. The section over which Nye is manager develops the market forcasts which are the basis for all U. S. Steel planning.

Grant To C.E. Dept.

A grant has been awarded the Chemical Engineering Dept. by the National Science Foundation, announced Dr. Robert E. White of that department.

The grant will support an undergraduate research program and will assist six students engaged in actual research on the program. Three of the students will be assisted while working on the project during the summer between their junior and senior years. The other three will receive assistance during their senior year.

The project, under the direction of Dr. White, will investigate the structure of fibrous sheets, such as paper.

Chem. Dept. Meeting

Dr. G. N. Quam, chairman of the chemistry department, recently announced that members of the department attended a meeting of the Pennsylvania Association of College Chemistry Professors, held at the University of Scranton on April 24 and 25.

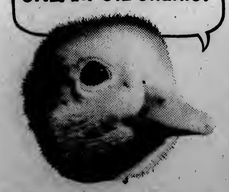
Dr. James Markham of Villanova is a member of the Executive Board of the Association. Dr. Kenneth O'Driscoll presented a paper entitled "The Physical Chemistry of Inflating Balloons" at the April 25 session.

It was also announced that Quam will attend the Corrosion Inhibition Symposium being held tomorrow at the Armour Research Foundation in Chicago. The Foundation is associated with the Illinois Institute of Technology.

Addresses Semper Fi

Last Thursday night, at John Barry Hall, the Semper Fidelis Society, in keeping with its Marine officer indoctrination program, heard Gunnery Sergeant Edward Mulcany, USMC, speak on "Squad Tactics".

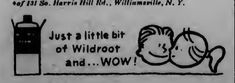
Two movies entitled "The Saga of the Franklin" and "The Amphibious Marine" were also viewed.



The Society's Quantico indoctrination program is being continued with weekly classes given every Monday at 3:30 at Barry Hall. Next Monday's class will feature the preparation PLC's should make for Quantico.

Fr. Rongione Elected

Rev. Louis A. Rongione, O.S.A., Dean of the Graduate and Part-Time Division at Villanova University, has been elected to membership on the Committee for Graduate Study of the National Catholic Educational Association.



The committee will review policies and procedures common to Catholic graduate schools and prepare a program of discussion for the fall meeting of the Catholic graduate school deans which will be held this year at Villanova.

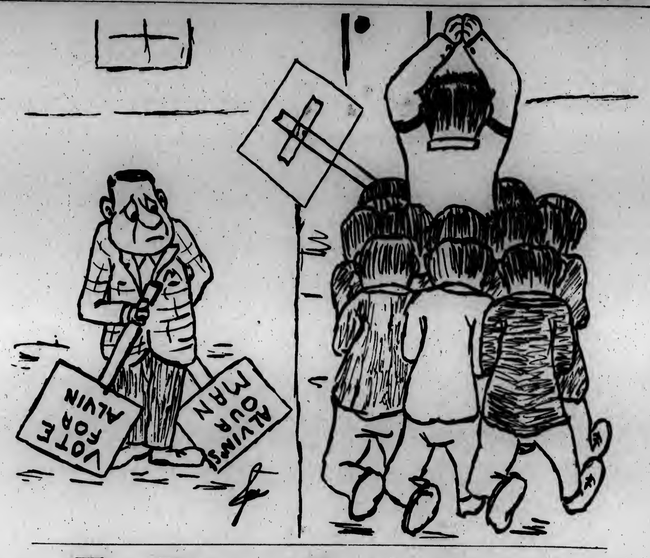
Chance To Vote

We hope students will take the class office and student council elections seriously today.

But we fear that all too few of them will.

The VILLANOVAN agreed to publish pictures and biographies of leading candidates without charge. Few of the candidates even bothered to submit the necessary information.



We hope this attitude of indifference is not also typical of the voting undergraduates. Committee Chairman John P. Kelley fears a great number of students will simply ignore the elections.

Earlier this semester the council voted down a motion to bring a polling place to the vicinity of the Commerce and Finance building. The idea was intended to make it easier for business students to cast their ballots.

The C and F division can demonstrate its interest today, as can the other divisions, in Alumni Hall.

The running of class affairs, including the senior weekend and parting festival. and Junior Week, is the responsibility of officers elected today.

Its too late to "belly ache" after the event is over, when the deed, good or evil, has been done.

Top Junior Week

Chalk up Junior Week 1959 as the most rewarding social function at Villanova in recent years. It stands as an imposing monument to a class spirit which will be hard to match in years to come.

There was Mothers Day. Few juniors were surprised when the rains came on this annually damp day. But we venture to say that every mom went home keenly satisfied.

The Prom decorations were inspiring, with two gigantic chandeliers glistening overhead. The brandy snifter favors were novel and Warren Covington was never better.

The juniors were not beset by the Dinner Dance problems which terrorized the seniors a few weeks earlier. They had a sell-out crowd and none of the catalytic food which dismayed so many seniors.

With a few extra parties and picnics thrown in, along with a muff day the juniors finally won, we can hope the following classes take up the pattern. Because Junior Week '59 was not only an example of carefree enjoyment—the juniors conducted themselves like gentlemen for the duration.

LEO GOODREAU

Fr. Donnellon's Letter

To all the Students of the University:

You have been notified that the Trustees of the University have authorized certain changes in the schedule of tuition to become effective for the academic year of 1959-60.

I want each of you to know how very deeply I regret the necessity for this change in our tuition rates. I fully realize the financial burden that this places both upon yourself and your parents. I do hope, however, that you will try to understand our position in this matter.

You are aware of the physical changes taking place on our campus. New buildings have been erected and we will soon start construction on our New Science Building. This Building alone will cost approximately $3,500.000.00. We desperately need this building if we are to provide the proper facilities to equip you to meet the challenge of the future.

I am sure also that you are aware of the dire need for increases in our faculty salaries. We sincerely want you to have the best teachers that we can provide. Only by paying adequate salaries can we obtain and retain teachers capable of affording you the highest level of instruction.

Over the past ten years our financial obligations have more than doubled. We have endeavored to remedy this critical situation by seeking new income from all appropriate sources. We are encouraged by the upward trend in gifts, grants, and bequests from alumni, friends, corporations, and foundations. The additional income which will be realized from the new student fees will serve effectively to move faculty salaries upwards and thereby quicken our pace toward the goal of even higher academic excellence. It should be clearly recognized that the new fees will not increase appreciably that portion of the educational costs borne by the students and his parents. It is part of our tradition that no student pays nearly the full cost of his education, and it is not likely that any ever will.

We ask for your sympathetic understanding of our problems. May the good Lord shower His blessings upon all of you.

Very sincerely,
Rev. James A. Donnellon, O.S.A.
President

Letters:

To the Editor:

I would like to make public what I hope is a bit of constructive criticism. Bill McManus' comments notwithstanding, Turf 'n' Tinsel's production of "Piper Heidsieck' '98" was a boring show.

Its major fault was its ridiculous length. The quality of the material certainly did not warrant a three hour show, let alone a first act of 90 minutes duration.

Another glaring faux pas on the part of the show's director was the belaboring of the license of expression. As do many amateur(ish) companies, T 'n T made profligate and sometimes distasteful use of "hell" and "damn." On those few occasions when these words evoked rightful belly laughs from the audience more often than not were uttered in situations which did not call for them. It was simply a case of belaboring the point.

It is sincerely hoped that in the future, Turf 'n' Tinsel strives more for quality than for length of performance, and that its directors be a bit more judicious in exercising their directional prerogative.

To the Editor:

. . Mr. Owen Klein, the obviously proud owner of a black tuxedo, seems to be advocating the wearing of black until May 22, since he said black would be appropriate for another month.

I do, however, feel sorry for those 21-year-old seniors who need to be told how to dress for a prom.

PESTERITY

Purple, yellow, green and red swirled amidst the black and plaid,
Gaiety and laughter reigned, a fine time to be had.
Although not new, these hallowed walls,
Have confined the joys of many grand balls.
Here sits a bard with pencil racing;
The efforts of his fellow men
disgracing.
No time to dance this dedicated
duce,
For multitude of complaints he must produce.
"His partner stranded on the floor alone."
Whilst he sped away to pick a bone.

Harry F. Devlin, Jr.

To the Editor:

It is time for a "better late than never" letter of congratulations to the chairman and members of the senior Dinner Dance Committee. This group obtained the largest and most appropriate ballroom available for the occasion and brought it to life with the most pleasant decorations ever to appear at a function of this type at Villanova.

Paul Judge again came through with his solid orchestrations to which everyone who wished could dance on a floor large enough to accommodate the greatest attendance at such an affair in our history.

Unfortunately, some had a legitimate complaint (a physiological difficulty) but this was a peculiar, unexpected situation.

As for the other "sour grapes," from those who would define dogmatically social protocol, condemn ballroom atmosphere, etc., I can only say that the Class of 1959 has been spoiled by the lavish events of their socially gigantic Junior Year, and had their feelings hurt by a ballroom that lacked a golden staircase covered with rugs three inches thick.

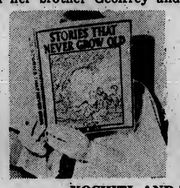
Fallout

Pasternak, Move Over

By JIM McATEER

I never realized all the work involved in writing a novel. For years I have looked on them as sort of Acts of God, like typhoons, attacks by pirates, and mutiny on the high seas. But this year, for no special reason, I made a New Year's resolution to write The Great American Novel that everyone always talks about; you know, one reeking of murder and romance. It should have sold.



In an old filing cabinet are some literary gems composed in the halcyon days of my youth. I decided to dig them out and see what earth-shattering ideas they contained. The first page read:

'TWAS ONCE IN MAY

"The crowd in the Moulin Rouge gasped in disbelief as Tony Hawkins burst drunkenly through the door and made for the corner table where Sharon Wills was sitting with her brother Geoffrey and her manager, Nunally Splown and . . ."

Here the story took an interesting turn. It began again: " . . . the crowd in the Moulin Rouge chattered on in blissful ignorance as Tony Hawkins slipped in at the door and whispered to the headwaiter, 'Any famous people here tonight?'

"The headwaiter, after Tony bribed him sufficiently, turned his head toward a corner table where Sharon Wills was sitting with her brother Geoffrey and her manager Nunally Splown.

"Genteely he murmured, 'We have only famous people here tonight.' "

This second version was better, I thought, and turned to the next page to revel in this promise of lasting fame. The promise was never fulfilled. 'TWAS ONCE IN MAY ended right there. But the next page looked even more promising:

XOCHITL AND THE STARBEAST

"With here brother Geoffrey and her manager Nunally Splown forming an adoring entourage, Sharon Wills swept into the hotel lobby, only to bump into Tony Hawkins. Tony made a bow of apology.

"Sharon smiled and ran her hand along his cheek and into his hair, jabbing him behind the ear with her fingernail. She sighed, 'Tony, you poor, poor ignoramus.' "

I decided to very quietly commit hari-kari. The story will never be written, because I always get stuck with the same characters.

Take Tony. He is a lean dark reporter who supports an old aunt in Wisconsin. He slouches around Broadway in a trench coat and no hat, killing himself with cigarettes.

He gets a bad name from Sharon Wills, whose father is rich and lives in Bryn Mawr. Sharon wears slacks, is very beautiful, and will probably fall madly in love with Tony some day, only I never get that far.

Geoffrey, her brother, is an architect who is ultra-Ivy League in every respect. He feels sorry for Tony. I don't know what Geoffrey is doing in the story at all.

Nunally Splown I'm not too sure of, although he's been around for years. I have an idea he may be Ukrainian. I do know for sure that he was once married to a girl named Cynthia, who was drowned. Somewhere around page 10, I think he may tell Sharon, "When Cynthia fell into the sea, she fell with my heart in her hands. Always was a little clumsy, was Cynthia."

Oh, well. I went on to the next page, hoping to find some improvement, and my fondest hopes were realized. An entirely new cast appeared in the very first sentence:

I CAN BUT DREAM

"Wendy Harris was weeping over Joe. Even Phaedeaux, her neurotic Pekingese, seemed to sense that Wendy was heartbroken. Wendy herself realized that she simply had to get out of the house and forget Jed.

"Just then, the telephone rang. Wendy jumped for it, upsetting a bottle of hand lotion all over Phaedeaux.

" 'Hello, darling,' said the voice at the other end. 'This is Sharon Wills. I'm in town for a week with Geoffrey and Nunally Splown, and of course, stupid Tony Hawkins is here, too, and . . .' "

I think I should get out and meet more interesting people.

Edition Tops Marathon Record

The editorial quartet of Tom Wolf, Ford Prime, Willy Williams and Jim Murray set a new record while putting out the recent Junior Week edition of the VILLANOVAN. They spent exactly 66 hours writing, rewriting, pasting, and rewriting some more, in composing the special issue.

The previous record was held by this year's staff: O'Rourke, Goldschmidt, Curtin and Company, who saw 52 hours and 30 minutes elapse before the first copy rolled off the presses.

This year's marathon began on the afternoon of Wednesday, April 22, and ended in the small hours of Saturday, April 25. The previous record holders readily conceded the victory, and even admitted that this year's edition was one of the best.

Macklin Playlet Aired At Harcum

By BILL SPEERS

Tony Macklin, Villanova junior English major, will have his original one-act play—"First Affair"—produced next Thurday evening, May 14, at Harcum Junior College. Featured in the two-character playlet will be Villanova's Jack Dagney, also a junior English major, as the boy and Sylvia Loewen, of Harcum, as the girl.

The story revolves around the chance meeting of two young, lost and lonely people in a nearly deserted, mid-city bus terminal and the discoveries they make about each other. Macklin, who is also a member of the VILLANOVAN sports staff, said that the theme for "Affair" was suggested by the new record album by Johnny Mathis—"Open Fire-Two Guitars." The Mathis album incidentally, is heard throughout the entire play.

We traveled down to Harcum the other day and sat in on one of the play's rehearsals. The show was run through flawlessly with Miss Loewen and Dagney portraying their roles as if there wasn't another soul in the room. The playlet's intimacy is obvious enhanced by a happy combination of a minimum of characters and a maximum of clever, articulate dialogue.

The small group of onlookers seemed to enjoy it. "Affair's" director, Mrs. Elizabeth Ulhrich, who has nothing but superlatives for Macklin—well, maybe a few comparatives — was very pleased with the enactment; in fact, the only one who doesn't enjoy the rehersals is Macklin himself. All the while the show's being rehearsed, Tony nervously paces the exterior of the building, not unlike the young father awaiting the arrival of his first offspring.

He's written a darn good play, though. So if you haven't anything special planned for the evening of May 14, stop down at Harcum (located at Montgomery and Morris Avenues in Bryn Mawr). There's no charge for admission. You'll witness something that is rarely turned out by the Villanova student body —creative writing at its best.

All Losers Please Note: Old Campaigner Speaks Up

By PETER F. ALLARD

These friendly words of fraternal advice are intended for all you losers in today's elections. By remembering these few basic rules and highly devious methods you too can become a campus politician instead of being a frustrated office-seeker. For convenience sake, we list problems and solutions in the order in which they will be encountered:

Nominations. Any fool can nominate you except yourself. The main thing here is to move that nominations be closed as soon as your nomination is carried.

Plan Ahead

Bribe several students to come to the nominations as your supporters; train them to disperse themselves among the crowd and make enough discreet noises to carry both your nomination and, immediately afterwards, the motion to close nominations.

Speeches. You will have to make, in English, an appropriate acceptance speech. You will also find that many speaking situations arise during the campaign.

Always start with first things first; tell the audience how wonderful you are, casually enumerating the myriad activities to which you belong. Beware of people who ask how you could hold an office on top of all these activities and still be able to do all your jobs well.

Win Friends

Then tell the class how wonderful they are. This makes everybody part of the club. The usual routine is to tell them they're great, but they need unity, and you can provide that unity. (The word "unity" is really value-loaded near election time. Use it often).

Campaigning. No campaign is complete without those little cards telling everyone to vote for you. Your political machine must be equipped with at least 1000 cards per campaigner. Then card carriers infiltrate the campus, foisting the cards off on people. Insist that voters clip the cards on their pockets, pledge their support (whatever that is), and shake your hand.

Students accumulate many of these cards, since the only way to get rid of a campaigner is to take the cursed card, "yes" him to death, and send him on his way.

You might send trash cans around to pick up this waste paper in your name. It would create good will, but informed sources doubt that there are enough cans for the job.

Influence People

Have plenty of signs with the Katzenjammer Kids, Pogo, Little Orphan Annie, Peanuts, Joe Palooka, and the Piel Bros., telling the world to vote for you. Place a large sign or small dirigible on the lawn beside the classroom annex, suitably lettered: Think Big.

Election Day. Mill around in front of Alumni Gym shaking more hands and demanding that all vote for the candidate of their choice, as long as he's you. This is the time for unusual persistence, wild promises, and absolutely no clear thinking. In plain words, pull out all stops and break heads if you must, but get that vote.

Things To Do

Make a show of asking those who have voted to tell you their choice, so that an unofficial score may be kept. Post fake results of the election's progress listing you as a landslide winner. Let everyone's desire to be identified with success do the rest.

General Notes. Cut as many classes as you can. Spend money: other peop'e's money. Spread rumors that the opposition is tearing down all your signs. Avoid facing any concrete facts or possible issues (This last problem is rarely encountered. Real issues might instigate real thought).

Just one more thing—be a good loser!

Club President On Astronomy At V. U.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Here begins the first of a series of three articles by the President of Villanova's Astronomy Club. In subsequent articles, the author will discuss the operation and value of the club.

By RICHARD L. BUSENKELL

The recent launchings of satellites and the dawn of the space age have triggered a new interest in things celestial, which seems to have spread to the Villanova campus.

Last January, the administration decided to reinstate an astronomy course which has not been taught here for forty years. They were able to institute the course because an observatory was already in existence and a man qualified to teach the course was already a member of the faculty; Father Edward F. Jenkins, O.S.A. of the Chemistry Department.

The existing facilities are chiefly due to the spare-time labor of Father. and many interested students who have worked over the years so that Villanova might have an observatory.

In the summer of 1951, the administration decided to raze the tower that then occupied the present position of the dome on Mendel Hall. Father realized that the vacated position would be an excellent site for an observatory and work atop Mendel Hall began.

By the summer of 1953 the observatory had been erected and an eight-inch reflector telescope completed. Since the cost of a professionally built dome would have been prohibitive, Father Jenkins concluded that an aluminum silo dome, strong and inexpensive would be a more-than-adequate substitute. The results proved entirely satisfactory and by the summer of 1954 the observatory was insulated and entirely completed.

The Astronomy Club was formally instituted in October, 1956, when the Dean of Student Activities, Father George McLaughlin, O.S.A. approved the club's constitution. Prior to that it had existed on an informal basis

Presently, the club has a paid membership of about twenty-five, and is open to all students. Biweekly discussion meetings are held, occasionally accompanied by movies or slides. Members and students are free to visit the observatory at their leisure. The recent acquisition of a powerful Unitron six-inch reflecting telescope has greatly increased the possibilities of celestial investigation for interested students.

An informal opening of the observatory with its new telescope was held last night.

Astronomy club members, the astronomy class, and interested alumni were all present. A formal opening will take place in the fall, at which admission will be open to all.

Campus Debate Club Being Heard Throughout East

By JAMES MURRAY

The Beta Gamma Debating Society is being heard by leading universities throughout the country. It is time it was heard on this campus.

A Villanova debating team composed of Joe Liggera, Gene D'Quilla, Frank Murtha, and Joe Remy, traveled to Rutgers of South Jersey on April 18, and turned in a undefeated slate while walking off with the first place trophy.

Debating the resolution that "the further development of nuclear weapons should be prohibited by international agreement," the Wildcats emerged victorious in a field that included 13 schools from the Eastern United States.

Plaque To Murtha

Among Villanova's victims were Temple, last year's winner, and the University of Pennsylvania, the second place team. In addition, Beta Gamma's vice-president - elect Murtha, was awarded a plaque for turning in the ninth best individual performance.

This outstanding showing also promises a bright future for Beta Gamma, since Murtha is only a junior, Remy is a sophomore, and both Liggera and D'Quilla are freshmen.

Under the leadership of this year's president Jim Corey, it has evolved into a smooth running and efficient organization. This year's efforts have been rewarded with fine showings in varsity tournaments and victories in the majority of local inter-collegiate debates.

It might surprise some of the readers to learn of the various class leaders with debating background.

First, Jim Corey, club president, considers the debate club his primary and most rewarding activity. Jim is an active member of the Villanova Singers, WVIL Staff, NROTC, Intramural Committee, and other activities. He directly attributes his success in other activities to the debate society.

Next, Oz Scogna, senior class president, learned to say the right thing at the right time in just the right way, having been trained in the art of rhetoric in the Beta Gamma Debating Society, he is the present secretary of the society. Enough said as to the caliber of the society members.

Under the coaching of Richard McDonough of the speech department, this club has attained a polished skill and deep respect in debating circles throughout the eastern seaboard.

Costa President-Elect

Dom Costa, junior arts student, was elected president of the society by a landslide margin on April 19. Costa has been a member of the society for three years and last year served on the executive council as treasurer.

Others elected as officers of the club were Frank Murtha, vice-president; Tom Pfeiffer, secretary; Jim Murray, treasurer; and Joe Remy, student council representative.

Joe Remy, Frank Murtha, Joseph Liggera, Gene D'Aquila shown with rewards of their efforts at Rutgers Debating Tournament. The team took first place.

Ethel Can Belt Out Lyrics But Who Understands 'Em?

By JIM TURNER

"Leading woman of Musical Comedy! Miss Broadway! Great talent!" . . . Oh?

Several weeks ago, Ethel Merman opened in Philadelphia in her latest musical, "Gypsy," in which she plays the mother of Gypsy Rose Lee. I cannot understand why Gypsy Rose Lee, a strip-teaser, was chosen to be eulogized in the American theater, but that is not the point of this article.

Reviews in Variety

The point is that Miss Merman scored really great reviews both in the local papers and in "Variety," the trade paper of the theater . . . Why? The show is not that good.

Besides having seen "Gypsy," it was my austere privilege to have seen Miss Merman's last smash hit, "Happy Hunting," which only lost $100,000. This was my first Merman show, and I could hardly wait. The seats were not the best in the house, but were in the first balcony. That didn't matter . . . "You can hear Ethel anywhere in the house—just wait until she belts out those songs."

I waited and waited. She belted them out, but I could not understand the lyrics. Here again, she and the show got rave reviews, and this too was an inferior show.

I seems that the name Ethel Merman is synonymous with greatness to those in the entertainment world. You can not say anything bad about her or the show she is in—it just isn't done.

Miss Merman is living off a reputation made years ago in such hits as "Du Barry Was A Lady," "Panama Hattie," and "Annie Get Your Gun." The press should review her on her performances of today, and not allow her to bask in her past glory.

I do not deny that Miss Merman has a loud voice, or that she can sing at the top of her voice, but this voice has no attractive quality. Her acting ability also leaves much to be desired, since she cannot convey any impression of genuine feeling or emotion. Perhaps she has hidden talents for the press, and until one is a professional newspaper reviewer, he cannot appreciate her talents.

The Merman myth has long needed exploding. All that has prevented this is reviewers' fear of appearing out of style, or ignorant of theater ways. Do you think I am kidding about this fear? Then just think: how many people have you heard of that did not like "My Fair Lady?"

Chem Engineers Win Top Awards

Joseph J. Krackler and Joseph D. Bizzeno received first and second awards, respectively, for papers delivered to the Mid-Atlantic Region Student Chapters of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers. The papers were delivered at the Tenth Annual Conclave, held in Charlottesville, Va., on April 17 and 18.

Krackler's paper, which received the $100. First prize, was entitled "Condensate Behavior in a Rotary Drum". Bizzeno received $25 for his paper entitled "Bimensional Stabilization of Wood with High Polymer Solutions".

Sixteen member schools participated in the conclave, which will be held next year at Villanova. Other schools participating include Bucknell Univ., Carnegie Institute of Technology, Catholic University, Drexel Institute, Lehigh University, Johns Hopkins University, Penn State, Princeton Univ., Univ. of Delaware, Univ. of Maryland, Univ. of Pennsylvania, Univ. of Pittsburgh, Univ. of Virginia, Univ. of West Va., and Virginia Polytechnic Institute.

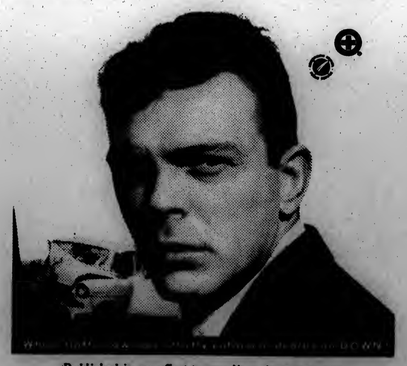
Aikmen Lectures On Sales To SAM

Walter Aikmen of Arthur D. Little, Inc., research consultants, spoke before the Villanova chapter of the Society for the Advancement of Management on April 15.

Speaking on "Incentive Sales Compensation," Aikmen contended that "there are certain aspects of a job which you cannot get done without offering special rewards."

He said that before a company sets up a sales incentive program, it should perform a study to determine if such a program is actually needed and if a program can be established that will measure a salesman's performance objectively.



Aikmen further emphasized the need for job descriptions, no matter what type of sales department a company may have. He added that the salesman who is on an incentive program should be able to control the factors upon which his performance is being measured.

Earlier in the meeting, Tom Brady, chairman of the elections committee, announced election results.

The following are the officers for the 1959-1960 academic year: Tom McHale, president; Dave Hayes, vice-president; Jack Heffernan, treasurer; Mark Evans, secretary; Tom Brown, student council representative; and Edward Whalen, publicity director.

"Why should a slow-poke burn me up?"

When you're driving, your attitude can kill! When the stupidity or carelessness of other drivers makes you fume, watch yourself! If you let your anger take control of your car, you can literally kill or be killed yourself! Nearly 37,000 people died in traffic accidents last year. Many were victims of good drivers who for one fatal moment allowed their emotions to boil over. Check your boiling point and stay a safe driver.

Chip Off The Old Bloc

BY WILLIE AND I

We were having union trouble over at the cupcake factory, so I took Wednesday morning off to look up my friend Willie. There are times when I like to come back to Villanova just to sit in the Pie Shoppe and talk.

To say that Willie thinks for himself is an understatement. He's the type who smokes a filter cigarette and lights it at either end.

Well, this day I found him at a corner table, and he was doing some especially heavy thinking. Election day had arrived, and he was carefully determining which candidates should receive the honor of his vote. To celebrate this day, Willie had adopted the motto: "If thinking were free, maybe more people would try it."

Singular Opinion

It seemed to be Willie's singular opinion that on election day thinking was not free. Now, you must realize I'm just an objective outsider, and don't know about such things. But Willie seemed particularly annoyed by what he called "the herd vote."

As he explained it to me, the polls were repeatedly clogged by piles of co-interested voters. He complained that the aeronautical engineers always voted as a bloc, as did the cellophane-baggers (of PTC fame), and the members of the supposedly defunct orientation committee. From Willie's caustic tone I could only assume that he resented those "unthinking" ballot markers.

Actually, I didn't realize how much he had worked himself up until his explosion. Crashing out of his moody, if philosophic shell, he leaped onto the table. As he calls for the Pie Shoppe's attention, he was a man aflame. A glow of confidence enveloped him from his paisly beret to his madras sweat socks, and he spoke without inhibition:

From Under the Rocks

"I will not tolerate it. You people come out from under your rocks once a year to vote the way your sheep dog herds you to vote. Gentlemen, need I remind you that it's what's up front that counts. As men of America you must take pleasure when and where you can, and on this day that means voting for whom you think is best. I can't tell you who to vote for, I'm not a political analyst, but would you believe it, I have a cold."

He sat down amid a barrage of soggy tea bags. But my fears af a May-Day demonstration were eased when a smiling Willie turned and said, "See what happens now."

And within five minutes the Pie Shoppe was empty, except for Willie and I and three hundred and forty-two used tea bags. Everybody else had gone to Alumni Hall to vote . . . for Willie.

It's a funny thing, too, and I'd never tell Willie this, but as they marched out, they looked an awful lot like a herd.

Annual Visit of ACES Next Tuesday P.M.

Six local industrial executives will be panelists at the annual visit of the ACES to Villanova next Tuesday.

The executives will speak at a panel discussion on various phases of business activity after attending a banquet in Dougherty Hall at 6.30 p. m.

The panel discussion will get underway at 7.30 according to The Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O.S.A., dean of Commerce and Finance.

Prominent Panelists

The local executives are:

William P. Drake, president of the Pennsalt Chemicals Co., representing the chemicals industry;

Charles L. Huston, Jr., president of the Lukens Steel Co., representing the manufacturing industry;

W. Thatcher Longstreth, partner in the firm of Aitkin-Kynett and former unsuccessful Republican candidate for mayor of Philadelphia, representing the advertising profession;

Charles H. Hoeflich, vice president of the Philadelphia National Bank, representing the banking field;

John H. McClatchy, president of the building firm of John H. McClatchy Co., representing small business;

Richard C. Bond, president of John Wanamaker's department stores and a leader in local charity drives, representing the retail industry.

Here Last Year

This will be the second appearance on campus for the ACES (American for the Competitive Enterprise System).

Fordham Jesuit Celebrates Byzantine Rite Liturgy sent to Russia. Russia was converted principally by these missionaries, and thus adopted the Byzantine Rite.

The Russian Mass, called the Liturgy, although the same in nature and outline as the Latin Mass, differs in many external ceremonies. The entire Mass is sung in Church Slavonic language.

Same As Roman

The order of the Liturgy is the same as the Roman Mass, except that the Credo comes right after the Offertory. The altar is cubical, and is covered with the antimension or linen cloth with relics in it. This replaces the altar stone of the Roman Rite.

The custom of receiving Holy Communion under both species has been maintained by the Byzantine Rite. The consecrated particles of bread are mingled with the Precious Blood and administered to the communicants with a spoon. Holy Communion is received standing.

Father Mohrbacher, the celebrant of tomorrow's Liturgy, was born in Minnesota and studied for the priesthood in Illinois before entering the Pontifical Russian College in Rome.

Works With Refugees

He was ordained in the Byzantine Rite in Rome in 1957, and has worked with Soviet refugees. Recently, he made an extensive study of Russian atheistic propaganda and methods. He was assigned to the Russian Center at Fordham in 1957.

The Russian Center is an organization of Jesuit priests ordained in the Byzantine Rite. The main function of the Center is to work with exiled Russian communities in America and also to bring to Americans a correct understanding of the Russian people and their Church.

The Very Rev. James A. Donellon, O.S.A., president of Villanova, has announced that a lecture on the Mass will be presented this evening at 7:30 in the Field House.

Open to Public

Both the Mass and lecture are open to the public, and it is hoped that parents are invited.

Sunday date at Medford Lakes the more advisable, but several resident students immediately protested, pointing out that their parents would be arriving Sunday for graduation. Besides, they said, Baccalaureate Mass is Sunday.

Parents Do Come

"A lot of parents do come down that weekend," said Scogna, a Philadelphia Accounting major. "I want to do what's best for the residents," said Lloyd.

In regard to the Fairmount Park plan, Lloyd said he could make arrangements with park guards to allow the picnic, and said that even "two or three dixieland bands could be brought along."

Another alternative, not discussed in the meeting but mentioned often in the past few days, would be to hold the affair on Friday, as was done last year because of the IC4A track meet at Villanova. Lloyd is now in favor of that date, he told the VILLANOVAN.

Do You Think for Yourself? (TAKE THIS FAST QUIZ AND FIND OUT! *)

1. Which would you consider more essential to a happy marriage: (A) the mates' similarity in ages and backgrounds, or (B) their intelligence and adaptability? A ☐ B ☐

2. Which of these two famous men would you most prefer to be like: (A) King Midas, or (B) Ludwig van Beethoven? A ☐ B ☐

3. If neither party's candidate in an election was satisfactory to you, would you (A) not vote, or (B) vote for the "lesser of two evils"? A ☐ B ☐

4. If your performance in a group effort was being unjustly criticized, would you (A) settle the score directly with your critic, or (B) ignore it and let the group decide its merits? A ☐ B ☐

5. Do you believe that the meeting with your future mate is primarily a matter of (A) geography, or (B) fate? A ☐ B ☐

6. If you were to come unexpectedly into a sizable sum of money, would you (A) bank or invest it and spend only the income, or (B) take a year off to travel around the world? A ☐ B ☐

7. Do you think the saying "It never rains, but it pours" is (A) generally untrue, or (B) invariably true? A ☐ B ☐

8. Would you rather invest money in: (A) great art, or (B) diamonds? A ☐ B ☐

9. Are you influenced more in your choice of filter cigarette by (A) your own taste and judgment, or (B) friendly advice? A ☐ B ☐

Next time you light up, take a moment to think about what you really want in your filter cigarette. Most men and women who think for themselves choose VICEROY . . . for the very sound reason that it's the one cigarette with a thinking man's filter and a smoking man's taste.

The versatile Field House, which has seen everything from championship sports events to the "Midnight Magic" of Proms, serves as a massive banquet hall for mothers and juniors celebrating Mothers' Day.

Dancing was the order of the entire Junior Week.

Al Raymond and his group entertain the dancing diners at the Junior Dinner Dance, which was held at the Broadwood Hotel in Philadelphia. The Dinner Dance, which climaxed a most memorable Junior Week, was undoubtedly one of the most successful social events held at Villanova in recent years. Indeed, many Juniors doubted that they would ever again experience such an enjoyable week.

Nurses Hold Open House

Villanova University's Division of Nursing held open house Monday in conjunction with Nursing Week. A second open house will be held Friday, and interested high school students are invited to attend.

Guided Tour

The program will be held between 1 and 3 p.m. Students of the University's baccalaureate degree in nursing program will participate in the activities which includes a guided tour of the campus and a short dramatization of events encountered in the life of the Villanova Student Nurse.

Villanova first admitted women to its day school in 1953 when eight young women matriculated on a full time basis. The present female census exceeds 100. The student gains her clinical experience at Fitzgerald-Mercy, Misericordia and St. Agnes Hospitals and the Public Health Departments in Philadelphia, Glenn Dale Hospital, Maryland, St. Vincent's Hospital, Harrison, N. Y. and Valley Forge Army Hospital, in Phoenixville.

Students in the basic four-year degree program are also eligible for the Navy Nurse Candidate program upon completion of their junior year. Villanova also offers a baccalaureate degree to registered nurses.

J. P. Kelley, Chairman of the Elections Committee, announced last Monday evening the results of the Nurses' Election: Eileen Grayson has been elected to the Student Council for next year.

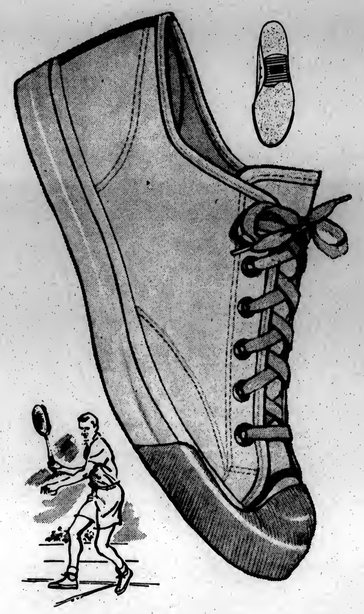
NROTC Drill Team Awarded Trophies In Competition

Under the stern voices of Midshipmen Terrance P. Connell and George Bielity, the NROTC Drill Team again carried Villanova's colors into Pershing Rifle Regimental Competitions. On Saturday, April 25th, the team was up with the sun to travel to the desolate Indiantown Gap Military Reservation, some ten miles west of Harrisburg. Against an austere background of army drab green, the Navy brass and blue won four trophies and was awarded the third high place in a field of eighteen.



With the ice water eye of Marine student Louis Spevitz on the mark, the team took two trophies in the area of rifle competition. The rifle team placed second in the PR postal rifle match and second at the Regimental meet where Spevitz was high man for the day.

Outstanding performances were turned in by the Basic Standard and Basic Trick Drill Teams. These units are made up of third and fourth class midshipmen and march under the command of Midn. 1/c George Bielit and Midn. 2/c T. P. Connell. A singular credit goes to sabre-sharp Tom Dilon for his precision in the individual drill event.

The highlight of the afternoon was registered when Villanova's advanced Trick Drill team took the field. This team with their flashy batonet routines, was requested to hold its drill for the inspection of Major General Reynolds, recently returned from command of the 4th Infantry Division in Germany. In pleasing the General, the team also won the judge's approval, taking the second place trophy in advanced competition.

A final laurel came with the team's winning the trophy for the "Most Improved Company" in the regiment, as it took 400 of the possible 500 points allotted.

Strictly Opinion:

Resignation of Dulles

By JIM BISING

Newsweek magazine to the contrary, this writer is of the opinion that our nation and the free world is fortunate in losing the services of John Foster Dulles.

Before all loyal party members (G.O.P. members that is) attempt to drown out the faint voice of truth under an avalanche of righteous protests let us all take a deep breath and examine the record.

Until the autum of 1956, Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain held the distinction of being responsible for this century's worst diplomatic blunder (Munich); however in their handling of the Suez Canal Crisis, the team of Foster and Dwight managed to challenge Mr. Chamberlin's claim to the wrath of posterity.

How any sane statesman could permit an ambitious dictator such as Gamel Nasser to retain his grip on the most valuable and vulnerable trade route of the free world, when nations with legitimate interests (the United Kingdom, France, and Israel) had all but removed him from power?

The claim of the State Department that it was acting from anti-imperialistic motives appears absurd when one recalls the support given to President Eisenhower by Governor Shivers of Texas and our domestic oil groups, for as soon as Nasser's closing of the Suez Canal made the oil of the Middle East unavailable, the American oil rose, and certain wealthy citizens of our nation became wealthier.

Further proof of the sincerity of Mr. Dulles' anti-imperialistic sympathies was demonstrated by his statement shortly after the conclusion of the Korean War which declared that any further agression by the Communists in Asia would be met by "massive retaliation" (thus implying the use of the Atom Bomb or the H-Bomb). Within the next five months, Chinese Communist aid to the Viet Nahm defeated the French at Dienbienphu and the eight year war in Indo China had ended in a Red victory. Mr. Dulles' promise to leaders (for it seems probable that some of the rulers of Red China would be among the thousands or millions of people that would die when the United States unleashed its atomic wrath) was not fulfilled. His bluff had been called.

The sadness at leaving office that must lie in the breast of the former Secretary of State must be somewhat mitigated by the knowledge that his Chief cannot seem to manage without him. Therefore, it would appear that the U.S.A. has been graced with only a half-blessing, but 1960 is the year of hope.

Villanova Hosts Panel Discussion

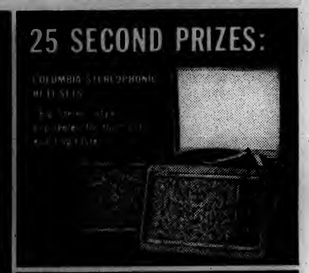
Villanova served as host to faculty representatives from twelve Philadelphia area colleges and universities on Wednesday evening, April 29th, for a special panel discussion on student behavior problems.

Conducted by the University's Division of Nursing, the discussion was held in conjunction with Mental Health Week and featured the appearance of two prominent psychiatrists and two educational counselors.

Dr. Donald Gallagher, Professor of Philosophy at Villanova, moderated a panel made up of Dr. Carl Hoffman, prominent Philadelphia psychiatrist, and Dr. John Cavanaugh, a psychiatrist at Georgetown University Hospital, Washington, D. C.

The panel also included Dr. Alexander Schneiders, Director of the Office of Psychological Services at Fordham University and Dr. Thomas McCarthy, Assistant Director of the Counseling Center, LaSalle College.

Villanova's Division of Nursing, which is doing special work under a grant of $15,000 from the Mental Health Foundation hopes to affect better student-faculty relations as a result of the discussion and to assist teachers in bringing out the best in their students.



Miss Harriet Murphy, Professor of Nursing, who is directing the Mental Health studies, arranged the program.

COLLEGE PUZZLE CONTEST

FOR STUDENTS AND FACULTY MEMBERS

100 THIRD PRIZES:

500 FOURTH PRIZES:
Cartons of America's finest cigarettes

LIGHT UP AND LIVE IT UP! 3 great cigarettes offer you 627 chances to win! So pick your pack—save the six wrappers—and get going! It's crossword puzzle fun and real smoking pleasure all the way!

ENTER OFTEN—HAVE FUN—AND WIN! But think carefully! This puzzle is not as easy as it looks. At first the DOWN and ACROSS clues may appear simple. There may appear to be more than one "right" answer. For example, the clue might read: "Many a coed will be given her best date's P--N." Either "I" (PIN) or "E" (PEN) would seem to fit. But only one answer is apt and logical as decided by the judging staff, and therefore correct. Read the rules carefully. ENTER AS OFTEN AS YOU WISH. Good luck!

RULES—PLEASE READ CAREFULLY

1. The College Puzzle Contest is open to college students and college faculty members except employees and their immediate families of Liggett & Myers and its advertising agencies.

2. Fill in all missing letters . . . print clearly. Use of obsolete, archaic, variant or foreign words prohibited. After you have completed the puzzle, send it along with six empty package wrappers of the same brand from L&M, Chesterfield or Oasis cigarettes (or one reasonable hand-drawn facsimile of a complete package wrapper of any one of the three brands) to: Liggett & Myers, P. Newsweek magazine to the contrary, this writer is of the opinion that our nation and the free world is fortunate in losing the services of John Foster Dulles.

Before all loyal party members (G.O.P. members that is) attempt to drown out the faint voice of truth under an avalanche of righteous protests let us all take a deep breath and examine the record.

Until the autum of 1956, Neville Chamberlain of Great Britain held the distinction of being responsible for this century's worst diplomatic blunder (Munich); however in their handling of the Suez Canal Crisis, the team of Foster and Dwight managed to challenge Mr. Chamberlin's claim to the wrath of posterity.

How any sane statesman could permit an ambitious dictator such as Gamel Nasser to retain his grip on the most valuable and vulnerable trade route of the free world, when nations with legitimate interests (the United Kingdom, France, and Israel) had all but removed him from power?

The claim of the State Department that it was acting from anti-imperialistic motives appears absurd when one recalls the support given to President Eisenhower by Governor Shivers of Texas and our domestic oil groups, for as soon as Nasser's closing of the Suez Canal made the oil of the Middle East unavailable, the American oil rose, and certain wealthy citizens of our nation became wealthier.

Further proof of the sincerity of Mr. Dulles' anti-imperialistic sympathies was demonstrated by his statement shortly after the conclusion of the Korean War which declared that any further agression by the Communists in Asia would be met by "massive retaliation" (thus implying the use of the Atom Bomb or the H-Bomb). Within the next five months, Chinese Communist aid to the Viet Nahm defeated the French at Dienbienphu and the eight year war in Indo China had ended in a Red victory. Mr. Dulles' promise to leaders (for it seems probable that some of the rulers of Red China would be among the thousands or millions of people that would die when the United States unleashed its atomic wrath) was not fulfilled. His bluff had been called.

The sadness at leaving office that must lie in the breast of the former Secretary of State must be somewhat mitigated by the knowledge that his Chief cannot seem to manage without him. Therefore, it would appear that the U.S.A. has been graced with only a half-blessing, but 1960 is the year of hope.

Villanova Hosts Panel Discussion

Villanova served as host to faculty representatives from twelve Philadelphia area colleges and universities on Wednesday evening, April 29th, for a special panel discussion on student behavior problems.

Conducted by the University's Division of Nursing, the discussion was held in conjunction with Mental Health Week and featured the appearance of two prominent psychiatrists and two educational counselors.

Dr. Donald Gallagher, Professor of Philosophy at Villanova, moderated a panel made up of Dr. Carl Hoffman, prominent Philadelphia psychiatrist, and Dr. John Cavanaugh, a psychiatrist at Georgetown University Hospital, Washington, D. C.

The panel also included Dr. Alexander Schneiders, Director of the Office of Psychological Services at Fordham University and Dr. Thomas McCarthy, Assistant Director of the Counseling Center, LaSalle College.

Villanova's Division of Nursing, which is doing special work under a grant of $15,000 from the Mental Health Foundation hopes to affect better student-faculty relations as a result of the discussion and to assist teachers in bringing out the best in their students.

Miss Harriet Murphy, Professor of Nursing, who is directing the Mental Health studies, arranged the program.

ENTER OFTEN—HAVE FUN—AND WIN! But think carefully! This puzzle is not as easy as it looks. At first the DOWN and ACROSS clues may appear simple. There may appear to be more than one "right" answer. For example, the clue might read: "Many a coed will be given her best date's P- -N." Either "I" (PIN) or "E" (PEN) would seem to fit. But only one answer is apt and logical as decided by the judging staff, and therefore correct. Read the rules carefully. ENTER AS OFTEN AS YOU WISH. Good luck!

RULES—PLEASE READ CAREFULLY

1. The College Puzzle Contest is open to college students and college faculty members except employees and their immediate families of Liggett & Myers and its advertising agencies.

2. Fill in all missing letters . . . print clearly. Use of obsolete, archaic, variant or foreign words prohibited. After you have completed the puzzle, send it along with six empty package wrappers of the same brand from L&M, Chesterfield or Oasis cigarettes (or one reasonable hand-drawn facsimile of a complete package wrapper of any one of the three brands) to: Liggett & Myers, P. O. Box 271, New York 46, N. Y. Enter as often as you wish, but be sure to enclose six package wrappers (or a facsimile) with each entry. Illegible entries will not be considered.

3. Entries must be postmarked by midnight, Friday, May 29, 1959 and received by midnight, Friday, June 5, 1959.

4. Entries will be judged by the Bruce-Richards Corporation, an independent judging organization, on the basis of logic and aptness of thought of solutions. In the event of ties, contestants will be required to complete in 25 words or less the following statement: "My favorite cigarette is (Chesterfield) (L&M) or (Oasis) because ....." Entries will be judged on originality, aptness of thought and interest by the Bruce-Richards Corporation. Duplicate prizes will be awarded in event of final ties. Illegible entries will not be considered. By entering all entrants agree that the decision of the judges shall be final and binding.

5. Solutions must be the original work of the contestants submitting them. All entries become the property of Liggett & Myers and none will be returned.

Blue and White Day Saturday, May 9th

By GENE HEWITT

The sixth annual Blue-White Day, a spring extravaganza of Villanova athletes past and present, will take place this Saturday in the Villanova Stadium.

Beginning at noon six events will unfold enabling all viewers to see the achievements of Villanova athletes. Baseball, basketball, golf, swimming, track, and football teams will compete against the oldtimers and other schools and, in the case of football, themselves. Seton Hall and the University of Pittsburgh will furnish the outside competition for the baseball and track teams.

The oldtimers will take on the varsity swimming, golf, and basketball teams. The events will last approximately four hours, each one starting a half hour later than its precedent, as to keep the action sustained and to cut down the running time.

Arizin Returns

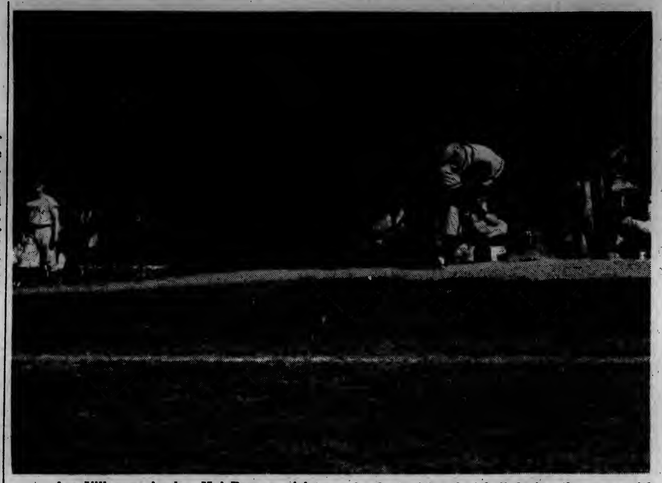
The return of Paul Arizin, Shy Packin, Tom Sabol, and Joe Hannon of the 49-50 basketball team which is considered by many to be Villanova's greatest, will find itself with the team that is expected to lead Villanova back to national prominence, Driscoll, Huble White, Huggard, Kenny, and Raveling. Larry Hennessey, Jack Devine, Joe. Lord, Tom Brennan, 57-58 captain, and Joe Ryan, this year's captain, will round out an array of fine talent to try out Coach Severence's Cats.

The Wildcat's baseball team will tangle with the Orangemen of Seton Hall. The squad, after a slow start, has found itself and is playing top-notch ball. With steady pitching and clutch hitting they have evened their Big Five record at two and are to be counted in the running.

Coach Ed Geisz's varsity will oppose the oldtimers in several races and a water polo game. Returning to the water after long absences will be Lou Pinto, Don Craig, Pat Kean, among others. All were captains of the team during their tenure at Villanova.

The Skin Diving Club of Villanova will put on a demonstration along with Ed Morse of the American Red Cross, who will demonstrate the latest in rescue tactics.

Track Meet



The Panthers of Pitt, led by world indoor 300 yards record holder Mel Barnswell, will clash with the Cat trackmen on the cinders. A lot of excitement will be caused by the appearance of Barnwell against Ed Collymore, sprinter par excellence.

The Penn Relay mile champion team of Joe Mannion, Jim Blackburn, Charlie Stead, and Collymore will oppose Pitt's IC4A Indoor champion relay team and should result in a new stadium record if it is held.

Coach Frank Reagan's 59 edition of Villanova football team will go on display as they wind up their spring practice with a regulation intra-squad game in what will be a preview of what Cat fans will see in the fall.

Starting Times

The approximate starting times for all events are as follows: 9:00 a.m., Golf at Radnor Valley C. C.; 12 noon, Basketball; 12:30, Baseball; 1:00, Swimming; 1:30, Track; 2:45, Football.

Ace Villanova hurler, Hal Bauser, picks up the dust with a fast ball during the game with Temple. Owl third base coach is in the background. Dave Hennigan is ready for possible play on the third base side. Wildcats won the game 7-3.

Wildcats Meet Penn Thurs.

By JIM MURRAY

Tomorrow at 2:30 the Villanova baseball nine take on the University of Pennsylvania for the second time this week. On Monday the two teams met but the results were received too late for publication.

This Saturday as part of the Blue-White Day festivities the Cats meet the Orangemen from Seton Hall. The team travels to Rutgers next Tuesday and return home Wednesday to take on St. Joseph's nine.

Last Saturday the baseball team played their most exciting game of the season.

It was the second meeting with the La Salle nine and Villanova was seeking revenge for an earlier setback 8-7 at La-Salle's field. The "Cats" had their day and won the game 6-5.

Photo Finish

The score just shows it was a close game but that's just half the story. La Salle jumped off to a two run lead in the first, while the Wildcat outfielders were having trouble fielding ground balls—(2 errors). They didn't touch Hal Bauser till after two outs in the seventh when Bob Egizio singled and Joe Tropea smacked a booming 400 foot homer to left center.

Villanova's scoring came in the second when they scored two and they got a single run off losing pitcher Connie Newman in the fifth.

This set the stage for the ninth inning with the score 4-3 in favor of La Salle. In their half of the ninth La Salle scored after catcher Joe Ambrose hit a double and came back home on a single by Newman, who was being intentionally walked, but punched an inside pitch through the hole. Joe Michell came in for Bauser and got the last out and the win.

Down by two runs the Wildcats refused to quit. After walks to Joe Cramer and pinch hitter Don McGinley, Bobby Klinck hit into a force out for the second out of the inning. Andy Meade, who played right field for the last three frames, hit the ball to shortstop Bob Egizio for what should have been the third out. Egizio fumbled the ball and all hands were safe to load the bases.

Let George Do It

Freddie Anthony drew his third straight pass of the ball game and one run scored. George Emma strode to the plate ready to swing. He had the count at one ball, two strikes, and laced a ball over the third base sack just fair by inches. As the ball scampered into left field Andy Meade dashed across the plate with the winning run. What a ball game!

The La Salle game is part of a winning habit the 'Cats have gotten into of late. Last Thursday against Pennsylvania Military College they staged a ten run barrage for pitcher Harry Neff and won the game 10-5.

The cadets started out with a single run in the second inning. The Wilcats got into the ball game in the fourth frame when they batted around with seven hits, one walk, and six runs. Highlight of this inning was a tremendous clout of Tom Griffith's to the center field hedges for a two base hit.

More Rain

On April 28th and 29th games with Fordham and Penn State were called off because of rain.

The second meeting of Villanova and Temple took place on Saturday, April 25th with Wildcat hurler Hal Bauser avenging an earlier 4-2 setback by downing the Owls 7-3.

Bauser was the story of this game as he was always in control and had such good 'stuff' that only one fly ball to the outfield was hit all day.

The big hit in the game was Joe Cramer's base loaded triple in the sixth inning. This was Temple's first Big Five setback.

Teachers Taught

On Thursday, April 23rd took on West Chester State Teachers after having beaten them in a contest the previous Saturday. The 'Cats' learned well and beat the teachers again 6-3.

Big Wildcat lefty, Frank Kreutzer, had the opposition handcuffed as he went the full nine innings allowing only six hits. With their little big guns Eddie Monahan (5ft 6") and Freddie Anthony (5ft. 6") getting two hits each the 'Cats' scored two runs in the third and three in the fifth.

Paul Chenger, losing pitcher, gave up his second gopher ball

Trackmen Meet Explorers Seek 20th Dual Meet Win

By TOM GOLDSCHMIDT

Coach Jim Elliott and his Wildcat track team will be out after their 20th consecutive victory in dual and triangular meets when they host LaSalle College at Villanova Stadium today at 3:15.

The string extends back to 1954, when the Cats knocked off LaSalle after having been defeated by West Chester. The closest the skein came to being broken was the Army-U.P.-Syracuse-Villanova meet last year at West Point, when the Main Liners scored 82 points to the Cadets' 81.

LaSalle, led by mercurial Ira Davis, gave Villanova quite a scare last year before bowing, 66-60. Davis won both sprints and the broad jump. Wildcat Ed Collymore did not compete in that meet because of a slight muscle pull.

This year the Explorers do not seem nearly so strong, but they have better depth than do the Wildcats. The more outstanding LaSalle performers are Bill Taylor, who recently set the school record for the discus, distance runners Pete Walheim and Jim Sumner, middle distance runners Tom Lynaugh and Charlie Del Rossi and sprinters Al Watson and Bob Davis.

Beat St. Joseph's

Villanova easily won its first outdoor meet of the year last Tuesday, macing St. Joseph's by an 85½ to 40½ score, on a cold and wet day at Villanova Stadium.

Charlie Stead did the Hawks the most damage, as he won three events. He captured the high hurdles in 15.1 in the first time he competed in the event. Jack Van Dusen took second place, while the Hawks' Jay Crawford was third Stead also won the 220 low hurdles in 24.5 again leading Van Dusen and Crawford ocross the finish line.

Then Charlie won his specialty—the high jump—in rather easy fashion. He only had to clear 6 feet, 1 inch to triumph over St. Joseph's Al Connolly who was second and Wildcat John Buckley and Hawk Dick Adams,, tied for third.

Ed Collymore had things pretty much his own in the 220 and 440. He won the quarter-mile in 49.1 with Jim Blackburn taking second and St. Joseph's Jim Gavaghan third.

Collymore Easy Winner

In the 220, Collymore's time was 21.1, as he far outdistanced Blackburn and third-placer Joe Manion. Sophomore Manion had previously looked excellent in copping the 100 in 9.7. John Buckley was second and Dan Stager third.

Bob Godesky was a double-winner, capturing the mile and the two-mile. He did 4:27.4 for the mile, with Vic DiMaio and St. Joseph's John Lynch trailing. In the two-mile, Godesky won. St. Joseph's Joe McGinn finished behind him.

St. Joseph's Jim Baldwin won the 880 in 1:59.5. DiMaio was second and Nick DeAngelis was third.

The shot put and discus both went to Hawk Jim Morris. He set a school record in the discuss—160 feet and threw the shot 46-4½. Hawk Pete Toughill was second and Wildcat Jack Donohue was third in each event.

St. Joseph's John Brand won the javelin with a toss of 183-8, as sophomore Dick Kaminski was second and Hawk Connolly third. Buckley won the broad jump with 22-1, while Adams was runner-up and Kent Lydic was third.

The pole vault went to sophomore Norbert McNulty, who cleared 12 feet. St. Joseph's Bill Furey and Lydic tied for second.

Sports Chatter:

Relays Really Rock

By TONY MACKLIN

The dandies were out in force. It was Penn Relay time and Franklin Field was the place to be. There was almost as much action in the stands as on the track. What a party! It was like a thousand ring circus. A real spangled carnival.

What a crazy passion of clothes, everything from straw hats to capes. Hot dogs and orange drinks, foam and Pennsters in Bermuda shorts. A tremendous number of pressmen were in attendance. And rock and rollers were swaying in the East stands.

There was cheering, singing, hooting, and arguing. There were squawking fanfares from trumpets that sounded like escapees from Lawrence Welk. As usual, the sun always smiles on Penn, the weather was blazing.

There was an inestimable number of competitors milling all over the place in uniforms every color imaginable—bright reds, greens, blues, oranges.

Down on the field there were more thrills, guts, and pain than in every 1958 fall Saturday here put together. There was the youth with the agonizing memory of a dropped baton, the schoolboy with the broken leg, and there was the gritty racer who pulled a muscle but kept hobbling on half a leg because this was his big chance. There were spikings, charley horses, and bruised cindered shoulders.

Keystone Kops Scramble

There was a goodly share of humor too. The jumble of tumbling bodies, at the excharge of flying batons, resembling a gang of Keystone Kops. The Roman Catholic High racer who ran with "shades" on. The hurdler who knocked down all his hurdles.

Every race everyone rooted for somebody, even if it was only a prep school race. As the runners tore around the track the crowd opened up with a roar and as the combatants entered the stretch the crowd rose with applause.

There were many stars. The St. Michael's preper who was selected as oustanding schoolboy. You can bet Jumbo "visited" him. The scorching Texas express, Bill Woodhouse, who zoomed to a 9.5 record in the 100, and who captured everyone's most valuable award. Elias Gilbert who awed this writer with his fantastic gazelle hurdling. The blond Finn, Eeles Landstrom, who broke Don Bragg's pole vault record for Michigan.

Delany Stirred Crowd

One of the high spots of the relays for the tremendous crowd of 41,179 and all Villanovans was when Ron Delany received a stirring ovation as he brought the silver baton commemorating the 65th Penn Relays onto the track.

Another glory event was the freshmen mile relay where the little 'Cats completely outclassed the field. But all in all, as the clock reached six, it had been an unsatisfying day for Villanova. Well, it had been colorful, anyway.

One race remained, the American College Championship Mile Relay. Hope tried to straighten itself up but it had taken a lot of knocks that day. There was a class field, including Abilene Christian, which had already swept the 880 and 440, and tough Morgan State.

"Jet" Woodhouse was leading off for the speed demons of Texas. Jim Blackburn was to lead off for the 'Cats. Fate decided Mr. Woodhouse had had his share of fortune for the day. On the first turn Pitt's Jay Moody stuck the cinders and a restart was ordered. Here Jumbo Elliott proved his genius by switching Joe Manion to lead off and dropping Blackburn to second position.

Starts Like Pegasus

Manion took off like Pegasus and amazed by sticking right to State's Paul Winder. Woodhouse who had led on the original start fell back. Blackburn took the baton and churned off a creditable leg, losing some ground but keeping right within the grasp of Morgan.

Carley Stead did the job. Giant-stepping his way into the He took the baton and shot for home. For one paralyzing instant it looked like he might falter. The gruelling two days might have taken a drastic toll. But Colly revved up and slashed home free.

For an unprecedented fifth year Villanova's Wildcats had won the big one.

As one Morgan Starter said after his team had finished second once again, "How you ever goin' to beat them? How you ever going to beat a team like that?

Wildcats Meet Penn Thursday

in a week to George Emma. George's home run blast was the sixth and final tally for the Wildcats.

Ice Cold

On Tuesday, April 21st. made a long trip to Scranton, Pa. for a game with the University of Scranton. Two hits, six errors and no runs later the 'Cats' returned cold and beaten 6-0.

The weather was about 30° and the teams batting average were about the same temperature. Joe Mitchell, losing pitcher got no help from his teammates.

The team did help Bobby Meckwood Scranton hurler by dropping double play balls and making some wide throws. Bobby was his own biggest help, pitching a two hitter.

Cats Bats

LaSalle game was the first ninth inning victory rally in lot of ball games . . . Andy Meade broke his 100th bat when he reached base in the ninth inning of the LaSalle game . . . West Chester coach Klen Killinger got a kick out of the size of Eddie Monahan and Freddie Anthong and kidded them during batting practice — Freddie and Eddie got a kick out of the West Chester pitching and each had a couple of base hits and they weren't kidding . . . The ride to Scranton was a lot of fun and very long with 25 sets of directions on how to reach the ball park given to the bus driver —Joe Chase, publicity director, came up with the final and correct answer . . . We should have gotten lost.

Wildcats Win Twelfth Title In 5 Years At Penn Relays

Villanova's track team stretched its amazing streak of victories at the Penn Relays to 12 in five years by winning the Mile Relay Championship of America for an unprecedented fifth straight time on April 24.

The victory earned the Wildcats permanent possession of the Mike Murphy Challenge Cup, which has been in competition since 1950. Five wins were necessary to obtain the cup.

The race, which is considered the "glamour" event of the Penn Relays, had been rated a toss-up by the track experts. Southwest Power Southern Methodist, Morgan State, Abilene Christian, Manhattan and Michigan were all given fine chances of dethroning Villanova.

But Joe Manion (49.1), Jim Blackburn (49.7), Charlie Stead (46.7) and Ed Collymore (46.3) ran away from the whole field, winning by five yards over Morgan State in the record-tying time of 3:11.8. Stead's quarter-mile was the real stunner, since it was far below his best previous time for the distance—48.2.

The same men who had run in the mile relay competed in the 880 relay. They won the fastest heat in 1:25.8, then finished second in the final to Abilene Christian, which set the meet record of 1:24.5. The Wildcats' time (1:25.6) created a new school record for the event.

John Daniels, Dan Stager, John Buckley and Kent Lydic took fifth place in the college 440 relay, won by North Carolina A. & T.

A quartet of Vic DiMaio, Gene Rogers, Bob Godesky and Nick DeAngelis took fifth in the two-mile relay, won by Michigan. DeAngelis, Stager, DiMaio and Godesky took sixth in the distance medley, in which Penn State triumphed.

Buckley, the defending outdoor IC4A broadjump champion, took sixth in that event with a leap of 23 feet, 9 inches, and was fifth in the hop, step and jump with 45 feet, 8½ inches. Tim McNamar competed in the two-mile and Jack Donohue took part in the discus.

Four Villanova freshmen had the more than 41,000 spectators buzzing by winning the frosh championship mile relay in the meet record time of 3:16.1. Morgan State had held the old record—3:17.8. Paul Drayton (49.6), Pat Nicastro (48.9), Bob Raemore (47.9) and Bob Coffill (49.7) won by more than 30 yards.

* * * * *

At the annual track banquet last Monday, Ed Collymore was named the team's most valuable performer, and Charlie Stead was given the George "Bucky" Coleman award as the outstanding team man. Seniors Collymore, Stead, Vic DiMaio, Jack Van Dusen, and Bill Rahn received gold track pins.

Juniors Defeat Seniors

They said it couldn't be done . . . but the Class of 1960 did win a Muff Day.

Last Thursday starting on the Villanova track and ending on the Softball field the Junior Class beat the Seniors by a 52-48 count .

In the track events it was 12-8 the Juniors, the class of '60, taking the 440, Mile relay, High jump, Broad jump, and shot put. Kelly and Rauling were the big guns each running a leg of the mile relay and placing first and third in the high jump.

The Seniors rolled up points in the Softball game and the Tug-O-War.

The Juniors swept the basketball game, (Jim Rolls and Dick Keely were the stars) horseshoes and Tennis matches (Probert and Chresterson).

Vince Cueuzzella was the chairman of the Junior sport affairs of the week and organized the winning squad while Gene Paja was in charge of the losers.

"How can I be sure you've got some Camels?"

More buxom blondes with shipwrecked sailors insist on Camels than any other cigarette today. It stands to reason: the best tobacco makes the best smoke. The Camel blend of costly tobaccos has never been equalled for rich flavor and easygoing mildness. No wonder Camel is the No. 1 cigarette of all!

Boss Choice Pin Champs

The Boss Choice team captured the intramural bowling crown in the playoffs last month.

The team members and their playoff averages are: Jack Renna, 184; Joe Petreca, 163; Dick Famigletti, 157; (capt.) Andy Napoli, 155; and Eddie Bell, 136. High singles and high series were captured by Jack Renna 202 and 370.

It was a long uphill fight for the Boss Choice's. They were considered a dark horse and had to beat the best teams in advancing to the finals. After losing their first playoff game to the Monks they fought back and won the match. The next two best of three matches were won in two straight games. They beat Queen Caps in the semi-finals and downed the Pencil pushers in the final matches.

In the final match the Boss Choice team gave away 60 pins but still won the match going away by 60 pins. The second game was just the opposite with the champs winning by 6.

But by 6 or 60 they won and are to be congratulated. It climaxed a good intra-mural activity and is filled with fun and action.

Golfers Meet Penn Today Seek 5th City Win In Row

By ED McLAUGHLIN

Today the golfing Cats match drives with University of Pennsylvania; perhaps the roughest team that the team will play this season. The team realizes that this match is going to be a close one, but feels confident of a suitable victory.

Results of the Seton Hall match were received too late for publication. Villanova swamped LaSalle with a 9-0 victory.

Villanovans have good reason to dream of next year's Eastern Collegiate and N.C.A.A. golf tournaments by the looks of the golf team. Captained by Nick Aquilino, the team has successfully swamped St. Joseph's and pulled an easy double victory with La Salle. As a matter-of-fact the team has practically gone wild beating every team that has come before their swinging clubs.

Special commendation should be given to Bob Byrwa, a senior I. A. major who has very competently managed the team. To Coach Jim Elliot's dismay, half the team consists of seniors, but the other half of three juniors and one sophomore give promise for the future.

Expressed talent and unbiased seeding determine each team member's rank. This season Reggie Zurinskas is the team's leader. Just to keep in shape, Reg. on the fifteenth hole (a 444 yd. distance) dropped a four iron shot for two (an Eagle). Reg has been the most consistent so far. He previously won the open golf tournament at Mt. St. Mary's and placed second in the Mason-Dixon tournament.

Nick Aquilino who captains the team has also been playing very well. Nick has been on the team since his sophomore year and is going to exhibit some real shooting before graduation.

"No, you're not seeing double!" That's what the opposing team thinks though when they see Reggie's twin brother, Ron, come up to the tee. It was hard to probe information from Ron on his playing, but the rumors hold it that Ron might be showing his brother a few tricks in the near future.

Another senior on the team is Roger Gaire, a Ch. E. His playing has been described as meticulous and methodical. Being a very deliberate player, Roger shows remarkable control. Marty has had the best individual round so far—a 75. Marty's shooting will partly compensate for the senior loss next year. Two other juniors, Jim Cahill and Jim Gay, both of C. & F., have supplemented team victories.

Jim Cahill, a veteran, possesses good temperament and improves with every round while Jim Gay gives high expectations.

Dave Doyle, the only sophomore on the team has been unable to play so far this season due to sickness. The team expects Dave, who has already had plenty of experience and competition, to make a reputation for himself before the season ends. According to teammates, Dave's the boy who's going to show real class for the V.U. Golfing Cats.

Sail Club Is Becoming Reality

Plans for the creation of a Villanova Sailing Club are expected to be completed in the near future, announced Albert Duryea, Fred Coffey, and Bob Connell this week. These three along with other interested students have been working to have the club recognized as an organization affiliated with Villanova and permitted to use the name of the university.

By laws have been written, revised and tentatively accepted by Father Kemme. Also the Intercollegiate Yacht Racing Association has been informed of the clubs desire to gain membership and is providing the data necessary to do so.

The club will provide a chance for experienced sailors to participate in intercollegiate races and for interested land lubbers to learn to enjoy the sport of sailing.

SCHULTZ IS A MANY SPLENDORED THING

Beppo Schultz, boulevardier, raconteur, connoisseur, sportsman, bon vivant, hail fellow well met—in short, typical American college man—smokes today's new Marlboros.

"Why do you smoke today's new Marlboros, hey?" a friend recently asked Beppo Schultz.

"I smoke today's new Marlboros," replied Beppo, looking up from his 2.9 litre L-head Hotchkiss drive double overhead camshaft British sports car, "because they are new."

"New?" said the friend. "What do you mean—new?"

"I mean the flavor's great, the filter's improved, the cigarette is designed for today's easier, breezier living," said Beppo.

"Like this 2.9 litre L-head Hotchkiss drive double overhead camshaft British sports car?" asked the friend.

"Exactly," said Beppo.

"She's a beauty," said the friend, looking admiringly at the car. "How long have you had her?"

"It's a male," said Beppo.

"Sorry," said the friend. "How long have you had him?"

"About a year," said Beppo.

"Have you done a lot of work on him?" asked the friend.

"Oh, have I not!" cried Beppo. "I have replaced the pushrods with a Roots type supercharger. I have replaced the torque with a synchromesh. I have replaced the tachometer with a double side draft carburetor."

"Gracious!" exclaimed the friend.

"I have replaced the hood with a bonnet," said Beppo.

"Land o' Goshen!" exclaimed the friend.

"And I have put gloves in the glove compartment," said Beppo.

"It's a male," said Beppo.

"My, you have been the busy one," said the friend. "You must be exhausted."

"Maybe a trifle," said Beppo, with a brave little smile.

"Know what I do when I'm tired?" said the friend.

"Light a Marlboro?" ventured Beppo.

"Oh, pshaw, you guessed!" said the friend, pouting.

"But it was easy," said Beppo, chuckling kindlily. "When the eyelids droop and the musculature sags and the psyche is depleted, what is more natural than to perk up with today's new Marlboro?"

"A great new smoke with better 'makin's' and a great new filter!" proclaimed the friend, his young eyes glistening.

"Changed to keep pace with today's changing world!" declared Beppo, whirling his arms in concentric circles. "A cigarette for a sunnier age, an age of greater leisure and more beckoning horizons!"

Now, tired but happy, Beppo and his friend lit Marlboros and smoked for a time in deep, silent contentment. At length the friend spoke. "He certainly is a beauty," he said.

"You mean my 2.9 litre L-head Hotchkiss drive double overhead camshaft British sports car?" asked Beppo.

"Yes," said the friend. "How fast will he go?"

"Well, I don't rightly know," said Beppo. "I can't find the starter."

Hoffman Elected Council Head

Tom Hoffman, newly elected Student Council Chairman, receives gavel and congratulations from retiring Chairman Bob Murphy at Monday night's election meeting. Hoffman was formerly Council vice-Chairman.

By JACK CURTIN

Thomas A. Hoffman was elected new chairman of the Student Council Monday night, but it was the election of the Council secretary that caused the most excitement.

In that election, James S. Hooker, sophomore representative from Wayne, defeated Eileen M. Greyson, nurse representative and the first female in the history of student government to be nominated for a Student Council office.

Miss Greyson was later elected as one of next year's representatives to the Student Senate. Other Council officers elected were: Robert J. DeLisa of Hartford, Conn., vice-chairman, and William H. Vincent of Philadelphia, treasurer.

Succeeds Murphy

Hoffman, a Liberal Arts science major from Rochester, N. Y., succeeds Robert A. Murphy of Lawrence, Mass., to the Council chair.

Hoffman is the oldest member in service in the new Council, having been elected by his class in freshman year and re-elected in sophomore year.

He has been active in both class and Council affairs and has served as vice-chairman of the Council this year. He defeated Frederick J. Wiele of Bellerose, L. I., treasurer of the past year.

Sophomore President

DeLisa, who served on the Council this past year by virtue of his position as sophomore class president, was unopposed for the vice-chairmanship, and was elected by acclamation. He has been active in N.F.C.C.S. and has been a member of WVIL this past year.

Vincent defeated Neil J. Drislane, from Long Island, to win the treasurer's post.

The secretary election was a mystery going into the meeting. No one had been nominated for that post at the nominating meeting the previous week.

Thanks Officers

Rev. Dante L. Girolami, O.S.A., Dean of Student Activities and moderator of the Student Council, closed the three-hour meeting by thanking all outgoing officers and the senior members of the Council.

He singled out departing Chairman Murphy for special

Msgr. Ostheimer To Receive Annual St. Augustine Award

Rt. Rev. Msgr. Anthony L. Ostheimer, editor of the CATHOLIC STANDARD & TIMES, official publication of the Archdiocese of Philadelphia, has been named winner of Villanova's annual St. Augustine Award for journalism.

Monsignor Ostheimer's selection as the fourth winner of the award was announced recently by the Rev. Louis Rongione, O.S.A., dean of Villanova's graduate division and moderator of the VILLANOVAN.

The award is given yearly for distinction in the broad field of journalism in the name of the campus newspaper. Presentation will be made during a dinner at the Warwick Hotel this Saturday evening.

Villanova's 1959 St. Augustine Award winner is a native of Mahanoy City, Pa. He was ordained to the Holy Priesthood by the late Dennis Cardinal Dough-

Parting Festival May 29 At Medford Lakes Lodge

Tickets will go on sale today for the Class of 1959's Parting Festival, according to T. Walker Lloyd, festival chairman.

Priced at $6.50, the ducats will be sold at booths in the Dougherty Hall and Commerce and Finance building day-hop cafeterias and will also be obtainable on campus from members of the ticket committee.

The festival, which for a while threatened to become as controversial as the much-criticized Senior Weekend, will be held Friday, May 29, Medford Lakes Lodge, New Jersey. It will run from 2 p.m. until 2 a.m.

Maps To Be Drawn

"Medford Lakes is about a 15 or 20 minute ride once you cross from Philadelphia into Jersey," Lloyd said, "and we'll have plenty of clear and distinct maps drawn up for the guys so they don't get lost."

The selection of the New Jersey site ended a short but bitter period of dissension that had a large portion of the class in an uproar.

Originally, the Parting Festival was scheduled for Saturday, May 30, to be held at Fountainhead Lodge, in New Hope, Pa. However, when the lodge changed hands last February and was transformed into a night club, things broke wide open.

At a class meeting two weeks ago, president Oz Soogna and Lloyd offered the class two alternatives, either still hold the festival at Fountainhead Saturday under "cramped conditions" or have it at Medford Lakes on Sunday, May 31.

Residents Protested

Both men seemed in favor of the Sunday date, which brought a wave of protest from the resident students, who complained that their parents would be coming to Villanova for graduation that day and they therefore would not be able to attend the final class social function.

Rafferty, Scalia & Wall Are Elected As Class Presidents

Officers Plan For 1959-60 Activities

Ray Rafferty, newly elected president for the Class of 1960, his inaugurated an Orphans' scholarship program to be executed by the senior class next year.

Rafferty, an Arts junior, said he plans to finance the project by the sale of magazine subscriptions, on and off campus.

A part of his election platform, the scholarship will be an innovation to the conventional senior activity scene at Villanova.

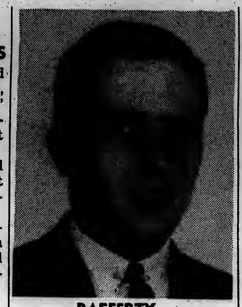
Additional Plans

Other plans considered by Rafferty include prospective dates for the annual Senior Weekend: February 12 and 13, and possibly February 19 and 20.

If Blue-White Day is a reality next year, he said he hopes to make it a part of the senior Father's Day festivities.

He has three sites in mind for the traditional Senior Parting Festival, and will announce his final choice at a later date.

Nick Basca Dance



He announced that plans are also underway for the Nick Basca Dance, to be held on the Homecoming Weekend, October 23, date of the Virginia Tech football game.

Rafferty has special plans for the Alumni Representative. "I hope to make this office, with his cooperation, reach its prospective and potential, so that it will become a new and strong position."

Having served on the Student Council as day-hop representative during his sophomore year, he has also been a member of the class steering committee and orientation committee.

Fraternity Member

He has been publicity and house manager of Belle Masque and is a member of Delta Pi Mu Arts and Science fraternity.

Within the class itself, Rafferty was co-chaiman of the Junior Dinner Dance along with John Driscoll.

"If the class continues to show its high interest and enthusiasm," he said, "we should have a senior year to compare with the best of them."

Junior President

Scalia, an Industrial Administration major from Garden City, New York, was elected president of the class of 1961.

As a freshman, Scalia served as class vice president and was an active member within the class. He has served on the spirit and blazer committees, was publicity director of the Sophomore Cotillion, and was active in SAM.

Regarding plans for the class's junior year, the new president stated that he hopes to have a steering committee composed of thirty to fifty members, shying away from the high number of members on the present junior steering committee.

Class Decisions

This committee will have more voice in class affairs and

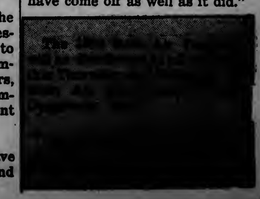
J. P. Kelley Calls Elections 'Smooth'

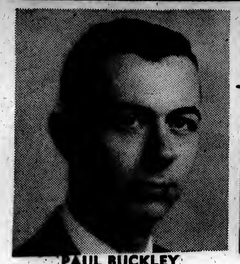
"All in all, I would say things ran pretty smoothly." So noted J. P. Kelley in a post-election interview with the VILLANOVAN.

Kelley, Chairman of the Elections Committee, commenting on the high level of candidates and interest in the election, observed that "this was the first year every candidate put signs out. There were more signs this year than in any of the four years I have been here."

Percentage

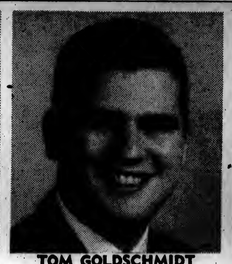


When asked what percentage of eligible voters turned out, Kelley quoted the following figures: "68 percent of the eligible student voters cast ballots.



"Broken down into individual class results: juniors, 72 percent; sophomores, 76 percent; nurses, 77 percent; and freshmen, 60 percent. This last figure represents a sizable increase over last year's freshman vote."

Exceed Limit



Kelley further stated that none of the candidates or parties exceeded their limits of $50 and $100 respectively. In fact he added, "none of them came close to doing so!"

In conclusion, Kelley praised and thanked the many seniors who aided him in supervising the campaign. "Without the complete co-operation of these men, the election would never have come off as well as it did."

REQUIESCAT IN PACE

A Modern Saint

Eugenio Pacelli, who as Pius XII was Shepherd of the Fold and Vicar of Christ on earth for 19 years, was laid to rest on Monday beneath St. Peter's Basilica in Rome.

Pius was a living example of the modernity of the Roman Catholic Church; he was also the epitome of the sanctity that has been the Church's since the time of the Apostles.

The late Pope was intensely interested in science. He resolutely rejected the belief that there was an irreconcilable conflict between science and religion. Once he said he thought that estimates by scientists that the world was a billion years old, seemed to be supported by all the evidence.

In a 1950 Encyclical letter, Pius said that the Church had no objection to qualified research into Darwin's theory of evolution. Many churchmen had misinterpreted the Encyclical letter, Pius said. Former publications which set to Rome. He astounded his listeners with his knowledge of the latest inventions and advances in basic science. By some unknown means, he learned the facts concerning the latest developments before they were given to the world at large.

Pius was the author of over two-hundred men of the Church. Pius, when he found the Sacred College of Cardinals in its full strength of 70 for the first time in 165 years, did away with the majority the Italian hierarchy had long held.

Pius gave his backing to a movement which has modernized the habits of many religious orders, and has made the Church more flexible. He was so, he said, that the modernization of the Church—the salvation of souls might be better served.

Taking note of modern living conditions and the shortage of priests, Pius made many important changes in the regulations concerning the fast before Communion. He also changed the age altered rules was that reception of the Blessed Sacrament at Midnight Mass.

Under his direction, the Catholic schools of the United States were taken over by the Vatican. Pius was close to the American people. He was the only Pope who ever came here at any time in his life.

Pius, ever the modern man, took an interest in sports. Once, when the Harlem Globetrotters basketball team was visiting in Rome, he had them put on a demonstration of ball handling for him.

Yet his modern mind and flexibility of outlook did not lessen the love and devotion of the people who understood the essential spirituality of the Church.

He had a special devotion to the Mother of God. In 1950, he proclaimed the Dogma of the Virgin Mary's Assumption into Heaven. He added to the 1000 Holy Year Jubilee. "As Jesus lay in the tomb for three days, so Mary lay in death."

During his 19 years at the head of the Church, Pius took part in the canonization of 33 new saints.

College editors, like their dreams of journalistic glory, rapidly fade away.

This week's edition of The VILLANOVAN is the last published under the editorship of the senior staff.

At the annual WVIL-VILLANOVAN dinner dance Saturday night at the Warwick Hotel the new staff will officially be named. That will mark the end of a year or more of hard dedicated work by the outgoing editors.

Not that they wouldn't do it over again.

The VILLANOVAN has this year placed a large emphasis on college news and sports, without neglect to the vital features.

The emphasis put pressure on executive news editor Frank Dynan, news editor Paul Buckley and campus news editor Bill Speers, to turn out more complete, accurate, better written stories.

The features department, under the editorship of Bill Christy and Ray Quaglia, turned out articles educational and amusing.

Frank Connolly was chief editorial cartoonist as well as the artist that sketched the tributes to campus athletes. In the Autumn he doubled as football predictor for sports editor Joe FitzPatrick.

Last minute requests were the headache of photo editors Al Stoughton, Sam Pietrofetti and Al Lawler.

The tough thankless job of circulation was handled by Harry Bruecker and Gerry Kerwin. They were responsible each week for the mailing out of more than 3,000 VILLANOVANS to parents and friends of Villanova.

Sal Borgesie business manager handled the advertising solicitation and payment. John Hone, exchange editor, wrote an occasional column and suggested possible ideas observed from other college papers.

The editorial department and general direction of the VILLANOVAN this year was determined by editor-in-chief Larry O'Rourke, managing editor Jack Curtin and associate editor Tom Goldschmidt.

Pictured on this page are the outgoing editors and some of the editions they had so much fun producing.

Drill Team Wins In Meet; Sarge Gets Usual Dunking

The Villanova Navy Drill Team marched to victory last Wednesday in the Philadelphia Area Drill Meet. In a competing field of eight teams, the NROTC claimed first place trophies in both Trick and Basic Drill contests.

On mornings made only for sleeping, the team under Terry Connell, leader, had been maintaining an intensive practice schedule in preparation for this meet.

The competition was held last Wednesday on an afternoon made only for picnicking, and the practicing paid off.

The performance by the 16 man advanced team consolidated Villanova's title as Philadelphia area champions. It was the fourth such victory for the blue, white, and brass in five years.

Ten members of the squad marked this as the third time competing in the annual area meet. All were on the champion team of 1957, and again on the team that failed to place in 1958.

Between performances, the Villanova Navy Band, under Midn. Bill Dusseau, entertained the crowd with an assortment of military and marching songs.

After the meet, Capt. John Higgins, Jr., Professor of Naval Science, and Maj. J. J. Rooney, USMC, congratulated the drill unit on its accomplishment.

In an informal gathering later, Marine Sgt. Edward Molcany and Connell, received the traditional show of gratitude from the team by being thrown bodily into the Mendel pond.

Intoxicated with success, the Villanova NROTC Drill Team disposes of Marine Sgt. Edward Molcany in their customary manner. Molcany is shown before and after immersion. The team claimed first place trophies in two division last Wednesday in the Philadelphia Area Drill Meet.

Admiral Reviews NROTC Unit Tues.

The Villanova NROTC will hold an open house and review next Tuesday, at 3:00 p.m., announced Capt. J. W. Higgins, Jr., USN, Professor of Naval Science.

The Midshipman Battalion, led by Midshipman James Hull, 1/c, will pass in review in Austin Field before Rear Admiral Charles H. Lyman, III, USN, and Very Reverend James A. Donnellon, O.S.A.

The open house will follow in Barry Hall and there will be a demonstration of Anti-Submarine warfare, training aids, and other equipment.

Vets Hold Dance, Appoint Officers

The Villanova Veterans Organization held its first annual dinner dance April 18th, at the General Wayne Inn in Lower Merion.

Approximately twenty members of the club and their dates attended.

The dinner was followed by dancing in the main dining room. The club hopes to make the spring dinner dance an annual affair.

Officers for coming year were installed by President Frank Cernos at the last meeting. They include Francis McKay, president; Ed Kelly, vice-president; Tom Kennedy, recording secretary; Ed Gallagher, treasurer; Ed Craig, Student Council representative; and Bob Burke, corresponding secretary.

McKay pointed out that official campus recognition of the club has been obtained and that it has become one of the most active on campus.

At present it consists of approximately seventy members.

ACES Hold Panels Here Last Night

Six local industrial executives were panelists at the annual visit of the ACES to Villanova last night.

The executives conducted a paned discussion on various phases of business activity after attending a banquet in Dougherty Hall at 6.30 p. m.

The panel discussion got underway at 7.30 according to The Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, O.S.A., dean of Commerce and Finance.

The New Regime

Whenever a new regime takes command of the Student Council, it undergoes an unbearable number of comparisons with past administrations. Tom Hoffman has been elected Chairman for the 1959-60 session, and he cannot hope to escape such comparisons.

The council usually seems to be evaluted in terms of personalitites, and so the parallels will be drawn between Hoffman and outgoing Chairman Murphy. The similarities are greater than the differences in this case.

If Hoffman continues in Murphy's manner, the Council will be amply served. Murphy, whose most formidable task was presiding over Congress, was credited with ruling with an "iron fist" so often that the phrase become hackneyed; but it was completely apt. It was his personality which kept order, with a simple turn of a phrase, a joke or a dry crack. In brief summaries from the chair he would crystalize issues which had become muddled from debate.

If next year's Congress is patterned after this year's, Hoffman will be confronted with spurts of disorder which would astonish any orthodox parliamentarian. It will be largly through his command presence that Robert's Rules of Order will be enforced.

The Chairman has a limited power of decreeing rulings from the chair. These rulings serve to expedite the sessions by obviating irritable red tape and drawnout hassling. Murphy invoked this power, but never to the fullest extent of its possibilities.

Of course, any deliberative body needs to abide by rules concerning floor recognition, debate, and discussion limits; rules which restrain both the Chairman and the body at large. But meetings this year were sometimes bogged down by frivolous procedural details. Purhaps Murphy wanted to avoid usurping any of the privileges of the floor.

Chairman-elect Hoffman should investigate completely the latitude given to him to issue rulings from the chair. If the presiding chairman would give a simple ruling whenever he could, minor issues would not have to be bounced around the whole Congress, with all the needless delays that this involves. It might even be wise to take this power to the limit next year.

If this sounds as though we are endorsing greater powers to be vested in the Chairmanship, that is exactly what we mean.

We aren't inferring that Hoffman be an atom-driven dynamo, like former Chairman Pat Nicholson (it appears that Chairmen for years to come will ultimately be compared to Nicholson). His moderate, reserved manner will be more than effective.

The Last Deadline Met

By LARRY O'ROURKE

The sun sometimes rises too early . . .

Ask any of the young men who watched it rise some twenty Tuesday morning the past year.

The day sometimes drags.

Ask the same young men how they spent Wednesday mornings and afternoons waiting for delivery of the VILLANOVAN.

This is a final column of goodbye and thanks!

To the seniors who have shared the editorship and reportorial duties.

To the underclassmen who were always willing to do the little jobs in preparation for the big ones they will assume as editors:

To the moderator, Father Louis Rongione, for his patience, advice and understanding:

To our families who awakened while we were getting to bed as the sun rose after those long Monday nights.

To the professors who overlooked a doze or a newspaper in class.

This Saturday night we will sadly say our farewells.

Bright, energetic underclassmen will be named to operate the VILLANOVAN for the Year 1959-60. The next twenty editions will be theirs.

While they spend long nights at the printer with dummies, galleys, proofs, make-up, paste-up, half-tones and telephones, we shall be dreaming of "the good old days."

The newcomers will have a lot of headaches, but a lot of pride on those Wednesday mornings.

One thing the new editors will learn before the first edition "goes to bed" is that:

The sun sometimes rises too early . .

Letter to Editor:

C and Fer States Case

Due to the recent criticism which has been heaped upon the C and F school and its members, I feel compelled to take up the fallen Commerce and Finance banner.

In recent articles in the VILLANOVAN, some of which found their way onto C and F bulletin boards earlier last week, Arts students have taken turns berating the meager talents of the C and F school.

Seeming Indifference

One of the most consistent complaints against the C and Fer was his seeming indifference. Other complaints were, in effect, that the C and Fer was lazy, and that the day-hop used his car to get to school every morning.

Since most of the day-hop C and Fers have part time jobs in addition to school it can hardly be said that they are lazy. As for bringing the car to school, there is an unofficial rumor that the aforementioned day-hops are conducting a boycott against the local means of transportation.

After all this criticism, I began to feel inferior and decided to do something about it. Last Wednesday, election day, I found myself a map of the campus and set out to find Alumni Hall.

After trekking for an eternity over the 150 yards that supposedly separates the two buildings, I dragged myself into the Gym and was handed a ballot.

Surprising Number

For a school that has little interest in campus affairs, Commerce and Finance had a surprising number of candidates running. Another thing that surprised me was the fact that there was a greater C and F representation than Arts and Engineering combined. Actually the C and F school accounted for 1600 of the 2800 votes cast.

Admittedly, the business school has a numerical advantage but since few of the C and Fers care, and none of those that do care know where Alumni Hall is, the turnout was remarkable.

My feeling of inferiority had just begun to diminish, when I thought of another nasty statement in the ill prepared statement tacked up on the bulletin board. In the article, an Arts student was complaining that the C and F division had stolen its building.

Arts Complain

Even if this is true, Arts shouldn't complain. After all, C and F did give them its old one. The writer of the article seemed to be just waiting for a chance to raise the C and F roof.

One parting question; if the C and F division has so little to offer why is a C and F student the president of Delta Pi Mu?

Stirring ½ Act Drama: "On The Farm"

By PETER F. ALLARD

A Social Drama of Turbulence and Chaos and Rural Economics as Seen by a Typically Despondent and Impoverished Family Group.

(Clem and Olivia Prackett live on a farm with their son, Jasper, and their daughter, Little Nell. As our curtain rises, Clem has just returned from putting night lights in the henhouse. This makes the chickens think its always day, thereby increasing their yield, and, thereby, adding to the Prackett income. The entire family is congregated in the kitchen.)

Clem: All right, everybody, it's time for chores. Who-all knows what's to be done ?

Jasper: Paw, I've got to add chalk water to the milk afore the dairy man gits here.

Little Nell: Paw, you said to put oil on the road so people 'll slide into the ditch we dug and pay to git towed out.

Olivia: Clem, I've got to mail the bills to the charge account customers from our roadside stand. Think they'll notice a twenty percent markup ?

Clem: Ain't this cooperation grand? Make that 25% sugar-pie, and after you kids git done, come back and help me make extry ballots fer the e.ection next week. Cousin Edwin and me been to ev'ry cemetery in the county a-gittin' names for 'em.

Olivia: Clem, while we're all here, everyone should know that Chester next place over is goin' to pay some some college feilers a quarter a bushel to pick his corn this year. That's more 'n we paid last year.

Jasper: I know, Paw, we'll fix the scale and offer thirty-five!

Little Nell: I'll weight, Paw. I'm too young fer them to suspect.

Clem: Did you-ll fergit? The gov'ment's a-paying us $2000 this year not to raise corn. Besides, we'll make more money sellin' them fellers White Lightnin'.

Jasper: Paw, me and Maw got a surprise fer you. You want to tell him, Maw.

Olivia: Clem, that boy takes after you. He's been goin' around the town on trash day in Cousin Edwin's truck collectin' old junk furniture folks leave to be picked up. Says he's keepin' it in the barn to start me in the antique business. That boy's goin' places, Clem, I swear.

Little Nell: Don't swear in front of payin' customers, Maw. It ain't good business.

Clem: Hush now, Little Nell. That's a right fine idea, Jasper. Antiques is a thrivin' new industry in some parts. We'll need a bunch of cats around the place fer atmosphere, and we'll have to sell figurines, too. Figurines and handcarved knick-knacks and other examples of native folk art look pretty good if you scrape the "Made in Japan" label off 'n the back. It'd be dishonest to leave the label on.

Little Nell: Hey, Paw, why not have hooked rugs, too. I can hook plenty down at Sears-Roebuck.

Clem: What a fine little family I got!

Olivia: Well, if all the affairs is tended, it's time fer breakfast. I hope you-all like frozen waffles and powered oragne juice.

Clem: Anythin' beats hominy and grits! Jasper, why don't you make the blessin' ? Your old enough to help fix the income tax, and you got to begin to do a man's things around here.

Jasper: Sure, Paw. It wouldn't be right if we was to miss the blessing. We're God-fearin' people.

Starlet Interview, Flag Raising Highlights Week

By BILL SPEERS

An obvious hush settled upon the group as a mature business-like woman entered the room, followed by a young, petite, casually — but neatly — dressed girl.

The girl was Millie Perkins. She is starring in the motion picture "The Diary of Anne Frank," which opens today at the Midtown theatre in Philly. The group was a small gathering of Philadelphia area college and high school students who were invited to this special interview with the starlet by the Philadelphia branch of Twentieth Century Fox Studios.

Millie Perkins is the girl chosen for the title role by producer George Stevens out of some 10,000 applicants. Physically, she is ideal for the part. She'll probably come as close as anyone in complying with the mental image of Anne Frank, as formed by the millions of people who have read the book or play. Miss Perkins' most outstanding feature is a small triangular face, haloed by luxuriant, black hair, which highlights her large, blue-green bubble-like eyes — the kind which draws one's own to them, immediately upon meeting her.

For about 45 minutes Miss Perkins was questioned by the various reporters. Although most of the questions were uninspired and many of the answers predictable, it was rather pleasant just watching and listening to her answer the inquiries with her soft, cheerful voice and in her "Well, I'll tell you" attitude, without any of the fabled Hollywood fanfare.

A star in her first role in motion pictures, Miss Perkins seems unspoiled by her "cinderella" success. She expresses her distaste for the city of Los Angeles and the loneliness for her Fair Lawn, New Jersey home, which she seems to have just begun missing after her wirlwind success of the past half-year or so.

For Millie the world right now is lying at her feet. She has made what is supposed to be one of the best pictures in recent years and is said by the so-called experts, to have a very bright future in Hollywood. We hope she will finally realize that bright future.

She remains unglamorized by the "Hollywood magic" and has accepted her good fortune realistically. She sees herself as just another working girl who will have to work a little bit harder in order to get and keep ahead.

The Culprits have attacked again. For the past week, atop the flag pole in front of John Barry Hall, the ignominious spectacle of a pair of female drawers waving in the breeze has marred the Navy's dignity. But the word is out. A team of Navy officals have been carrying on, for the last few days, a complete investigation of the incident.

So far, very little evidence has turned up, but the investigators have reason to believe that the traitors who raised the unmentionables upon the flag pole are the same ones who attempted to subvert the Navy last year by replacing the picture of Admiral Halsey inside the Barry Hall entrance, with one of Admiral "Blood and Guts" Neuman. It's generally believed though, that it won't be long before the double crime is completely solved.

Turner Column Stirs Artistic Controversy

EDITOR'S NOTE: In a recent article which appeared on these pages, Jim Turner delivered a criticism of Ethel Merman, who is currently appearing in the musical "Gypsy". Readers' replies to this article were so numerous and varied that it was decided that a few of the replies would be printed in place of Mr. Turner's column this week.

To the Editor:

I would like to declare my complete agreement with Jim Turner's opinions of Ethel Merman and her shows.

It has been my privilege (?) to attend two of Miss Merman's shows in recent years, and in both cases I was highly disappointed. Knowing that Mr. Turner's article will very likely provoke a storm of criticism from various "enlightened" students, I would like him to know that he does not stand alone.

Edwin Magee
Sophomore Arts.

To the Editor:

Jim Turner opens his tirade against Ethel Merman (VILLANOVAN, May 6) by remarking that he can't understand why "Gypsy Rose Lee, a strip-teaser, was chosen to be eulogized in the American theatre."

Overlooking the fact that eulogies are generally reserved for the dead, this seems just a bit uncharitable to the lady. Miss Lee was never a strip-teaser in the ordinary sense of the word. Had Mr. Turner taken the trouble to inform himself, he would have known that her act was always noted for its propriety and good taste.

Virtriolic Quality

We may also overlook the glaring misstatement of fact (e. g., that "Happy Hunting" received "rave" reviews), but it is hard to discount the vitriolic quality of Mr. Turner's attack on Miss Merman.

He is certainly free to criticize the lady's work, but this article shows an amazing degree of personal bitterness and rancor, a startling lack of knowledge of the theater, and an absence of restraint bordering on poor taste.

It might be wise for Mr. Turner to read the professional critics he disparages to learn something of critical balance and detachment. After all, it is possible that everybody likes "My Fair Lady" because it is such an extraordinarily fine show.

John J. Cannon
Senior Arts.

"When it comes to something expensive, the woman pays—attention."

Nostalgic Senior Views Elections

By AN OLD PRO

Thoughts of a weary and worldly-wise senior on watching the underclass elections:

When a guy has seen four years of campaigning, politicking and electioneering at Villanova, he gets to recognize certain cycles and treads. A couple of the fairly obvious ones were neatly demonstrated in this last battle for class supremacy.

For example, it is now evident that the junior class president must be very careful whom he appoints as dinner dance chairman, for it is becoming a rule that ex-chairman ascend to the presidential throne for their senior years. Two years ago it was Glem Birch, this year Oz Scogna, and now Ray Rafferty.

We might also note that all three are ("were" in the case of Birch) day-hops, which just might be interpreted to prove that resident students get lazy in their senior year.

Action Like V-6

As for cycles, this year's freshman election looked very similar to those that put Ken MacGillivray into office four years ago when the Class of 1959 first dabbled in politics. The Action Party, which swept all six offices (an unprecidented feat, I believe), reminded old-timers of MacGillivray's V-6 unit which took the top three electoral spots and lost the other three to independent candidates in close contests.

Something new this year was the surprising Commerce and Finance voting block. There had been isolated examples of it before, but never like this. Several candidates—including at least one new class president—owe their success to the C and Fers. Looks like the VILLANOVAN's comments did some good.

The breakdown of votes by sections, by the way, was just one of the reforms initiated by Elections Committee chairman John P. Kelley, who turned in the finest effort we've seen from that post over the years. Probably nothing more can be said about his performance than, in the words of the Rev. Dante L. Girolami, O.S.A., to the Student last week: "He did a very, very good job."

Speaking of the student Council, I guess the time has come to say a few words about outgoing chairman Bob Murphy, who turned over his gavel to president-elect Tom Hoffman Monday evening.

Credit to Murphy

This was the most productive year in student government in Villanova history. And that's not just an opinion, it's based upon the record. This hasn't been the most notoriously successful year for the council, for there was no one really big measure enacted such as the Senior Car program of last year (although most residents would probably argue that the food poll which improved the cafeteria greatly was even more important than the car program), but it was one in which many things were accomplished.

Much of the credit for the council's success must go to Murphy. Obviously, he was not perfect, and made many mistakes—as all of us do. But, in control of a meeting (and he always was) Bob Murphy was an impressive and dominant figure. To this writer's mind, the best council of the past four years was blessed with the best president of the past four years.

Bob Wagner, who also left office as of Monday evening, deserves as much praise as Murphy. This year's council was well-run all the way around, and they, as officers, can claim the credit. Wagner, for example, probably did more writing than any other engineer in captivity.

Which brings us to Tom Hoffman, who is probably still in the flush of victory and hasn't really become aware yet of the tremendous weight he's taken on his shoulders. It's a weight he's fully qualified to bear, but the distinction he'll gain by virtue of his new post is little enough compared to the work he's going to have to put into it.

Soft Approach Continues

A year ago, when Murphy succeeded Pat Nicholson to the council presidency, the VILLANOVAN pointed out that this marked a change from the "loud and dynamic" approach to student government to a "soft and dynamic" one. Hoffman, it appears, will continue in the softer vein that characterized Murphy. Judging from his past efforts in student government, he'll be just as much of a success at it.

And like Murphy, Hoffman is fortunate in having able and efficient co-officers. The man who succeeds him as vice-chairman, Bob DeLisa, has already proved his worth as an invaluable member of the council, as Villanova's NFCCS delegate and in his position as president of the sophomore class. Bill Vincent, the third officer elected Monday evening, has also been extremely active in council matters. Jim Hooker secretary, was also a good choice for the job.

While we're at it, we might as well extend fond wishes and the best of luck to all the class officers elected last Wednesday. The future of Villanova is in their hands.

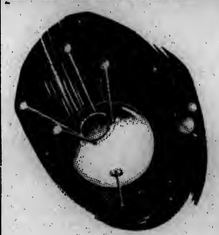
A Word of Advice

In closing perhaps a word to advice might be in order to the youngesters from one who sees the twilight shadows gathering more clearly every day. Probably, like most seniors, this one isn't wise enough to keep out of trouble, but I do think there is one bit of information which could be passed along to those coming behind.

So here it is, gentlemen, the voice of widsom speaking. The voice of a man who has spent four years in college, of a man who has seen life inside these cinderblock walls and has frittered away his time on these asphalt paths. His advice is.

Pass attendance—it works wonders with your parents.

Unknown Heavens Pierced By Giant Reflector Scopes



By RICHARD L. BUSENKELL

Astronomy today, once preeminent among the subjects taught at universities, but having fallen into neglect during the past century, is once again assuming considerable importance.

Practically speaking, it was always important. Sailors depend heavily upon celestial navigation, and even modern Air Force pilots are required to know a little astronomy. The recent growth of this science, however, has been in the ranks of the amateur.

The manufacture and sale of inexpensive telescopes for the hobbyist has increased several hundred percent in the last decade.

With the launching of artificial satellites, the dawn of the space age has arrived, and the curiosity of man in general as to what lies beyond his planet has heightened greatly. As he raises his eyes to the heavens and the vistas beyond, man's earthbound senses reel before the sizes, distances and empty space of the star-flecked universe, and he seeks to explore the vastness at best he can.

The primary astronomical instrument is the telescope, which is actually a powerful magnifying optical instrument. There are two types of telescopes, reflectors and refractors.

The reflector uses a concave mirror to focus all light rays it receives to a single point. The refractor accomplishes the same end by "bending" light rays with a large lens. In other respects, the two types of telescopes are essentially the same.

The main types of reflectors are the Cassegranian and the more common Newtonian. These are inexpensive and relatively simple in design, hence they are the choice of the majority of astronomy hobbyists.

Refractors, however, are easier to operate, less delicate, and have a greater magnifying power than reflectors, thus they are preferred by professional astronomers. Powerful magnification is, of course, essential to astronomy, since it renders visible the fine detail of celestial bodies.

The largest telescopes in the world, Mt. Palomar's 200 inch and Mt. Wilson's 100 inch, are reflectors, as will be the new 120 inch telescope soon to be finished at Lick Observatory.

If refractors are made very large, the heavy weight of the lens at the long tube tends to bend the tube. A 40-inch lens is the largest practical size.

Villanova Observatory's new Unitron 6 inch refractor is an outstanding example of its type, and all students are invited to come up to the observatory and examine it any night.

What Price Democracy?

By JIM BISING

The fact that elections were imminent was painfully demonstrated to this writer when the annual horde of smiling, well-dressed office-seekers invaded the silent glory of my chambers and in a brotherly tone of voice inquired about the state of my health and the success of recent social life.

Before they had a chance to be asked why they were running for office, these budding politicians launched a steady stream of small talk which eventually led to the question, "Who are you voting for?" When I informed them that they would not be favored by my vote, they still insisted on leaving numerous cards and other paraphernalia which had as much persuasive power as a Dewey button.

Cards Disappear

After seeing some of their cards disappear into the waste basket, some of the individuals in question somehow came to the conclusion that their logic and rhetoric might be used to better advantage in some other locale. Their powers of perception were very acute.

Much easier to bear were the signs and billboards in front of Dougherty Hall, which brought back memories of the northern-most section of U. S. Route 1; the signs at least were quiet.

Like the nation at large, the student body of this university elects its own representatives. Now all good gum-chewing, democracy-loving citizens and students realize that vulgar back-slapping and cigar smoking are part of American democracy.

Not A Monarchy

Since there is no prominent pretender to the throne of this nation of stainless steel and Carvel stands (the English don't want it and the Ocean City beach patrol is undecided), the U. S. A. is stuck with a democratic form of government (the execution of Maximilian in 1867 finished Hapsburg hopes on this continent).

As a center of culture, a university should strive not to become sucked into the mediocrity which surrounds its borders. The average and commonplace should not be imitated. Mediocrity may be a characteristic of politicians; it is not one of scholars.

We Get Letters

By BOB BROTHERS

Dear Editor:

Enclosed find $2.00. Please send me a subscription to the VILLANOVAN.—G. R., Immaculata College.

Thank you. Our staff is now going to dinner.

Dear Villanovan:

I saw the last issue, and I must say it seemed to be about 90% pure trash.—D. M., Temple U.

Looks are deceptive. A content analysis revealed that the last issue was 87% trash. Please stand corrected.

Dear Bob:

I fail to see how the Swedish Academy can continue to ignore your remarkable literary genius. In my opinion you are America's best young writer. Such magnificent sweep and clarity! Such unfaltering logic! Such wonderful utility of style!

I have never read better writing anywhere. Such mature punctuation! I fail to see what can keep your star from its inexorable orbit across the literary firmament if you maintain this sparkling pace. You are a genius.—Love, Mother. P.S. We just received a letter from your Dean. What does "on probation" mean?

Dear Mom: Remember the Prohibition Era back in the days of your youth? Well, the Dean has placed me in charge to make sure there is no drinking on campus.

Dear Villanovans:

College men who drink beer are making a mess of our community and the state by throwing empty cans in the gutters. I have seen as many as seven cans in a single gutter over by the P & W tracks. You know what this adds up to.—Chief, Villanova Twp. Police.

At current prices, I'd say it adds up to about $1.75.

Questions Answered

Dear Mr. Brothers:

You are always trying to use big words. Can you tell me what is the meaning of the word Traqanaquanafriter?—Bill Thomas.

After much research, I found out that this word is an archartic form meaning the act of Traqanaquanafriting.

Q. How old should a girl be before she dates?—Teenager.

A. We feel she should be at least in the fifth grade. By that time you have something to talk about. You have studied arithmetic, geography, and American History. After all, you can't talk spelling, can you now?

Dear Staff:

I like your paper. I have a dog. His name is Fido. He likes your paper. I have a cat. Her name is Kitty. She likes it. I am in the first grade. I am 87. Mother says I am crazy. I like the VILLANOVAN. I am crazy. —J. M.

Dear Bob:

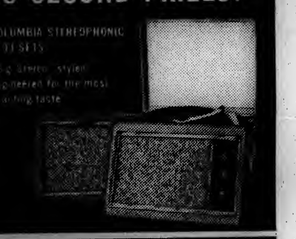
It seems as if I've been reading your column for years, now.

Back in September, my buddies and I used to howl with laughter at your every word. Then around the end o ffirst semester, I began to realize that my laughter was taking on a faintly hysterical tone. I also noticed an odd gleam in the eyes of my less-stable friends.

About mid-term this semester, your column no longer made me laugh. Instead, I used to curl up with it and my blanket and cry myself to sleep.

Now, just before I throw myself into the T-House Pond on Graduation eve, would you tell me exactly what you were trying to accomplish with "File 13?"—Senior.

No, I won't.



COLLEGE PUZZLE CONTEST

FOR STUDENTS AND FACULTY MEMBERS

25 SECOND PRIZES:

100 THIRD PRIZES:

500 FOURTH PRIZES:
Cartons of America's finest cigarettes

LIGHT UP AND LIVE IT UP! 3 great cigarettes offer you 627 chances to win! So pick your pack—save the six wrappers—and get going! It's crossword puzzle fun and real smoking pleasure all the way!

ENTER OFTEN—HAVE FUN—AND WIN! But think carefully! This puzzle is not as easy as it looks. At first the DOWN and ACROSS clues may appear simple. There may appear to be more than one "right" answer. For example, the clue might read: "Many a coed will be given her best date's P- -N." Either "I" (PIN) or "E" (PEN) would seem to fit. But only one answer is apt and logical as decided by the judging staff, and therefore correct. Read the rules carefully. ENTER AS OFTEN AS YOU WISH. Good luck!

RULES—PLEASE READ CAREFULLY

1. The College Puzzle Contest is open to college students and college faculty members except employees and their immediate families of Liggett & Myers and its advertising agencies.

2. Fill in all missing letters . . . print clearly. Use of obsolete, archaic, variant or foreign words prohibited. After you have completed the puzzle, send it along with six empty package wrappers of the same brand from L&M, Chesterfield or Oasis cigarettes (or one reasonable hand-drawn facsimile of a complete package wrapper of any one of the three brands) to: Liggett & Myers, P. O. Box 271, New York 46, N. Y. Enter as often as you wish, but be sure to enclose six package wrappers (or a facsimile) with each entry. Illegible entries will not be considered.

3. Entries must be postmarked by midnight, Friday, May 29, 1959 and received by midnight, Friday, June 5, 1959.

4. Entries will be judged by the Bruce-Richards Corporation, an independent judging organization, on the basis of logic and aptness of thought of solutions. In the event of ties, contestants will be required to complete in 25 words or less the following statement: "My favorite cigarette is (Chesterfield) (L&M) or (Oasis) because . . . . ." Entries will be judged on originality, aptness of thought and interest by the Bruce-Richards Corporation. Duplicate prizes will be awarded in event of final ties. Illegible entries will not be considered. By entering all entrants agree that the decision of the judges shall be final and binding.

5. Solutions must be the original work of the contestants submitting them. All entries become the property of Liggett & Myers and none will be returned.

6. Winners will be notified by mail as soon as possible after completion of the contest.

7. This contest is subject to all Federal, State and local laws and regulations.

Medford Lakes Site of Senior Parting Festival

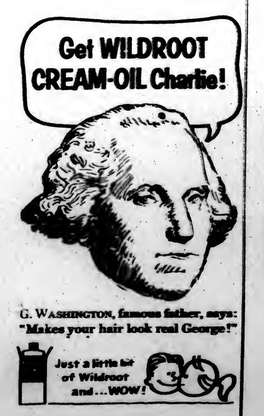
The meeting ended with the agreement that there would be provisions made whereby the class could vote when to have the affair, but Lloyd had other ideas, because he "wanted to hold it when everybody could attend, and I had to get working on it right away."

Lloyd had an option on the lodge for Friday, and remembering that the previous class had a successful function on a Friday because of the IC4A track meet at Villanova, got Scogna's permission to make May 29 the festival date.

Needs Class Support

His big worry now is class support. "We're taking no money whatever from the class treasury for this," he told a reporter, "and must depend upon the support of individual class members for its success.

"The more people that support the affair, the better it will be, because that will give us more money to work with. Every cent we get will go right into the Parting Festival to try and make it the best affair possible."



Medford Lakes has facilities for swimming, baseball and volleyball, Lloyd said, and is located near a riding academy. He plans to have a buffet dinner and dancing for those in attendance, and would like to have a jazz concert also. He is trying to sign Paul Judge for dancing and Earl Bostic for the concert among others.

The chairman recommended "picnic attire" (bermudas, khakis) for the affair, but said there would be facilities for anyone who wishes to change clothes.

Rev. Joseph Clark Delivers Lecture

Rev. Joseph Clark, S. J., of Canisius College, Buffalo, N. Y., will deliver a lecture before the newly formed Sigma Xi Club tonight.

"Philosophy of Science — A Point of Departure" was the title of the lecture which will be given at 8 p.m. in the East Lounge of Dougherty Hall.

Mass at the outdoor shrine of Our Lady of Good Counsel starts the annual senior Father's Day last Saturday. The Mass was celebrated by Rev. Henry F. Weeks, O.S.A., Class moderator.

Juniors To Take Johnnies To Ivyknoll For Jamboree

This Saturday 250 little tykes board busses and head out to Johnnie's Jamboree. Mission: to have fun.

Mrs. Josephine Jordan, prominent Main Liner who has been quite active in charity drives and benefits, observed the efforts of the Villanova Juniors concerning the orphans weekend last December.

Junior Cooperation

She approached Junior Class President Sheldon Pollock and asked for his cooperation in the planning and initiation of Johnnie's Jamboree.

The affair will be held at the J. Richard Jordan Estate, "Ivyknoll", on Stoke Rd. in Villanova for the benefit of the lads in St. John's Orphanage for Boys.

The Rev. Dante Girolami, O.S.A., Dean of Student Activities, Mrs. Jordan, Mrs. John Lord, Pollock and Ronald Dobies comprise the executive committee for this affair.

Many prominent Main Liners will serve on the General Committee.

Student Chairmen

Student chairmen are Pete Lavezolli and Jack Daniels, who are in charge of games, John Mulcahy in charge of food, C. Allen Brossi, maintenance; Dick Jordan, of transportation.

Fifty juniors will conduct the activities. They will be costumed as cowboys, Indians, clowns and barkers.

The activities include games, pony rides, a puppet show and an outdoor cookout. Toys and favors will be awarded to the children.

Excess funds will be used for the purchase of a color TV for the orphanage.

Byzantine Mass Celebrated By Rev. Austin Mohrbacher

A Byzantine Mass under the Russian Rite was celebrated last Thursday morning in the Field House at 10 a.m.

The Rev. Austin Mohrbacher of the Russian Center at Fordham University celebrated the Mass and was accompanied by a mixed choir from the Center.

Pontifical College

Father Mohrbacher, the celebrant of Thursday's Liturgy, was born in Minnesota and studied for the priesthood in Illinois before entering the Pontifical College in Rome.

He was ordained in the Byzantine Rite in Rome in 1957, and has worked with Soviet refugees. Recently, he made an extensive study of Russian atheistic propaganda and methods. He was assigned to the Russian Center at Fordham in 1957.

Six Rites

The Byzantine Rite is one of six main rites in the Catholic Church today. Unity on faith and morals is always maintained among these rites, but liturgical laws and customs have differed from the earliest days of the Church, and the Holy See has insisted that they be preserved in their purity.

The Byzantine Rite developed around the city of Constantinople and from here missionaries were sent to Russia. Russia was converted principally by these missionaries, and thus adopted the Byzantine Rite.

The Russian Mass, called the Liturgy, although the same in nature and outlined as the Latin Mass, differs in many external ceremonies. The entire Mass is sung in Church Slavonic language.

erty in May of 1931.

He attended Catholic University from 1936 to 1939 and earned his Doctorate in Philosophy.

Monsignor Ostheimer served as a member of the faculty at Roman Catholic High School for thirteen years prior to his appointment to the editorial staff of the Catholic Standard and Times in 1942.

He was named editor of the publication in May of 1952.

Monsignor Ostheimer directed radio and television programs for the Philadelphia diocesan high school and since 1942 has been co-director of the Philadelphia Catholic Hours on station WFIL.

Textbook Co-Author

He is also the author of several books and was co-author of a series of social science texabooks widely used in Catholic high schools.

The St. Augustine Award has been presented three times before. Winners were: James T. Quirk, publisher of TV Guide magazine, John Facenda, Philadelphia television newscaster and John C. Calpin, political editor of the Philadelphia Bulletin.

More than 150 staff members of the VILLANOVAN and radio station WVIL are expected to attend the dinner dance, according to Larry O'Rourke, outgoing editor, and Bill Washington, retiring station manager.

Staff Named For Yearbook

Tom Peretti, editor of the 1959 Belle Air, has announced his staff 1960. William Celentano, Social Science, will be associate editor; Albert Lawler, E. E., managing editor; John Reitzke, Pol. Sci., layout editor; Thomas Sweeney, Soc. Art editor; Joseph Peroziello, Finance, photography editor.

Sports editor will be Lawrence Maucher, Electrical Engineer, and Connell O'Donnell, Psychology. Jim Merikangas, Phys., will be Copy Editor.

Peretti added that those underclassmen who wish to work on the 1960 Belle Air are urged to sign up. Business Manager is Dan Spada, Mkt.

praise, saying, "This is the kind of boy we are trying to develop. He has always attempted to see both the students' and the Administration's point of view."

New Chairman Hoffman called a meeting of the new Senate for next Monday evening, and a meeting of the new Congress for next Wednesday. At the latter meeting, Murphy will give an evaluation report on the 1958-59 Council.

The following committee chairman gave their last reports to the Council: Joseph Mason, Fraternity and Society Committee; James Corey, Ways and Means Committee; William Hixon, Social Affairs Commitee

J. P. Kelley, Elections Committee; Raymond Hepburn, Academic Affairs Committee; Robert Merkert, Religious Affairs Committee; William Christman, Student Activities Committee; Frederick Wiele, Student Union and Special Problems Committee.

The three Council vice-presidents, Joseph McGrath, William Murray, and Thomas Moakley, gave their outgoing reports.

Pultorak Elected President of IRS

Joseph Pultorak was elected next year's president of the Villanova International Relations Society at Monday night's meeting, announced Bob Rafano, outgoing president.

Other officers elected were William Celentano, vice president; Frank Brennan, secretary treasurer; and John Castano, Student Council representative.

Final plans were announced for the annual banquet to be held next Wednesday night at Weber's Restaurant in Narbeth, 7 p.m.

Rafano expressed hope for a large turnout at the banquet. Lack of participation caused the proposed club trip to the United Nations to be cancelled.

class decisions than it does now, he said. Members of this committee will be chosen by a system to be explained at the first class meeting.

SCALIA

A committee to strengthen the bonds between the day-hop and resident students is advocated by Scalia. Also, in an attempt to publicize class functions and activities, the president plans to set up a one man publicity committee to work between the class, the VILLANOVAN, WVIL, and other publications.

As for Junior Week, Scalia hopes that his class will be able to equal the job done by the present junior class.

Scalia also wants to install a ring dance and a ring Mass into the class activities.

Summing up the election, Scalia thanked everybody for the large turnout at the polls and also for the confidence the class has placed in him by electing him president.

He expects the class to show the same interest and enthusiasm throughout the whole year.

Working with Scalia next year will be: Lawrence Bathgate, vice president; Nicholas Cassetta, secretary; and Neil Vaughey, treasurer.

Sophomore President

Leading next year's sophomores will be Thomas Wall from Poughkeepsie, New York. Wall is enrolled in the school of Arts and Science.

Wall was an active member in student government while in high school, having served on the student council for four years. In his senior year he was elected to the presidency of the council.

During the past year, Wall has been active on the campus radio station, WVIL, and also in the intramural program and various other societies.

Class Unity

Advocating class unity and a close relationship between the class and its officers, the president is looking forward to a successful year.

Some of the decisions facing the class officers and Wall will be the planning of the Sophomore Cotillion, securing class blazers, and finally, ordering the class rings.

The other sophomore officers are: Ralph Lanciano, vice president; Anthony Latorre, secretary; and Richard Corsini, treasurer.

Council Representatives

Elected to posts on the Student Council for the senior class are: Dennis Cardone, Arts and Science day-hop; Kenneth Kraemer, Arts and Science resident; John Heberer, C and F day-hop; and Steve Carton, C and F resident.

Newly-elected junior representatives include: Paul O'Rourke, Arts and Science day-hop; Bob DeLisa, Arts and Science resident; John Wojciechowics, Engineer day-hop; Brian Scully, Engineer resident; James Hooker, C and F day-hop; and Jack Valva, C and F resident.

Representatives for next year's sophomore class are: Robert Benson, day-hop; and Leonard Carnaghi, resident.

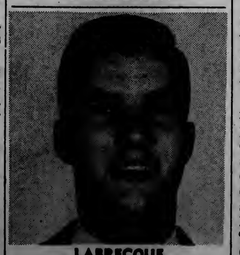
Officers Elected By Frats

Christensen Is PKP President

Lee Christensen, Chem. Eng. from Washington D. C., was recently elected president of Phi Kappa Pi, the Engineering fraternity. He held the former office of treasurer.

He is a member of the Villanova Engineer Staff, and Chi Epsilon Mu, the Honorary Engineering Society.

He teamed with Jim Foley in arranging for the Junior Week Jazz Festival.



He is presently planning a smoker for the 14th of this month.

Plans for next year include increased social functions, a Communion Breakfast, an Orphans outing and Dinner Dance.

Other officers elected are Jim Foley, Civil Eng., vice president; Brian Scully, Elec. Eng., treasurer; Harry Mitchell, Mech. Eng., secretary; Stan Ciesielski, Chem. Eng., Student Council Rep.; and George Kelly, Chem. Eng., Sergeant at arms.

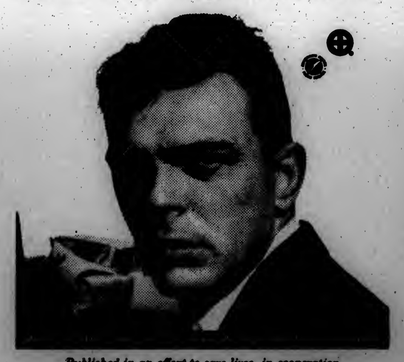
CHRISTENSEN

LABRECQUE

DPM Presidency To Labrecque

Tom Labreque, General Arts, was elected president of Delta Pi Mu, Arts Fraternity.

Labreque, in outlining plans for the coming year, noted that many innovations will take place in the frat's activity schedule.



The annual Joyce Kiely mile will feature new ideas for competition, in order to establish it as a permanent homecoming event.

In the spring, the year's highlight, the annual Dinner Dance, wil be held, and sometimes next year an arts festival will be presented for the benefit of the whole university.

Other officers of the fraternity are Denny Cardone, vice-president; Tom Peretti, treasurer; Ken Kraemer, recording secretary; and Matt McCue, corresponding secretary. Elected to the Executive Council were seniors Harry Rowe and Tom McAvoy, juniors Bob Bohn and Terry Curley, and soph Dave Gilbert.

"Why should a slow-poke burn me up?"

Joe Michell, Ace Pitcher, Helps 'Cats in Comeback

By TOM TROY

Pre-season talk on the fate of Villanova's baseball team was mainly concerned with the apparent absence of a strong pitching staff.

With star pitchers, Jack Kelly and Bob Kropiewnicke, either graduated and signed by major-league teams, it appeared that Villanova would be lacking that great essential—the big guys who can put the apple by the hitters.

The season thus far has proved all the talk to be just that-talk. With the exception of the LaSalle game, the Villanova hurlers have proven to be not only adequate, but sometimes outstanding.

And leading the mound corps is burly, wide-shouldered, dark-bearded Joe Michell. A senior finance major, Joe resembles Sal Maglie when he peers down from the mound for the signal, dark-browned and tough.

JOE MICHELL

Joe the Barber?

To a lesser extent Joe's pitching sometimes resembles the Barber's too. A good fast moving fast-ball and a snapping curve are Joe's best pitches, and he combines these with good control to effectively stifle the opposition's bats.

Last year Joe appeared in five games for Coach Art Mahan's NCAA tournament team. He started and completed two, winning them both, while compiling a 3-1 record.

Of special significance is Joe's earned run average-four runs in 31 innings for a gaudy 1.15 era. He also struck out 25.

To date Joe has appeared in five games and has a very good three and one record.

He started the Wagner game and worked six innings allowing no runs, but he was lifted in favor of a pinch hitter, He pitched shut out ball in a relief stint at Temple.

Joe Beat St. Joe's

His first decision came against Georgetown when he pitched the last five innings. His next game was his best, against St. Joseph's. While everyone was taken up by the Cats power (19 runs) they overlooked that Joe had allowed only four safeties and did his share with the stick going four for five.

Joe got no support in the Scranton game and suffered his first loss. The Wildcats committed no less than six errors during the five innings Joe pitched. He got the final batter out in the LaSalle game and got the win as the Cats rallied.

Joe is a resident of Ridley Park, Pennsylvania, and he commutes to Villanova every day. This, of course, isn't the ideal situation for an athlete but Joe philosophically shrugs it off.

"Sure, you might get a little extra tired driving back and forth every day; but if anyone likes baseball he'd do it. I don't mind it at all."

"We only get a few scholarships every year, but I don't think it makes a great deal of difference in the quality of our team. Sure, if we got 12 or 15 like Penn State and some other schools do, we'd go to the NCAA tourney every year, too.

Wants To Play Ball

"But we do pretty good as it is. And I think that any guy who has talent to play ball will play whether he has a scholarship or not. They certainly should, anyway!"

Joe envisions a career in the world of finance after he graduates this summer-if he doesn't sign a major league contract.

"I've got a few real general feelers. You know, a letter or phone call every now and then asking how you've been. A ticket to a game once in a while. Nothing real definite though.

"But I'll sign with anybody. I just like to play ball, and getting paid for it is really great."

There's no doubt Joe Michell likes to play ball. Go to a game or a practice session some time. Nobody works harder or longer than Joe—and that is class no matter where you go.

Glory Days Coming?

By TONY MACKLIN

The "old-time" 'Cats came back last Saturday, a little rounder, a little slower, and alot funnier. It was the 6th Annual Blue-White Day and if the old-timers' claws were a little less sharp, they made up for it with spirit.

They played ball like Fabian sings—with alot of guts!

At least we got a chance to see basketball at its most casual. The oldsters, led by "Pitching Paul Arizin, came up with three teams to make sure things wouldn't get dull. Dull it wasn't casual it was.

If Brooks Ricca had been "hot" he would have had 748 points. Another whirling dervish of shots and passes was Shy Raiken. Shy? Shy was about as shy as a Villanova nurse.

A third bundle of activity was Maje McDonnell, the Borra Minevitch of the basketball court. Sporting sunglasses and a green shirt, Maje proved to be the old-timers' hatchet man.

With Ricca, Raiken, and McDonnell leading an assault in the general direction of the basket, it was easy to see the necessity of the fence-protection.

One of the highlights of the old-timers potent offense was the old double decker play. McDonnell attached himself to Tom Brennan (1952) shoulders and then-missed the layup.

All in all the old-timers put on the finest exhibition of inaccuracy since this writer's last trig test.

The varsity cage men shape up as strong, fast, and deep. They could easily play platoon basketball next year they have so much depth. Saturday's aces included George Raveling and Hubie White. These two will set records. Also look for Dan Higgins when he comes off the bence next year.

Glory days are on the way.

But the 'Cats may not have to wait until next year for a Big Five championship. Although Art Mahan's nine took a sound thrashing from the blue and white of Seton Hall, they actually gained at the end of the day. LaSalle upset Temple to give VU sole occupancy of first place in the City Series struggle. If the Wildcats defeat weak St. Joe's they're champs. Let's hope we got the bad game out of our system Saturday.

The bad taste of a trimming in baseball will disappear a long time before the bad taste of an undeserved track victory. True, the official Wilfred Collin declared a foul against Pitt in the mile relay because Pitt's Zinnerford Smith banged into Jim Blackburn on the first lap, but that only cost the 'Cats approximately three yards.

The race was decided very definitely on the last lap. Mel Barnwell tore away from an over-extended and understandably worn out Charley Stead who had already participated in three events, including the 220 low hurdles which immediately preceded the mile event. Stead tried, but a fresher and faster Barnwell easily outdistanced him and hit the tape about 15 yards ahead of the VU anchor man.

I completely agree with gentleman Coach Jim Elliott who felt that the victory in the mile relay and the track meet should not be taken away from the Pitt Panthers. To my mind Pitt won a solid victory in the mile and the foul was merely incidental and not enough to make any difference in the final outcome of the race.

I would like to second guess Coach Elliott at this time. Why didn't he save the fantastic Ed Collymore, winner of the 100, the 220, and the 220 low hurdles, and run him in the mile relay instead of the hurdle event. If he had done this Charley Stead who came in second in the 220 low hurdles would have won the event. Jay Moody of Pitt would have taken second. If we could have taken third and gone on to win the mile led by Colly we would have won the meet 66-65. The question is could we have gotten the third place in the 220 low hurdles and the all important one point.

It seems that I have answered my own qquestion. Jumbo obviously felt that we weren't able to get that third without Colly. We had to assure two places in the hurdle event. So he ran Collymore and Stead. Undoubtedly, he was right. But that left Villanova with the task of building up a great lead and hoping Stead could hang on against Barnwell. The foul erased any chance of this. But even without the foul I don't think the 'Cats would have won. What do you think?

Tracksters Run At Coliseum

Jim Elliott and four of his prize trackmen willingly took Horace Greeley's advice this morning. They boarded a plane at 7:30 at Philadelphia's International Airport, bound for the West—specifically, Los Angeles.

They'll be running on Friday night in the Coliseum Relays, a track and field extravaganza which is run on a grass track in the cavernous home of the Los Angeles Dodgers.

The big race will be the mile relay. Sophomores Joe Manion and Nick DeAngelis (replacing junior Jim Blackburn) and seniors Charlie Stead and Ed Collymore will run against the finest quartets on the Pacific Coast and the Southwest—Texas, Texas A&M, California, USC, and Occidental.

Collymore, the defending NCAA 220 champion, will run in an invitational 100-yard dash against a star-studded field headed by Bobby Morrow and Ray Norton.

Practice Meet Saturday

On Saturday morning at 10:30 in Villanova Stadium, the remaining members of the varsity track team will compete against the freshmen in a "practice" meet under regular conditions.

Last Wednesday the Wildcats beat LaSalle, 84-42, for their 20th consecutive victory in dual and triangular meets. Collymore, with three first places, and Stead, with two firsts and a second, were the headliners.

Collymore ran 9.7 in winning the 100, beating Joe Manion and John Buckley. Colly won the 220 easily in 20.9, with Manion second and Blackburn third.

It was the 220 low hurdles in which Cambridge Comet made the most noise, however. He ran the event for the second time in his collegiate career (the first time was in his sophomore year), and not only won, but set a university record by covering the distance in 23.7. Stead was second and Jack Van Dusen was third.

DiMaio Impressive

Vic DiMaio looked excellent in winning the 880 in the very good time of 1:55.3. LaSalle's Charlie Del Rossi took second and DeAngelis took third.

Bob Godesky chalked up the fastest time for the two-mile in the Delaware Valley thus far this year as he won that event in 9:43.3. LaSalle's Jim Sumner was second and sophomore Lance Huglemeyer was third.

Stead won the 120-yard high hurdles in 15.3, while Van Dusen and LaSalle's Joe Tyler trailed him. It was Stead in the high jump, as well. He only had to clear 6-1 to beat LaSalle's Fred Cassidy and Wildcat John Buckley.

It was Buckley in his specialty—the broad jump—with a jump of 22'-7". Kent Lydic took second and LaSalle's Al Roesting and Bob Davis tied for third.

Deangelis Wins 440

DeAngelis copped the 440 from teammate Blackburn and LaSalle's Terry McGovern in 49.5. Explorer Pete Walheim won the mile in 4:27, beating Gene Rodgers and LaSalle's Dick Flint.

Norbert McNulty won the pole vault by clearing 13 feet, which was enough to top Lydic and LaSalle's Ed Barneman.

LaSalle won the other three field events. Bill Taylor put the shot 49-6 to beat teammate Jack Brabazon and Villanova's Al Samango. Taylor's brother, Bob, threw the discuss 153-1 to outdistance Brabazon and his brother. Bill Wetzler tossed the javelin 176-8, triumphing over Dick Kaminski and LaSalle's Walt Bilski.

As part of Blue-White Day, the track team edged Pittsburgh, 68-63, by winning the mile relay after Pitt was disqualified for some illegal tactics on the part of leadoff man Zinnerford Smith.

Pitt had finished first in 3:18.1, with Smith, Jay Moody, Vince Wojnar and Mel Barnwell besting Blackburn, DeAngelis, Manion and Stead. Stead, who won the high jump and high hurdles, had to run only 10 minutes after taking second in the grueling 220 low hurdles.

Another Record

Stead had tied Collymore's two-day-old- record in the 220 lows—23.7—but Colly, capping one of his finest days, set a new standard of 23.6 in winning his third event of the day.

Colly won the 100 in 9.6 and the 220 in 20.6, without being retally pushed in either race, even though Barnwell competed in the latter race. Manion was second in the century and Pitt's Moody third. Barnwell and Manion trailed Ed in the 220.

Barnwell won the 440 in 49.2, with DeAngelis and Blackburn following. DiMaio ran his second good 880 in a week, being timed in 1:55.8 while beating Pitt's Bill Hinchberger and Reed Clarke.

Godesky ran the fastest mile in the area so far this year—4:17—as he finished ahead of Pitt's Ron Rush and John Christof. The latter won the two-mile in 9:52.9, outlasting a game Huglemeyer. Rush was third, as Godesky was forced to withdraw.

Stead won the high hurdles in 14.8 over Pitt's Bill Bannow and Van Dusen, and the high jump with 6-5 over Pitt's Ed Shurlock and Buckley.

McNulty Wins Again

In the pole vault, it was McNulty again, this time at 12-6, beating Lydic and Pitt's Lee Pfronger. Buckley took the broad jump with 23-¼, topping Pitt's Ed Vamos and Ray Hoffitt.

The shot put, discus and javelin were swept by Pitt. Larry Och won the shot with 46-8½, with Dan Kanell and Dick Chadwick and Och second and third. Jim Cunningham took the javelin with 179-5. Bannow was second and Och again third.

On Friday, four freshmen—Frank Budd, Bob Coffill, Paul Drayton and Bob Raemore ran a 3:19.8 mile relay at Neshaminy High's Meet of Champions. They beat an all-star team composed of Joe Eagan, Ira Davis, Josh Culbreath and Charlie Rambert.

In the same meet, frosh Pat Nicastro defeated Ed Mather, ex-captain of St. Joseph's College in a 1:55.3 half-mile.

4000 Watch Blues Down Whites

GOLF

The opening event on the program for the day saw the Varsity golf team easily defeat the Old Timers 8 to 1 at Radnor Valley Country Club.

BASKETBALL

The varsity basketballers with Hubie White and George Raveling, next year's captain, stuffing the nets with 13 points apiece, led all the way to take the game 63-45.

The Old Timers obviously out for a good time were led by Paul Arizin with 10 points and Larry Hennessey and Joe Ryan with 8 apiece and the clowning of Maje McDonnell. The end of the game saw 5'9" McDonnell preched on 6'3" Tom Brennan's shoulders a la Globetrotters and missing a dunk and then getting three foul shots for being pushed. The varsity looked good considering their lack of practice and the game conditions and showed what everyone is hoping for, the ability to possibly be Villanova's greatest basketball team.

SWIMMING

The varsity swimming team in a real rough water polo game defeated the Old Timers 3 to 2. In a special swimming event the varsity 200 yard relay of Frank Keefe, Larry Palacio, Bob Pinto, and Ed Jenson defeated the Old Timers by 20 yards equalling the pool record in this event.

TRACK

Pitt provided the track competition and the Wildcats won by virtue of Pitts, disqualification in the mile relay by a score of 68-63.

BASEBALL

The baseball team had their string of six consecutive victories snapped by Seton Hall 8 to 2.

FOOTBALL

The climax to the day's activities saw the Whites yield to the harder running of the Blue's backs for two touchdowns both coming in the second half.

The kickoff saw the White receiving and losing the ball to the Blues on a fumble recovered by Paczkoskie. Ed Roehre tried a couple of pass plays but was rushed hard by the White line and had to kick. The Whites guided by Wayne Kautter moved from their 25 to midfield at the end of the quarter. The Blues then stiffened their defense and the Whites had to punt. The ball exchanged hands several times in the second quarter as neither team could make much headway against the other strong defense.

The Whites received at the beginning of the second half but again were stopped and had to kick. Reggie Powe then scampered on the longest run of the day with a 40 yard return. With Frank Ficcia slashing over tackle and bulldozing Paczkoskie driving up the middle, the Blue went down to the 2 yard line where Paczkoskie, smashed over for six points. Larry Sopko's extra point try at the new 28 foot wide goal posts was wide and the Blues kicked off ed to the Whites. The Whites marched 30 yards only to have an interception of Tom O'Rourke's pass by Ken McNeil quench it. With Nick Langone hitting Russo on a swing for a first down and then a short pass to Chuck Walsh and a run by McNeil gave the Blues a first down on the Whites 31 yard line. Langone threw again to Walsh who made a beautiful diving catch gave Blue another first down on the 17. Then Russo scampered over tackle to waltz 17 yards into the end zone for the T.D. to make it 12-0.

Sopko's kick this time was good and made it 13-0. The clock ran out as the Whites started another drive.

FATHERS DAY

All things considering, the Blue-White was a huge success.

It was a beautiful day from the weather standpoint. The sun was shining all day and the temperature hoovered around 75°.

The Blue-White festivities were correlated with the Seniors Fathers Day. The seniors and their dads moved from one event to the other to see as much as possible. This is the one problem of Blue-White Day it is like trying to watch a three ring circus. All the events are good and you don't know which one to watch.

One fellow had it almost figured out—he watched the Old Timers basketball game, stopped in at the Swimorama on his way to the baseball field. He hurried from here to the stadium to watch the track meet and sat in the top row to keep his eye on the baseball game. After the football game he smiled and said "he just plain forgot there was a golf match.

Golfers Win Last End Fine Season

By ED McLAUGHLIN

Last Saturday at Aronomink Country Club, Villanova's highly successful golf team defeated the alumni, 8 to 1.

The match was held as part of Blue-White Day festivities.

On the Wednesday previous, the Cats linksmen were outclassed by a very impressive Penn team, 5-2, at Llanerch Country Club. In the Penn match, Villanova's Dave Doyle, a soph, established a schol record by firing a blazing par 72.

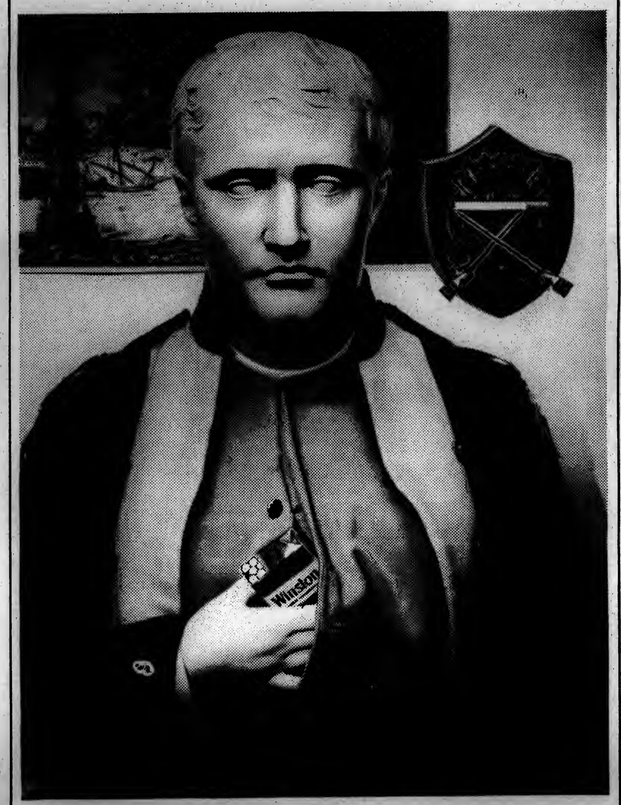
Despite the defeat, the first of the year for Jim Elliot's minions, Reg Zurinskas kept intact his undefeated record as he and twin brother Ron recorded identical scores on the front and back nines, 38-38 for 76's. Captain Nick Aquilino shop a 79.

The excellent team average of 76 achieved by the Cats was not enough to avert their first defeat, however. The Quakers, paced by the sub-par shooting of Dave Doneburg, were just too much for the Wildcats.

Two days before the Penn match, Villanova had shut out the Orangemen from Seton Hall, 9-0, at Aronomink C. C.

Drexel Downed

Last Friday, the Cats linksmen journeyed to Drexel and proved to be most unwelcome visitors, swamping the Dragons, 11-2.



After this match, Elliot disclosed that his charges will definitely participate in the Eastern Collegiate Golf Tournament to be held next fall.

Jumbo Jim further observed that he was quite pleased with his team's 9-1 record to date.

(As we go to press, the only opponent for the Cats was St. Joe's who were defeated earlier in the season, 6½-2½. This match was held Monday).

He noted that with several promising upperclassmen returning, including recordbreaker Doyle, indications are that next year's team will also be strong.

A Big Five Title Today - Maybe

By JIM MURRAY

Today is the day you can see Villanova clinch its first Big Five trophy.

The sport, baseball, the time, 2:30, the place, Villanova Stadium, the reason, a good team that really hustled.

That's the story of Coach Art Mahon's baseball team this season, real hustle and the ability to come back when the chips were down.

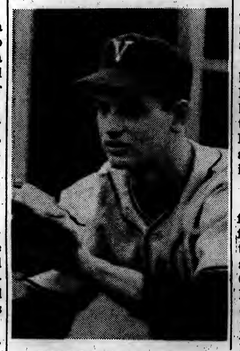
None of the Wildcats baseball rooters expected too much with this year's team with all the major league signings and the big question marks in the pitching department. Nobody except the coach and the boys on the team, who believed they were just as good as any team.

Come Back Trail

It took a lot of practice on a lot of cold days, and after two straight Big Five losses by a total of three runs, it looked like all the practice was for nought.

Then everything started paying-off—the practice, the hustle, the coaching, the hard work. The Wildcats have come back to win their last five Big Five games in a row. A win against St. Joe's today means the title.

St. Joe's aren't to be undersold, they lost their first game by a wide margin to Temple and snapped back to win the second. So the 'Cats will need plenty of help from the stands today.



Tomorrow the 'Cats meet Lafayette at Easton, Pa. and Friday take on Navy at home.

Black and Blue Day

Last week's action saw a winning streak of six straight come-to-a-halt on Blue-White Day with a loss to Seton Hall 8-2.

Highlights of the game for the 'Cats was their first inning start when Ande Meade clouted a double to knock in the first run. The only other Wildcat tally came in the eighth when Paul Borian smashed a double over the stadium to bring a run home.

Seton Hall took a while to get started, but hit losing pitcher Frank Kreutzer in the sixth and seventh, and collected three runs in each inning. Connie Egan, Orangemen pitcher, was sent to the showers in the seventh but his reliefer Joe Tosies put on the fire and save the game for Egan.

GEORGE EMMA (Capt.)

Penn Pinned

In games with the University of Pennsylvania last week the Wildcats and Frank Kreutzer looked very impressive.

On Thursday, Hal Bauser started for Villanova but in the 88° heat he walked 10 men in six innings. The team had a one run lead due to a pinch hit single by powerful lefty Bill Platio.

Then Kreutzer came in with the bases full and cooled Penn off by striking out the last man. He froze them out the rest of the way striking out five in the seventh and eighth. In the ninth Don McGinley made a beautiful grab of a ground ball, touched second for a force and threw to first for a game ending double play.

On Monday afternoon, May 4th at Penn, Frank Kreutzer struck out fifteen Quakers and shut them out with a 6-0 win.

Eddie Monahan with three hits, Freddie Anthony with 2 RBI's and Tom Griffith with a home run were the big guns for the Wildcats at the plate. Frank Kreutzer helped himself out with a tremendous line drive homer in the fifth, he also had a single.

Penn had a lot of rallies going, This was evident from the first inning to the ninth. In the first inning Frank got the first two batters, on a fly to second and a strikeout, then left hander Charlie Kahn belted a single to left field. Gordon Achillies then drilled a one ball two strike pitch over the third base sack for a two base hit. Herky Rubaicam walked and the bases were loaded. Kreutzer reared back and fired three strikes across the dish, which Warren McPherson stood with bat in hand and that was the inning.

Although the Wildcats had six runs they too left many men stranded on base.

Although the Wildcats had six runs they too left many men stranded on base.

Some of the interesting highlights after the fourteen games played to date, Jack Fahey has more than filled the gap behind the plate, while Freddie Anthony has saved at least two ball games with spectucular plays at shortstop. Hal Bauser and Frank Kreutzer have given the 'Cats that one two punch in the pitching department. They have have plenty of help from Joe Michell, Lee Parry, and Harry Neff.

Bobby Klinck roams around second like he lives there. George Emma makes his home at first. Around third the "old timers" Dave Hinnigan and Jim Huggard provide all kinds of spirit and baseball savvy.

The outfielders, Paul Borian, Tom Griffith, Joe Cramer, and last but not least by any means Eddie Monahan have given opposing pitchers nightmares with their bats. (They given the coach some bad dreams—too).

ART MAHAN (Coach)

Coach Craftsman

Coach Art Mahon, has molded the members of last year's NACC Tournament Squad into a solid nucleus for this year's starting lineup. With double-play combination of Anthony Klinck and Emma have stopped opponents cold. Left with no starting catcher the coach was faced with his most serious problem, we went to work with Jack Fahey. The results were asounding. Through the coach's handling Jack has become a first rate catcher.

The team's batting average is around the 300 mark. A tribute to the coaches fine handling. The coach sure has quite a few jobs to do—and there there all done quite effecientiy. just look at the record.

CATS BATS . . . Harry Neff, right handed pitcher, could be the best third base coach in college ball. Harry sure is tough in that coach's box. He's even tougher in the pitcher's box . . . Coach Art Mahon wants to have sign cards made for players who niss signals . . . the coach pulled a muscle in his leg during the Penn game when he jumped up to dispute a call—Penn coach, Jack McClosky kidded him after the game and said, "you can't charge those umpires, coach."

Msgr. Ostheimer Receives Award; New Staffs Named

"You have a story to tell, so tell it well," advised Rt. Rev. Msgr. Anthony L. Ostheimer, recipient of the annual St. Augustine Award at the VILLANOVAN-WVIL dinner dance Saturday night.

At the affair, Thomas M. Wolf, Arts junior, was named editor of the paper for next year, and Daniel J. O'Mara, C and F freshman, was announced new WVIL station manager.

"The world needs good people in the communicative arts," Msgr. Ostheimer told the large assembly in the Adams Room of the Warwick Hotel.

Wrong Editorials

He frowned on editors who allow editorials to creep into the wrong columns, but was equally perturbed with readers who relish calling columists and editors "liars and criminals," merely because they print the truth.

Msgr. Ostheimer, editor of the CATHOLIC STANDARD AND TIMES, official publication of the Archdiocese of Philadelphia, was selected as the fourth winner of the award, given in the name of the VILLANOVAN.

Rev. Louis Rongione, O.S.A., dean of Villanova's graduate division and moderator of the VILLANOVAN, presented the award.

Succeeds O'Rourke

Wolf succeeds Lawrence M. O'Rourke as editor of the publication. A graduate of Lancaster Catholic High School, he is a 2/c midshipman in the Villanova NROTC and a dean's list student.

He intends to pursue the field of journalism upon completion of his term in the Navy.

"We plan no drastic changes in the policies which have been already established by the outgoing staff," he said, "but there will be efforts to add more features. More news features will probably appear on the front page."

The first major effort under Wolf's new staff was the special edition which came out Mother's Day of Junior Week.

He hopes to lure more juniors onto the paper, since the editorial staff includes only four in editorial positions, the remainder coming from the freshmen and sophomore classes.

Junior Cooperation

"The Junior Week paper was an instance of mass junior class cooperation," he said, adding that "their work had obvious professional quality."

James McAteer, Arts sophomore, was appointed feature editor. He is a resident of Philadelphia, and a dean's list student.

The sports staff will be headed by James Murray, junior English major, a one year veteran on the paper. He expects to chronicle "Villanova's biggest sports year."

Newly appointed co-circulation managers are Herbert Lettau and Walt France, both juniors.

Joseph Perozziello, junior C & F, was named to head the VIL-

Gov. Lawrence To Deliver Graduation Talk June 1st

Msgr. Anthony L. Ostheimer addresses VILLANOVAN-WVIL staff members at dinner dance Saturday. "You have a story to tell," he said. "Tell it well."

Commencement Oration By Robert Wagner, Engineer

The Class of 1959, the 117th to matriculate at Villanova, will be graduated on June 1.

Over 700 students of the various divisions of the University will receive degrees during ceremonies to be held in the Field House.

The Hon. David L. Lawrence, Govenor of Pennsylvania, will deliver the address to the new graduates. Robert F. Wagner, senior Electrical Engineer, will deliver the Commencement Oration.

Academic Procession

Ceremonies will begin at 11 a.m. with the formal academic procession from the vicinity of Dougherty Hall to the Field House.

Following the Invocation by the Very Rev. Henry E. Greenlee, O.S.A., Provincial of the St. Thomas of Villanova Province, Wagner will speak. A musical selection will follow.

Honorary degrees of Doctor of Laws will then be conferred upon Gov. Lawrence and J. Griffith Boardman, president of Boardman-Hamilton Company.

Prince Alexis A. Droutsky, editor and publisher of "American Helicopter" magazine, will become an honorary Doctor of Human Letters.

Receiving honorary Doctorates of Science wil be R. G. Rincliffe, president of the Philadelphia Electric Company; Dr. William W. Rubey, of the United States Geological Survey; Dr. William A. Sodeman, dean of Jefferson Medical School; and John A. White, Villanova Alumnus.

The Graduate Pledge will be recited, and the Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O.S.A., President of Villanova, will confer degrees upon the graduates, after which Gov. Lawrence will speak.

The exercise will conclude with Solemn Benediction, to be celebrated by Fr. Greenlee.

Navy Commissions

Following the graduation, Capt. J. W. Higgins, USN, will officiate at the commissioning ceremonies for this year's NROTC class. Fr. Donnellon will be in attendance at the exercises. For the first time in Villanova's history, six nurses will be commissioned Navy ensigns, along with the 40 men receiving commissions.

New LYNX Editor Hopes To Double Output Next Year

There may be four issues of the Lynx next year, according to Frank Murtha, newly appointed editor of the publication.

All this hinges on his hope that there will be a marked increase in acceptable material. He said, "It has not been expense that has prohibited publication of four issues in the past; it has been a dire lack of good articles."

Currently, the Lynx, Villanova's literary magazine, comes out twice a year, once each semester.

Promises Position

He plans a meeting of interested writers early next fall, and promises a position to anyone who attends. He hopes to improve the general constitution of the magazine in the process.

"In the past few years, there has been a decided lack of talent in the creative writing field, with some noted exceptions," he said. "Issue after issue the Lynx has had to struggle to compile enough worthwhile material. In a university of our size and standing, this is a deplorable situation."

Adding that the Lynx is the sole showcase for undergraduate creative thought, he stated that, in his opinion, it is a showcase which has been disappointingly bare for the past few years.

"Where does the fault lie?" he asked. Then he proceeded to answer his own question.

Students' Fault

"It lies with the students," he said. "The Lynx staff can only work with what the students submit. It is up to the student body to produce and submit publishable material."

Renewed interest is the only solution Murtha saw for raising the Lynx from its "mediocre position among college literary magazines." He emphasized that it is not the worst college magazine, although it is not the best.

FRANK MURTHA
New Lynx Editor

For prospective writers he offered this assurance: "We cannot promise to publish everything that is submitted, but we do promise to evaluate and constructively criticize every article we receive, whether it be poetry, fiction, or essay."

Succeeds Dynan

Murtha succeeds Frank Dynan as editor of the magazine, and was appointed by moderators Dr. John S. Phillipson and James Mitchell of the English Department.

Hoffman Names Executive Vice Presidents to Council

Tom Hoffman, new Student Council Chairman, will announce tonight the appointments of three executive vice-presidents to the Student Council.

Filling the posts will be Fred Wiele, Ken Kraemer, and Bill Vincent, class representatives to the Council.

Wiele will be vice president of Student Government in charge of these committees: Ways and Means, Fraternity and Societies, Social Affairs, and Elections.

Past Treasurer

He was treasurer for the past Council and was appointed "on the basis of his work as Chairman of the Student Union and Special Problems Committee, and service on the Cabinet, the chief administrative agency of the Council," said Hoffman.

Kraemer, who will be vice president of Education, will supervise the Academic Affairs and Religious Activities committees.

Kraemer, in his first term on the Council, will also serve as chairman of the Student-Faculty Committee, which meets with Rev. Joseph Boyle, O.S.A., and which is closely allied with the Academic Affairs Committee.

Spirit Committee

Vincent, who will be vice president of Student Affairs, will be in charge of the Spirit Committee, the Student Union and Special Problems Committee, and the Student Activities Committee.

He is newly elected treasurer of the Council.

The offices of vice president were established, according to Hoffman, only two years ago "to assist the officers of the Council to carry out the executive responsibilities."

Tonight outgoing Chairman Bob Murphy will give an evalu-

Sr. Festival SetForMay29

Tickets are on sale now for the Senior Parting Festival, to be held May 29, at Medford Lakes Lodge, in New Jersey, according to T. Walker Lloyd, festival chairman.

The chairman emphasized that for a successful parting, the senior class must show its full support since the function is being financed solely by ticket sales.

Sporting facilities, a buffet dinner, and dancing are being featured at this last senior class event.

Father Clark At Sigma XI Installation

Mathematics is defined only in terms of the abstract, said Rev. Joseph Clark to the 18 members of the newly formed Sigma Xi club last Wednesday evening in Dougherty Hall east lounge.

His talk, " Philosophy of Science—A Point of Departure," was preceeded by the official presentation of the Sigma Xi charter to the Villanova Research Club by the chairman of the physics department of Lehigh University.

Canisius College

Father Clark is a member of the faculty at Canisius College, Buffalo, New York.

He has written two books on the subject of philosophy of science, and has also done work in the field of labor management.

At present he is the president of the American Institue of Management.

Sigma Xi is a national science research organization whose members are, as their motto says, "Companions in Zealous Research."

Scientific Research

The organization admits anyone who makes a significant addition to the field of scientific research.

These 18 members of the Villanova faculty comprise the local Sigma XI club.

ation of the Council's work this past year, which he intends to serve as an incentive to the new Council.

There will be a general orientation for the new members into how the body operates. The general operations of parliamentary procedure will be reviewed, said Hoffman.

The Council will deliberate on three or four motions at the session, including those concerning the student trip next year, and changing the NFCCS dance into one sponsored by the Council. Responsibility for the dance will fall upon the Social Affairs Chairman next year, if passed.

The Senate Monday made recommendations to the Congress concerning the above motions. Elected to the Senate at the May 11 meeting were: Juniors Jack King, John Driscoll, Bill Henry, and Fred Wiele. Sophomores elected were Eileen Greyson and John Valva. Freshmen elected were Jim McGonagle and Len Farnaghi.

Delaney Pres. Of Semper Fi

Officers were elected at last Thursday's meeting of the Semper Fidelis.

They are Richard Delaney, president; Frank Xavier, vice-president; James Phair, secretary; Tony Nastri, treasurer; Richard Wilder, Student Council representative; Bob Rose, recording secretary; Fred Fagan, orientation chairman; and Charles Swartz, social chairman.

At 10:30 tomorrow morning, an officers meeting will be held at John Barry Hall to determine next year's policies.

Semper Fidelis is a campus organization composed of officer candidates in the Platoon Leaders Course, Marine reservists and ex-Marines.

The basic purpose of the society, according to Delaney, is to train future marine officers in the basic elements of amphibious warfare.

His plans for next year include a dinner dance, excursions to various military installations, semi-monthly classes on Marine warfare, and a complete program of motion pictures.

The officers advise all PLC's and people planning on joining Marine officer training courses to participate in the program and classes the organization offers.

O'Mara WVIL Manager

O'Mara, newly appointed WVIL Station Manager, is a resident of Staten Island, N.Y. He attended the Augustinian Academy there, and entered Villanova this year.

He declared that he hoped to fulfill the expectations of the retiring staff for the continued expansion of WVIL, and to deserve the confidence they placed in him and his staff.

"Future WVIL policy will be marked by few changes from this year's policy," O'Mara stated.

"We intend to continue programming shows of high quality, with possibly greater emphasis on scheduling music specifically requested by the average listener.

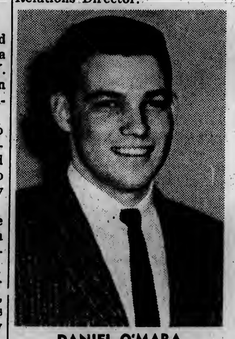
Public Eye

"Our public relations staff will always be working to keep the station in the public eye, and to provide listeners with accurate and complete program listing.

"As for the station in general," he continued, "the great interest shown by students indicates that an expansion program would be a general benefit to the University.

"If the current trend continues, we may expect that, in a few years, WVIL will be the voice of Villanova both on and off campus."

Staff Heads



O'Mara's staff heads for next year were also announced at the Dinner Dance.

John Oberlies was named Program Director, Carl Schmitt, Traffic Manager, Hank Greve, Chief Librarian; Mike Tighe, head of the Production Staff, and Ted Folsom, head of the Business department.

Chief Engineer is Al Lawler, Mike Pastore is Technical Engineeer, and Mark Devaney is Studio Engineer.

Bill Dzubak was named Music Director and Chief Announcer is Bill Diepenbrock. Butch McNally will head the News and Sports department.

Bob DeLisa was named Personnel Director, and Frank Thornton will serve as Public Relations Director.

DANIEL O'MARA

Elect Sorority Pres.

Connie Bracken, Villanova nurse, was recently elected president of the Pi Theta Chi Nursing Sorority.

Other officers elected include: Ann McCrea, vice president; Judy DeStephano, secretary; and Mary Pat O'Neill, treasurer.

JOHNNIES JOLT JUNIORS AT JAMBOREE

By JOE DUROCHER

Young Tommy Shannon took a bite of his mustard-covered hot dog, washed it down with grape juice, and then turned his attention to the cookies, apple sauce, and baked beans.

His buddy Mike, hanging from a tree with a block of dripping ice cream, caught his eye, and the two smiled. A vanilla smile and a mustard smile.

Day-Long Picnic

It was a rare day for the boys from Saint John's Home. The air was clear, brisk, and happy as they romped, two-hundred and fifty strong, over the Jordan estate, Ivyknoll, at the Johnnies' Jamboree.

The idea for the day-long picnic and credit for its overwhelming success belongs to Mrs. Richard Jordan and her committee of volunteers.

At times it was hard to tell who was having the most fun, the boys or the volunteers. There was not an idle hand or foot as the "Johnnies" ran from beanbag, to ring toss, to basketball and football games.

Pony Rides

One of the biggest hits with the kids was the pony and donkey rides. The ponies did take time off to jump a fence and visit the Jordan's neighbors, but they were rounded up by a posse of daring Johnnies and Villanova juniors.

And with the arrival of Ray "Rifleman" Rafferty and Jim "Fast Gun" Foley, the horse problems of the afternoon were over.

The seven acres of activity never seemed to be without an appropriate musical background. Eddie Bingham, "The Maestro of the Main Line" entertained the carnival-gay crowd with his "giant" Wurlitzer electric piano. Roving musicians and singers were in abundance, with a rock and roll combo from Radnor High swinging out in front.

Noted Thomistic Scholar To Join Philosophy Staff

It has recently been announced that Dr. James Anderson, one of the foremost Catholic philosophers in the United States, will join the Villanova faculty at the beginning of the 1959 Summer Session.

Anderson received his doctorate from the University of Toronto. He has taught at Marquette University and is presently a member of the faculty at Notre Dame University. He became a convert to Catholicism in 1940.

Noted Author

Author of several books on Metaphysics, Anderson's outstanding work is "The Bond Of Being." He is also renowned for his translations of St. Thomas Aquinas .

During the Summer session, Anderson will teach a graduate course on the "Analogy of Being". He will teach the Metaphysics of St. Thomas during the 1959 fall semester.

The Philosophy Department further announced that several of its members recently attended the annual Convention of the American Catholic Philosophical Association in New York.

Dr. Roland Houde presided as chairman of the Logic section. Dr. Donald Gallagher and Dr. James Anderson are presently members of the Executive Council.

Rolls SEA Delegate

James P. Rolls of Villanova has been chosen one of the two state representatives to attend the national meeting of the Student Education Association.

Rolls, who is president of the local chapter of the Association, and vice-president of the Student Pennsylvania State Education Association, will attend the conference at Lawrence, Kansas, during the latter part of June.

The conference is held under the auspices of the Commission on Teacher Education and Professional Standards.

Parker Lectures Here

"Realistic Appraisal of Knowledge" was the title of a lecture delivered by Dr. Francis Parker, Ph.D. a member of the philosophy department at Haverford College. Parker spoke in the East Lounge of Dougherty Hall on May 12.

Rev. Robert Russell, O.S.A., chairman of the Department attended the annual meeting of the Catholic Commission on Cultural and Intellectual Affairs held in St. Louis on May 8 and 9.

Dr. Gallagher, vice-chairman of the department contributed four chapters on, "American Philosophic Thought and the Western Tradition" to "The History of Philosophy," by Johannes Hischberger, published recently by the Bruce Publishing Company.

Two Chem Majors Wins Awards For Scholastic Work

Dr. G. N. Quam, chairman of Villanova's Chemistry department, recently announced awards received by two senior Chemistry majors.

Thomas F. Swank will receive a scholastic achievement award at the May 21 meeting of the Philadelphia Section of the American Chemical Society. The award includes a $25 savings bond and the inscription of Swank's name on the department plaque.

Frank J. Wunderlich received the gold medal of the American Institute of Chemistry at its May 14 meeting. Wunderlich and Swank hold the top scholastic positions among senior Chemistry majors this year.

Quam further announced the participation of the department in a number of scientific gatherings during the summer. He will participate in the Gordon Conference on Corrosion as a member of a Navy research team. This conference will be held July 20 to 24 at Colby College, New London, N. H.

Dr. Kenneth O'Driscoll will attend the Gordon Research Conference on Polymers at Colby on July 6 to 10. O'Driscoll will be sponsored by a National Science Foundation Grant.

Dr. Thomas Doyne will attend a symposium of the American Crystallographic Association at Cornell University on July 19 to 24, and Dr. James Markham is participating in a National Science Foundation Conference on Chemical Instrumentation at New York University on August 17 to September 4.

Attendance at these conferences is limited, Quam stated, and it is a tribute to the department to be invited to attend.

Library Adds Copy of Rare Manuscript

Mr. and Mrs. John M. McChesney of Moorestown, New Jersey have donated to the Villanova Library a copy of the Book of Kells that was manufactured in Switzerland.

The original copy of this work was made by the Monastery of Kells, Ireland, probably during the 7th or 8th century. It is considered one of the most valuable manuscripts in the history of civilization.

It is famous for the script and especially for the art work that appears on many of its pages. This photo copy, published in a limited edition in Switzerland has a great many plates in the original colors.

It has been out of print for a number of years and the Villanova copy was obtained in England.

The McChesney's have two sons that attended Villanova; John Jr. and Kevin. Mr. and Mrs. McChesney have been on the Executive Committee of the Friends of the Library for over 15 years.

Great Manuscripts

The Book of Kells will be placed on the library shelves with other great manuscripts that were written in Ireland during the so called Dark Ages.

Among the famous Irish manuscripts in the Villanova library are Lindisfarne Gospels said to have been written in 698, Book of Armagh, 8th century, Book of Ballymote 13th or 14th century, Yellow Book of Lecan 1416, and Leabhar Breac or speckled book written at the close o fthe 14th century.

A.S. Dinner Dance

Charlie McClain and Ed Utsch, senior accounting majors, were joint recipients of the Accounting Society's award at the society's annual dinner dance last Saturday night at the Peacock Gardens.

Both McClain and Utsch have received straight A's in all accounting courses taken by them.

Society officers for the coming year were also announced Saturday by the society moderator, George Chorba.

Elected president was Bill Coyle: vice-president, Matt O'Rourke; secretary, Bill Campbell; treasurer, John Daly; and Ed Scott, student council representative.

MIDN. Story Published

U.S. Naval Institute Proceedings, professional magazine of the U.S. Naval Academy, has accepted for publication an article written by Joseph DuRocher, I.A. junior.

As a third year Navy student, DuRocher wrote the paper titled "An NROTC Midshipman Looks at a Naval Career" in conjunction with his studies of Naval Science.

McDevitt ASCE Pres.

The Villanova chapter of the American Society of Civil Engineers held their annual elections on Friday, May 8.

Elected president of A.S.C.E. was Charles McDevitt, junior C.E. The other officers are vice-president, James Foley; treasurer, James Morrisey; secretary, Joseph Kane; Student Council representative, Ralph Reynolds; and VILLANOVAN Representative, James Romeo.

Law School Awarded Grant For Insurance Research

A grant of $17,500 has been received by Villanova University from the American Title Association, it was announced yesterday by the Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O.S.A., University President.

The grant has been awarded to the University's School of Law for a comprehensive survey of the title inaurance regulations in the various states of the various states of the union. The study will commence this summer.

Mr. Joseph Smith, Executive Secretary of the American Title Association presented the check to Villanova's law Dean, Dr. Harold Gill Reuschlein during a meeting of officials of the Association and the University at Villanova this week.

Nearly 100 title companies representing some 35 state have subscribed to the grant supporting the survey.

Villanova Law professors Ernest Roberts and Francis E. Holahan will direct the project for the law school.

A book will be published on the findings according to the terms of the grant.

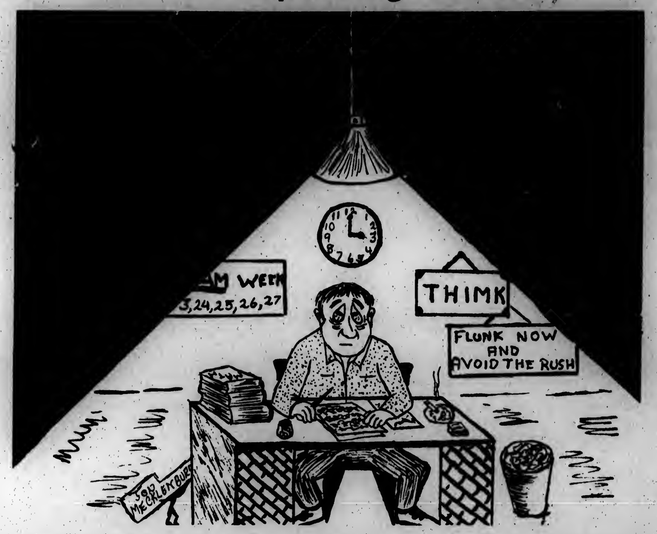
Who Had More Fun?

It appears that Johnnies Jamboree, a junior project, should become an institution. The juniors would like this, and so would the St. John's Orphanage nuns and Rosemont College—to say nothing of a large crew of eager Johnnies.



It was hard to discern just who enjoyed themselves more—the juniors who engineered the party, or the Johnnies for whom it was engineered. Broad childish grins were ample reward for the juniors, who found themselves cleverly utilized as beasts of burden, targets, and financiers.

We doubt that any junior had occasion to reflect on the fact that, amid all this fun, he was simultaneously exercising the virtue of charity. It would be laudable if the class of '61 repeats this instance of painless charity next year, and the Class of '62 the year after.

This charity could even take on selfish aspects. Whose heart wouldn't be won by these tykes . . . by the youngster who yanked off the puppet's leg to prove it wasn't human . . . by the kid who was hit by a line drive, began to cry excruciating tears, and suddenly became very quiet when kissed by a Rosemont girl . . . by the awed manner in which the boys addressed each junior as "mister?"

The fact that they were good will ambassadors from Villanova never occurred to the juniors. But nevertheless they made a deep impression in many little hearts at St. John's Orphanage last weekend.

Set For Impending Disaster

With the Editor:

Praise From '28 Editor

More often than not, human efforts go unsung. It is natural to condemn—not so easy to commend. Recently we received a correspondence from one Joseph J. Rinaldi, who we learn was one of the founders of the weekly VILLANOVAN back in 1928. He had nothing but praise for the way Larry O'Rourke and his staff conducted this paper during their tenure.

He made special mention of its steady growth in composition—its "newsiness and spirit."

It was in June of '28 that Jim Henry, Ed Lovett and Rinaldi discussed the idea of a weekly VILLANOVAN to replace the then quarterly issue under the same name. In the fall of the year it became a reality.

Arduous Task

As Renaldi phrased it, "The task was arduous and with God's help and the tenacity and vigor of both Jim and Ed we managed to get a staff together and 'beat out' weekly copies."

The first issue of theirs was of blue typing on white paper, the idea being to sing out the school colors, and "as usual, the good Fathers were always ready to lend a hand," he said.

They solicited ads—for in those days there were no such things as subsidies—and sold individual copies around the local communities. Renaldi recalls the hard times and the many temptations to shuffle off the whole burden and close shop. . .

"The longer I am removed from graduation," he adds, "the more sentimental I get, and suppose this is true of all graduates. But the refreshing thought which compensates this passing of time is the thought that some part of you remains at Villanova, and in the instant matter, it is the VILLANOVAN."

Returnt for Reunions

The members of the staff who spend those infinite hours, days, weeks, and months, certainly feel the same as Rinaldi. So much so with him that whenever he comes to the yearly reunion, he never fails to visit the office, look at the old picture and reminisce.

To O'Rourke he says: "Congratulations on your improvement—your editorials and general know-how. It makes an old timer feel good to see an effort become a monument."

Reply to Letter of 'Mister C and F'

To the Editor:

In reply to Mr. C and Fers I would like to shed some light on his last "provocative" question in his letter. He would like to know why a C and Fer was president of Delta Pi Mu (the Arts fraternity). Perhaps if he bothered to check the facts he would find that this former president was in Arts when he pledged and had the loyalty not to change his fraternity affiliation when he switched course labels.

Thanks Cannon for Blasting Jim Turner

To the Editor:

I just read John J. Cannon's letter concerning a recent review in the VILLANOVAN of the musical comedy "Gypsy." I suspected that there was something wrong with the review when I read it and I thank Mr. Cannon for showing me just what it was.

Like the author of the review (Jim Turner), I thought it strange that a strip-tease artist should be such a heroine.

Luckily, however, Mr. Cannon announced to us less informed theater-goers that Gypsy Rose Lee "was never a strip-teaser in the ordinary sense of the word." (And you can take that for what it's worth Mr. Turner!)

I was also glad to see that Mr. Cannon has studied the writings of the critics whom Mr. Turner "disparages" and that Mr. Cannon had acquired "something of critical balance and detachment" (whatever that is) with which to review the situation.

Four Years — No More

By DON KEMPF

It was a hot summer day and Sister Mary Margaret said she'd see us all again in the fall. It was the last day of class for St. Tim's and the breeze off of Lake Michigan whispered that the water was waiting for young swimmers. It was great to be going home for the summer. There would be three months of fun. And in the fall, when the water was getting cold and the leaves a little old, we would wash behind our ears, put on a clean shirt and head for St. Tims—where all "the kids would laugh and sing and violate the rules." I remember that in fourth grade one of the kids moved to another city. Before he left his mom had a party for him and we all came, brought presents, had cake and ice cream, and sang songs. But I was very sad. I knew that I would never see him again.

Classes are ending again on another hot summer day with a hint of summer fun in the air. But for the Seniors—the Class of 1959—the coming of summer brings a new sadness with it. For the first time in his life there is no fall with its return to the campus and to old friends ahead of him.

Oh, maybe they'll meet again—but it won't be the same. Rummy will be smoking a pipe instead of bumming cigarettes, Digger will be talking about his two kids instead of philosophy, and Ken will probably say "It's good to see you," instead of "What do ya say, Jocko."

Yeah, its been a lot of fun—from the rah-rah freshman days straight through to the days of cynical seniorism. But it's all over . . . and nothing can bring it back. Maybe it's best that way though, for there could never be another Wildcat Romp, or V-6 or trip to Bermuda with the ones—and there would be no enjoyment found in another Junior week. "College life" spans four years—no more, no less.

There is a free-thinking, cynical senior with a lock of black hair always out of place at his forehead who will probably be my fondest memory of Villanova. And I'm sure he would describe the termination of college life by stealing, as he alway does, a line from A. E. Houseman:

I see it shining plain,
The happy highways where I went
And can not come again.

Scorns Campus Irreverence to Flag

To the Editor:

You see it at football games, baseball games and every Tuesday afternoon: non-Americanism. I'm speaking in particular of the irreverence towards the American flag by the Villanova students.

We have those students who will not only sit or lie on their backside during the lowering of the flag but will at the same time laugh and really make a joke of the whole thing.

When will Villanovans begin observing proper reverence for the flag?

Summaries You Asked For

By JIM McATEER

"Readers' Digest" goofed! In supplying instant culture to the multitude, it neglects many great books, including the classics, to the consternation of English professors and others. To supply this dire necessity—condensed classics—I am making public the ten top literary gems from my own semi-private collection:

"Les Miserables"—Hugo. Jean Valjean, a nice guy at heart, steals a hunk of bread and is chased by a detective through the sewer.

"Sherlock Holmes"—Doyle. Sherlock goes around solving ridiculously "elementary" crimes, and making fools of all the poor, honest, hard working Scotland Yard men.

"Canterbury Tales"—Chaucer. A bunch of pilgrims tell a bunch of stories. Offhand, I can't remember any of them.

"Dr. Jekyll & Mr. Hyde"—Stevenson. A mad scientist with a split personality goes around causing a public nuisance.

"Romeo & Juliet"—Shakespeare. Two young lovers, kept apart by their parents, kill themselves instead of eloping like sensible people.

"War and Peace"—Tolstoy. The first thousand pages are the hardest.

"Where Did You Go? Out. What Did You Do? Nothing."—Smith. Nothing.

"Dr. Zhivago"—Pasternak. I don't know ,and after all Nikita has said about it, I'm not sure I want to know.

"Crime & Punishment"—Dostoyevsky. I never finished it, so I really can't say.

"On The Road"—Kerouac. The end.

Term Play

Speaking of literature, everyone runs into the problem of the term paper. You sweat and slave in the Library, trying to turn out deathless prose, and then flunk the course.

But no one ever thinks of writing a term play, even though the play is crawling with advantages over plain old prosaic prose.

Suppose you are told to write on the Old South. All you have to say is, "Scene—A Southern Plantation." With no more effort, you have a columned mansion, magnolia-flavored accents, the battle scarred Colonel, the domestically shell-shocked Mother, the beautiful daughter, and of course, the handsome Yankee officer.

Even after the curtain rises, you do no work for nearly five minutes, because the audience needs time to adjust to the scene. Then, the Yankee officer bursts in.

Yank: O.K., men. No burning and pillaging. Just a little plundering here and there. And remember, use lightweight bludgeons on the frail and elderly.
(The daughter descends the sweeping staircase and sees the men.)
Daughter: SCREEEEEEEEECH!!!!
Yank: Sorry, Miss, but I . . .
(At this point, the Colonel limps in. He is in dinner dress, having just returned from an all-night spree in N'Orleans.)
Colonel: What ah y'all doin' heah?
Yank: Sorry, sir, but I . . .
(The Mother enters with an armload of roses. She immediately drops some of them to show that she is amusingly half-witted. Noticing the Colonel's dinner dress, she speaks.)
Mother: Time fo' dinnah already? I thought we just finished breakfast.
(Mother, a seasoned campaigner, pauses to let the audience laugh their fool heads off at this. Then, noticing the soldiers, she says:)
Mother: Well, some of Gen'l Lee's boys, huh? Y'all will have to stay foah dinnah. Ah invited Parson Blakiston, who's a deah, deah man, an' . . .
Yank: Sorry, Ma'am, but we . . .
Colonel: Oh, mah little fried chicken! Do y'all realize what y'all are sayin'?
Mother: Sure Ah do. But didn't know you were goin' formal. Ah'll have to tell Parson Blakiston to dress foah dinnah.
Daughter: Mother, Parsons don't dress for dinner.
Mother: Well, they could always turn their collahs around the right way!

At this hilarious point, you have done only seven minutes' work. In a regular paper, you would have been working for a month. Of course, the teacher may not be wildly enthusiastic, but wait until you introduce George, the comic butler, his romance with the cook, and the sub-plot about the poisoned hush-puppies. Believe me, you will have a real smash!

Local Politics A Big Tangle

By MATT McCUE

It seems that in this era of mounting international tensions, the American people have forgotten about their local governments. The mad scramble for power among the nations of the world, combined with the over-socialized condition of our federal government, have tended to push state government into the background, and local government into oblivion.

Smoke-Filled Room

In the good old days (pre-hydrogen bomb and pre-Bardot), such was not the case. The smoke filled room; the political carving board where the fate of everything from a garbage disposal contract to your opponent in the next ward was decided upon; the giant rallies where ten thousand men would cry into their beer at the politician's frequent reference to his "dear departed saintly mother"; the infrequent but thrilling exposes such as the one that rocked one city (let it remain nameless) when it was found that the mayor and the police commissioner shared ownership in the city's two biggest brothels and used city facilities to keep them attractive—and all these were part of the local scene and occupied greatly the minds and imagination of the people.

In those days, it was considered a distinct demotion for an up-and-coming politician to be exiled into the service of the federal government. Everyone knew, didn't they, that the only place you could really make money (graft) was in local politics?

Confused Tangle

Today, unfortunately, the publicity is gone, but local government is still very much with us. Through the hopelessly confused tangle of federal, state and county authority, it still remains the average citizen's closest link with government. It paves the roads he rides on, supplies his water, educates his children and disseminates in many cases the federal and state funds he receives.

Unfortunately, however, the local governments have also remained the prime centers of corruption on our democratic scene, a fact about which the average American taxpayer seems blithely unaware. If Mr. Citizen would take time off from his consideration of Ike's health and Russia's latest threat, he might find out why he and his fellow taxpayers paid a million dollars for three door knobs on the town jail. I believe he would be surprised.

Did you ever know somebody who actually won one of these contests? Well, we've finally found one. He's a Villanova freshman and he lives in Alumni Hall.

His name is Harry Tucci. Harry won third place prize of $1,000 in a national Underwood Typewriter Company contest, last February. How did he do it? The entry blank read "I have tried Underwood Golden-Touch and I like it because . . .

The above four lines are the concoction of two Villanova radicals named Eugene D'Aquilla and Daniel Leddy.

Leddy explains the opus thus: "It is quite evident today that there is a definite trend away from the classics. In this era of rock and roll, Latin and Greek seem furthest from the average student's mind.

Realizing that we have neither the time nor the power to start a countertrend, we have arrived at a compromise solution. We have composed the latin version of the famous song, "One-Eyed, One-Horned, Flying Purple People Eater".

It will be noted that this masterpiece (above) contains alliteration, anaphora, terminal assonance and is written in dactylic hexameter.

Well, like the man said, "It takes all kinds."

Only A Few Openings Left (About 50)

Staff members for the 1959-60 VILLANOVAN will be recruited at a special meeting to be held in the Publication Office, 2nd floor of Dougherty Hall, tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 and 3:30. Upperclassmen who would like to assume editorial position in the future are especially asked to attend.

The Last Hurrah

By PETE NOLAN

In the fall of the year 1859 a ninety-two year-old man lay half unconcious on his death-bed. Suffering from malnutrition, pneumonia, cancer of the lung, acute alcoholism, and dry scalp, he uttered these prophetic words:

"I perceive the end to be near"

It is improbable that he could have realized, that one hundred years later, the graduating class of Villanova university would be repeating these same words.

The incredible part of this story is that the class of '59 is not speaking of defeat, but rather of victory. They have conquered many of the same diseases that plagued our old friend. What a miracle of modern bachelors of science!

I suppose at this point congratulations are in order but also they are the very common thing around graduation time. We will bid the seniors farewell with the words of one of their fellow classmates.

Quoting a renowned part-time senior English major. "We have just begun to fight."

Grendel's Cave

Sand, Starch, Taverns

By JIM BISING

Summertime soon. The sand and the sun of the Jersey shore. Bouncers in starched, white shirts stand at the doors of the joints on the Point.

Inside of Mort's or Lungo's, on the other side of the tavern fronts, sit the Bermuda shorts and the button-down shirts, enjoying the deafening conformity of bad music and artificial conversation, while photographs of greasy musicians with funny bow-ties leer down on the spectacle.

On the beach: watch while youth pitifully demonstrates its desire to belong and conform. See the sweatshirts boldly proclaiming their owner's a member of some group or school.

Still on the beach: light brown hair gets lighter as the summer moves toward the season of memories; blond hair gets blonder, as the Anglo-Saxons and the Celts subtly proclaim their social superiority.

Veterans and Novices

On the boardwalk: the veterans (those individuals who know all the "right people") bask in their security and self-assurance. The pale bodies of the weekenders move uncertainly in front of the softdrink counters, not knowing the name of the tanned face behind the root beer barrel.

Conversation: "Do you know . . . (a list of meaningless names)?" A look of pitying superiority.

Night time: a deserted peninsula which is now the scene of a picnic. Eight timid girls, recently graduated from the same academy, singing "I Can't Say No" with no idea of what the song implies.

Creeping Meatballism

The continual slapping at mosquitoes becomes monotonous. The last cans of beer are warm. The fire goes out: the picnic is a failure.

The girls continue to discuss their now-ended high-school careers. The boorish boys discuss beer and baseball. There is the powerful fear of being different. Even in the dark no soul can challenge the all-powerful credo: "BE KNOWN AND BE LIKED, BUT DON'T BE DIFFERENT!"

Eating: a land breeze blows fiercely biting flies into the hot and greasy hot dog stands. The flies, like many humans, are attracted by filth. The jaws of a homosapien develop a rhythmical motion while devouring a hot dog. Mustard falls on a dark blue sweatshirt.

Vastness of Universe Usually Lost On Casual Students

By RICHARD L. BUSENKELL

The vastness of the universe makes it inconvenient to use ordinary terms of measurement, so new ones were invented.

One of those most frequently encountered by science readers is the light-year. This is not a measure of time, but of distance—the distance which a ray of light, travelling at 186,000 miles per second, would cover in one year. This is a little less than six trillion (6,000,000,000,000) miles.

The full enormity of a number such as this is usually lost upon the casual reader, to whom anything more than a million is usually meaningless.

Brightest Stars

It might be better shown as follows: one of the brightest stars in the sky is Rigel, about 540 light-years distant from earth. Rigel has been receding from earth at about 22 miles per second.

Yet even at this great speed (110 times faster than sound), it will still take Rigel 8450 years before it moves to 541 light-years from the earth!

Other distance units used by astronomers are the "astronomical unit," which is the distance from earth to the sun, 93,000,000 miles, and the "parsec," which is 3.26 light years.

For the beginning observer, the most satisfying celestial object to examine is the moon. The famous craters and the smooth dark "seas" stand out clearly, and with patient effort, individual mountains, casting their long shadows, may be identified.

The planets, particularly Jupiter with its whirling entourage of giant moons, and Saturn with its shining rings, are always interesting.

Numbers and Colors

Throughout the sky, there are many examples of binary of "double" stars — two or more stars revolving about a common center. Some of these as seen through a telescope, are strikingly beautiful, as each star may be of different brightness and color.

To the unaided eye, nearly all stars appear to be white, but the telescope will bring out many combinations of blues, reds, yellows, and oranges, although it will not greatly enlarge the size of the stars.

Besides planets and stars, there are three other types of celestial objects which are interesting.

Nebulae, clouds of glowing interstellar gas, often assume complex shapes and are dozens of light-years in size. The "Ring" nebula, which looks like a flattened doughnut, and the "Horsehead" nebula are two of the best known.

Galaxies

Galaxies, vast rotating systems of stars, are found throughout the heavens. These "island universes" each containing trillions of stars in a complex orderly network, wheel majestically through space in a varied array of pinwheeles, disks, and loose spirals. They are usually about 50,000 to 100,000 light-years in diameter. Our sun, and every other visible star, belongs to just one galaxy. Only the telescope can see others.

Globular clusters, sometimes called satellite galaxies, are found around the rim of the large galaxies. They are rarely more than 10,000 light-years in diameter, and contain only one type of star, whereas the "full" galaxies have all types.

1. It is apparent that you are a confused soul, incapable of distinguishing truth.
2. It is further apparent that you are a frustrated free-thinker with Democratic tendencies.
3. In your condemnation of Mr. Dulles and President Eisenhower, you compared the handling of the Suez Canal to the Munich conference of 1938, charged that the Eisenhower - Shivers combination, with a few oil companies thrown in, actually thought up the whole thing, further insinuated that we should have used atomic weapons in Indo-China (why there is beyond me), and finally hoped that some catastrophy befalls our Chief Executive before 1960.

Diplomatic Blunders

4. Speaking of diplomatinc blunders, why are we now at Geneva discussing the access to Berlin, when in 1944-45 we had it but gave it to the Russians?

   Would it have been better to aid the British, French, and Israeli governments in their conquest of the Suez canal, or to have lost the Arab world? And is Nasser the bad omen that you picture him as, huh?
5. So did the Venezuelan, Mexican, and other countries' oil production rise; perhaps they were part of the hoary plot, too.

Atomic War

6. An unleashing of our "massive retaliation" in 1954 would have meant a World War, but tut, tut, nothing to worry about. The stand on Formosa, the fact that the Communists have not advanced one inch farther in Asia, is not really important. We need an atomic war.
7. As for our Chief Executive, poor helpless Ike, I suppose that he will just have to struggle on, unless you would perhaps offer your sage advice.

Awards Given To Midshipmen Here At NROTC Review

The Villanova NROTC unit yesterday paraded before Admiral Charles H. Lyman, USN, Commandant of the Fourth Naval District.

The battallion, led by Midn. James C. Hull, 1/c, passed in review before Lyman, Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O.S.A., University president, and dignitaries from the business and professional world.

The following midshipmen were singled out to receive awards: Thomas Breslin, an award from the Admiral and one from the Navy League of Philadelphia.

The Navy League also awarded plaques to Frederick Wiele 2/c; Thomas Dillon, 3/c; and Michael Pastore, 4/c.

Hull received a subscription to the U.S. Naval Institute Proceedings from the U.S. Naval Institute.

William Lytle, 1/c, received an award from the Marine Corps Association; Harry Mitchell, 3/c, from the Radio Corporation of America; James McIlhenny, 1/c, from the Philco Corp.; and Joseph Schneider, 1/c, from the Armed Forces Communications and Electronics Association.

Joseph DuRocher 2/c, received an award from the Naval Reserve Composite Company; Raymond Hepburn, 1/c, from the Valley Forge Chapter of the Reserve Officers' Association; Terence Connell, 2/c, from the Phila. Continental Chapter of the "Sons of American Revolution; and Jerome Scanlon, 3/c, from the Victory Metal Manufacturing Corporation.

ing a hidden talent on the drums, and he was accompanied by teammate Paul Tomczyk on trumpet.

Bermuda - clad Villanovans were busy in every detail of the day's work and fun. Although organized under Ron Dobies and the Junior Class, the Villanova contingent was made up of men from all four classes and even a lonely law student.

Tom Labreque, Deanie Driscoll, and Carlo LoVecchio entered with good spirits into a maze of kitchen duties. Al Brossey ran a "Red Ball Express" carrying truckloads of youngsters from place to place.

Buccaneer Crew

Joe Perozziello gave piggy-back rides when not taking pictures for the VILLANOVAN. Pirate Neil Drislane and a crew of buccaneers launched the ill-fated ship Neversail.

Stan Ceisielski led a group of Huck Finns in search of rare pollywogs and caterpillers. Walt France showed the little leaguers how to win—cheat. And Matt McCue lost a fortune in quarters at the bean-bag toss.

Two men were kept busy recording the day for future enjoyment. Mr. Ernest Biddle did pastel and charcoal portraits of incredible likeness, capturing on paper the glee of many little faces.

Tragedy Occurred

Unfortunately, the happy day was not without a few touches of tragedy. Varsity infielder Denny Cardone was struck out by a four foot tall Bob Feller. And Jack Daniel stopped the football game when the kids started "roughing him up".

Pedro, the burro, left an unpleasant mark on J. J. Sullivan. Driscoll twisted his ankle opening a can, and Happy John Mulcahy found himself getting stiff—from the exercise.

A Rosemont lovely got on a pony and off at the same time. And tadpoles were mysteriously turning up in the soda drinks.

But the Johnnies' Jamboree was still a tremendous success. Everyone left tired yet glowing. "More can openers and band-aids next time" was the smiling epilogue Mrs. Jordan gave to the day.

Johnnies enjoy thrill of runaway chuck-wagon, carted by sturdy juniors, part of the day's festivities at St. John's.

AAU Meet At Stadium On Sunday

Wildcat fans like to think that in the past five years Villanova has become the track and field capital of the East, competitively speaking.

With the outdoor IC4A championships last year, Villanova took a major step toward becoming tops, from a spectator standpoint, as well.

This Sunday another big track meet will be held in the Villanova Stadium. It's the second annual New York versus Philadelphia AAU Meet.

Field events state at 1 p.m., running events at 2. Tickets are priced at $1.

The two teams represent the Metropolitan and the Middle Atlantic Associations of the AAU. The Middle Atlantic squad will have a decidedly Villanova flavor.

Four Wildcat quarter-milers will be chosen from Ed Collymore, Charlie Stead, Joe Manion, Jim Blackburn, and Nick DeAngelis to comprise a mile relay team.

Frosh in 440

The Villanova frosh will make up one 440-yard relay. Bob Raemore, Paul Drayton, Frank Budd and either John Mannion or Carl Wagner will comprise the quartet. Another Philly 440 team will have Ira Davis, Charley Pratt, Bo Roberson, and Jim Washington.

New York will also have two mile relay teams. One will have four of the following: Tom Murphy, Joe Soprano, Jim Grant, Jim Phipps, and Gene Shane. Another will have four of these: Ed Lunsford, Reggie Pearman, Harry Bright, Willie Ward, and Dave Mohlenbruk.

Only one of the New York 440 teams has been picked as of this writing. That one will include Paul Ewing, Grant Scruggs, Phipps and Mohlenbruk.

The sprints will have Collymore, Budd, Drayton, Roberson and Manion competing for Philadelphia against Joe Fernandez (Manhattan freshman who has been clocked in 9.8 and 20.9 this spring), Bob Thomas, Bill Lenskold and Phipps.

In the 440, it'll be Raemore, Davis, Gavaghan and DeAngelis against Art Evans (Manhattan), Jim Grant and Glen (St. John's Frosh).

Corking 880

The 880 looks like a real corker. It'll feature George Katterman (Penn), Ed Mather, Vic DiMaio and Pat Nicastro against Tom Murphy, Kye Courtney and Willie Ward.

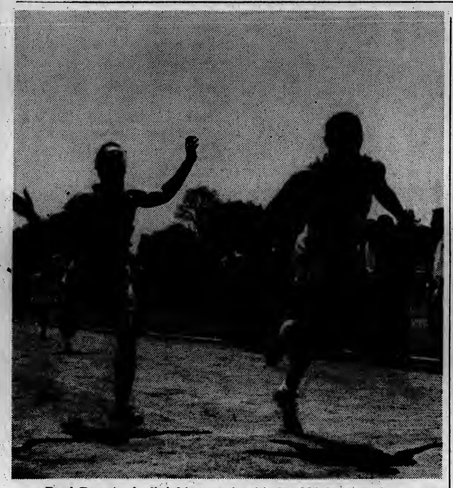
Philly will have Bob Godesky, Jim Baldwin, Pete Walheim, John Jerbasi and Frank Fitz-Patrick opposing Velisa Mugosa, Ed McAllister, John King, Ike Matza, John Dougan and perhaps Peter Close, in the mile.

At three miles, Browning Ross (exVillanova and Olympic competitor), Earl Jefferson, Luther Burdelle and Ernie Tracy will run for Philadelphia against Mugosa, Pete McArdle, Henry Levin, John Kopil (ex-Villanova) and Pete Beyer.

In the 120, 220 and 440 hurdles, Charley Pratt, Reggie Brown, Walt Young, Santee Ruffin, Roberson, Culbreath, Charley Stead, Bob Coffill and Dave Baird will compete for Philly. They'll oppose Henry White, Stan Dawkins, Harry Bright and Dick Pitts.

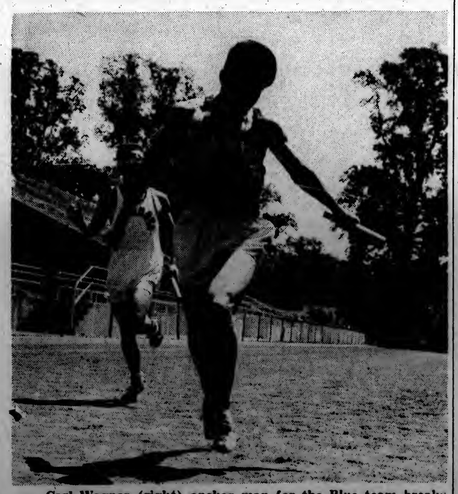
Philly high jumpers will include Stead, George Dennis, Stan Mumford, Hubie White and Frank Budd. New York will have Frank Carroll (Manhattan), Bob Gardener and Leroy Curry.

Bragg Might Appear



In the pole vault, it'll be Barney Berlinger, John Gray, Norbert McNulty and perhaps Don Bragg (if he's back from California) versus Bob Carroll, Ray DeCosta, Charles Stevenson and Norman Cyprus.

For the broad jump and hop, step and jump, Philadelphia will have Davis, John Buckley, Roberson, Bob Reed (Penn), Bill Sharpe and Jesse Bell to oppose George Shar, Bob Thomas, and perhaps Mike Herman (IC4A indoor broadjump champ).



The shot put looks like a duel between Carl Shine, Dave Sikarskie, Bob Batdorf and Bill Taylor for Philadelphia, and Joe Marchiony, Henry Korn, Jerry Monkofsky and Jim Cooke for New York.

In the discus, Batdorf, Bob Taylor, Joe Chilbert and Jim Morris will oppose New York's Al Oerter, John Ellis, Stew Thompson and Cooke. Philly hammer throwers Hudson Scattergood and Imants Mezaraups will face powerful Martie Engel, Thompson and Steve Dillion.

Al Cantello, John Brand, Larry Stuart and Larry Curran will toss the javelin for Philly. New York will have Sid Kiwitt and Don McGorty (the defending IC4A champ.)

Paul Drayton's finishing sprint in the 220 is enough to withstand Bob Raemore's late surge in Saturday's intra-squad track meet. Drayton (right) covered the distance in 21.6 seconds.

Carl Wagner (right) anchor man for the Blue team breaks the tape in the mile relay three yards ahead of Pat Nicastro. The Blues aided by John Mannion's second leg, ran the mile in 3:21.7.

Frosh Sweep Eight Events In Practice Track Meet

By MIKE DONAHUE

In a preview of things to come, Villanova's highly touted freshmen track stars won 8 of 13 events in an intrasquad track held last Saturday in the stadium.

The team was divided into two squads, designated Blues and Whites, for the practice meet. All but five of the Wildcat thinclads participated.

Seniors Ed Collymore and Charley Stead and sophomores Joe Manion and Nick DeAngelis were in Los Angeles where they defeated the finest mile relay teams in the country last Friday night in the Coliseum Relays in the blistering time of 3:10.4.

Bob Coffiill, freshman hurdler and quarter miler, pulled up lame during a workout last week and was forced to withdraw from the practice meet.

Freshmen "Double"

Double wins by Paul Drayton, Jerry Donini, and Leon Pras; Hubie White's 6 foot-3 inch high jump, and John Mannion's 48.5 leg in the mile relay were the highlights of the meet.

All of the above mentioned are freshmen.

Drayton copped the 100 and the 220. He sprinted the century in 9.9 and then came back to nip freshman Bob Raemore in the 220 in 21.6.

Donini won both the shotput and the discus. He heaved the shot 50 feet, 2 inches, which was only inches shy of the school record set by Jim Fahey. He later spun the discus 130 feet, 2 inches in defeating Bill Moore and Jack Donohue to complete his sweep of the weight events.

White, the freshman basketball sensation, defeated fellow freshman Frank Budd who cleared 6-2. Sophomore Norbert McNulty, leaping 5-10, was third.

McNulty Wins

McNulty won in his specialty, the pole vault, clearing 12 feet, 6 inches. Kent Lydic was second, vaulting 12 feet.

The mile was won by Bob Godesky in the comparatively slow time of 4:29.5. Freshmen Bob Collins, Pat Nicastro and Art Crowley trailed Godesky. Collins' time was 4:34.9.

Vic DiMaio annexed the 880 in 1:55.0. Freshman Frank Hegarty and Carl Wagner finished second and third.

The two mile run was taken by freshman Angelo Sivieri in 10:09. The former West Catholic ace finished ahead of Tim McNamar, Dave Neill, Jim Hackett, and Lance Hugelmyer.

Pras copped both hurdles events. He won the 120 highs in 15.0. Burly Ron Meyers, freshman football end, surprised by racing over the barriers in 15.5. Jack Van Dusen was third.

In the 220 lows it was again Pras, Meyers, and Van Dusen. Pras' covered the distance in 24.5.

Kaminski a Winner

The Javelin throw was won by Dick Kaminski with one of his best heaves of the year, 172 feet. Lydic and John Buckley placed 2, 3.

Buckley took the broad jump with a leap of 23 feet, 7 inches. Lydic was second and Drayton third.

The mile relay was won by the Blues in 3:21.7. Members of the winning quartet were Gene Rodgers, Mannion, Hegarty, and Wagner.

Placing behind Drayton in the 100 were Budd, Raemore, Buckley, and Dan Stager.

Finishing in arrears of the Cleveland flash in the 220 were Raemore and Budd.

When the final score was tabulated it was evident that the two squads were evenly matched. The results: Blue—78, White—78.

Softball Playoffs Bring Intramural Sports To End

Intramural softball playoffs enter their final stages today.

This afternoon at 4:00 on Austin Field the second semi-final game in the softball tournament will be played.

Tomorrow on the same site and at the same time the semi-final winners will compete for the intramural championship.

As this goes to press the five remaining teams competing are Nifty Nine, Old Men, Main Liners, Cowboys, and Rinkydinks.

On Monday afternoon Nifty Nine played the Old Men and Main Liners met the Cowboys. Today Rinkydinks, who drew a bye, take on the winner of the Main Liners-Cowboys game.

Tomorrow the survivors of this game will play the winner of Monday's game for the title.

Orginally the playoffs were slated to end last Thursday. However, rain curtailed play last Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, thus forcing postponement of the last two rounds of the tournament.

In one of the few games played last week, Jazz A.C. was eliminated by Nifty Nine, 5-4 last Thursday. Both teams had unblemished records going into the game.

The contest was not decided until the seventh and final inning when Nifty Nine pushed across the winning run to break a 4-4 deadlock.

Corking 880

The 880 looks like a real corker. It'll feature George Katterman (Penn), Ed Mather, Vic DiMaio and Pat Nicastro against Tom Murphy, Kye Courtney and Willie Ward.

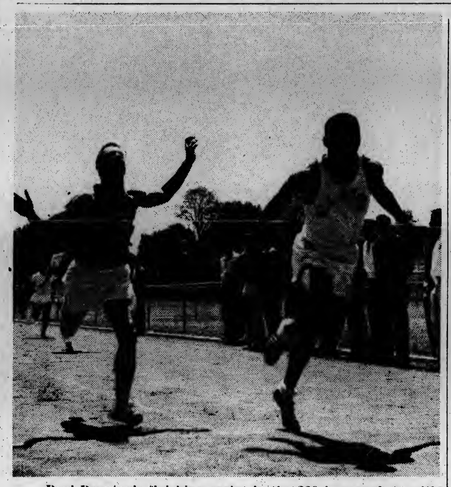
Philly will have Bob Godesky, Jim Baldwin, Pete Walheim, John Jerbasi and Frank Fitz-Patrick opposing Velisa Mugosa, Ed McAllister, John King, Ike Matza, John Dougan and perhaps Peter Close, in the mile.

At three miles, Browning Ross (exVillanova and Olympic competitor), Earl Jefferson, Luther Burdelle and Ernie Tracy will run for Philadelphia against Mugosa, Pete McArdle, Henry Levin, John Kopil (ex-Villanova) and Pete Beyer.

In the 120, 220 and 440 hurdles, Charley Pratt, Reggie Brown, Walt Young, Santee Ruffin, Roberson, Culbreath, Charley Stead, Bob Coffill and Dave Baird will compete for Philly. They'll oppose Henry White, Stan Dawkins, Harry Bright and Dick Pitts.

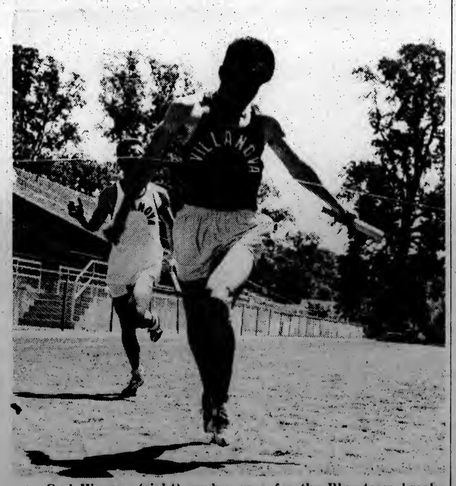
Philly high jumpers will include Stead, George Dennis, Stan Mumford, Hubie White and Frank Budd. New York will have Frank Carroll (Manhattan), Bob Gardener and Leroy Curry.

Bragg Might Appear



In the pole vault, it'll be Barney Berlinger, John Gray, Norbert McNulty and perhaps Don Bragg (if he's back from California) versus Bob Carroll, Ray DeCosta, Charles Stevenson and Norman Cyprus.

For the broad jump and hop, step and jump, Philadelphia will have Davis, John Buckley, Roberson, Bob Reed (Penn), Bill Sharpe and Jesse Bell to oppose George Shar, Bob Thomas, and perhaps Mike Herman (IC4A indoor broadjump champ).



The shot put looks like a duel between Carl Shine, Dave Sikarskie, Bob Batdorf and Bill Taylor for Philadelphia, and Joe Marchiony, Henry Korn, Jerry Monkofsky and Jim Cooke for New York.

In the discus, Batdorf, Bob Taylor, Joe Chilbert and Jim Morris will oppose New York's Al Oerter, John Ellis, Stew Thompson and Cooke. Philly hammer throwers Hudson Scattergood and Imants Mezaraups will face powerful Martie Engel, Thompson and Steve Dillion.

Al Cantello, John Brand, Larry Stuart and Larry Curran will toss the javelin for Philly. New York will have Sid Kiwitt and Don McGorty (the defending IC4A champ.)

Paul Drayton's finishing sprint in the 220 is enough to withstand Bob Raemore's late surge in Saturday's intra-squad track meet. Drayton (right) covered the distance in 21.6 seconds.

Carl Wagner (right) anchor man for the Blue team breaks the tape in the mile relay three yards ahead of Pat Nicastro. The Blues aided by John Mannion's second leg, ran the mile in 3:21.7.

Frosh Sweep Eight Events In Practice Track Meet

By MIKE DONAHUE

In a preview of things to come, Villanova's highly touted freshmen track stars won 8 of 13 events in an intrasquad track held last Saturday in the stadium.

The team was divided into two squads, designated Blues and Whites, for the practice meet. All but five of the Wildcat thinclads participated.

Seniors Ed Collymore and Charley Stead and sophomores Joe Manion and Nick DeAngelis were in Los Angeles where they defeated the finest mile relay teams in the country last Friday night in the Coliseum Relays in the blistering time of 3:10.4.

Bob Coffiill, freshman hurdler and quarter miler, pulled up lame during a workout last week and was forced to withdraw from the practice meet.

Freshmen "Double"

Double wins by Paul Drayton, Jerry Donini, and Leon Pras; Hubie White's 6 foot-3 inch high jump, and John Mannion's 48.5 leg in the mile relay were the highlights of the meet.

All of the above mentioned are freshmen.

Drayton copped the 100 and the 220. He sprinted the century in 9.9 and then came back to nip freshman Bob Raemore in the 220 in 21.6.

Donini won both the shotput and the discus. He heaved the shot 50 feet, 2 inches, which was only inches shy of the school record set by Jim Fahey. He later spun the discus 130 feet, 2 inches in defeating Bill Moore and Jack Donohue to complete his sweep of the weight events.

White, the freshman basketball sensation, defeated fellow freshman Frank Budd who cleared 6-2. Sophomore Norbert McNulty, leaping 5-10, was third.

McNulty Wins

McNulty won in his specialty, the pole vault, clearing 12 feet, 6 inches. Kent Lydic was second, vaulting 12 feet.

The mile was won by Bob Godesky in the comparatively slow time of 4:29.5. Freshmen Bob Collins, Pat Nicastro and Art Crowley trailed Godesky. Collins' time was 4:34.9.

Vic DiMaio annexed the 880 in 1:55.0. Freshman Frank Hegarty and Carl Wagner finished second and third.

The two mile run was taken by freshman Angelo Sivieri in 10:09. The former West Catholic ace finished ahead of Tim McNamar, Dave Neill, Jim Hackett, and Lance Hugelmyer.

Pras copped both hurdles events. He won the 120 highs in 15.0. Burly Ron Meyers, freshman football end, surprised by racing over the barriers in 15.5. Jack Van Dusen was third.

In the 220 lows it was again Pras, Meyers, and Van Dusen. Pras' covered the distance in 24.5.

Kaminski a Winner

The Javelin throw was won by Dick Kaminski with one of his best heaves of the year, 172 feet. Lydic and John Buckley placed 2, 3.

Buckley took the broad jump with a leap of 23 feet, 7 inches. Lydic was second and Drayton third.

The mile relay was won by the Blues in 3:21.7. Members of the winning quartet were Gene Rodgers, Mannion, Hegarty, and Wagner.

Placing behind Drayton in the 100 were Budd, Raemore, Buckley, and Dan Stager.

Finishing in arrears of the Cleveland flash in the 220 were Raemore and Budd.

When the final score was tabulated it was evident that the two squads were evenly matched. The results: Blue—78, White—78.

Softball Playoffs Bring Intramural Sports To End

Intramural softball playoffs enter their final stages today.

This afternoon at 4:00 on Austin Field the second semi-final game in the softball tournament will be played.

Tomorrow on the same site and at the same time the semi-final winners will compete for the intramural championship.

As this goes to press the five remaining teams competing are Nifty Nine, Old Men, Main Liners, Cowboys, and Rinkydinks.

On Monday afternoon Nifty Nine played the Old Men and Main Liners met the Cowboys. Today Rinkydinks, who drew a bye, take on the winner of the Main Liners-Cowboys game.

Tomorrow the survivors of this game will play the winner of Monday's game for the title.

Orginally the playoffs were slated to end last Thursday. However, rain curtailed play last Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday, thus forcing postponement of the last two rounds of the tournament.

In one of the few games played last week, Jazz A.C. was eliminated by Nifty Nine, 5-4 last Thursday. Both teams had unblemished records going into the game.

The contest was not decided until the seventh and final inning when Nifty Nine pushed across the winning run to break a 4-4 deadlock.

The Baseball Team Brings V.U. First Big Five Title

By JIM MURRAY

It seems that Villanova's baseball team just couldn't "wait 'til next year" for the Big Five Championship.

And what better way to win it than to beat the St. Joseph Hawks, who flew away with the Big Five basketball title? St. Joe's had been a spoiler in Temple's (5-3) bid for the crown, but the Owls had to settle for second as Villanova (6-2) downed the Hawks, 16-3.

It was a warm day Monday, and the Wildcats were hot. They exploded for 16 runs on 18 hits. Freddie Anthony and Bobby Klinck each had four base hits to lead the 'Cat attack.

Frank Kreutzer allowed only one hit in six frames as he stuck out ten and walked one.

Down But Not Out

Villanova lost its first two Big Five games to La Salle and Temple, but came back to win the remaining six and the coveted Big Five trophy. This was typical of this year's team, which stayed in every game until the final out.

Today the 'Nova nine travels to West Point to take on the Army baseball team. The Wildcats won a close one last year at the Point by a 5-4 count.

On Saturday the 'Cats complete their regular season action in a game with the Blue Hens of Delaware University.

Middies Sink Cats

Last Friday, the United States Naval Academy downed Villanova 6-4 at Villanova Stadium.

The game was decided in the third inning, when hurler Hal Bauser, was plagued with four hits, two errors, good for five runs. These five, added to the Middies' lone tally in the first, was enough to sink Villanova.

Lee Parry turned in a fine relief stint, pitching four innings of shut-out ball. Harry Neff blanked the midshipmen the rest of the way.

The Wildcat nine never gave up, scoring one run in the fifth, two runs in the sixth, and one in the ninth before the rally was ended by a double play. The 'Cats left twelve men on base—this, plus the two big errors in the third, told the tale.

Lafeyette, We Are Here!

At Eastern Pennsylvania, the 'Cats met the Lafeyette Leopards last Thursday afternoon.

After nine innings of well-played baseball, Frank Kreutzer and Villanova picked up a win by a 4-3 score. Kreutzer was very impressive while going the whole route and striking out nine batters.

He allowed the three runs on an opposite field hit by the pitcher, with two out and the bases loaded in the second inning. After Jack Fahey batted in the tying and lead run in the third inning, Kreutzer did not allow a base hit until the ninth, when shortstop Dick Richter singled to open the frame. He was stranded on third base, however, when Kreutzer got pinch hitter Bob Lewis to fly to right to end the inning and the ball game.

Rutgers Rough

On Tuesday, May 12, the 'Cats suffered defeat at the hand of Rutgers University, 7-6.

The game was marked by some very odd plays. Of particular note was Bill Platco's inability to remain standing while waiting for a fly ball; as the ball came down, so did Bill. Les Armour had himself a "home-run."

Rutgers committed two straight errors in the third inning, and Paul Borian boomed a homerun into the wind, and three runs scored. After the lead had rocked back and forth, the 'Cats found themselves down by two in the eighth (6-4).

After Jack Fahey's single and pinchhitter Tom Griffith's base knock, Bobbie Klinck laced a tremendous triple to right field to tie the game. With the score tied in the ninth, Rutgers' leadoff man, Arnie Byrd, drew a walk—stole second and third on an over throw—and came home on a fly ball with one out.

CATS BATS . . . Tom Griffith hit the longest triple, longest double, and took the longest time time to reach home during the season. But when he hits, he really hits . . . The team ate in a Pennsylvania-Dutch restaurant on the way home from Lafayette. The food, the prices, and the win made it a memorable meal . . . With but three seniors on the squad, the 'Cats figure to be strong defenders of their Big Five title next year.

Frank Kreutzer lets go with a fast ball in the St. Joseph's game. Frank helped Villanova to the Big Five Championship with this 16-3 decision.

Rifle Team Gets Awards, Letters

Last Thursday, the Varsity and Navy rifle and pistol teams held their annual banquet and presentation of awards. The Varsity rifle team honored outgoing Sgt. Edward Molcany with a permanent plaque, which is to be inscribed each year with the name of the person who most exemplifies the spirit and drive of the Sergeant.

This year's winner of the Sgt. Edward J. Molcany award, was Frank Murtha, chosen by the team.

Lou Spevetz, who received two medals for outstanding performances in the Philadelphia N.R.O.T.C. rifle league, was appointed captain of the Navy team for next year.

Frank Murtha was appointed to succeed Chris Kloss as captain of the varsity rifle team.

Kloss has led the riflemen as high scorer for the past two years. High average medal was taken by Charley Russell.

Varsity letters were given to the following members of the rifle team; C. Kloss, L. Spevetz, F. Murtha, B. Hearn, C. Russell, N. Coursey, and E. Hogan. Five of the seven lettermen return next year.

Joe Walley took over the leadership of the pistol team from last year's captain, Jim D'Arcy. Members of the pistol team who were cited for excellence in various categories were: Paul Lang, Bill Scott and D'Arcy.

D'Arcy, Scott, and Lang, together with Bill Phoser and Joe Walley were awarded letters.

Don't Mention 'Villanova' To Texas' Eddie Southern

By TOM GOLDSCHMIDT

At the campus of the University of Texas in Austin, they speak of the Villanova track team in awed tones.

A lithe, sun-tanned, crew-cut Texas senior does not even talk about the Villanova team. He just has strange nightmares. They're about foot races. And all he ever sees are the backs of runners clad in blue and white.

The senior's name is Eddie Southern. He's the greatest quarter-miler in the United States, someone somewhere has said.

Eddie Southern himself is not so sure anymore.

He was a much-heralded sophomore in 1957, running anchor for Texas' sensational mile relay team. The Longhorns were invited East for the Penn Relays that year—to add a little "class" to the program.

Five-Yard Lead

But Charley Jenkins, the 1956 Olympic 400-meter champion, had other ideas. He ran a blistering 440 for Villanova, catching Southern and then going on to whip him and gave the Wildcats the victory.

Texas did not return to the Penn Relays in 1958 and 1959. Instead, they went to the Drake Relays. This year they set a Drake record by winning the mile relay in 3 minutes, 10.3 seconds.

But the Longhorns were not rid of Villanova yet. The two mile relay squads were invited to compete in the Coliseum Relays last Friday at Los Angeles, California.

U. S. Championship

This one was to have been the duel of the year with Villanova representing the East, Texas the Southwest, and USC and Occidental the Far West.

Villanova's 3:11.8 time in the Penn Relays, though very good, did not compare with the 3:10.3 that Texas had run.

Besides, Villanova was using two unknown sophomores along with high jumper Charlie Stead and Ed Collymore. And Texas had Eddie Southern, now a mature senior. He could break the back of any 440 man in the country, those "in the know" were saying.

Villanova trailed for the first half-mile, as expected. But the "unknowns" kept the Wildcats not far off the pace by running the best quarter-miles of their young careers.

Fine Quarters

Joe Manion was timed in 48.7 for the lead-off leg. Nick DeAngelis, a substitute for Jim Blackburn, who had been number two man in the Penn Relays, ran a brilliant 48.5 second leg.

Then Stead used those long legs of his to catch the third Texas runner and give the Wildcats a slight lead after three-quarters of a mile. Charlie, who had never run under 48.2 until this year, was timed in 47 seconds flat.

Collymore, the defending NCAA 220 champion, took the baton for the final leg. He had mumbled in practice four days earlier, "I sure don't feel up to running a 440."

But the Cambridge Comet, an avowed lover of the sprints in recent years, blazed the anchor quarter-mile.

Always The Back

Eddie Southern blazed it with him, but the Texas flash never saw the front of Collymore's jersey until he walked over to congratulate him on the Villanova victory.

Collymore's final 46.2 quarter made the Wildcat's victory remarkable under any circumstances, and all the more so since it was run on grass instead of cinders.

In the past three years (the period covering Eddie Southern's varsity career), the University of Texas has won every mile relay in which it has competed, except two.

Those two were the only times the Longhorns faced the Villanova Wildcats. As far as the lithe, sun-tanned crew-cut Texas senior is concerned that was twice too many.

Gregory Named Swim Ace

Jim Gregory, senior from Port Chester, N.Y., was named the outstanding squad member at the first annual banquet for the varsity swimming team last week at the Pilgrim Gardens Lounge.

John Rumbarger, senior from Merion, Pa., was given the Coaches' Loyalty Award, while Joe Harvey, junior from Coatesville, Pa., was named the most improved swimmer.

Harvey and Frank Keefe, junior from East Haven, Conn., were announced as co-captains for the 1959-60 season.

Members of the 1958-59 team,, which compiled a 6-4 record, were given varsity letters. They included Bob Pinto, Larry Palacio, Bill Gilhool, Win Wilson, Gregory and Rumbarger.

Joe Kirk, swimming coach at LaSalle College, was the guest speaker. His topic was the problem of public relations with respect to swimming in the United States.

The team gave awards "in appreciation for continued aid to the Villanova swimming team" to David Rowan, former swimming champion from Rider College, and Chris Keller, former diving champion from the University of Pennsylvania.

Another award, "in appreciation for 25 years of devoted service to college swimming," went to James McAdoo, coach of Swarthmore College for the past quarter-century and dean of Middle Atlantic swimming coaches.

The members of the team gave expensive stop watches to head coach Ed Geisz and assistant coach Jack Lumsden.

Collymore Fourth In Coliseum '100'

Ed Collymore, Villanova's senior sprinter, finished fourth in a 100-yard dash at the Coliseum Relays in Los Angeles last Friday.

Winner Bob Morrow, formerly of Abilene Christian, was clocked in 9.6. Ray Norton and Bob Poynter, both of Fresno State, were second and third.

Collymore was not more than two feet behind Morrow at the finish, as the top four runners hit the tape virtually together.

Bishop McShea Honored At 42nd Summer Graduation

Most Rev. Joseph McShea, auxiliary bishop of Philadelphia, will receive an Honorary Degree from Villanova during its summer commencement exercises on Saturday, August 8th, it was announced this week by the Very Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A. University President.

Bishop McShea will be among four candidates who will be honored by the University at its 42nd summer graduation.

Honorary Doctorates will also be conferred upon Brother Daniel Bernian, F.S.C., President of LaSalle College; Rev. John R. Aherne, O.S.A., rector of St. Augustine High School, San Diego, and Miss Margaret Mary Kearney, Educational Director of Station WCAU and WCAU-TV.

Miss Margaret M. Kearney

Miss Kearney becomes only the fifth woman to receive an honorary degree from Villanova. Bishop McShea will deliver the address to the more than 200 graduates during the 11:00 a.m. exercises in the campus field house.

Large Enrollment

Villanova's 1959 summer session is enjoying the largest enrollment in its 42 year history according to figures released this week by the Rev. Louis A. Rongione, O.S.A., Dean of the University's Graduate and Part Time Division.

A total of 2364 students are enrolled this year including 110 students who are studying under a National Science Foundaion Grant. Villanova recently received a grant of $97,000 to undertake a training program for high school science and mathematics teachers during its summer session.

775 of the summer students are doing graduate work while 1090 are pursuing undergraduate studies. The student body represents a total of twenty three states and more than 40 different religious orders.

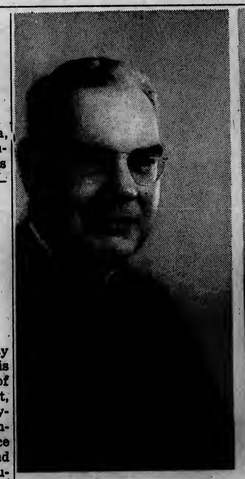
N.S.F. Gives $96,700 Grant To Villanova

By Mother M. E. Brown, R.S.C.J.

An outstanding opportunity was offered at Villanova this summer. Under the direction of Reverend J. Bernard Hubbert, O.S.A., of the University Physics Department, a Summer Institute for teachers of Science and Mathematics in Junior and Senior High Schools was inaugurated.

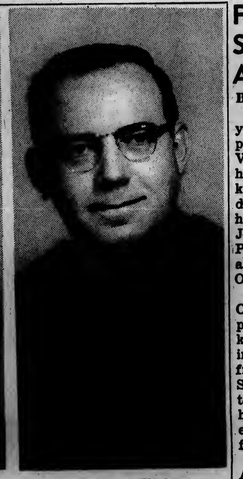
The Institute was made possible by a grant of $96,700.00 from the National Science Foundation. The participants received $75.00 a week during the period of study, with allowance for dependents and travel.

On closer observation, it is more true to conclude that there were five Institutes in progress this summer. Courses were offered in Biology, Chemistry, Physics, Geology and Mathematics. Each course ran the full period of six weeks, and six graduate credits were obtained by successful completion.



The group participating numbered one hundred nineteen teachers. Many came from great distances. Fourteen states were represented, from New York to Montana, from Vermont to North Carolina.

Varied Scholars



Guest faculty included Dr. B. F. Howell of Princeton University, who lectured on Historical Geology. Mr. L. A. T. Frakes, from the University of California in Los Angeles, gave the course in Physical Geology. In addition, there were guest speakers in many fields.

Miss M. Dorothy Ward of the Villanova Library Faculty spoke on "Modern Literature for Chemistry". Dr. L. Joseph Berry of Bryn Mawr, held a seminar for the Biology students on the "FUNCTION OF THE BLOOD." From the University of Pennsylvania, Dr. Ralph O. Erickson spoke on the "ANALYSIS OF GROWTH IN PLANTS." A speaker of great interest was Mr. John B. Gallen, Head of the Civil Engineering Department at Villanova, whose topic was — "FOUNDATION PROBLEMS."

New Book By Fr. Rongione To Be Published Tomorrow

BY MOTHER F. FORDEN, R.S.C.J.

Each year the University Shop displays an increasing number of text books written by Villanova's own professors. This is indeed a cause for legitimate pride in Catholic education in general, in Villanova in particular and in its eminent professors.

Father Louis Rongione, O.S.A.

On Thursday July 30th, the Villanova campus will be the scene of an AUTOGRAPHING PARTY in honor of a publication, just off the press—"CONFERENCES ON THE BEATITUDES" (The Peter Reilly Co.)

Who is the author? Certainly no one needs an introduction to the Reverend Father Louis Rongione, O.S.A., Dean of the Graduate School.

In the preface of "Conferences on the Beatitudes," Father gives his reasons for publishing them —"the sister's enthusiastic and encouraging response in the communities where they were first given and the hope that they might make some contribution in fostering among the sisters the piety and zeal which have always been a source of edification and spiritual joy to the author."

Deals With Happiness

After the introduction, a chapter for each Beatitude follows. And each Beatitude as Saint Paul says, is something perfect and excellent—so is each chapter of this book—a summit in itself. Nor does the book end with final steppingstone in the sublime ascent. Rather it ends with a final, pleasant surprise—A chapter on Heaven and we are convinced that "in the end is our beginning."

Father shows clearly in his book that happiness is not something to be searched for; still less is it something you can make; it is something you can receive and become. These conferences show how.

Father Rongione will be the host for the autograph party which will be held in the East Lounge of Dougherty Hall at 2:00 p.m. Thursday. All summer school students are invited.

Fr. Joseph Gildea Succeeds Fr. Boyle As Vice-President

By Sister Rosalina, C.D.F.N.

Facing the coming scholastic year with a notable change in personnel, the administration of Villanova University will be headed by Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., twenty-third president of the University. Joining him in filling new offices are Rev. Joseph J. Gildea, O.S.A., Vice President for Academic Affairs and Rev. Francis X. Smith, O.S.A., Director of Admissions.

Director of the University's Office of Admissions during the past two years, Father Klekotka began his Villanova career in 1931, after his graduation from Roman Catholic High School of Philadelphia. Admitted to the School of Engineering, he graduated in 1935, and entered the Augustinian Order the following year.

His scholastic career as an Augustinian, after his ordination in 1941, included the attainment of an M.A. in Science and a subsequent assignment to the faculty of Villanova University. His seventeen-year term included posts of Head of the University's Department of Engineering, and a two-year span as University Chaplain which preceded his appointment to the office of Director of Admissions, which he has held for two years.

Member of A.I.E.E.

An able administrator, Father Klekotka was elected to the office at the triennial chapter meeting of the Augustinian Order's Province of St. Thomas at Villanova Monastery, June 25. A member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, American Society for Engineering Education, Institute for Radio Engineers, and the Albertus Magnus Guild, Father replaces the Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O.S.A., who held the office of president since 1954.

Father Donnellon was elected religious superior of the Augustinian Order's Province of St. Thomas in the course of the same, June 25 session of the chapter. He thereby became the religious superior of 400 Augustinian Priests, administering to more than 40 parishes, while conducting two universities, two colleges, and eleven high schools.

Father Gildea, under president Father Klekotka, will serve as, the director cholastic affairs of the University with jurisdiction over faculty and student body. A native of Lawrence, Mass., Father Gildea comes to Villanova from Merrimack College, North Andover, Mass., where he had been stationed from 1947 to 1959.

For geology students, Dr. Charles H. Behre of Columbia gave an illustrated seminar on the Geology of Mexico," from the point of view of an Economic Geologist. Some provocative questions were posed the afternoon that Dr. Carl O. Dunbar from Yale University, spoke on the Contributions of Geology to Civilization.

Two lectures on Suburban Water Supplies were given by Dr. Kenneth Schull of The American Chemical Society, and an attractive exhibition of Glass Blowing was shown in the Physics Laboratory by Dr. Percy Cole who is a Ph.D. from the University of Paris.

During the course of study, some interesting social events were planned. The N.S.F. used this feature, to permit informal meetings of the large group, where helpful ideas and suggestions might be interchanged and exchanged, for mutual profit.

Field trips were included in the courses. A large display of books, on loan from the N.S.F., Washington, D. C. and available in the Reserved Book room of the Library, gave us ample opportunity to become better acquainted with many excellent volumes. The distant past ages were brought before our eyes in a tangible manner, in the varied and abundant displays in the Geology Laboratory.

Six weeks, though very full, seemed a bit inconsequential, in comparison with the millions of years which were represented by the age of some of the rare fossils on display.

On July 18th, Dr. J. C. Shapiro, Coordinator of the Joe Berg Foundation in Chicago, told us in very convincing words, of some accomplishments made by gifted boys and girls, in the field of Science and Mathematics.

One young man from Norristown, Pennsylvania, was present, who has been and still is, the recipient of benefits from the plan of this Foundation. The amount of his personal experiences was heartening and encouraging.

Taken by and large, the Summer Institute was a splendid investment of time and manpower for Villanova and for the participants. A spirit of good will and friendliness was shown by the entire group. It was the consensus of opinion that this venture was an excellent beginning, for in-service teacher training in these fields.

A powerful factor contributing to the success of the Institute, was the indefatigable solicitude of Father Hubbert, together with the general high level of kindly courtesy and helpfulness, which is one of the outstanding characteristics of Villanova University.

Very Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., Villanova's President, welcomes Christopher Dawson (extreme right), distinguished Catholic historian, to Villanova as Mother Mary Alida, President of Rosemont College looks on. A member of the Harvard University faculty, Dr. Dawson spoke during a week long symposium on Christian culture co-sponsored by Villanova and Rosemont which began July 6th.

VILLANOVA SISTERS GIVE BLOOD

Thirty of "Villanova's finest" were boarding a special bus early on Thursday morning, July 9th, before many summer students began stirring. Destination: Jefferson Hospital in Philadelphia. Purpose: to give of their blood so that another might live. They had volunteered in response to a request made by members of the lay auxiliary of the Congregation of Jesus Crucified.

A member of the religious society, Sr. Mary Claver of the Holy Ghost, had to undergo delicate heart surgery. The doctors gave her a 50-50 chance for survival. The Villanova sisters who visited her noticed she was quite peaceful, showing in herself the spirit of her Community, a joyful acceptance and endurance of suffering.

Transportation to the city and refreshments for the Sister-donors, as well as all hospital expenses had been underwritten by the auxiliary group.

Attending doctors said that the operation made medical history because of the procedures involved.

Even more momentous was that instant on Saturday evening, July 11th, when Sr. Mary Claver offered the chalice of her life's sacrifice to God. How Proud should those Religious be—their blood mingled with hers in that supreme act of love!

The list of donors includes:

Sister Mary Helen Clare, S.B.S.; Sister Margaret Brendan, S.S.J.; Sister Margaret Carmela, S.C.; Sister M. Josephine Francis, O.S.F.; Sister M. Margaret Ellen, O.P.; Sister Rita Francis, O.P.; Sister M. Margurite, F.S.S.J.; Sister M. University, he served at Merrimack in the capacities of Professor of Languages, Dean, and Vice President from 1956 to 1959.

Replaces Father Boyle

In his present capacity, Father Gildea replaces Rev. Joseph I. Boyle, O.S.A., Vice President for Academic Affairs for the past three years. During the two years preceding that post, he was Dean of the University. Terminating a 22-year stay at Villanova, Father Boyle is currently assigned to St. Nicholas of Tolentino High School in New York.

Leaving his post of Director of Admissions at Merrimack College, Rev. Francis X. Smith will serve at Villanova in the same capacity. Holding an M.A. in Speech and Drama, Father taught English, Speech, and Drama at Merrimack, where he was stationed since 1948. Both Father Gildea and Father Smith are among the pioneer group that contributed to the establishment and growth of Merrimack College.

Transferred to Merrimack from Villanova is Rev. Francis X. McGuire, former Director of the Development Program and one time president of Villanova University. Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A., University librarian sas been appointed to succeed Father McGuire as Director of Development.

Dr. Dawson Speaks on College Culture

Villanova University and Rosemont College were hosts this summer to Christopher Dawson, the noted historian and scholar, Mr. Dawson, a native of England, has been in the United States since he was invited this year, to Harvard University.

He is the first to hold the Chauncy Stillman Chair of Catholic Theological Studies at the Harvard Divinity School. Six Panel discussions were held, between July 6-10 in which Professor Dawson and other noted scholars discussed Christian Culture.

After two sessions devoted to an analysis of Christian culture, its objectives and its relation to other cultural programs, the remaining four panels discussed the relation of Christian Culture to theology, history, literature and philosophy.

Christian Classics Discussed

The role of the college curriculum in imparting culture was discussed with reference to each subject and to the Christian classics. Scholars from various other colleges and universities were present and took part in the panels.

The Annual Library Workshop held on July 11th treated the same topic on the secondary and elementary levels. The theme of the meeting was "School Libraries: Guardians of Culture, Channels of Thought."

"Just a little higher and you can have it, Sister!"

In Memoriam
Martin L. Gill

The death of Mr. Martin L. Gill on June 19th was a sorrow to everyone who knew him. Mr. Gill was associated with Villanova as a student, head of its Alumnae Office and professor in the Education Department.

We shall always be grateful to him for his work, for the interest which he took in the growth and development of the University and for his kindness and interest in all those whom he taught. But we are most grateful for teaching us the lesson of courage and cheerfulness. Mr. Gill acquired the art of living which is the art of perfect giving. We are consoled by the thought that for the Christian, "Life is changed not taken away."

Blind Student Works for V.U. Degree

By Sister Mary Loretta, S.B.S.

Miss Dorothy Collins, of 116 Hampden Road, Upper Darby, can be seen in the halls of Villanova in Summertime and Hallahan during the Winter. She is, like many another undergraduate, busily working toward her Bachelor of Arts degree. Dorothy, however, has been totally blind since three month after her birth.

A woman of rare courage, Dorothy is a full-time home visitor for the Association for the Blind in Chester, Pennsylvania. Her work brings her to homes all over Delaware County.

An employee of the Social Service Department of the Association, the tactful and charming Miss Collins interviews blind persons brought to the attention of the department. Many of these people are the recently blinded, whom Dorothy informs of the various services offered them to help their adjustment to the new situation. She is also a supplementary teacher of Braille and Handicrafts.

Dorothy received special training at Catholic University, Washington, D. C., and the University of Michigan before starting her fascinating career.

Hopes To Help Others

Dorothy is working in the Liberal Arts program here at Villanova because she feels this training will help her understand the ideals and attitudes of the people whom she serves. She hopes to bring new horizons to those who can no longer see.

Dorothy is a devoted student because she is a devoted teacher. She has even taken a course in television techniques so that she might better explain what television is to those sightless from birth.

This summer Dorothy is enrolled in two classes—"The Growth of the American Republic I" and "Fundamentals of Library Science". She finds little difficulty with her courses except in locating texts in Braille. For the past few summers Sister Therese Christa, S.N.J.M. has been Dorothy's "reader" and invaluable friend.

Dorothy finds no particular difficulty travelling. When she travels long distances she usually goes by plane, but boarding the P & W, subway, or trolley car is no problem either. This is due to her seeing-eye dog, Vesta, a six-year old German Shepherd. Dorothy went to Seeing-Eye, Morristown, New Jersey for a month's "get-acquainted" course with Vesta early in 1955 after her first dog died.

Dog Attends Classes

Vesta has been attending Villanova classes right along with her since then. Of all the courses, Vesta seems to have gained the most from Mr. Jonas' "Public Speaking I". Since that course. Dorothy says, Vesta does not hesitate to "speak"—sometimes very forcefully—during other professors' lectures!

Some students on the campus have inquired about the correct manner of helping people who are being led by a seeing-eye dog. Dorothy offers these points of advice:

"First of all, treat a blind person matter-of-factly. We are the same as other people, except for our handicap. Secondly, come up and ask us if we would like your help on the street. We may not always want it because we may be training a new dog. Don't be nervous about us, since that makes us nervous about you.

Thirdly, don't feed a seeing-eye dog. Each owner has a responsibility toward the dog to see that it stays in good health. Lastly, don't be embarrassed about using words that refer to sight, such as, 'Don't you see it'? There are other ways of seeing besides through the eyes.

Villanova students should certainly be proud to have such an example of faith, good sense, and practical charity among them in the person of Miss Dorothy Collins.

Sister St. Anthony familiarizes sightless classmate, Dorothy Collins, with program for library workshop which was held on campus on Saturday, July 11th. Dorothy's dog, Vesta, waits patiently. Under the direction of the Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A., head of the Library Science department at Villanova, the workhop featured many prominent librarians and educators.

"But if you just pass me in this course, I promise I'll never, never go on in Science!"

42nd Graduation

Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O.S.A., Augustinian Provincial will preside during the excerise. Degrees will be conferred by the Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., University President.

Bishop McShea will be presented for his honorary degree by the Rev. Joseph J. Gildea newly appointed Vice President of Academic affairs of the University, while the Rev. Joseph A. Bartley, O.S.A., Dean of Villanova's Division of Commerce and Finance, will present Brother Daniel.

Father Aherne will be presented for his honorary doctorate by the Rev. Joseph W. Kemme, Villanova's Vice President for Student affairs and Miss Kearney will be presented by the Rev. John J. Curran, Vice President for Financial Affairs.

Honorary Doctorates in Law will be conferred upon Bishop McShea and LaSalle's President and the Degree of Doctor of Letters will go to Father Aherne. Miss Kearney will be the recipient of the Honorary Degree of Doctor of Humane Letters.

Father Gildea Returns As Academic Affairs V.-P.

By Sister Rosalima, C.D.F.N.

Tall and well-built, a six-foot-two newcomer with a pleasant smile, Rev. Joseph J. Gildea joins the Villanova University Administration as Vice President of Academic Affairs.

Very fitting as a caption to the narrative account of the Augustinian annals of the affable priest is the head: "A Villanovan Returns". In truth, this is the third home-coming for Father Gildea, Villanova graduate. Father entered the Augustinian Order, on September 13, 1932, and was ordained May 30, 1939.

The interim was marked by the reception of an A.B., Villanova, '36 and followed by the subsequent attainment of M.A. in Romance Languages, Catholic University, '40; and Ph.D. in French, University of Pennsylvania, '46.

A member of the Villanova faculty from 1940 to 1946. Father Gildea was transferred to Merrimack College, Andover, Mass where his scholastc career from 1947 to 1959 included the positions of Dean, Professor of Languages, and Vice President from 1956 to 1959.

Villanova A "Moral Person"

Questioned concerning his reaction to this reappointment to Villanova, Father finds a statement difficult to formulate. "To fellow alumni and alumnae, and all the more, to fellow Augustinians, Villanova is Alma Mater, more a "moral person" (as Canon Law defines it), than a place . . . Reaction to a person tends to be emotional rather than reasoned and cannot easily be put into words."

The twelve-year span preceding the current return has seen some changes. "Villanova has assumed in name the university status it long had enjoyed in reality." A growth has taken place, Father notes, "a growth that can only be attributed to the fact that over a period of twelve decades, many people have sowed, many people have fostered, but God has given the increase."

His role, as an integral part of the University, Father sees as that of a linking force. "Whether it is a question of a college or a university, in each case it is camaraderie, a community of interests that exists between faculty and student body. At best, administrators serve as a catalyst in making the relationship mutually productive of personal development in character and intellect and of extension of the frontiers of knowledge and the kingdom of God."

Rejoin "Old Friends"

Returning to Villanova, Father Gildea rejoins friends and acquaintances, among these, Rev. Louis A. Rongione, O.S.A. Dean of the Graduate and Part-Time Division and Eugene J. Ruane, Director of Publicity for Villanova University.

Reminiscing for the benefit of the press, Father Rongione, fellow student and novitiate companion of Father Gildea, recalls Father as an exceptionally good student. Especially gifted as an actor, Father Gildea was active in dramatics and usually played the lead in University productions.

He showed himself equally capable in rendering Hamlet as in handling the lead for First Legion. Mr. Ruane, former student of Father Gildea, recalls he was an "excellent, and a thorough teacher."

Each day my heart is glad as I draw near—
Your door is open—others seek you first.
The urge to enter lessens each one's fear,
Our search for knowledge is a

THE TREES AT VILLANOVA

The trees at Villanova speak
In muted accents that entreat
Each creature to praise God's Domain
Where peace and joy always reign
O'er Villanova's vast terrain!

One ponders o'er the ages past
That marked these trees with strength enmasse;
One's Credo rises with delight
To God Who thus reveals His Might
On Villanova's Campus site!

Faith and Hope commingle here
In this most favored atmosphere
Where Love breathes prayerful melodies
In gratitude each time one sees
Villanova's immortal trees!

VILLANOVA CAMPUS

One day as I walked 'round the campus,
And leisurely strolling in song;
My path was an open highway,
For the traffic was moving along.

But the traffic was wide-smiling faces,
And the noise was quite different in tone;
I could hear gentle voices
reciting,
Or see someone just praying alone.

Sisters Shoot Highs In Rifle Team Match

Villanova's rifle team held its bi-weekly match in the John Barry Hall Shooting Range last Thursday.

The summer program which has attracted a number of Sisters and lay students is under the direction of Sgt. Edward Mulcany U.S.M.C. Sgt. Mulcany was assisted by Paul Lang who ordinarily assists in instruction on the firing of pistols.

The team this summer has worked with 22 calibre rifles. Tied for high score were Sister M. Celeste O.S.B. and Sister M. Stella O.S.B. Sister Celeste displayed proudly one target with a score of .97.

Sister Mary Karol C.S.J. made a bull's eye on her first shot and has become most enthusiastic in recruiting new members.

Other members of the team include S. Rita Francis O.P., Sr. M. Fabiana I.H.M., Sr. M. Henrietta C.N.D. and Sr. M. Terencia S.S.J.

While marksmanship is, of course, an aim of the program, greater stress is laid on safety. As the Sergeant remarked, "Accidents don't happen; they are caused." The instruction in proper handling of a rifle is designed to prevent accidents resulting from ignorance or careless handling of guns. Since many schools are planning or actually engaged in such programs membership in the rifle team is both instructive and enjoyable.

MY SCARF ROSE-BLACK

He takes the threads of life
And weaves a pattern on my soul,
Faint pink at first,
As if to woo my senses
As the wind caresses gold-red sand.
Would one not blush to be kissed,
Ever so gently
By this Lover
Beloved?
And so the thread
Crimsons into a darker hue.

More firmly embraced,
So deeper the thread grows
Rose.

And the sweet Darling
As if to tease my soul out of its swoon,
Steals an ebony flash
Across its path.
Ah! Seems is not ugly of Him
So to shatter my soul with black?

Dear no!
Blackness only accentuates the pink,
'Tis why He scatters the absence of light
Across my soul
(The scarf He wove).

And so,
When the ebony steals a kiss like cold death
And sends it dancing across my soul,
Is it no that I might see
How deep, indeed, it was,
The rose?
Else for the black
I might not see the beauty
As it deepened, deepened,
deepened,
Warmed and warmed,
'Til I, myself, cried out,
"O Ebony, come, cool my soul".

Seminarians' Softball Lauded

Sports enthusiasts on the Villanova campus this summer have enjoyed a series of baseball games on Friday evenings. Last Friday the seminarians of St. Mary's Hall met in deadly contest, a number of strong teams including the priests on the faculty of Bonner High School, the Christian Brothers, and the Franciscan Fathers.

The games were well attended in spite of the threat of comprehensives, quizzes, papers etc. There have been home runs aplenty and that little red cap has done yeoman service in making them possible.

If fireflies in sufficient numbers can be coaxed to the scene, we may even be treated to some night games. To all the players we say "Thanks!" We hope to see you all on the diamond next Friday!

SACRIFICE

Take this day
And bless it, break it,
Like a holy bread,
And on each unleavened moment
May my soul be fed.
Love alone shall Consecrate it—
Today has dawned
That I may give
The Sacrament of Now
For You to offer
In this hour that I live.

OUR LADY AND SAINT DOMINIC

The figure knelt before a throne,
His heart was raised in prayer;
And then a voice before him spoke,
With a love that filled the air.

"Take this," the voice was saying,
"Then do as I now teach.
Go out beyond the gates of sin,
And with these beads do preach."

Her words were now an echo,
As Dominic rose from his knees;
And turning toward his mission,
He had in his hands her beads.

1235 Freshmen Register, Including 50 in Nursing

Twelve hundred thirty-five freshmen registered last Wednesday for the 1959-1960 school year.

The enlarged freshman class will boost Villanova's total enrollment to over 4000 full time day students for the first time. In addition, marked increases have been indicated in the Undergraduate Part Time Division and the Graduate Division.

The freshmen began signing in at 9 a.m. and the steady flow continued well into the afternoon.

8000 Students

The Rev. Francis X. Smith, O.S.A., the University's Director of Admissions expects an overall enrollment in all of the Divisions of over 8000 students.

The school's Nursing division recorded an enrollment of 50 freshmen nurses, which is fifteen over last year.

The freshmen had come from widely scattered areas of the country, one from Oklahoma. Nurse applicant Kathleen Cox came from her home in the Canal Zone.

The class included a variety of backgrounds and names, including the names Hand, Ey, Goe, Hyde, Bird (male and female), two Browns, a Black, White, Grim and Gastley.

Male Nurse

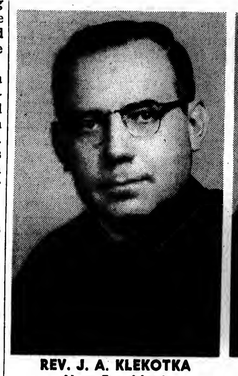
Among them were twelve former high school editors, a set of identical twins, a male nurse, two blind boys, a six foot-nine inch basketball player, and the son of Don Ameche.

Several campus organizations had erected booths which were manned to recruit new members. It was noted that one freshman had signed for the swimming team, the radio station, tne VILLANOVAN, the band and the Villanova Singers before he left the field house.

The new class has been participating in orientation activities for the past week, and will continue to be garbed in frosh regs until the MUFF day. If they defeat the sophomores in a series of athletic events on that day, they no longer wear regs.

Directed By Sophs

Directing the freshman class are a corps of "white hats," who are sophomores under the immediate direction of sophomore class president Tom Wall. They were assisted by student council members also wearing white hats.



The first official function at Villanova to be attended by the new class will be the Inter-fraternity Ball, scheduled for October 2. Chairman Irv Keller expects a large frosh turnout.

The class was the nucleus of a boistrous cheering section at the Villanova-West Chester football game last Saturday. They were displaying a spirit driven to high pitch by the Orientation Committee.

West Point Trip

White hats are convinced that freshman allegiance is strong enough to carry over into the remaining two home games with V.M.I. and Dayton. They expect the freshman class to comprise a large part of the forthcoming student trip to West Point.

Father Klekotka Named To Presidency During Summer

REV. J. A. KLEKOTKA
New President

REV. J. A. DONNELLON
Elected Provincial

Election of a new Villanova University president and Augustinian provincial, along with the appointment of a new Vice President for Academic Affairs and director of Admissions, highlighted the triennial chapter meeting of the Augustinian province of St. Thomas of Villanova at the Monastery on June 25.

The Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., new heads Villanova University as its 23rd president.

Joining him in filling New offices are Rev. Joseph J. Gildea, O.S.A., Vice President for Academic Affairs, and Rev. Francis X. Smith, O.S.A., Director of Admissions.

Elected provincial of the Augustinian province of St. Thomas was the Very Rev. James A. Donnellon, O.S.A., who preceded Father Klekotka as President of Villanova.

Villanova Graduate

The Philadelphia-born president of the University has been a faculty member here for 17 years.

A 1931 alumnus of Roman Catholic High School in Philadelphia, he was graduated from Villanova's School of Engineering in 1935 and entered the Augustinian Order the following year.

Fr. Klekotka was ordained in Washington, D.C., in 1941. After receiving his Master's degree in science from Catholic University, he was assigned to the Villanova faculty in 1942, teaching engineering courses.

In 1951, he was named head of the University's Department of Electrical Engineering. Four years later he was appointed University Chaplain.

Admission Director

After serving in this post until 1957, Father was appointed Director of Admissions. Now, as chief executive officer, he heads the 117-year-old University, which as of last semester had an undergraduate enrollment of 3,700 and a faculty of 255.

A total of about 6000 were enrolled in all undergraduate and graduate schools last semester.

Fr. Klekotka is a member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, The American Society for Engineering Education, The Institute of Radio Engineers, and the Albertus Magnus Guild, religious engineering fraternity.

Postmaster Defends New Edict On Three To A Box

"There will be a maximum of three to a box until further notice."

So stated acting Villanova Postmaster Charles Whitcroft regarding the apparent change in policy by the post office in renting box space.

"Actually there's no change in post office policy. It's just that prior postmasters disregarded regulations."

Whitecroft said this after being informed that there is much dissatisfaction among Villanova residents who object to paying the same rates for three to a box as they did last semester when they were allowed four to a space.

Used To Complaints

Whitecroft, a congenial veteran of 31 years postal experience, is quite used to such harrangues.

"I'm not trying to be rough on the boys," he explained, but regulations state explicity that each box is to be rented for four dollars and that the rentee may then prorate the remaining space to no more than two other occupants."

The postmaster further noted that there would be 1526 resident students this semester and only 500 boxes.

Double Problem

Hence Whitcroft was faced with the double problem of acquainting resident Villanovans with postal regulations previously unenforced. In addition he had to put up with overcrowded postal facilities.

"We are doing the best to alleviate the situation," the postmaster said.

Whitcroft cited a recent memorandum from his superiors that the cramped situation is strictly on a pro tem basis and that as soon as conditions permit, additional box equipment will be installed.

In the meantime though, three to a box. Period.

Science Building To House Nuclear Reactor, New Labs

Four million dollars are ouring into Villanova's new jetlined Science Building, now under construction on land between the Library and the Naval Science building.

As many as 100 laborers per day are assigned to the project, slated for completion by February, 1961. It will be equipped to handle highly specialized research, and to accommodate an enlarged science enrollment.

Seniors will be able to see the building before graduation, since Frank Dubler, job coordinator for Villanova, promises that the entire superstructure and exterior stone work will be completed by the end of next May.

Air Conditioned

The concrete frame of the new, air conditioned building will be partly sheathed with stonework to match the other campus buildings and partly with aluminum window walls formed of glass and panels of alberene stone.

The building, composed of two wings linked with a bridge of classrooms above the first floor, will house a planetarium, observation terrace, and telescope of the Astronomy Department.

A "hot laboratory" for the study of radioactive materials will be located on the ground floor, equipped with a sub-critical nuclear reactor.

Work Continues

Work on the building will continue without interruption for the next eighteen months, says Dubler, who presides from his air-conditioned shack.

The Science Department chiefs have already outlined their tentative programs in research which will be made possible with the addition of more space and facilities in the building.

New and advanced courses will be made available to both graduate and undergraduate students. The Physics department alone will be able to offer advanced courses in optics, modern physics, electronics, and magnetism. There will be three general physics labs instead of one, the present number.

Increased Research

The research made possible in the new building will be greatly extended over any research program that might exist. The building is designed

Artist's Conception of Science Building Now Under Construction

Wiele Named Midshipman Leader For Coming Year

Midn. 1/c Fred Wiele has been appointed Student Commander of the Villanova NROTC Battalion, it was announced last Friday by Capt. John W. Higgins, Commanding Officer.

Wiele, a senior Mechanical Engineer, is in the fourth year of a five year program as a regular Marine Option Student.

His scholastic standing, leadership and ability as a midshipman, were the basis of his appointment; his performance while on summer cruise also had considerable bearing on his selection as Commander.

From Long Island

A graduate of Chaminade High School on Long Island, Wiele has been active in all phases of activity at Villanova.

He has consistently maintained a scholastic standing at the top of his class. Last semester he achieved top honors: a 4.00 average, which brought his cumulative grade to 3.66.

Athletically, Wiele has been active in intramurals. A veteran of three years on the "small 5" team, he played in three intramural championship playoffs. Similarly, his football team, the Emmanons, played for the championship.

Student Council

Wiele's extracurricular activities make an impressive list. Serving on the Student Council for the third year, he is Vice President of Academic Affairs, and a member of both the Student Senate and the Student Cabinet.

He is Entertainment Chairman of the Orientation Committee, a member of the Spirit Committee, and Social Chairman of Phi Kappa Pi.

Wiele is also a member of A.S.M.E. and of two honorary engineering fraternities: Chi Epsilon Mu and Phi Tau Sigma. He has played in the Villanova band for two years and in the NROTC band for three years.

Extensive Experience

During the past three summers, Wiele has been on cruise to South America, to Little Creek, Va., and Corpus Christi, Tex., and at Quantico, Va., for six weeks of training. This summer he ranked fourth highest among the NROTC midshipmen of the nation.

As battalion Commander, Wiele hopes to improve the general performance of freshman members of the group by scheduling a more strict orientation program.

He would also like to see more frosh joining the drill team and the band.

"By improving the drill team and band now," he said, "their prestige will be enhanced, members' leadership and ability will be more fully developed, and these organizations will appear more attractive to future freshmen."

Need For A Guitar Player Only One Of His Troubles

Stan Gogoj, Junior Arts, is a worried man.

For the past three years, despite a heavy schedule at Villanova, he has been engaged in numerous musical activities including the direction of his own small orchestra.

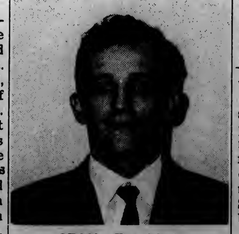
Recently another problem has been added to his load: Stan Gogoj needs a guitar player.

Suffers Keenly

It is said that to be an artist, one must suffer. If this be the case, then Stan has reached a high level of achievement. For years he molded his band, The Sultans, into a state of musicianship nearing perfection.

However, just before he felt ready to go to the public, his accordianist wanted to date girls all the time. This was a low blow. Many men would not be able to recover from such a shock but Stan is not an ordinary man. He rehearsed, rehearsed, rehearsed.

The band attempted to usurp his power by demanding that they begin to wear turbans while playing. Stan stuck by his guns, saying that this would be in poor taste with rose and white jackets over lavender shirts.



As time passed, the road grew rougher. Being an individualist, he insisted on waltzes at teen-age dances' and played Rock and Roll at the annual dinner of the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Cuban Tour

His greatest moment was last spring, when as a member of the Polish-American string band, he made a triumphant tour of Cuba for Fidel Castro. After coming home on the waves of glory, Stan was hit with another roundhouse.

His concerto, Savage, was stolen by a ruthless guitar player who turned it into a hit record. Discouraged but not defeated, Stan carried on. He is currently working on a three movement symphony entitled, Stagger Lee Returns in F Minor Under the Silvery Moon.

At the present, Stan is worried. He needs a guitar player, but not an ordinary hip-swinging guitar player. In order to perform on the level of The Sultans, he must be able to read music in at least two keys. And they're hard to find.

STAN—Troubled

Council Talks Of Orientation At 1st Meeting

Chairman Tom Hoffman presided over a brief, highly informal session of the student Council last Wednesday, the first meeting of the year.

Summoned by Hoffman to a special briefing on the council's function in the freshman orientation program, the council also shot into the air a number of questions which Hocman successfully parried and deferred to future meetings.

The fact that the chairman decided to delay the appointment of a Spirit Committee chairman until tonight's meeting, dismayed several members, including Alumni representative Sheldon Pollock.

Spirit Committee

He regretted that the freshman would be orientated without benefit of a spirit committee chairman and consequently, without official cheerleaders.

Bob DeLisa, vice-chairman, explained to Pollock's satisfaction that the sophomore white hats, under sophomore Len Carnaghi, would provide all the cheerleading necessary for the West Chester game.

Hoffman intends to appoint two co-chairmen, instead of a single chairman, to the committee, he said.

"I have one man in mind for the job," he added, "and another still unchosen." This halted discussion on the issue.

Motions Deferred

Other remarks from the floor which he smoothly tabled for future deliberation were:

1. "Why are the screens missing from the dormitory windows?" (Students returned to find that the screens had been removed during the summer and hadn't been replaced.)

2. "Why isn't there a gate in the fence?" (A fence had been erected inside the front hedge to preserve the grass from being trampled.)

3. "What happened to the furniture stored by certain students in the basement of Sheehan?"

4. "Why has the Villanova kitchen reneged on making reforms in the cafeteria which were promised last year in the wake of the Council food pool?"

Irv Keller Announces Oct. 2 for Frat Ball

The interfraternity Ball, the first major event of the Villanova social season, will be held on Friday, October 2, it was announced by General Chairman Irvin Keller, of LKD.

Tickets for the dance cost $3.00, and may be purchased from any fraternity member. Tickets will also be on sale in the Pie Shoppe on September 29 and 30, and October 1.

Annual Press Conference Scheduled Here Saturday

More than five thousand high school students from throughout the eastern United States will assemble here this Saturday for the twelfth annual school publications conference.

Students from two hundred high schools and preparatory schools in eight states will attend the day long meeting on the Villanova campus.

They will hear lectures and participate in activities designed to assist them in their work on school newspapers, yearbooks, magazines and other scholastic publications.

Very Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., president, will open the sessions with an address of welcome at 9:00 a.m. in the Field House.

Admiral's Address

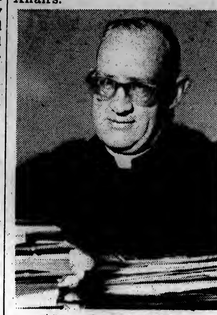
A special address to the student editors will be given by Admiral Denys W. Knoll, who has made career both as a scholar in the field of science and as a career officer.

Other speakers include Patricia Carbine, Assistant Editor of LOOK Magazine and James T. Quirk Publisher of TV Guide magazine.

The youngsters will also see and hear John Liney, celebrated cartoonist of the comic strip HENRY; William T. Cooke, Philadelphia yearbook publisher; Rev. Anthony L. Ostheimer, Editor of the Catholic Standard & Times; Leonard McAdams of the Philadelphia Inquirer and Francis X. Martinez, prominent Public Relations executive.

Field House Dance

A dance will follow the conference for the high schoolers in the Field House and the day long meeting will conclude with religious exercises



The Rev. Daniel P., Falvey O.S.A., University Librarian, is in charge of the program.

V.U. Graduate Makes Return Here As V.P.

Villanovans matriculating for the year 1959-60 will notice on the underside of their matric cards a new name—Rev. Joseph J. Gildea, O.S.A.

A graduate of the class of '36, Father Gildea returns to Villanova after an absence of twelve years, to assume the highly responsible position of Vice-President of Academic Affairs.

Rev. Joseph Gildea

Father comes to us from Merrimack College, Andover, Massachuetts, where his scholastic career from 1957 to 1959 included the positions of Dean, Professor of Languages, and Vice-President from 1956 to 1959.

Father originally entered the Augustinian Order on September 13, and was ordained May 30, 1939. After attaining his A.B. at Villanova, he received his M.A. in Romance Languages at Catholic University in 1940 and his Ph.D. in French in 1946 at the University of Pennsylvania.

WHILE FATHER has been away from Villanova in an official capacity, it hasn't been a complete isolation. He has returned several times before for retreats and visits.

Concerning his reappointment to V. U., Father states, "To fellow alumni and alumnae, and all the more to fellow Augustinians, Villanova is Alma mater. More a "moral person" (as Canon Law defines it) than a place.

"Reaction to a person tends to be emotional rather than reasoned and cannot be easily put into words."

"And I have seen many changes take place during the last twelve years" Father continues. "University status for the school, new buildings, and larger enrollments have all occured during my absence.

"In fact, I'd say that only about 25% of the faculty that was here when I left, still remains."

ON HIS RETURN, though, Father renews many old acquaintances here on campus.

Among them are Rev. Louis A. Rongione, O.S.A., Dean of the Graduate and Part-Time Division with whom Father attended the Augustinian noviate; and Eugene J. Ruane, Director of Publicity for Villanova who was taught by Father.

Father's newly acquired job is a tedious one.

The Arts and Sciences, Commerce and Finance, Engineering, and Nurse Divisions, the Undergraduate and Part-Time Division the Graduate and Law Schools, Research and Development, and N.R.O.T.C. all come under Father's direct administration; along with the Admission, Recorder, Guidance Placement Offices and the Library.

AS FAR AS Father's place in the Villanova Picture is concerned, Father sees himself as a linking force between the faculty and the student body.

It is Father's firm belief that a school's success depends mainly on the teamwork exhibited by both the faculty and student body.

"At best, administrators serve as a catalyst in making the relationship mutually productive of personal development in character and intellect, and of extention of the frontiers of knowledge and the kingdom of God."

The editors take the liberty, on behalf of the entire student body, to extend to Father the warmest greetings.

CLOSED STACKS, food complaints, and no Ricky Nelson!

What else; but Villanova. And through her portals during the last week, some 1200 fledglings have entered to become complete men via its educational facilities, its activities, and its college life in general.

SPEERS

The education and college life should come in stride; but activities are something that must be decided by yourself.

There are vaying activities for all of you, but there are only three that are really worth your four years here. They are: the Student Council, the Villanovan, and the Beta Gamma Debating Society; in that order.

You'll find ,in time, most of the other organizations on campus are too petty, too insignificant, and/or too cliqueish. Since we are a member of only one of these organizations, we can hardly be called prejudice.

Eventually our indefatigable fraternities will come out of their respective stupors in an attempt to seduce new members into their groups. Fraternities are hardly worth bothering about; unless you are a latin student ,in which case you will promptly be taught why the Roman god, Bacchus, was so revered in the ancient Roman Empire.

To the dismay of many, including this writer, "File 13," the popular humor column written by Bob Brothers, will not appear regularly this year.

Last year the Brothers' column appeared in more issues and was probably more widely read than any other.

But Bob leaves us on a happy note, anyway, (for him that is). For over the summer he was appointed city editor of the Phoenixville Daily Republican.

Brothers, a senior arts major, will complete his studies here this car, but because of his pressing schedule (he has forty men working under him) he will be unable to write his weekly column for the Villanovan.

But he did make us a rather hazy promise to put together one or two his "pictorial specials" this year.

We ashamedly admit that we did not attend the Saturday game, but undoubtly we were the richer for it. For the first time we heard a portion of a Villanova game being aired over the radio—and brother it still needs airing.

We can think of many words to describe this broadcast, but probably the most kind would be unique

. .Amist high C above C yells to the V.U. players, such as, "Let's go boys, we're two touchdowns behind" and "Nice run, Leon, a beautiful play."' (Gain: five yards) and "Let that ball roll, let it roll, don't touch it, don't touch it", when West Chester would punt, the announcer took an active part in first guessing coach Reagan.

When the 'Cats first score was called back our announcer promptly reminded one and all, about the W.C. touchdown that was nullified, and interjected that the referees probably thought that "turnabout is fair play". Then he assured everyone that this was just what the team needed — "It will make them madder," he said.

At one point in the game he made a direct challange on behalf of Drexel Tech to West Chester, when after announcing that Tech had pulled out of a four year contract with W.C. because of their superior brand of small college football, exclaimed will all the confidence in the world "so sue us".

His hysterical, novice attempts to make the V.U. team seem like a great sleeping bear which could converge on its prey at any moment were constantly being thwarted, and rapidly becoming disgusting.

Announcing of this type does nobody any good. Since the announcer is to broadcast all the Villanova games this year, a certain amount of partisanship is expected. But this go, go, go, cheerleading account of the games makes the team look straight from Bushville.

Frosh Male Nurse Sees Unlimited Opportunities

By DAVE McDEVITT

June of 1963 may see the graduation of Villanova's first male nurse.

Walter Knepley, a graduate of nearby Lower Merion High, has enrolled in the Nursing curriculum and promises to be an interesting addition to Villanova life.

After graduation from high school in 1948, Knepley enlisted in the Navy and became an electronics technician. With this experience, after his four years of service, he studied electrical engineering for two years at Penn State.

Although he was on the Dean's List there, Knepley began to wonder if this was the field for him.

Deciding Factors

The main impetus to his decision to become a male nurse came, appropiately enough while he was in a hospital.

WALTER KNEPLEY

Knepley became acquainted with the students in the school for male nurses at Pennsylvania Hospital during a long illness, and they supplied him with information on the subject.

His wife remarked, "It's a coincidence that Walt's brother is a junior at Jefferson Medical College. When he was young, Walt always answered, when asked what he was going to be, 'I want to be a doctor.' So you can see that it only follows that he should enter a field associated with medicine."

Unlimited Opportunities

The unlimited opportunities of nursing interested Knepley, but he had to be sure, so, as a "cooling-off" period, Knepley took over the office duties of a construction company for a year.

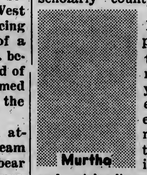
He says that a major factor influencing his final decision was that not enough women stay on in nursing. Many get married as soon as they graduate. This gives men more opportunities in all divisions of nursing."

At last year's "Careers in Nursing" forum, Knepley first learned that Villanova's nursing division accepts male students.

Campus Caught Eye

When asked why he chose Villanova, he pointed out many advantages: "Villanova offers the degree course, which I wanted to take. It is one of few schools that do this. Also, Villanova accepts male students in the course, and there was still room in it."

One of his first impressions of Villanova is that everyone wears a coat and a tie, making the campus "look distinguished."



While Knepley is a full time student, his wife works for the Bell Telephone Company. The couple's spare time is well spent. They built their own sailboat last year, and when the weather is good, they stow it on the car and take off for the Poconos. Knepley himself also plays on a local church softball team.

Walt Knepley has not yet decided which branch of nursing he will enter, but he admits he is definitely interested in phychiatric nursing, an open vista especially for male nurses.

Column 1 . . .

For Murthy's Sake No Mirth With Murtha

SOME WRITERS have ideal names for columnists; I don't. I mean, you have men like Jimmy Powers who writes the Powerhouse of Sports, for the New York Daily News (the scholarly counterpart of the Philadelphia tabloid of the same name.) All of you who have ever read Powers' column might argue that the name is inappropriate and misleading since there is nothing in his writing which could in any way be construed as being powerful.

Murtha

I answer, this is doubtlessly true but my point remains, disregarding the content, admittedly innocuous, his name lends itself to a clever column title. And there are others, more reknowned and widely read than he, such as last year's popular Villanovan staffer, Don Kempf, who also have easily adoptable names. Mein Kempf — this is a column heading! Of course, even the best journalist can go slightly overboard and I think Don was wise to revise his original gem, Kempfing Out; it transcended the majority of his readers.

But what does one do with a name like Murtha, disregarding all the ingenious and insane possibilities which I'm sure many of you can think of. Possibly Mirth with Murth? But no, with a title like this, people expect you to be humorous and consequently their disappointment is doubled when they find out otherwise.

The Murthinary — far to obscure. At least half of you probably do not get the implication, I know I don't. I did consider, For Murthy's Sake — but not seriously. So where does that leave us?

A FEW fellow writers have gotton around this pressing problem by injecting a note of mystery into their column, like the popular Willie and I. Who's Willie and who is I? The readers, you and I, don't know and thus our curiosity intrigues us into following the column in an effort to discover who I is. I know but you don't and for that matter, neither do I. This makes for much mystery.

But I figure that it's going to be difficult enough to follow my sometimes devious lines of reason, without further confusing you with additional subterfuge. The defense rests its case.

Still the difficult persist; the editors an honorable and exalted group (I know it's silly but they insist on it—lends diginity to the office, or something) say "No title, no column".

I gave them that Shakespearean stuff about a rose by any other name etc. but it failed to impress them. I should have expected as much, they exhibit, at time, a typical plebeian, General arts ,lack of appreciation for the bard. But that's neither here nor there, the fact remains that this column, if it is to continue in existence, must have a title and it will henceforth be known, or unknown as The Column . . . unless you object, in which case it will be summarily altered.

—FRANK MURTHA

AS THE BELLS begin to ring on the hour again, a new year is ushered in at Villanova; but we have all changed, if only just a little.

Some of us seniors now have three years of college behind us. Suddenly we are assuming that heavy burden of responsibility which can be aptly termed "acting as a senior." Others return to the Villanova campus as juniors or sophomores; and they too will find things are a little different.

HOFFMAN

Finally we come to the 1259 new fellows who arrived at V.U. just a week ago. In this short time you freshmen have been exposed to as much of Villanova as possible.

YOU HAVE MET some of our upperclassmen in the white hats. You have seen the spirit of Villanova at the game Saturday and you are gradually becoming acquainted with the academic phase of Villanova. These are some of the most important days of your lives—to meet the friends that you will have for the next four years—to learn how to adjust to college level, and many other things. Don't miss these opportunities! Instead, participate fully in all the activities arranged for you by the Orientation Committee and take advantage of all that they offer you. Use the "Hello Habit" at all times to all the students at Villanova.

We, the upperclassmen, welcome you, the Class of '63, and hope that your class will meas-

The Changing Face

To the new freshman who is working hard to establish a small niche of security in a new invironment, these words may be of comfort: Villanova is almost as new to us upperclassmen this year as it is to you.

So much is different from last year, that for an institution noted for its conservatism, Villanova is changing at a rate which should give pause to any liberal in the crowd.

There's the change in administration, with the fortunate acquisition of Fr. John Klekotka as president and of Fr. Gildea as vice president for academic affairs. In the spotlight especially will stand Fr. Gildea, the student body's best link with the administration.

A glimpse at the changing face of Villanova must include the prospective Science Building which will revolutionize the practice of scientific method here.

Other different items we observe are a football team which could never lose to West Chester, but did; a change in post office box rates; the addition of a hedge fence; the subtraction of dormitory screens, and the largest freshman nurse class ever.

You frosh will take these things for granted, but to us, they are new and wondrous things to behold.

In Store for Science

Nothing draws the public eye toward a university's science program more than a vigorous research program, in which the scientific method is put to work with results which are often startling.

In all these years Notre Dame, Penn, or Cornell have held a monopoly on giant strides made in the cause of discovery. Notre Dame had its chemical research in synthetic materials which led to a significant contract with Goodyear and a number of other large rubber companies.

In the field of Physics, Penn has labored for years with its ion acceleration project.

Villanova's share in the headlines will follow soon after the completion in 1961 of the new $4,000,000 Science Building, now taking shape on the area between the Library and John Barry Hall.

The best of modern facilities are expected to open up new vistas of research at Villanova by the science faculty and graduate students. But larger spaces and more labs are only the beginning. The present technical skill and zeal of the department members should bring the program to wide prominance.

No, it won't have an atom smasher, but nuclear research will flourish in the fully equipped "hot" laboratory, with the installation of the sub-critical nuclear reactor the school will purchase.

Astronomy will get its biggest boost since the original Newtonian-type eight-inch, reflector telescope first poked itself through the small observatory dome atop Mendel Hall. That scope will be humbled by the new $8,000 refractor type which will resolve distinctions in the tiniest star group.

Of course, the Chemistry and Physics departments will welcome contracts from business, if they are earned. But the pleasure and thrill of pure research in their own labs is all the department heads really ask.

The Biology department will assist such groups as the American Cancer Society. And the Math department will also find important work in the new scheme of things, along with the Astronomy department.

Science has a formidable future at Villanova.

HELP WANTED

The VILLANOVAN this afternoon launches a massive membership drive to secure at least 25 new staff members, freshman or otherwise. A meeting will be held in the amphitheatre of the Commerce and Finance Building at 4:30.

There are staff openings in the following departments: News, features, photography, typing, sports, layout, business, and circulation. In other words. we're almost destitute for assistance.

President's Welcome

It is a pleasure to be able to repeat in writing for the VILLANOVAN the words of welcome I expressed to you at at the Opening Mass on September 21st.

After the brief respite of the summer we are glad to greet you for another year of your life in Villanova's halls.

As before, I especially welcome the freshman class into our fold.

YOUNG PEOPLE often have thrown at them the philosophy: "You only live once, so live it up." I will repeat these words of wisdom: "You only live once, so live it up."

But my meaning is different from the usual connotation of this expression. You only live once indeed, but that one life is a life that lasts forever.

Your hope for everlasting happiness in that life depends entirely on how you use the brief moments of your life on EARTH. There will be no retakes, no reruns — your life has to be right and good the first time around.

AS INEVITABLY as the loss of our first football game to West Chester goes into the record book, so does every passing moment of your life go into the record books. Yes, you only live once.

Live it up, therefore. To the hedonist this will perhaps means wine, women and song. But our Lord has said: "This is eternal life, that they may know Thee the one True God, and Him whom Thou hast sent, Jesus Christ."

This is the life for which your Creator has placed you upon this earth and no other design for livin gcan be successfully substituted in its place.

As you bend your efforts to your studies—and I hope you will do this with renewed intensity—do put uppermost the task to know God better and his relationship to you.

Live up to the brightest ideals that God had designed you for.

I ask the Holy Trinity, One God and Our Blessed Mother to bless all our endeavors during this school year and bid you all "live it up."

WVIL's Problem - Listeners

There's an intitution located on the second floor of Dougherty which has proudly risen from a nickel venture in the not too distant past, to a te thousand dollar operation today.

That's WVIL.

The station has always been richly endowed and ever-expanding, but we are frightfully dismayed to admit that its touchiest unsolved problem in the past has been the appalling dearth of listeners on campus.

The station's own public opinion poll last year certified that WVIL ranks behind the major Philadelphia stations, in number of nightly listeners on our own grounds.

Switch the Dial

Residents would be sure to tune in hungrily to a WVIL basketball broadcast, but would be just as sure to switch the dial upon completion of the game.

Is it a question of disloyalty to campus radio? Yes and no.

The WVIL staff, a large one, has always put in long tedious hours for no remuneration except that etheral feeling of accomplishment. We might reason that the least the residents can do is listen in, and appreciate what effort is being made.

But on the other hand, if the same type of entertainment that WVIL offers is available on some local A.M. station with admittedly better professional delivery, then the question of loyalty can be strained a bit.

The obvious solution to the problem, of course, is better

Question: "What do you think about Khrushchev's visit to the United States?"

Answers all contributed by freshmen.

"I don't think that Khrushchev or the communists have any interest in establishing any sort of arbitrary peace. Under the terms of the visit, President Eisenhower must make a return visit. I think that this visit to the Soveit Union will fraught with propoganda about the reds being eager to end the cold war. From what I've heard from Hungarian refugees and other people in the know, the communists are not to be trusted by any means." Al Reinoso.

"His visit has nothing whatso-ever to do with a bid for peace. Nixon's visit to Russia was a so-called good-will tour, and nothing apparently came out of that. The gap between communism and capitalism is too wide to be settled by good will tours." Phil Costanzo.

"I think the visit is a good thing. It gives him a change to see what it's like to live in a democracy that uses captialism so successfully. He can at least see what he's up against: a country of strong, freedom-loving people who will defend their homeland against anything." Douglas Mann

"His visit is nothing more than a diversionary tactic to show the rest of the world just how good the communists are. They hope to camaflauge the true meaning of communism and make their government appear good." Richie Grondo.

"I am wondering if Khrushchev is not the least bit worried about the visit himself. The temptation for the persecuted persons from behind the Iron Curtain to attack him is great. His visit will only add to their hatred. Perhaps seeing him will make us realize what we are up against." L. Vattese.

"His visit, despite the nation's great opposition to it, might help to cement a lasting peace. Despite the great differences in our way of life, the communist world and the democratic world may find a way to live together in peace." Gloria Ferraro.

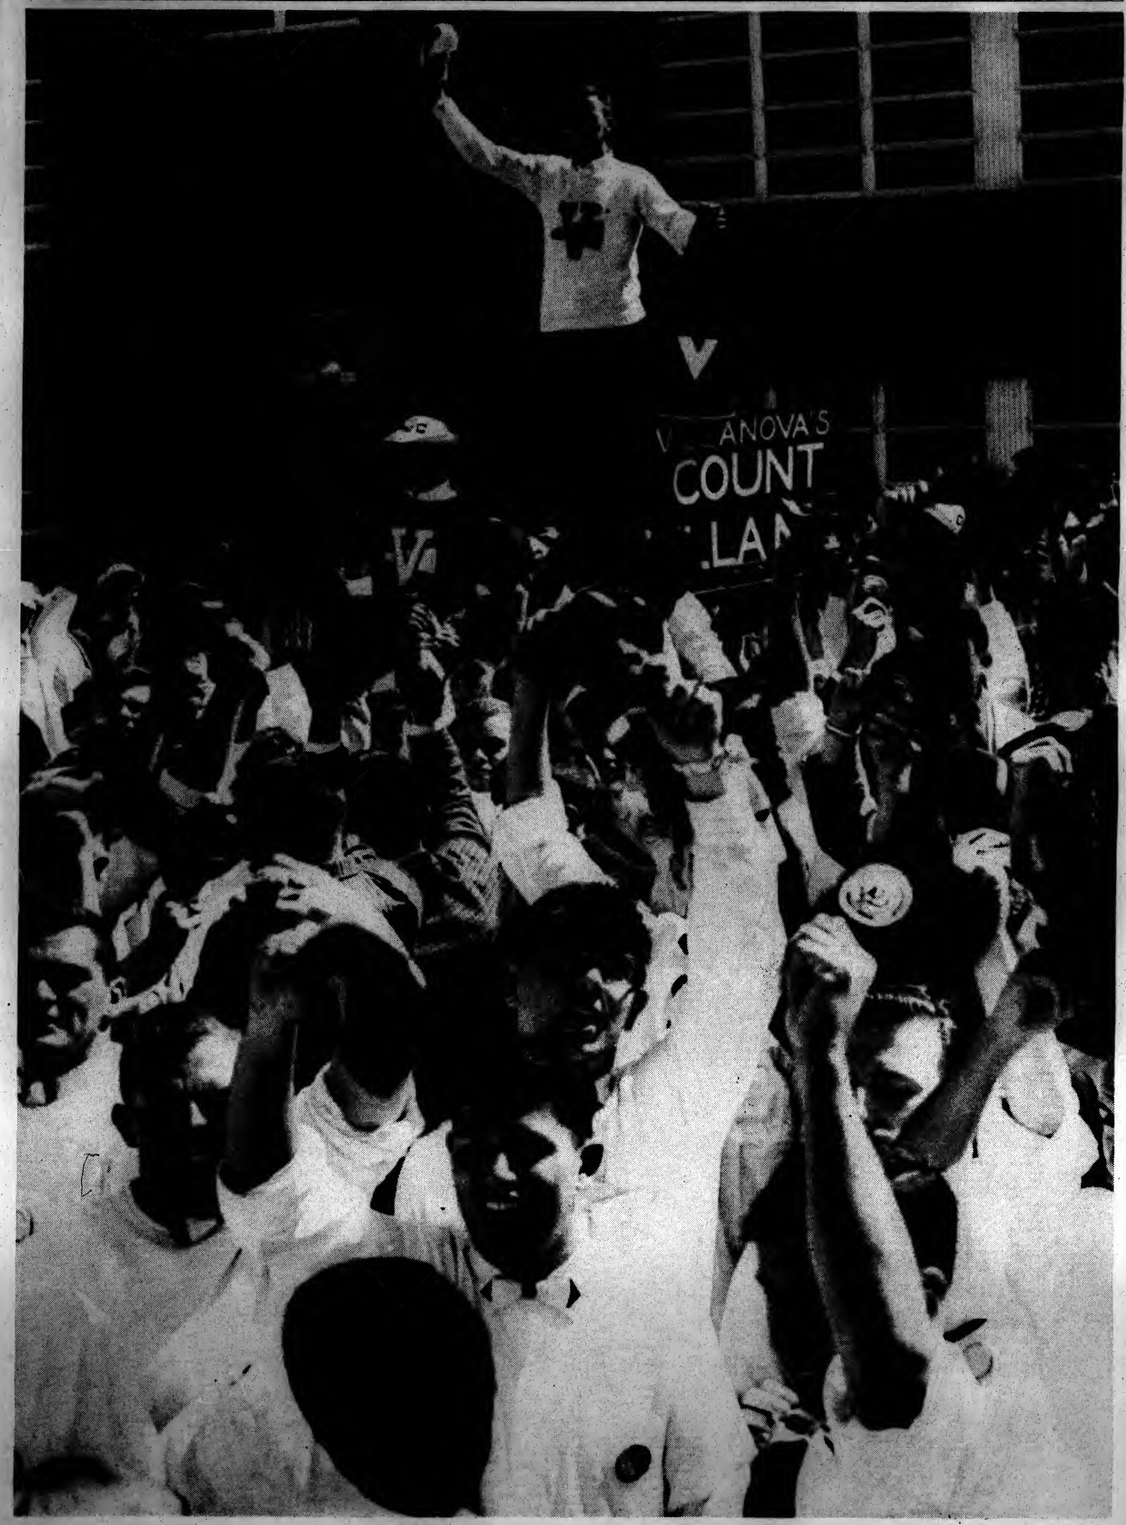
NEW FACES IN THE CROWD



Above, the frosh of '59, under the gentle guidance of the revered "White Hats", cheerfully submit to the delightful experience of "being oriented." Days of herding and hounding eventualy produce the desired effect, and the Class of 1963 suddenly emerges as a spirited member of the Villanova family.

Above, left to right (or possibly right to left), Attilio and Julius Chiappa of New Jersey examine their new Main Line address, while to the right, 30 of Villanova's "Privileged Characters", the campus co-eds, participate in an orientation session "for ladies only."

City On The Outskirts:

"Miracle Worker," Darin, Phillies' Jazz Liven City

By Tony Macklin

The city on the outskirts of Villanova, namely Philadelphia, has been frequently slurred for its lack of activities (e.g. I went to Philadelphia and it was closed). If the ghost town label was ever true it doesn't seem so today.

Billy Penn's city has a slew of top attractions scheduled for the coming year. First of all, the six legit theatres have scheduled 30 shows. The first and perhaps the biggest smash of the incipient season is "The Miracle Worker" starring Anne Bancroft. This show is said to have received probably the biggest opening-night ovation of any local tryout since "Death of a Salesman." It closes here Saturday, don't miss it.

Jazz On Upbeat

If you are a jazz fan you should be happy with our city for all of a sudden it seems Philadelphia is a jazz town. Last weekend saw two different shows at the Academy of Music. The future holds a Ray Carles show, Kenton-Freshmen-Christy package ,and a Contemporary Music Guild show at Penn's Irving Auditorium.

Recent outdoor festivals have met with fantastic success across the country and so, come October 15 and 16, swinging will take on a new meaning at Connie Mack Stadium when the Phillies will present a Festival of Jazz.

Count Basie and his band, featuring vocalist Joe Williams, song dove Chris Conner, and spiritual singer Mahalia Jackson will perform both nights.

The quintets of Chico Hamilton and the U. of P.'s Jimmy DePriest will play Thursday while the Ahmad Jamal trio and the Maynard Ferguson band will do the honors on Friday night.

Maynard's High Notes

An outdoor festival in the middle of October? Chris could melt any snow but what if it rains, And how will Maynard's brass fare in reaching for the high notes if it's frigid. It should prove to be a very interesting experiment .

For those who don't trust the elements, or favor the circus atmosphere of a large ball park there is an outstanding jazz spot just across the bridge to Jersey in the Red Hill Inn. If the Red Hill is not directly in Philly it is still close enough to be considered.

Pep's and the Showboat handle jazz attractions in Philadelphia that don't reach the Hill, such as Miles Davis. The Celebrity Room has a number of top comics coming in.

Mack The Knife

Sciolla's has Ivo "Morgan" Robic set for October and rocking Bobby Darin is due November 16. Darin at the top with "Mack the Knife", is one of the few young pop singers who has class on a night club floor.

Opera, Ballet, Philadelphia Orchestra concerts, and a flourishing sports schedule make Philadelphia a peppy and important entertainment area.

REFLECTIONS . . . good and bad. Mathis set for Palumbo's in Jersey sometime this season. Sinatra's movie commitments are keeping him from a Palumbo date . . . The roof has settled on the Red Hill after Ferguson and Kenton. Chico Hamilton this week, Roy Kral and Jackit Cain next . . . "The Beat Generation" starring Mamie Van Doren is one of the worst pictures of the year, sensational, commercial, and stupid . . . Maybe the beats will get an honest treatment in Metro's "The Subterraneans," from the Kerouac novel. Since Hollywood is handling it, it is doubtful," Ben Gazzara in "Body and Soul" is a TV must Sept. 28 . . . Favorite album of the week is "Ballads of the Sad Cafe," by Chris Conner. Favorite single is "Mr. Blue" by the Fleetwoods, a soft, sweet, vocal blend.

On A Continental Spree

jim bising

Ed. Note — Writer Bising made a trip abroad this past summer. The following are some of his observations of Americans in Europe.

Back in the land of the button-shirt and Bermuda shorts after continental spree, and still there is no worthwhile image of what is valued by my homeland and its people besides a picture of George Washington on a green background. About the most inadequate thing in Europe is the Yankee minus his Traveler's Checks.

Without these semi-miraculous pieces of paper the wandering citizens of the world's richest nation are not very impressed. Many of them sense this, and rush to discard their American clothing in favor of more continental garments such as tappered pants and pointed shoes. Beards sprout on chins and hair is left uncut.

BISING

There are other Americans who take pride in the fact that they are owners of the type of clothing which proclaims its wearer to be an American college students; these students (unfortunately this type of person is usually a student) seem, on occasion, slightly mystified that not quite everyone is rushing to immitate either their clothing habits or (lets us all give thanks) their methods of reasoning.

PERHAPS I am too hard on the good, solid sort of creature who just wants his degree, an average-looking wife, a couple of children just like him (even if they are girls), a home in the suburbs and all the things that go with it . . . a ranch wagon, T.V. set, and a place to go in the summer.

To obtain these symobls of "success" a decent quality point average is necessary. Of course, how one achieves his marks is not so important. A's in attendance, and the highlights of surrounding test papers are not frowned upon by IBM machines, and one is sure to make a good impression on our NATO allies by letting them know of his B average in the U. S. A.

In this writer's not to humble opinion, the biggest advantage that the European male enjoys over his American counterpart lies in his relationship to the opposite sex. Across the sea, a woman's place is in a home (mental or maternity), and the males are successful in their attempts to keep them there. Maybe Nikita's visit will change things here.

Pope's New Envoy

Pope John XXIII's new Apostolic Delegate to the United States couldn't be happier in his new job.

So enthusiastic is he about the American way of life, says the October Catholic Digest, that for years his Vatican colleagues have called him "the American."

Fifty-three year old Egidio Vagnozzi speaks English like an American, holds press conferences in free-wheeling American style, and served as secretary to the Apostolic Delegation in Washington, 1932 to 1942.

Archbishop Vagnozzi says that one of the traits he most admires in Americans is "their straightforward approach. The tendency in Europe is to talk and talk. Americans see a straight line as the shortest distance between two points," he says in the Catholic Digest story.

The new Apostolic Delegate is pretty straightforward himself, the publication says. Once, when he was dining with a group of U. S. Army officers during the war, they asked him if he knew a certain Italian prince.

"Heck, no!" he exclaimed. "My father was a fireman!"

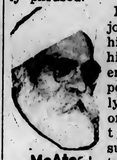
A Columnist In Trouble



jim mc ateer

Hello!

Having done my duty to the Orientation Committee by plugging the "Hello Habit," I suppose it would be pukka to introduce myself to the frosh as a feature columnist, and this, dear friends, is a feature column.

Often, my more unflinching and irrepressable admirers will ask just how I manage to create this outstanding example of literary anarchy each week.

"How do you dig up and throw together such drivel?" is the way the question is generally phrased.

McAteer

Normally, any journalist worth his thesaurus or his A in attendence would expectorate squarely into the optic or of the perpetrator of any such prying into trade secrets. However, since I lost my thesaurus the other day ,and my attendence record (or lack thereof) is something of a record, I suppose I may forge ahead in this brilliant expose of life and times of a newspaper columnist.

THE INITIAL STEP is to take a sheet of blank yellow "copy" paper (a journalistic term) and roll it carefully into the typewriter. This paper is now your mortal enemy. It stares bodly at you every time you raise your eyeballs above floor level.

It is very blank.

You proceed to marshal your thoughts, to fire your wits, to alarm your sensibilities. Then you decide it's a false alarm and go out for coffee.

Down in the Pie Shoppe you sit and wait for people to run breathlessly up to you with absolutely devastating items. But nobody does, so you range the room with your eyes and imagine what people are thinking:

Mary is pouring hot water into this coffee urn (mental giggle)." Two nurses are huddled together off in one corner, talking secretively. They are thanking, "I hope everyone notices us huddled together off in this corner, talking secretively." A huge burly-chested workman sits alone, smoking a cigarette. He is thinking, "I am thinking."

HERE IS drama here; there is epic material. But you can't write an epic. You have to write a column. Back at the office, the paper hasn't moved. It is still staring coldly at you. It is still blank. You think of all the people you've asked for items; you think of the answers you got. You think of all the interesting things that have happened since last week.

Then you go out for a beer.

Eventually you assemble a few scattered rumors, piece together some meager particles of trivia, plagiarize indiscriminately from any and all available sources. Finally you start to pound away at that smug piece of blank copy paper. Now, do you take these few dull facts and by sheer genius transform them into bright, clever tidbits?

You do not. And here's the secret:

You make up lots of interesting lies.

THE TIME: 10 o'clock Tuesday. I parked the Stutz in the VU parking lot to begin my final year. I positioned myself at the Pike curb to dodge the drag race traffic. I dashed out, took ten giant steps, broad-jumped a low flying Fiat, scampered under a trailer truck and careened through an inviting hole in the hedge, SURPRISE! MAINTENANCE WAS AT IT AGAIN. One question comes to my mind. What good is a fence without a gate.

Observation: Lights have been installed on the parking lot to further facilitate night school activities. Fatalities on the Pike will mount as thousands of students will now seek the luminated tranquil confines for study purposes. Yeah, who needs the stacks?

Another observation: There are no screens over the windows at several dorms. This could mean that all the bugs are now residing inside the dorms at our expense. Oh well, who cares as long as they furnish their own linen.

With the new flourescent lighting in the gym we will be the only college team to play our home games bedecked in sunglasses.

Leo Goodreau Now A Legend At Villanova

Editor's Note: This story is a reprint of the article written by Bill Jones that appeared in the January 1, 1956 issue of the VILLANOVAN. The facts that were used for that story were taken from the December 5, 1950 VILLANOVAN from an article written by Robert J. Quinn. It is reprinted here in order to acquaint all freshmen with the name and tradition of Leo Goodreau for whom the Stadium is named, and to whom this newspaper is dedicated.

Villanova University has produced many outstanding men throughout its years of Catholic education. Among these men some have been brilliant students, some excellent athletes and other superior gentlemen. But perhaps one of the finest men ever to enter Villanova, a humble composition of each of these qualities, never graduated. The man today is a shining memory to those of the faculty who have been at Villanova since 1930, and to the present undergraduates, merely a simple name on a tarnished plaque. This man, to whom the VILLANOVAN is respectfully dedicated, is Leo Goodreau, a scholar, an athlete, and most of all, a gentleman.

Merely a Name

To most of the students at Villanova, Leo Goodreau is merely a name that decorates the stadium and appears in the VILLANOVAN every week, but he is far more than that.

In 1927 the Villanova Stadium was erected and dedicated. The entire Villanova student body attended this ceremony. One of these students was a freshman who was destined to die on that field within one short year. The story of Leo Goodreau is in reality inspiration, an inspiration to all Villanovans.

Football

Leo was an All-New England interscholastic quarterback in high school and became a prominent name on the Villanova campus. He joined the ranks of freshmen football players and due to his hard, fast, clean and aggressive play was immediately tagged as a future star and a sure bet to take over the first string quarterback slot on the varsity the next fall.

In his first game for the Villanova frosh, he scored the first touchdown to be recorded in the new stadium, a touchdown which opened the season and the stadium with a triumph. Little did Leo realize that in the space of a few short years this field would be named Goodreau Stadium.

Baseball Too

Although he was the finest football player that Villanova had seen in quite some time, this was not his best sport. Despite his skill as a quarterback, Leo showed as much if not more proficiency as a catcher on the baseball team. His coach, Charles A. McGeehan, predicted that he easily had a major league career before him if he wanted it. He was truly a great athlete.

Leo, deeply engaged in athletics, nevertheless had an abundance of time for social activity. He was instrumental in conducting the freshman dance in the spring of 1928. Under his leadership and determination the dance became the most successful in the history of the class. In appreciation for his fine effort, the class elected him to the position of Secretary shortly before the scholastic year terminated.

Revived Spirit

He was also instrumental in reviving Villanova's fraternities which were practically non-existent. Meetings were seldom held and little was accomplished when they were. He revived the Epsilon Phi Theta Fraternity into one of the most active social clubs on the campus. In order to remain in the campus picture the frats were forced to rejuvenate and the school spirit flourished as it never had before. Leo had solidly proven that a lack of spirit had no place on the Villanova campus.

Despite this unusually heavy schedule, Leo maintained a scholastic average which placed him in the upper half of his class. His coach, Harry Stuhldreher, figured on him as potential All-American on the gridiron and a shining light in the Villanova football picture. It was a sure thing. But he was never given the chance to show his All-American calibre to the rest of the sports world, for the Lord had other and far greater plans for Leo J. Goodreau.

On the field Leo never gave up digging, and ironically this hustle cost him his life.

His Last Play

One early September afternoon he was calling offensive signals for the varsity against the frosh in a grueling scrimmage held in preparation for Villanova's game. The frosh lined up determined to prove their mettle against a larger and more experienced varsity. As the ball was snapped to a halfback, Leo, who besides being a triple threat on offense was a demon on defense, bolted forward leading the interference. The frosh line charged. There was a quick pile-up. It was Leo Goodreau's last play.

When the players unpiled, Leo was lying quite still, face down on the turf. As he slowly came to, his face was contorted with pain. A teammate tried to help the stricken player to his feet and he shrieked with pain. His back had been brutally broken.

He was given no chance of survival by the specialists called in on the case. He was almost completely paralyzed. His back was broken a'right, but his spirit was hardly dented. No longer was he fighting for his school, he was fighting for his life. He refused to give up. He insisted on hearing all the football scores that grim Saturday; his wish was not denied. He assured everyone that someday he would be back in the Villanova "line-up." But Leo underestimated himself, for he was soon to participate in a far more rewarding "line-up."

Undefeated Season

When it was recognized that he was not going to pull through, there was talk of postponing the entire football schedule, but Leo would have nothing to do with this idea. He movingly complained that it was not only unfair to the team which had worked so hard for so long, but even unfair to himself.

It is merely an anti-climax to state that the Villanova football team, inspired by this tough plucky youth swept on to an undefeated season, crushing all opposition.

The Last Spark

But soon the fight became too much, even for Leo Goodreau. He confided to his coach, Harry Stuhldreher, "I've given the best that is in me, I'm tired out, I can't hold out much longer." Death was near. He was given the Last Rites and soon lapsed into a coma. While in this coma, he began to call football signals and continued until early Tuesday afternoon, just four short days after his gridiron play, the spark of life in Leo Goodeau flickered out.

A Sad Scene

Father O'Leary who was present at the time of the death had this description: "It was a beautiful but sad scene. Outside were teammates and classmates, and inside priests and doctors. To the last Leo maintained that same staunchness of heart which marked him on the football field."

At the funeral in Villanova's College Chapel, the casket was carried by his former teammates. The entire student body was present at the Solemn High funeral Mass.

The situation was not radically changed, however, for now, he was merely playing for a new Coach and a new team in a much higher league.

Surely the spirit of Leo J. Goodreau lingers in the halls and on the playing fields of Villanova, a spirit which is to those who know his story, an ever present inspiration to higher standards of sportsmanship and duty.

It would be useless to try to develop a brilliant sentence or two for a finis to this story, fast becoming a legend, for five little words supply everything that can be said: "Leo Goodreau, scholar, athlete, gentleman."

Augustinian priests who administer more than 40 parishes, conduct two universities, two colleges and 11 high schools.

Nearly 40,000 students are enrolled in Augustinian educational institutions in San Diego, New York, Washington, Philadelphia, Boston, and Los Angeles.

With his election as provincial, Fr. Donnellon also becomes the Chairman of the Board of Trustees of the University. He served as president for the past five years. A native of Lawrence, Mass., he was graduated from Villanova in 1930.

Studied Biology

After his ordination to the priesthood in 1932, Fr. Donnellon pursued studies in biology at Catholic University and at Harvard. After obtaining his Master's degree, he earned his Doctorate of Science at the University of Pennsylvania in 1938.

In 1950, having served on the Villanova faculty for many years, he was appointed Prior of the Villanova Monastery and Chairman of the University's Board of Athletic Control.

Four years later he was named President of Villanova, succeeding the Rev. Francis N. McGuire, O.S.A.

New Vice President

Fr. Gildea, under Fr. Klekotka, will serve as director of academic affairs with jurisdiction over faculty and student body.

A native of Lawrence, Mass., Father comes to Villanova from Merrimack College, North Andover, Mass., where he had been stationed from 1947 to 1959.

One time professor of Romance Languages at Villanova, Fr. Gildea served at Merrimack in the capacities of Professor of Languages, Dean, and Vice President from 1956 to 1959.

In his present capacity, Father Gildea replaces Rev. Joseph I. Boyle, O.S.A., who served as vice president for the past three years.

During the two years preceding this post, Fr. Boyle served as Dean. Terminating his 22-year stay at Villanova, Fr. Boyle is currently assigned to St. Nicholas of Tolentino High School in New York.

Director of Admissions

Leaving his post of Admissions Director at Merrimack College, Fr. Smith will serve at Villanova in the same capacity.

Chuck Kelly, Cheer Captain, Hopes for Complete Support

Chuck Kelly, newly appointed captain of the Wildcat cheerleaders, expects a vigorous response from the freshmen at Villanova's three home games.

It's the upperclass spirit that worries him.

"The frosh have been well orientated," he said. "They'll cheer until they're hoarse."

But he sadly recalls how, last year, the enthusiasm of the upperclassmen diminished to such an extent that, towards the end of the home season, even the eager freshmen were dragged into a deep apathy by it.

Three Home Games

"It'll be a shame if the same misfortune results again this year, with only three home games. Why, last year the bleachers might as well have been empty, for all the response the cheerleaders received," he said.

Kelly is working closely in league with another sophomore, Len Carnaghi, who will function as the student council's liason with the cheer team, at the same time serving as an active cheerleader himself.

Carnaghi was acting captain of white-hat cheerleaders for the West Chester contest, since Kelly is nursing an arm fracture.

Coordinate Cheers

The sophomore engineer resident representative on the student council, Carnaghi envisions the happy prospect of a completely coordinated cheering body.

"Maybe the introduction of more animated cheers is a partial solution to the problem," he speculated.

Actually, the two don't expect their fears of student indifference in the stadium to materialize. Spirit is always rampant for the first game, said Kelly; "The V.M.I. game is homecoming weekend, and the Dayton game is Parents weekend.

"These should inspire enough spirit."

Flynn As Wildcat

Kelly is also being assisted by juniors Bob Brogan, John Oberlies, Nick Cassetta, and Kevin Flynn, who will don the Wildcat skin for the second consecutive year.

The cheerleader squad is a part of the Spirit Committee, which will officially organize this evening under two co-chairmen to be appointed by council head, Tom Hoffman. Bill Vincent was acting chairman for the past week.

Ed. Calls For Contributions and Membership for LYNX

Frank Murtha, editor-in-chief of the LYNX, the campus literary magazine, speaking at a recent staff meeting, emphasized the fact that there are still a number of open staff positions.

Citing the importance of the LYNX as Villanova's only vehicle of creativity, Murtha requested that any student interested in working on the staff attend the next meeting, which will be announced on all bulletin boards.

"The idea that only arts students are eligible for positions on the staff is a misconception," Murtha declared. "Engineers can put their knowledge to work as members of the layout staff, and C&F'ers can gain valuable experience on the circulation staff."

Nurses Respond

Typists, artists, and copy readers are also needed, the editor says. He was particularly gratified at the response of the nurses to his drive for membership.

The primary need of the LYNX, however, is writers. Short stories, essays, timely articles, and poems are all being accepted for possible publication in the Fall issue of the LYNX.

WVIL's Problem - Listeners

programs. And here, in school year 1959-60, we may possibly serve witness to WVIL's turning point.

Look for Revival

Fortified with a new staff, headed by sophomore Dan O'Mara, the station shows symptoms of ecstatic revival. With a headful of ideas of his own, O'Mara can also count on an imaginative display of talent from certain of his staff members. He seems to include his most fertile minds in his inner circle.

Student indifference should induce the station management to drastically revamp their disk-jockey-type programming. The average night of music last year was notable for the fact that, while the records would spin on and on, only the identify of the disk jockey would change intermittently. Some of them were good, but none was ever able to achieve much of an identify for himself.

Radio Editorial

Yes, there were the interviews and the special events, but last year"s season, as a whole, was singular only for its sports coverage and John Oberlies' enimated editorial blasts. Oberlies, unfortunately, was too infrequent with his salvos.

The most hearting news we have heard yet concerns a new brainstorm of Oberlies and Bob Delisa, who last year made an enthralling program out of reading the menu.

They envision a weekly, three hour show called Digest It's a take-off on Monitor, NBC's weekend smorgasbord-of-the-air. Delisa plans to roam about the campus securing interviews on a tape-recorder, interviews which will be incorporated into Digest.

Especially Sports

He and Oberlies would interview personages who have a story to tell, who have views pertinent to the Villanova scene, whether they be student of faculty, lay or religious .Sports stars would be their favorite targets.

This is an invigorating breath of fresh air. We are only surprised that the station has never invoked the magic of tape before this. The inception o ftape laid bare a whole new world of opportunity for commerical radio many years ago and its obvious advantages should be utilized by WVIL often.

WVIL is in possession of a marvelous potential to shape public opinion. It's crucial advantage over the VILLANOVAN, that it is able to communicate to a daily audience, and campus news items havs a greater urgency if discussed only hours after they occur. Therefore it wouldn't be a bad idea to have a small dose of that Digest on a daily basis, since a daily version of Edward R. Murrow would provide a healthy continuity, something that might become a habit with the informed listener.

There are many eyes on WVIL and Dan O'Mara, to learn if this is radio year for Villanova.

The research groups will work in special research rooms, and in the event of a business contract as the result of research, the work will retire to project rooms, since such companies usually require security.

The Biology Department will be located on the ground floor and first floors, with a Science Museum. The second and third floors will be occupied by the Chemistry Department.

New Sliding Roof

The telescope in the observation terrace will protude through a sliding roof, as opposed to the turret-type mounting of the old scope now on Mendel Hall.

"Excavation for the building has been going smoothly," says Dubler, scotching rumors that he was held up for days by a faulty network of underground piping in the area.

The largest single installation in the building will be an extensive system of refrigeration. The entire place is air-conditioned.

In his last weekly meeting with the various contractors Tuesday, he described the new glass piping which will convey corrosive wastes. This replaces high silicon piping on those drains.

Heavy Machinery

Machinery now being employed for excavation ranges from the hand shovels to a 50-ton crane with 150-foot boom. Hand shovels are used only for trimming the excavation footings.

Dubler's big headache is discouraging students from passing the fence boundaries and roaming about the diggings.

"Even the most experienced of my workers are wary of the holes and machienry," he said. "Students in the area could be seriously injured by trucks."

The excavation has stolen part of the field formerly used by the NROTC unit for Tuesday drill periods.

"The unit will carry on just the same," promised Lt. Martin Gillen, public information officer. "We might have to send platoons over to Austin Field for more room, however."

"... All A Part of What Makes Spirit"

"YOU CHEERED BUT IT WASN'T ENOUGH"

Tony Macklin

The following is an open letter to the freshmen:

On Saturday afternoon you got your first taste of Villanova athletics. It was truly a bitter dose of ram. for days you had been hounded into displays of spirit. You had been led to believe that this was "the year" for all the Wildcat teams.

You were assured that Villanova could name the score against West Chester State Teachers college. Some of towners had never even heard of them before. It seemed like a setup to send the 'cats streaking.

A few of you didn't care either way but most of you felt a certain excitement as Saturday morning approached. It wasn't a feeling reserved for freshmen either.

Problem Solved Unhappily

My big problem was how to write a column on a Villanovan romp. I would not have been surprised if the game had ended with the 'cats on top by 40-0.

We had a veteran team back, depth, and a line that would prove unimpenetrable. The quarterback problem was a lot of blather. Roehre was capable.

The press we were receiving seemed grossly uninformed. All the Saturday Evening Post said was that Villanova was deep in guards and tackles. Playboy picked us 6-4. The really unbelievable prediction came out of New in Dick Dunkel's rating. He picked West Chester by 15 points!

Game Jolt

The team had looked sharp in practice and the Philadelphia papers picked us by a solid three touchdowns. So as you and I entered the stadium Saturday we felt secure and hoped that West Chester would put up a little bit of a fight to make the game interesting.

The game was a traumatic experience. The Rams of West Chester outfought, outhustled, and outgutted the bewildered Wildcats. You freshmen cheered but it wasn't enough to jar the 'cats out of their torpor.

Each member of the team wishes that the game could be played over, but it's too late now; its in the books. It was a humiliating and deserved defeat. What happened?

West Chester is a superbly coached team. Their blocking and tackling is crisp and thorough. But it was more than this. They were inspired. To use a trite but true summation, it was the game of their lives.

Sky High

Ken Campbell, captain and star end who scored the first touchdown, summed it up. He was still high from the intense determination that had gripped them all and the great effort that came from it. He held the game ball fondly.

He wanted to talk about the game. He knew why his team had won. "I'll tell you why. You took us too lightly, right? This was our big game. We got two and by the time you realized what was happening it was too late. You couldn't catch us."

Bill Shockley was a whippet among rams. He was the outstanding player on the field. Standing amidst a group of whooping students, his eyes shone: "We were way up. We were up for this one."

'Cat Not Weak

Ted Kowal, the quarterback who hit for six sharp completions, felt the same way. He felt they had outplayed Villanova on drive. "We outfought you all the way."

All three agreed that Villanova was not a weak team but that they had been surprised and beaten psychologically and therefore physically.

If Villanova was confident they didn't look the part. They never showed the class that was expected of them even though they captured the statistics.

The opinion of the man on the sidelines is harsh as usual. As I went to catch the victorious Rams for comment, a policeman gave his candid opinion. "I can tell you what Shockley will say. He'll say this team is lousy. It's the worst team in years. Xavier will beat them. Holy Cross will kill them. Army," he laughed with relish, "will say which one shall we trample next?"

Victories Coming

So, freshmen, you have been initiated into Villanova athletics. You have been given an example of the completely unpredictable brand of ball played by Villanova teams. You have seen the loss of composure that proves so costly.

You are probably disillusioned and discouraged. You feel let down. This is all a part of what makes spirit. There will be many victories, many losses and much frustration in your four years at Villanova. But overall you will see a highly competitive, exciting, winning brand of ball.

The West Chester Rams left a wound that will be hard to heal, the doctor is spirit and the prescription is victories. You're the doctor, Freshmen.

Extra points: The New York Herald Tribune of September 8 quotes Coach Reagan as follows: "Barring injuries, if we can't do it this fall, it will be the coaches' fault." Were there any injuries Saturday? . . . Jim Bonner, who broadcasts the games on WRCV, in his analysis of the final outcome of the game felt that lack of V. U. backfield speed was the difference . . . West Chester is having a difficult time scheduling games, nobody wants to play them. Delaware and Lafayette nixed games . . . Capacity crowd proved local teams drawing power . . . Millersville wants us next.

". . . . by the time you realized what was happening it was too late."

"But overall you will see a highly competitive, exciting, winning brand of ball."

Wildcats Taught ABC's By Underrated Teachers

By JIM MURRAY

The Teachers of West Chester came to Villanova Saturday afternoon Sept. 17 and met a class of obliging pupils in the persons of the Wildcat football team.

When "class" was over the teachers had put their lesson across to a tune of 13-7. The 14,000 who turned out for the first day o fclass left with the feeling that Villanova has a lot of homework to do.

Villanova got the first break of the game when junior tackle Joe Luzzi pounced on a fumble deep in West Chester territory.

The Ram line held the 'Cats on four downs and took over the ball. For the rest of the first period there was no scoring but there was something very unexpected happening. The Ram line was butting the Wildcats all over the field. What could this lead to?

'Cats Shocked

After four minutes of the second quarter it led to the first West Chester score. Bill Shockley scampered 38 yards with an Eddie Roechre punt to the Villanova 17 yard line.

From here Shockley and Hayden Leffler carried the ball to the seven. A seven yard pass from Ted Kowal to right end Ken Campbell gave the Teachers their first six points. Shockley kicked a perfect placement and made it 7-0.

The West Chester line was spending the entire second period in the Villanova backfield. Rochre was snowed under on the six yard line and the ball was shaken loose. Leffler fell on it and set up West Chester's second score.

On second down Shockley knifed through the line for five yards and the TD. He again made the extra point but a penalty nullified it, and his second attempt was wide. Score 13-0.

After recess (halftime it looked like the 'Cats had learned their lesson. With good protection Ed Roehre completed two short passes to sophomore sensation Sam Gruneisen.

All For Nought

With the ball on the 30 yard line Leon Horin burst through the middle of the line and found daylight. He got two steps in front of the Ram secondary and sprinted the last 50 yards like a Sherman tank.

And all for nought—a penalty nullified the TD and Horin was given a 15 yard gain. (West Chester had a touchdown pass pay squelched because of a penalty earlier in the game).

In the fourth quarter Villanova showed what it could do. With Roehre hitting Sam Gruneisen the 'Cats started to march. Wayne Kautter came in with a long pass play and hit halfback Frank Ficca for 26 yards to the Ram five.

Bill Paczkoskie romped over for the 'Cats lone tally of the game .Larry Sopko kicked the extra point. The last offensive drive was halted when Bill Shockley (there's that name again) intercepted a pass.

The 'Cats got their hands on the ball for three desperation pass plays and West Chester took the ball and the game.

The game proved: 1) Glen Killinger is a great coach, 2) Quarterback Ted Kowal is a rookie with the poise of a veteran, 3) Bill Shockley would be a welcome addition to any team.

END OF THE BENCH—Glen Killinger called the game the greatest win of his career . . . .

Never underestimate Dick Dunkel . . . never expect to win just hope to win . . . It's not the end of the world because we lost our first game . . . The team needs student support more than ever . . . The quarterbacks need more line support . . . Ken Cambell lived up to his press notices . . . Wait till next week . . . Never believe what you read in newspapers . . .

By MIKE DONAHUE

If Villanova's Wildcats expect to emerge victorious in Sunday's encounter with Xavier's Musketeers, tney're going to have to want to win a lot more than they did last Saturday.

This is not only the consensus of opinion of all who had the misfortune to witness last Saturday's debacle. Coaches Dave DiFillipo and Bill Brannau think so too, and they didn't even see the West Chester game.

They were busy scouting the 'Cats next opponent, Xavier, in its game with Louisville Saturday night.

What they saw leads them to believe that head coach Frank Reagan's minions are going to have their hands full come next Sunday.

Quarterback Likes to Pass

"They're a young green team," said DiFillipo, "but what they lack in experience they make up for with hustle and drive. Those guys play like they want to win."

Four of new coach Ed Doherty's Musketeers were singled out by Brannau and DiFillipo as the men to watch Sunday.

Ron Costello is a quarterback a la Johnny Unitas. In Doherty's pro T offense, his job is strictly limited to play calling and passing. Judging from his record against Louisville last week he is a pretty fair field general. Against the Kentucky school he broke the Xavier record for pass completions when he hit on 17 of 28. (If Reagan's air defense is as porous as it was in the first half o fthe West Chester game the Wildcats could be in for a long afternoon.)

His prime target is rangy John Kappas, right end. DiFillipo called him "the best looking pass receiver I've seen in five years and that includes Army's lonely end (Bill Carpenter).

The Xavier line is anchored by rough and rugged tackle Ed Mazurek, 6-3, 230. According to Brannau, Mazurek is a demon on defense and a devastating downfield blocker.

Against Louisville, Cox sparked his teammates with his aggressive all around play to a come fro mbehind 28-13 victory. Xavier was down 0-13 at halftime.

Letterman Back

Louisville was the Musketeers' second victim of the season. The previous week the Ohioans downed St. Ambrose, 24-7, as Costello unleashed his first aerial circus, flinging 29 passes.

Doherty, former backfield coach of the Philadelphia Eagles, has only eleven letterman back from last year's squad which broke even in ten games.

These include, in addition to Costello, Kappas, and Mazurek, veteran fullback Ed (Jocko) Serieka, halfback George Noonan and linemen Hank Rigler, Tom Gonnela, Jim Link, Tom McGraw, and Gene Tomczak.

Third Game of Series

Sunday's meeting will be the third between the two elevens. Villanova has won both previous games.

At Cincinnati in 1952, the Wildcats trounced the Musketeers, 34-20.

In 1953 Xavier came to Philadelphia and the 'Cats won again by a score of 21-14.

Co-Curricular Improvement Immediate Goal of Council

"We must think big. We can't let ourselves get bogged down by petty gripes."

This was the keynote of Tom Hoffman's opening address to the first formal session of Student Council held last Wednesday.

Hoffman said that the Council should give priority to co-curricular activities even in precedence to extra-curricular affairs.

"We should also strive to lend our assistance to the Administration in effecting a mature disciplinary program and in creating a better religious atmosphere."

Hoffman summed up what he thought were the primary duties of a Student Coucil.

Thorough Job

"We must recognize and act on all opportunities, effect simple by-laws, possess a consistently sincere attitude, do a thorough job of informing the student body, select worthwhile projects to sponsor, and we must vote only after careful, mature consideration."

Hoffman said that this agenda, if followed through, would show the Administration that the Council members are effective representatives.

Encourage Students

"We're not just an advisory board," emphasized the chairman. "We must encourage students to survey the world around them. We are, or at least should be, the leaders of the student body."

At this juncture the meeting proceeded to vote on the resolutions acted upon by the Student Senate on Sept. 21.

Bill Henry's motion that date tickets for all university students be made available at reduced prices for all home football games was unanimously recommended for approval.

Tom Wall's proposal that the annual Muff Day be held next Wednesday was passed but only after Father Girolami, faculty moderator, instructed the Council to double check with Ed Geisz, intramural director, to be sure that there were no intramural events scheduled for that day.

DeLisa Scores Student Abuse For Screen Loss

The loss of screens in campus dormitories is most likely the result of constant abuse on the part of the students, said Bob DeLisa at the initial meeting of the Student Council last Wednesday.

DeLisa, vice chairman of the council, recommended that formal consideration of the subject be delayed until resident students are made aware of the discomfort such a loss entails.

Take Proper Care

"We must get across to the students that they must be willing to take proper care of the screens before any replacement can be considered," he said.

Action Necessary

He stressed that he was not siding with the administration fully on the removal of the screens, but that in view of the considerable damage done, action of some kind was necessary.

DeLisa expressed regret however, at the fact that the Student Council had not been informed by the administration of their action before the student body returned.

Since the Student Council considers itself an intermediary group, DeLisa stated, it should have been their duty to inform the students of the reasons for the administration's action.

In the meantime, the discomfort of the resident students found its champion in the per-

Inter-Frat Ball Tomorrow Stars Al Raymond Orchestra

Preparing for the Interfrat ball are Irv Keller, LKD, the General Chairman, Connell O'Donnell, DPM, Lee Christensen, PKP, and Mark Evans, DPE.

Arrangements for the third annual Inter-Frat Ball to be presented tomorrow evening, are nearing completion, Irv Keller, Lamba Kappa Delta, general chairman of the dance, announced today.

"This year's ball, featuring Al Raymond and his orchestra, promises to be a gala event beginning the Villanova social calendar", Keller stated.

High Interest

Ticket sales have been moving rapidly and appear to be passing previous expectations. According to Keller, "This is due to the particularly keen interests and highly competitive spirit shown by this year's participating fraternities."

Tickets, selling for three dollars, are being sold by representatives of each fraternity and may also be purchased in the Pie Shoppe and at the door."

As has been customary, the informal affair will last from 9 until 1. Dancing will prevail amidst an air of "inter-fraternity congeniality".

The nine-piece Raymond group also played at last year's Ball, and at the Junior Dinner Dance.

Supplies Money

"This dance is held for the purpose of supplying funds for the four campus fraternities. Proceeds are divided among these fraternities on a percentage basis, based on the number of tickets sold by each fraternity". For this reason Keller urges all to attend, including the many who will undoubtedly join a frat in the future.

Frosh Debut

Keller said this affair will not only enable Frosh to support the fraternity of their choice but will also allow them to start their social season off on the right foot by attending their first major collegiate dance."

The chairmanship of the Interfraternity Ball is rotated among the four fraternities.

Spirit Committee Declares "Back Us or We'll Resign"

"Unless everybody is behind us, we'll resign en masse," declared John Oberlies at the initial Spirit Committee meeting held last Thursday.

Oberlies, newly appointed co-chairman of the Committee, insisted emphatically that "this is the nucleus for the best Spirit Committee ever."

He said that he had a letter of resignation prepared in the event that the Administration, Student Council, and student body do not back the Committee to the hilt.

Oberlies and his co-chairman, Jack Valva, told committee members that theirs was "an all-year job, including the lulls between sports seasons," and that each member was expected to do his job or he would be replaced by someone willing to work.

Moderator "Greatest"

It was added that Committee moderator Rev. Thomas Kenny, O.S.A., was "one of the greatest on campus," and that there was no doubt that he would work with the Committee in all its efforts.

The sixteen-man Committee was divided into pairs by Valva and Oberlies, and each pair assigned to head one of the eight sub-committees which together cover every aspect of school spirit.

Immediate plans to boost spirit which were discussed at the meeting included greater organization of the students' participation at athletic events, increased participation in extra-curricular activities by all students, especially nurses, and the protection of university property by the Committee at all mass events.

Tentative Plans

Regarding the first of these plans, Committee members discussed the buying of blocks of choice tickets to sports events and the chartering of transpor-

8 A.M. Mass In Field House Opens Retreat

Today is the annual Day of Recollection at Villanova.

Various religious exercises are being held for all students of the university. Male day students attend morning exercises, beginning with Mass in the Field House at 8 a.m.

Resident men's exercises are held this afternoon at 12:30 p.m. All women students begin their activities at 8 a.m. in the Chapel.

Retreat Master

Rev. Edward L. Daley, O.S.A., is Retreat Master for all men students. Presently stationed at Good Counsel Novitiate, New Hamburg, N. Y., Fr. Daley graduated from Villanova in 1947.

Father received his subsequent education at Catholic University, Washington, D. C.

Ordained in Atlantic City N. J. in 1951, Fr Daley served as chaplain at Archbishop Carroll High School, Washington, before being appointed Assistant Novice Master and Procurator of Our Mother of Good Counsel Novitiate.

He has always been extremely active in retreat work.

Women's Retreat

Retreat Master for women students is Rev. Joseph A. Duffy, O.S.A., presently an Alumni Hall counsellor here at Villanova. Fr. Duffy, a native Philadelphian, graduated from Villanova in 1949.

Forum Tonight

Dr. Frederick Khouri, of the Political Science Dept., will discuss "Mr. K's visit to the United States" this evening in the first of a series of Student Council sponsored forums.

Dr. Khouri, noted analyst on international affairs, will receive questions after the talk.

This is the Council's first trial attempt to promote co-curricular activity on campus, said Tom Hoffman, chairman.

The forum will take place in Vasey Auditorium at 8 p.m.

Students clad in all sorts of attire turned out for the surprise Saturday morning rally conducted by the Spirit committee, under the direction of John Oberlies and John Valva.

8 a.m. Rally Draws Crowd

Chances are a few resident students got rude awakenings last Saturday morning.

Sometime around 8 a.m. whitehats and members of the spirit committee were seen (and heard) running through all the dorms rousing the resident population of Villanova.

The occasion? Why, a pep rally to send off the Wildcats as they prepared to start the long trek to Xavier.

Spontaneous Rally

"I believe that a spontaneous rally would be an innovation at Villanova," John Oberlies, spirit committee chairman, said when he announced the plan to the Student Council last Wednesday.

"But . . . like I mean . . . That's the most inopportune time for a pep rally I could think of," piped up Sheldon Pollock.

"Man, that's exactly why we're having it at that time," boomed the vociferous Oberlies. Spontaniety—that's what we want. We have to show those guys (the football team) that we're still 100% behind them.

A rousing sendoff would really boost their morale."

So at 8 Saturday, Oberlies, Jack Valva and Co., aided and abetted no end by a symphonic siren mounted on a firetruck, a band blatantly sounding off like Sousa in stereo, snatched Villanova's unsuspecting denizens from the arms of Morpheus.

Eloquent Remarks

Most Villanovans, confronted with the unusual situation, waxed eloquent as they uttered such inquisitive phrases as "What the hell?" and one veteran's comment, "I haven't seen anything like this since London was blitzed."

Nevertheless, Oberlies' crash program worked. Freshmen were told that it's collegiate to shout at eight o'clock on Saturday mornings, and shout they did.

Young Journalists Convene Here At Annual Conference

Over 5,000 students from two hundred high schools and preparatory schools in eight states attended the day-long Press Conference held last Saturday.

The Conference was under the direction of Rev. Daniel Falvey, O.S.A., Villanova Librarian.

Very Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., president, opened the Twelfth Annual Conference at 9 a.m. with an address of welcome in the Field House.

Conference Series

The young journalists then participated in a series of conferences with eminent members of the journalistic field.

On hand were James T. Quirk, publisher of T.V. Guide magazine, Miss Patricia Carbine, assistant editor of Look magazine, William T. Cooke, Philadelphia yearbook publisher.

Also present were John Liney, who draws the cartoon "Henry," Rev. Anthony L. Ostheimer, editor of the Catholic Standard and Times, Leonard McAdams of the Philadelphia Inquirer, and Francis X. Martinez, prominent public relations executive.

Admiral Knoll

The day's keynote address was delivered by Admiral Denys W. Knoll, a scholar in the fields of science and the military, who spoke on problems of communication in a shrinking world.

The Conference was concluded with a dance in the Field House followed by religious exercises.

Tom Peretti, Belle Air editor, speaks to high school students attending last Saturday's press conference.

Fr. Duffey Named As Vocations Director

The Rev. Joseph A. Duffey, O.S.A., has been appointed Director of Vocations for the Province of St. Thomas of Villanova, it was announced last week by Rev. Norbert Whitley, chaplain.

He will have the full-time task of encouraging potential vocations among Villanova students. Interested students can contact Fr. Duffy in his office in the basement of St. Rita's Hall.

Fr. Whitley also said he is presently making arrangements with the Religious Affairs Committee for closed retreats for students not wishing to make the campus retreats. This was the practice last year.

Tentative plans call for the committee to contact retreat houses in the area with provisions for student transportation.

Annual Law Forum Series To Begin Next Wednesday

Dean Harold Gill Reuschlein this week announced the opening of the 1959-60 season of The Law Forum.

The Law Forum is now commencing its fifth season. Dean Reuschlein stated his hope that "the University faculty generally, and interested students from other parts of the campus, will be able to join with us on Law Forum nights".

Schedule Proposed

The Law Forum is directed by Professor William B. Ball, of the School of Law. Professor Ball stated that the program for the coming year would be as follows:

Wednesday, October 7th: Judge Robert Morris, formerly Chief Counsel to the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee, and a noted authority on Communism, will speak on "The Decline and Fall of American Internal Security".

Judge Morris, author of the book "Why We Are Losing", has been a vigorous critic of United States policies toward Communism.

Friday, November 13th: Melvin M. Belli, San Francisco attorney, will address The Law Forum on the topic "The Law is Alive—What About the Lawyers?"

Mr. Belli, sometimes referred to as the "King of Torts" is perhaps the best known trial lawyer in the United States today.

Wednesday, December 2nd: Senator Edmund S. Muskie, of Maine, will present a discussion of "Law and Politics".

Senator Muskie created a nationwide sensation a few years ago by becoming the first Democratic Governor of Maine.

One of the younger senators, and a Catholic, Senator Muskie has been the center of much recent interest.

Wednesday, February 3rd, 1960: Professor Alpheus T. Mason, McCormick Professor of Jurisprudence, Princeton University.

A leading Constitutional scholar and perhaps the nation's top authority on the Supreme Court, Professor Mason will address The Law Forum on "The Supreme Court and the Political Process".

Wednesday, March 2nd: Anne Alpern, Attorney-General of Pennsylvania. Miss Alpern, the Commonwealth's first woman attorney-general, is keenly interested in reform of our criminal laws. She will speak on "The Unrealistic Approach to Criminals and Their Treatment".

Wednesday, April 6th: Representative Joseph W. Martin, Jr. of Massachusetts. On the eve of the national conventions of 1960, the political veteran whose gavel has resounded at many of them, will tell The Law Forum audience what significance our national conventions appear to hold for the cold war world of 1960.

He will also explain how the conventions are organized and will describe the strategic moves to be looked for. His topic: "The American Political Convention — Meaning, Mechanics, Memories".

Each meeting of The Law Forum will take place at Garey Hall at 8:30 in the evening. Aid for The Law Forum has been provided by a gift from Thomas J. Reilly, Esquire, of the Delaware County Bar and by the generous contributions of other speakers in the past.

Scalia Appoints Jr. Steering Committee

Bob Scalia, Junior Class president, announced the appointment last week of a 32-man class steering committee for the current school year. It met for the first time last evening.

GADGETS GALORE

Amazing new gadgets are on the way for Americans, the Catholic Digest says. Among them are an oven which bakes cookies in 190 seconds; paint which kills insects touching any surface painted with it; and push-button telephones to replace the conventional dial phones. Best news of all for American housewives: an automatic floor scrubber that scrubs, rinses and dries the kitchen floor by remote control.

Senior Class Maps Plans For Homecoming Weekend

The Senior Executive Council held its first meeting of the academic year last Thursday evening. The item of primary interest on the agenda was the election of members to the class Steering Committee.

Senior Class President Ray Rafferty stated that the Executive Council considers the Steering Committee as an actively representative body for the collection, dissemination, and interpretation of opinions concerning class activities, in order to direct important decisions which affect the Senior Class as a whole.

Intensive Representation

Furthermore, the Executive Council feels that an intensive rather than an extensive representation will be realized in the Senior Class through the newly-elected members.

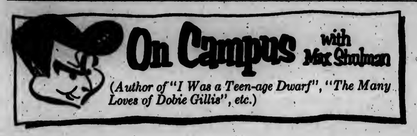
In electing these members, their past records and their present qualifications were taken into consideration. Overall, the Steering Committee is representative of both residents and day-hops, as well as of the various schools of study.

Others Active

In addition to members of the Steering Committee, there are numerous students who hold other positions which are vital to the success of planned class activities.

Besides choosing the Committee and discussing class activities, the Executive Council considered the role of the new Advertising Committee, which will search for unique ideas in publicising activities.

Students at Saturday's rally give team royal, if noisy, sendoff, as they depart by bus to the Xavier game.



Semper Fi. Society Meets; Address by Major Rooney

Members and prospective members of the Semper Fidelis Society last night attended a smoker at John Barry Hall.

The program included an introduction of this year's officers of the society, a short talk on the Marine Corps' Platoon Leader Class program by Captain A. J. Reute Jr., U.S.M.C. and a Korean War combat film.

Major John Rooney, U.S.M.C., spoke on the aims and purposes of the Semper Fidelis Society.

It has been noted that all Marines who attended instruction classes given at Barry Hall last year, survived the 50 percent attrition rate at Quantico this summer.

ANOTHER YEAR, ANOTHER DOLLAR

Today I begin my sixth year of writing this column for the makers of Philip Morris and Marlboro Cigarettes. For this I get money.

Not, let me hasten to state, that payment is necessary. "Sirs," I said a few days ago to the makers of Philip Morris and Marlboro, "if I can introduce America's college men and women to Philip Morris and Marlboro, and thus enhance their happiness, heighten their zest, upgrade their gusto, magnify their cheer, and broaden their bliss, there is no need to pay me because I am more than amply rewarded."

We wept then. I'm not ashamed to say it. WE WEPT! I wish the wiseacres who say big business is cold and heartless could have been there that day. I wish they could have seen the great, shimmering tears that splashed on the board room table. We wept, every man jack of us. The makers wept—the secretaries wept—I wept—my agent, Clyde Greedy, wept. We wept all.

"No, no!" cried the makers. "We insist on paying you."

"there's no need to pay me..."

"Oh, very well," I said, and the gloom passed like a summer shower. We laughed and we lit Philip Morrises and Marlboros—and some of us lit Alpines—which is a brand-new cigarette from the makers of Philip Morris and Marlboro—a fine new cigarette with a light touch of menthol and the rich taste of choice tobaccos and the longest filter yet devised. And if you are one who likes a fine new cigarette with a light touch of menthol and the rich taste of choice tobaccos and the longest filter yet devised, you would do well to ask for new king-size Alpines. If, on the other hand, you do not like menthol but do like better makin's and a filter that does what it's built for, ask for Marlboro. Or, if you don't like filters at all, but only mildness; ask for Philip Morris. Any way you play it, you're a winner.

But I digress. "Will you," said the makers of Philip Morris, Marlboro and Alpine, "write about the important issues that occupy the supple young minds of college America this year in your column?"

"But of course," I replied, with a kindly chuckle.

"And will you," asked the makers, "from time to time say a pleasant word about Philip Morris, Marlboro and Alpine?"

"Crazy kids!" I said with a wry grin, pushing my fist gently against their jaws. "You know I will."

And we all shook hands—silently, firmly, manlily. And I left, dabbing my eyes with my agent, and hurried to the nearest typewriter.

Pultorak Gives Plans for IRS At 1st Meeting

The International Relations Society, under president Joe Pultorak, announced its plans for the year last Monday night at its first meeting.

Pultorak said that the society plans bi-weekly metings for the remainder of the year, along with a series of educational trips, and participation in various college conventions on the Middle Atlantic, state-wide, and regional levels.

He is planning a program of group discussions, speakers, and topics of national and world-wide interest.

Moderator of the organization is Dr. Fritz Nova, of the Political Science Department.

Pultorak also outlined the proposed student trips to New York and Washington, D. C.

The topic for discussion for this year, he said, is the problem of German re-unification, although other areas of interest will be incorporated into the agenda.

The president also reported that plans for the annual banquet in May are now being drawn up.

In a recruiting message, he emphasized that the organization is in no way restricted to Arts students.

Profs, Space & Aid Added to Chem Dept.

Dr. G. N. Quam, chairman of the Chemistry Department, recently announced several advances made by his department.

Two National Science Foundation-supported research projects are now sponsored by Dr. Doyne and Dr. O'Driscoll. One research Foundation grant is sponsored by Fr. Jenkins. A Dupont project is currently sponsored by Dr. Quam and two Navy contracts are promoted by two staff teams. More aid is being sought.

New Staff Members

Dr. Bernard J. Downey and Dr. Walter W. Zajac have recently joined the Chemistry staff, bringing the number of department members to 21. Dr. Downey, in addition to teaching, will conduct research on high temperature oxidation of metal films in the presence of Halogen vapors, while Dr. Zajac will conduct research in Polynuclear Aromatic Compounds.

Portraits

Seniors who failed to have portraits taken for the Belle Air yearbook last May will have their last opportunity on Oct. 6 and 7, said editor Tom Perretti.

These seniors can sign up on the Student Organization bulletin board on the second floor of Dougherty Hall.

Failure to do so, emphasized Peretti, will mean no picture in the yearbook for such students.

He advised students who have not yet returned their proofs, to do so immediately.

Digest Complements WVIL's "New Sound, More Interest"

In line with the radio station's new campaign for steady listeners, the new show Digest has been replanned by its originators, John Oberlies and Bob DeLisa.

Although it will be patterned after Monitor, NBC's popular program, it will not be a strictly Monitor-type show, and will be prepared on the campus level.

The big item of interest is the purchase of a tape recorder, which the two plan to use quite extensively in several phases of the show.

Sidewalk Interviews

"The possibilities are limitless," says DeLisa. "With it we can conduct sidewalk interviews, informal talks with celebrities, perhaps even record candid conversation in different locations around campus."

Tentative plans have also been made to broadcast interviews with certain members of the administration.

It is the opinion of DeLisa and Oberlies, and of the entire WVIL staff, that with proper planning and a little effort, the Digest could easily be one of the most popular shows on the air.

As for the disc jockey shows, also being re-planned, station manager Dan O'Mara said that "this year the trend will be more liberal as far as our recorded music is concerned.

Rock 'N Roll

"There will be a more concentrated attempt to direct our music toward the average college student. Also, we will be playing jazz, as well as rock and roll, plus the show tunes and pop numbers."

Personnel Director DeLisa added, "Our immediate goal is to achieve or at least approach a professional status. In line with this aim, we are currently re-auditioning our old members, as well as carrying on auditions for incoming members."

DeLisa cited one of the most important advantages comensurate with being a WVIL staff member.

He stated that he is maintaining yearly personnel files on all the staffers, with the aim in mind of providing good, easily attainable references for those members who intend to continue in the field of radio entertainment.

Valuable Experience

He feels that the experience to be gained by working on the radio is invaluable regardless of what future a person may have in mind.

Boyle, '30 Elected

Charles F. Boyle, '30 Elec. Eng., was elected president of the General Alumni Association for a two year term in an election which saw a record 850 votes cast.

Boyle, who is currently serving as Assistant to Superintendent in the electrical department for Bethlehem Steel Company, succeeds Joseph O'Donnell, '43, as president.

The election results, which were announced at the reunion in June, also showed that Edward J. Michaels, '36 C&F, had been re-elected vice president of the association.

Michaels, due to the death of Martin L. Gill, '32 Arts, will succeed to Gill's post of executive vice president in accord with the by-laws of the association, and the Board of Governors will elect a new vice president at the fall meeting.

PORTRETTE

Tom Wall — White Hat

By GEORGE CUTTS

Tom Wall, president of the sophomore class, struck me as a most elusive fellow. Even in his white O. C. hat, he avoided my eagle eye for twenty four hours, until I finally trapped him in the University Coffee Shop.

It seems that this Great Barrington-born lad led an active high school career at Poughkeepie, both making a name for himself in student government, and participating in sports — two years of baseball and four years of basketball — and also being a member of the band.

As supervising announcer on station WVIL, Tom became so well known and liked by his fellow frosh, that he found himself elected by a large majority to the position of class president when he swung into sophomore year.

As head man on the Action ticket, he beat out the three opposing candidates by double their number of votes.

Along with the honors of this position went many back-breaking and time consuming jobs not generally associated with the office of president.

It is, of course, Tom's duty to represent his class at student council meetings and, to report to his charges the issues discussed. Sophomore blazers are another item on the list of duties, as well as being co-chairman of the Orientation Committee.

In this capacity, Tom helped appoint the forty white hats who are now taking great pains to give the Frosh great pains.

As head of the planning committee for the Soph Cotillion, Tom informed me of the date, November 13, but said that nothing additional had been decided upon as yet.

When I asked Tom about his attitudes toward the student government, he replied:

"It is my feeling that they (the Student Council) should disregard the petty problems and contrate on the more important ones. The student council, with the help of the Spirit Committee, is headed on the right road."

Armed with information, I thanked our busy friend, exited, walking directly into the eager arms of a white cap who herded me into a Frosh Conga line and danced us around the campus.

Council And Culture

A member of the political science faculty once remarked wryly that "the Student Council will never amount to anything until it begins to concern itself more with the students mind than with his eternal gripes of physical discomfort."

His opinion is worth repeating in view of the fact that the Council may this year reach maturity. With Tom Hoffman's keynote address last week, the Council pledged itself to co-curricular improvement.

He's trying to instill into the collective Council mind a long-neglected responsibility for supplementing the curriculum here with Council-sponsored educational programs. This action is better late than never.

He is also striving for the privilege of recommending curriculum changes to the Administration, concerning such matters as course changes, incompetent teachers, and suggested new courses. On the surface, at least, this looks like a worthy goal .

Council performance so far this year vindicates Hoffman's somewhat idealistic plans. A valiant and successful attempt was made to arrange a faculty forum on Krushchev's visit, for this evening. This action was in sharp contrast with last semester's frantic chaos to secure unlimited cuts privileges. That idea was so full of holes, it finally died an obscure death. We're even sorry we brought it up again.

But Hoffman is hampered from many quarters. When the Khrushchev forum was brought up in last week's congress meeting, we certainly expected to hear no objection whatsoever on a project with such obvious merit.

But we were distressed to watch one misguided soul get up, demanding to know if the Council could guarantee a full house for such a forum. If not, he contended, the forum idea should be dropped, rather than risk having the Council embarrassed by a small student turnout.

It will be unhealthy if Hoffman's cultural plans have to tangle with such obstacles in the future. If only twelve students attend a forum, it would be successful. Education isn't dependent on standing - room - only crowds.

It's our fervent hope that the Council won't be discouraged by the unhappy combination of factors which tried to frustrate its first venture to subsidize learning on campus.

Idealistic or not, Hoffman's program is a step in the right direction.

We strongly urge everyone to attend this evening.

An Adult Approach

We imagine that the football team must have been greatly shaken up by the "spontaneous" demonstation Sunday night in the quadrangle—to say nothing of Coach Reagan.

Four days later we are asking ourselves just what purpose was served by the lynching and incineration of the forlorn-looking stuffed dummy.

Some newspapers attributed the Xavier loss to the tenseness of the team which followed in the wake of the West Chester eye-opener. But the hanging party only heightened tensions, if they do exist. And if a team is already losing, this action doesn't sound like the best prescription.

It's unfortunate that the agile minds which coordinated the "rally" with such finesse, couldn't have contrived a less severe way to express themselves. Perhaps a simple petition to the right people might have conveyed the same message without the same furore.

The demonstration would have us believe that the team deliberately folded under the onslaught of West Chester and Xavier, and that Coach Reagan himself is at the head of a conspiracy to sabotage Villanova football.

Not that the football hierarchy doesn't warrant criticism; indeed some homework has to be done. But why lower the criticism below the adult level?

Holy Cross is a tough assignment, certainly, but it's a mistake to send the team off without the slightest expression of confidence.

LET'S PATCH UP THE SHIELD!

Letters To The Editor

Columnist Attacked

To the Editor:

I hope I can shed some light on the value of fraternities and other organizations for those of us who had the misfortune of reading Speeritualism in last week's Villanovan.

Mr. Speers contends that the fraternities are petty, insignificant, and cliqueish. If a fraternity communion breakfast, Orphans' Outing, and dinner dance are petty and insignificant, then myself and some 200 others have wasted a lot of time.

He wants to call these groups cliques. Cliques are generally difined as groups that do nothing for anyone outside of themselves. But the men in our fraternity or the other fraternities are very active in class and school functions.

He tells you that the only organizations worth joining are the Student Council, the Villanovan, and the Debating society. They are good organizations if that's what your interests are.

If you like to sing or play the drums ,then the Villanova Singers and the band are for you. It depends on your interests.

Other societies certainly worth mentioning are the Sanctuary society, the literary clubs, the many professional clubs, etc.

DPM Defends Frats

To the Editor:

Mr. Speers' accusations that fraternities are petty and cliquish is an absurd generalization, and hoping that readers on the college level will believe such a thing is even more absurd.

He describes fraternities as hardly worth bothering about. If numerous lectures, the Joyce Kiely mile, Orphans' parties and many other fraternity functions are not constructive to both the university and the community, then I agree with him.

However, to my mind these things are important in their proper place, and I suggest that Mr. Speers join some more organizations and observe a little more closely before he writes such critical material.

Distorted Picture

To the Editor:

Jim Bising delivered, from his cave last week, a scathing denunciation of his fellow Americans. In one brief, erratic stroke he showed the inadequacy of American values, dress, a system of education, women and men.

This is no mean feat for a mere college sudent expressing himself in 12 inches of print.

I have but two questions for the erudite Mr. Bising. Could it be that the most "inadequate thing in Europe" is not an American minus his travelers' checks, but an American minus land and all it symbolizes?

And isn't it just possible that the appreciation of his native European women spend most of their time in a home "mental or maternity" to escape from just that type of man you seem to idolize and would indeed have us imitate?

Condemns "Rally"

To the Editor

At about 8:00 last Sunday night I stopped being proud of being a Villanovan; at 10:00 I was actually ashamed of ever having been associated with this University.

I am of course referring to the childish displays put on by a large part of the residents of Sullivan and Sheehan Halls. This situation demands a further discussion.

Very obviously the losses to West Chester and Xavier were the complaint, but what happened as a result should not have been the work of Catholic students and gentlemen.

A student body that gives up after a bad start certainly can't make any claim on the future leadership of this country. The second surprising thing is the large number of whatever-they-may-claim-to-be who turned out into the quad at ten o'clock.

People seem to have a mania for doing things in a mob or crowd that they wouldn't do alone. And this from our future leaders, Leaders, hell!

Question: What message should Mr. Eisenhower convey to the Russian people while visiting the Soviet Union?

"I think Ike should convey, to the best of his ability, that the American People want peace . . . but not at the risk of losing our freedom. There should be no threats, no false conceptions, nor any hollow promises. Firmness and truth should be the rule. With his popularity I am sure Ike will impress the Russian people, but to militant and atheistic Communists he will bat zero."

"Miracle Worker" Sparkles

By Tony Macklin

Despite heat (85 degrees), close atmosphere, a jammed car horn, and the excitement generated by the appearance of Lars Schmidt in the audience, "The Miracle Worker" completely enthralled a capacity crowd at the New Locust Thursday night.

The cast of this play, written by William Gibson, was faced with the difficult task of calming down the audience and capturing their attention. It did not take long.

"The Miracle Worker" contains the most electrifying opening scene this writer has ever seen. It ends with Patricia Neal screaming at the realization that her child, in the cradle, is blind.

Audience Captivated

From this moment on, Patty Duke and Anne Bancroft hold the audience in their respective palms. Little Miss Duke is fantastic. As Helen Keller, the 7-year-old deaf mute, she portrays all the horror and fury of a child who wants so desperately to communicate and can't.

She is not unbelievable for a moment. With fierce, wild independence she struggles for cognizance. She is treated like an animal by her helpless parents who give her pity, petting, candy, and nothing more.

Whether thrashing or groping about the stage, it is hard to suggest any improvement in the little girl's performance.

Anne Bancroft gives an equally fiery and thoughtful performance as Annie Sullivan the 20-year-old Irish girl who accepts the challenge to trying to get through to Helen.

Contrast With Gittel

Miss Bancroft has a role vastly different from the one of Gittel Mosca she created in "Two For the Seesaw" that made her a Broadway star.

Those who have seen her on the Jack Paar TV show know of the great magnetism and vitality that she possesses. In "Miracle Worker" she proves that she is a truly versatile actress.

"The Miracle Worker" contains a very great amount of action. The scenes between Annie and Helen are tremendous.

ANNE BANCROFT

Violent Clashes

Food, plates, furniture go helter-skelter as the two careen about the stage. Both Miss Duke and Miss Bancroft must lose many pounds and gain many bruises from their violent clashes.

The play is full of touching moments: the farewell for Annie as she leaves school to go to try and teach Helen, the scene when Annie wakes up the little Negro boy in the middle of the night in a desperate attempt to talk to Helen through his fingers, and the second act curtain which falls with Annie in a rocking chair crooning a lullaby to a rag doll.

Final Ovation

Some of the young actresses in the school scene are actually sightless and it was warming to see the delight on their faces as they shared the ovation at the final curtain.

The final scene of the play is a tremendously affecting one as Helen races wildly about the stage pulling Annie, with her fingers moving frantically in Annie's as things finally take on meaning.

The play is not a perfect one; the subject is weak, the theatrical trick of hidden voices is not too successful, some of the humor is strained, and the doctor at the school didn't hold up his end of that scene.

New York Critics

However any critic not won over by this play, New York critics included, will have to be pretty doggone callous. It is a sentimental play, the last scene is replete with sniffles and coughs, but the performances are never mawkish. The audience on Thursday rewarded the play with twelve well-deserved curtain calls.

The Making of Joe College

jim bising

THE ANNUAL AUTUMN ritual of trying to make oneself into the ultimate image of a tweedy "college guy" is being repeated as usual at this grass-covered section of Augustinian America. Quiet and reserved young males, polite and poised beneath their caps of white, are trying, for completely unselfish reasons, to transform the newly - arrived class of 1963 into gentlemen and scholars, who will bring honor and glory to those who have raised and educated them.

BISING

Small beanies, rolled-up pants, college songs, and of course, mass meetings (commonly known as pep rallies . . . these are the most important ingredients of all) are thrust upon the incoming freshman class with a noisy but benevolent authority by their academic superiors with the announced intention of forming mature human beings capable of thinking for themselves from the new levies.

This writer approves of the means used but not of the end which is desired. Why should a normal, happy, not-too-intelligent person, who is probably just out of high school (Admiral Rickover referred to American high schools as "Russia's secret weapon") want to be turned into a mature human being when he can enjoy life (cheap beer) much more if he imitates many of those individuals who possess more "classroom experience" than he (or she) does?

AFTER ALL, is it not important to be greeted as a charter member when one enters a local ginmill? One semester's attendance at Villanova is more than enough time for a young man of means (or of no means or draft card dating from 1938) to attach himself to at least one public house as a steady part of the establishment.

As the college years pass, this type of individual will probably develop into the fine example of a Villanova senior who was overheard today saying ". . . aah, dat's O.K.; Father Blank don't fail nobody."

For those personages who seem to feel that school spirit is one of the most vital concerns of this campus, the sight of the Spirit Committee goose stepping across the turf of Goodreau Stadium at half time should prove inspiring. It will also be a good way of demonstrating one's loyalty to alma mater. LET'S GO WILD CATS!

Council in The Round . . .

Student's Part In V.U. Gov't.

tom hoffman

THE IDEAL OF student government is that every student be an active participant in student government, however, since our student body now numbers over 4000 students, our Student Council must strive to interest these students in its projects, goals and aims.

HOFFMAN

We as the Student Council must do something. we must sponsor worthwhile projects; we must act as the voice of the student body; we must show the school that we are a mature group interested in the betterment of Villanova. You, as the student body, are asked to become interested in the Council, in it's projects and in supporting these projects.

We ask you to get behind the Spirit Committee and support their rallies. If the Student Council sponsors a forum aimed at acquainting you with current national and international problems, attend it and encourage your friends to come.

The meetings of the Student Congress are held every other Wednesday and all students are invited to attend. The next meeting will be in session on Wednesday, Oct. 7, and we would like to see as many students as possible.

WHAT DOES the Council do for you? In the near future we will present the Second Annual Parent's Day. The Senior Car Program is executed by the Student Council, and the Student-Tutor program will be carried out by the Academic Affairs Committee. Besides this the Orientation Program, is under the control of the Student Council. The Used Book System, another of our projects, seemed to be a real success this year.

But, we have problems—problems that you, the students can help us with.

Periodically, in this column, I will present a problem that we are facing and I would appreciate your answering them by writing in letters to the editor. The best replies will be published in the paper in the following week.

This year the Student Council has but one aim—to leave our meetings with the feeling that we have accomplished something —that we are working with the Administration and Faculty towards a better Villanova for all. We need your help, your interest and your ideas!

Congratulations are in order for the band and their fine performance at the West Chester game. Their new uniforms labeled them as one of the most collegiate bands in the East.

Fateful Fence Seen As Campus Cancer

By Don McCoy

AN ERA HAS come to an end at Villanova. The ancient art of hedge-hopping, practiced so diligently by many a harried, foot-sore day-hop, has been destroyed, and will soon become little more than a memory.

As this reporter dashed sleepily across Lancaster Pike the other morning, I was shocked at the sight of two upperclassmen impaled on the trap cunningly hidden behind the hedges, their brown paper bags clutched in their hands.

This fence is more than just another handicap to be overcome. It will become the campus albatross—a gloomy sign of things to come. Picture the scene—the entire campus studded with bear traps and deer snares. What more do we have to contend with? Didn't we all think that when the fences were erected on the path betwen Lancastr Pike and the chapel that this was the end? Actually, that was coach Jumbo Elliot's idea; we developed the only cross, team in the city who could also jump hurdles.

It is my belief that the university is abandoning the frantic race with Russia and is turning the campus into a cattlemen's cooperative. It seems that the hordes of freshmen wandering around aimlessly first gave them the idea .

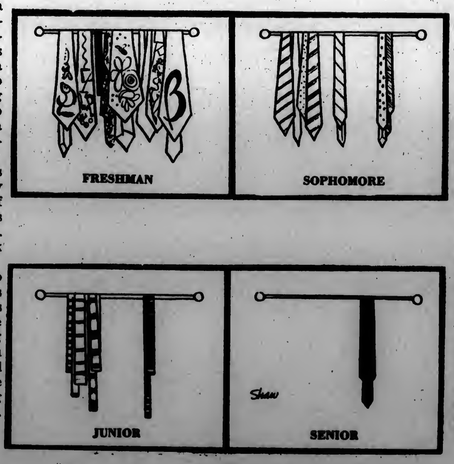
WHY NOT ERECT barbed wire barriers around all the dorms to give the residents a handicap, also. Perhaps during the summer vacation, we could lease the campus to the Marine Corps for an obstacle course.

The class of 1962 is using its heads. Instead of ordering the traditional blazers, they are buying pogo sticks done in blue and white.



A word of warning to the teahouse commandos; the next project is a thirty foot stone wall running the length of Ithan Avenue.

I shudder at the prospect of day-hop's cars four high at the extreme ends of the parking lot.

On the other hand, the fence along Lancaster Pike will serve some useful purposes. For one, it will cause the student body to mingle with the C and F students, giving the latter a taste of collegiate living; it's all a part of the school's program of peaceful co-existence, know thy neighbor, and that sort of thing.

Also, it will put an end to this sneaking on campus on horseback. Now everyone will have to stop at the guardhouse and be recognized.

Council And Culture

A member of the political science faculty once remarked wryly that "the Student Council will never amount to anything until it begins to concern itself more with the students mind than with his eternal gripes of physical discomfort."

His opinion is worth repeating in view of the fact that the Council may this year reach maturity. With Tom Hoffman's keynote address last week, the Council pledged itself to co-curricular improvement.

He's trying to instill into the collective Council mind a long-neglected responsibility for supplementing the curriculum here with Council-sponsored educational programs. This action is better late than never.

He is also striving for the privilege of recommending curriculum changes to the Administration, concerning such matters as course changes, incompetent teachers, and suggested new courses. On the surface, at least, this looks like a worthy goal .

Council performance so far this year vindicates Hoffman's somewhat idealistic plans. A valiant and successful attempt was made to arrange a faculty forum on Krushchev's visit, for this evening. This action was in sharp contrast with last semester's frantic chaos to secure unlimited cuts privileges. That idea was so full of holes, it finally died an obscure death. We're even sorry we brought it up again.

But Hoffman is hampered from many quarters. When the Khrushchev forum was brought up in last week's congress meeting, we certainly expected to hear no objection whatsoever on a project with such obvious merit.

But we were distressed to watch one misguided soul get up, demanding to know if the Council could guarantee a full house for such a forum. If not, he contended, the forum idea should be dropped, rather than risk having the Council embarrassed by a small student turnout.

It will be unhealthy if Hoffman's culturral plans have to tangle with such obstacles in the future. If only twelve students attend a forum, it would be successful. Education isn't dependent on standing - room - only crowds.

It's our fervent hope that the Council won't be discouraged by the unhappy combination of factors which tried to frustrate its first venture to subsidize learning on campus.

Idealistic or not, Hoffman's program is a step in the right direction.

We strongly urge everyone to attend this evening.

An Adult Approach

We imagine that the football team must have been greatly shaken up by the "spontaneous" demonstation Sunday night in the quadrangle—to say nothing of Coach Reagan.

Four days later we are asking ourselves just what purpose was served by the lynching and incineration of the forlorn-looking stuffed dummy.

Some newspapers attributed the Xavier loss to the tenseness of the team which followed in the wake of the West Chester eye-opener. But the hanging party only heightened tensions, if they do exist. And if a team is already losing, this action doesn't sound like the best prescription.

It's unfortunate that the agile minds which coordinated the "rally" with such finesse, couldn't have contrived a less severe way to express themselves. Perhaps a simple petition to the right people might have conveyed the same message without the same furore.

The demonstration would have us believe that the team deliberately folded under the onslaught of West Chester and Xavier, and that Coach Reagan himself is at the head of a conspiracy to sabotage Villanova football.

Not that the football hierarchy doesn't warrant criticism; indeed some homework has to be done. But why lower the criticism below the adult level?

Holy Cross is a tough assignment, certainly, but it's a mistake to send the team off without the slightest expression of confidence.

LET'S PATCH UP THE SHIELD!

Letters To The Editor

Columnist Attacked

To the Editor:

I hope I can shed some light on the value of fraternities and other organizations for those of us who had the misfortune of reading Speeritualism in last week's Villanovan.

Mr. Speers contends that the fraternities are petty, insignificant, and cliqueish. If a fraternity communion breakfast, Orphans' Outing, and dinner dance are petty and insignificant, then myself and some 200 others have wasted a lot of time.

He wants to call these groups cliques. Cliques are generally difined as groups that do nothing for anyone outside of themselves. But the men in our fraternity or the other fraternities are very active in class and school functions.

He tells you that the only organizations worth joining are the Student Council, the Villanovan, and the Debating society. They are good organizations if that's what your interests are.

If you like to sing or play the drums ,then the Villanova Singers and the band are for you. It depends on your interests.

Other societies certainly worth mentioning are the Sanctuary society, the literary clubs, the many professional clubs, etc.

DPM Defends Frats

To the Editor:

Mr. Speers' accusations that fraternities are petty and cliquish is an absurd generalization, and hoping that readers on the college level will believe such a thing is even more absurd.

He describes fraternities as hardly worth bothering about. If numerous lectures, the Joyce Kiely mile, Orphans' parties and many other fraternity functions are not constructive to both the university and the community, then I agree with him.

However, to my mind these things are important in their proper place, and I suggest that Mr. Speers join some more organizations and observe a little more closely before he writes such critical material.

Distorted Picture

To the Editor:

Jim Bising delivered, from his cave last week, a scathing denunciation of his fellow Americans. In one brief, erratic stroke he showed the inadequacy of American values, dress, a system of education, women and men.

This is no mean feat for a mere college sudent expressing himself in 12 inches of print.

I have but two questions for the erudite Mr. Bising. Could it be that the most "inadequate thing in Europe" is not an American minus his travelers' checks, but an American minus land and all it symbolizes?

And isn't it just possible that the appreciation of his native European women spend most of their time in a home "mental or maternity" to escape from just that type of man you seem to idolize and would indeed have us imitate?

Condemns "Rally"

To the Editor

At about 8:00 last Sunday night I stopped being proud of being a Villanovan; at 10:00 I was actually ashamed of ever having been associated with this University.

I am of course referring to the childish displays put on by a large part of the residents of Sullivan and Sheehan Halls. This situation demands a further discussion.

Very obviously the losses to West Chester and Xavier were the complaint, but what happened as a result should not have been the work of Catholic students and gentlemen.

A student body that gives up after a bad start certainly can't make any claim on the future leadership of this country. The second surprising thing is the large number of whatever-they-may-claim-to-be who turned out into the quad at ten o'clock.

People seem to have a mania for doing things in a mob or crowd that they wouldn't do alone. And this from our future leaders, Leaders, hell!

Question: What message should Mr. Eisenhower convey to the Russian people while visiting the Soviet Union?

"I think Ike should convey, to the best of his ability, that the American People want peace . . . but not at the risk of losing our freedom. There should be no threats, no false conceptions, nor any hollow promises. Firmness and truth should be the rule. With his popularity I am sure Ike will impress the Russian people, but to militant and atheistic Communists he will bat zero."

"I believe that President Eisenhower should clearly state to the Russian people that, although we respect the Soviet system, we believe the American way of life is best, and that, although our systems are so far apart, the U. "I believe Eisenhower should explain to the Russians the opportunities for advancement and value of free enterprise in the Capitalistic country that Khrushchev so often belittles in his talks to the Russian people. I think Eisenhower should mention how the people of capitalistic America have the right to vote for any person, party, or form of government."

James Reynolds

"I think Eisenhower should tell the Soviet people of the freedoms enjoyed by the American people — freedom of press, speech, and religion. The Villanovan, T'nT Minus

bill speers

The paper you are now reading is chiefly the work of eight students; as was last week's edition. Of these eight; five have put in a total of about 60 hours into the two issues.

Last Thursday a special meeting was held in the C and F building in an attempt to recruit iew staff members for the coming year. A little over a dozen prospective students were present at this meeting.

Father Kemme, Dean of Student Affairs, gave a talk at the meeting on the importance of the Villanovan as the voice of the Villanova campus and how a membership on the school paper is one of the most important references a graduate could have.

If the pattern remains true, about 20% of these recruits will remain with the staff for the rest of the year. This leaves us with two new members and a grand total of ten.

The Villanovan, more than any other campus organization, brings the Villanova family, the Villanova spirit, into the eyes of the world.

Our circulation staff mails the paper out each week; as far east as Japan; as far south as Venezuela. If anybody in Johannesburg, South Africa, has ever heard of Villanova, you can be sure it is either through the Villanovan or Ron Delany.

Criticism is heavy; participation light on the Villanovan. Yet if students would take an active interest in the paper (devote about two hours a week to it) we would have a bigger, better newspaper—one of which Villanovans would be even prouder to call their newspaper.

To work most efficiently the entire staff, that's two hour-a-week men, must number at least 30. Since we do not have this number we must eventually decide on one of two alternitives.

First, we can continue turning out a weekly paper, truely representative of the Villanova tradition (in which cases our grades are sure to suffer) or we can save dwindling grades by descending to a four page high school tabloid and face the more vehement criticisms from our fellow students, the disillusionment of the alumni, and the disappoint of the faculty.

A campaign will soon be launched in an effort to procure new member to the Villanovan staff. If you have two hours a week to spare; we'd appreciate them.

Speaking of activities in trouble, the once popular Turf and Tinsel Club, now seems to be headed for never-never land. Because of their highly ambitious undertakings and the lack of undergraduate cooperation last year, the club was constantly being rumored to be ready for the pasture.

In a way, it would be a shame to see old T 'n T go, if only because of its unqueness. There are only three organizations in the entire country similar to it; Penn's Mask and Wig Club, The Triangle Club of Princeton and Harvard's Hasting Pudding Club.

After speaking with a few T 'n T members, the prime source of trouble seems to be the lack of effective leadership. One member points out the Club's farcical elections during the last semester as one thing which left a foul taste in the mouths of many T 'n T members.

1:00- 2:00 H-K

All engineering students will follow this same schedule on Wednesdays and Thursdays. All Freshmen will eat only on Mondays and Fridays at their own discretion. We repeat . . . ONLY ON MONDAYS AND FRIDAYS . . . Incidently, all nurses will please take their meals to their own Austin Hall lounge until such time when proper facilities are set up for them in the chemistry lab.

NOW ITS FINAL: . . . As a result of last weeks controversy, roller skating will not be permitted in the dormitories, with the exception of Simpson Hall where it will be allowed on every other weekend .

FLASHBACK: "C&F Polling Place Defeated Amidst Gales of Laughter" (Villanovan March 18, 1959). Recalling this heated debate in the Student Council meetings last year, it is our suggestion that a C and F polling place be located in the Power House. The reason for this location is for its convenient East-West geographic position in regards to the campus.

OBSERVATION: The neighboring "women's" colleges are back! That's nice. The Latin version of Bryn Mawr returned to classes last Friday. To them we say, "To amamus simus amici".

ANOTHER OBSERVATION: The Belle Air yearbook editor is seriously considering another attempt at his pseudo-Van Dyke because of many requests by the co-eds and due to mechanical difficulties with his shaver.

PREDICTION: More tea, more bridge and its more than we can stand! Future teahouse commandos unite! (Actually we don't know what you should unite for but we have to fill this column).

JOKE: "We will do our best to improve the food".

Grim Spectre Of Auto Death

By Dave Cutts

Sunday, September 27, 1959. Today, I saw a man die.

Perhaps you read about the motorcycle that jumped the separating island at the Valley Forge exit of the Pennsylvania Turnpike, then collided with an oncoming car. I heard the reports also, and I was fifty feet from the freak accident when it occurred.

My buddy and I had been hitch-hiking from New Jersey, and were walking down the exit toward the toll booths when the cycle roared past. We didn't pay much attention, for we were tired and hungry, and we still had a few miles to go before we reached Villanova.

Suddenly the air was filled with a deafening crash and I spun around just in time to see the body hit the pavement at the base of the island. Thirty feet past the man, his cycle spat flames upward, threatening to explode at any moment. I saw the accordianed fender and the shattered windshield of the car, and I saw someone slide out of the passenger side of the Ford, followed by the driver, who seemed to be grabbing his stomach.

He must have hit the steering wheel hard, I figured, and then I looked at the approaching cars, which slowed down considerably, their drivers craning their necks to see what had happened. The exciting traffic was stopped because of the flaming cycle, and it was beginning to back up considerably.

The little foreign car that was ahead of the Ford had come to a sudden halt beside me, its occupants visably shaken by the nearness of the accident. Someone told the man inside to report the accident at the nearest toll booth, and the car faded off into the distance.

I looked again at the Ford. It must have stopped on a dime when the motorcycle jumped at its face, for it was only a few feet from the spot where the island had been vaulted. The man still lay motionless, a figure bending over him, desperately trying to bring about consciousness. His machine still lay flaming on the pavement, still threatened to explode.

We started away from the confusion of the scene, and as we moved, I saw a car filled with nuns moving toward the line of waiting mobiles.

I don't know how I felt. Shocked, I guess. It had all happened so fast that I couldn't quite grasp the meaning of the whole occurrance. I had seen the cyclist hit the road, I had seen the motorcycle flaming in the road; I had seen the people pile from the crippled Ford; I had seen the cars lined up; and I had seen the carful of nuns.

And as the ambulance screamed away toward the hospital, the horrible truth came to me. I had seen a man die.

Last week I had a problem. This week I have a problem, what to write about. At first glance this may seem easy to solve, this being a large and interesting university, but let us investigate. We have the Nursing school and its interesting members . . . but what can you write about these beloved angels of mercy?

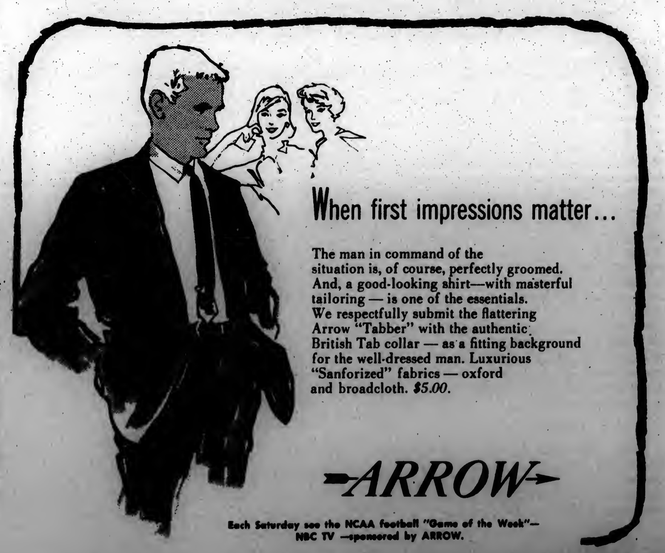
I suppose I could always accuse the Engineering students of being narrow-minded specialists, but its been done before you know; besides, I know quite a few engineers who don't fit into this category. Not by the largest stretch of a very elastic imagination could they be called specialists.

Ah, ha! you say, write mean things about the C and F school. Surely this is an easy task. I object; some of my finest friends are C and Fers, and besides, far better journalists than I have verbally bludgeoned the grammatically defenseless business students, with far greater subtleness than I am able to employ.

These caustic critics have met with various degrees of success; they did successfully sting the C and F school into exerting their massive numerical superiority in last years elections thereby installing business students in most of the important class offices.

There are quite a few things which I would like to say concerning the science majors, but I have been warned that any untoward remarks on my part would result in a swift vendetta. It's not the Chemistry or Biology majors that I fear so much but those physics men have diabolical minds.



As it stands, I have to beware of any strange wires, particularly if they extend from electrical fixtures. My nerves are so worn that I had to dispose of my wind-up clock—the ticking conjured up so many horrible possibilities; no, the science men are taboo. And after all they are our last bastion and surest defense against Russian domination.

That leaves only the General Arts Students like our honorable exalted editors—enough said,—and English majors who are perfect.

I toyed with the idea of engaging in a literary battle with some of my fellow columnists, but reflecting, I came to the conclusion that those few who couldn't disect me verbally, could probably do so physically and so I abandoned that unprofitable idea.

I'll probably end up catering to the baser tastes of the multitudes and you can expect 23 columns devoted to the pie shop and its diverse and stimulating inhabitants and activities. Aurevoir.

Navy Takes Midshipman To European Ports - Cost Free

By Joe Durocher

There may be better ways to see the south of Europe than in a tropical white Naval uniform, but that's not really a bad way to do it.

For some of us it was the only way, and we few may be said to revel in it. The fact is that those vague, but romantic, words like Gibralter, Naples, Rome and Barcelona have now become realities, with all the color, dimension, and vitality that attend our real world.

We seven Villanovans shook hands all around before we left Norfolk early in June. This was a wise move, for we were not to meet again for some eight weeks, and that was by chance on an airstrip in France.

Gerry Hepburn, Bill Dusseau, and Larry Maucher made the crossing in the more literal than figurative "tin cans", while John Gallen, Jim Wienert, Dave Walsh, and this midshipman enjoyed the relative comfort of the aircraft carrier, U.S.S. Lake Champlain.

Sun On The Rock

We saw Gibralter with the sun rising on the Rock. This is, of course, the way it was meant to be seen. Everyone is supposed to be looking skyward so they won't notice the garbage barges and rusty steamer hulls that congest the harbor.

A low line to the right made us think that somewhere over that way was Africa. Should someone ask for a personal impression of this entrance to Mare Nostrum, they would hear from this impressionist only verbal scribblings about gray seagulls, half naked men dumping refuse into a skow, and a big pile of rock without (contrary to the popular notion) a Prudential sign.

So it came to pass that we steamed away from the setting sun, and into the bluest of the Mediterranean.

Off the island of Majorca, we transferred to the attack carrier Intrepid, for a riotous four days. And when a sailor has been at sea for three weeks he begins to judge things as riotous by the type of movies they show at night.

From two miles out, Majorca looked like a little chunk of Southern California, or some such holiday mecca. We were there for only about two hours, the Navy being very conscious of the inherent danger of parking a group of ships in the same lot.

As they say, we then made it for Sardinia, or as we say, we steered course 097° at 15 knots and transmitted the Straights of Bonifaco.

Asinara Bay, Sardinia, welcomed us with a typical day. It seems to me that every day in the Mediterranean was a typical Mediterranean day. This not as astute an observation as it may seem. The weather really was consistantly pleasant, with blue in three dimensions, a warming sun and a following breeze.

Floating City

Amid this happy scene, thirty khaki-clad midshipmen struggled up the ladder of the floating city, U.S.S. Roosevelt, fondly dubbed "Rosey"—by someone who was fond of her.

Author DuRocher with Victor Emannuel monument in Naples, Italy.

The next morning we anchored in the Bay of Naples, for what turned out to be an extended stay.

Sunny Napoli! Well, the bay is pretty, but you wouldn't want to take your best girl swimming in it. Whether there was any correlation between the bay water and the local sanitation is a point to ponder.

Naples is a beautiful city, if you look at it on a radar scope. Sort of an Italian Norfolk (for you travelers who like to make comparisons).

We were there for some three weeks, in which time the supply of local chianti was almost drained. There were many native goods and curiosities offered in exchange for the eternal Yankee dollar.

Kid gloves and cameo jewelry were exceptional buys. And a fellow stopped me in the street and told me about a special bargain this week on machine guns.

Rome Falling Down

The real highlight of the Italian tour was a three day leave in Rome. First impression: the city is falling down. In reality it is one of the best kept cities in the world.

Naturally it is a city of contrasts. Its ageless catacombs, colliseum, and chariot tracks stand in the shadow of such modern buildings as the Pachigaloupe-Hilton, and overwhelming structures like the stadiums for next year's summer Olympic Games rise beside monuments to a departed civilization.

The Vatican itself defies description in such a collection of notes as this, but it was without exception the most impressive part of the City. It is not overstatement to say that months could be spent in the Vatican Museum alone, as it traces the cultural development of the modern world.

Tribute To God

The Sistine Chapel is truly a tribute to both God and man. You can only feel small looking up at Michaelangelo's Creation of the World, and must stand in awe of the powerful beardless Christ coming to judge the world.

Mass at Saint Peter's and a Papal Vespers service Sunday evening made the visit complete. We left Rome with regrets, and a final impression that the old town would go on falling down for another two thousand years. A very fond goodbye to Rome.

After five hectic days at sea we moved into the friendly atmosphere of southern Spain. The people at the next table described Barcelona as "sympatico".

This is not easily translated but means something like "you're one of the boys now; come on in, the party is just starting to swing." And that's the way it was. From the wide avenues to the little cafes to the bull ring, the carpet was out.

Hundreds On Piers

The Spanish are a curious people. Literally hundreds of them would line the piers to watch sailors playing checkers on the fantail of a destroyer.

Fathers would bring their families and boys bring their dates down to the fleet landing at night just to watch the drunk sailors and to hear them singing.

Their national sport seems a little out of step with the national casual attitude. But around the bull ring these quiet people are the most critical of perfectionists. The lad with the curved sword can become an idol, a god of skill and bravery, or may be whistled (booed) into nothingness.

A woman sitting near me calmly got sick all over her husband when one of the picador's horses was gored.

Friendly Populace

So Spain showed me a lot. A genial and friendly populace, a "blood and guts" Sunday afternoon, cognac as cheap as olive oil (not a recommended mixture), and a large city wonderfully clipped and manicured.

One of the minor surprises in Barcelona was the large number of blondes. The Spanish are an attractive people and after the initial mild shock, the sight of blondes and redheads didn't seem unusual at all.

Well, American sailors have been visiting Barcelona for years, so some of us may go back to that happy place. This hope was certainly within us all when we were forced to take our leave. A busy week of flying jet-powered aeroplanes followed, then we aimed for the French Riviera.

We left the "Rosey" at Gulf Juan, France and rode in a Mercedes-Benz but to Nice. There at the airport we were to pick up military transports for the flight stateside.

And it was there that the group of Villanovans (minus John Gallen who was lounging in Paris) gathered under a palm tree, impression to record, and plans to make for bigger and better world excursions.

Land In Jersey

Fifteen hours flying time was broken up by a fifteen hour layover in the Azores. But eventually we touched down on an American landing field in American New Jersey beside a very American pig farm.

The details of smuggling a six pound gouda cheese and two liters of cognac through customs are incidental.

We were home.

And someday we'll return. And maybe someday you'll be there too. As the college students in Rome say, "Se you around the catacombs."

Augustinians Receive Eight Ex-Villanovans

Eight ex-Villanovans were received as novices in the Order of St. Augustine September 9.

Among them was Robert Wagner, last year's secretary to the Student Council, a 3.7 electrical engineer.

The other novices are, Kenneth Cooper, William J. Gabriel, Edward Gordan, John Mink, Thomas Pinkey, Gordon Proud, and Rodger VanAllen.

From the Augustinian Academy in Staten Island, they proceed to Our Mother of Good Counsel Novitiate, New Hamburg, New York, where they will spend one year studying the principles of the religious life of the Augustinian order.

After their novitiate year they will make their temporary profession of vows and return to Villanova for further study.

"Moths", said Pollock, "especially of the wool eating variet are coming in . . . and then there is the problem of sanitation.

"Even though there are screens in the heads, the flies are coming in, and . . . well it's a mess," he stated.

Laughter quickly turned to tears when Pollock suggested that the expense of replacing the screens be defrayed by dipping into the students' breakage fees. A chorus of noes was Pollock's only answer.

Much debate followed concerning the two most controversial issues of the season: the removal of screens from the rooms in Sullivan and Sheehan Halls and the disappearance of furniture stored in the basement of Sheehan.

The only thing resolved concerning the screens was that the matter should be tabled and referred to the Student Congress for further deliberation.

Furniture Removed

Regarding the furniture removal it was proposed and unanimously recommended for approval that a letter be sent to the Administration concerning the disappearance of same and that formal consideration be given by them.

With this resolution, the first session of the Council was adjourned until Wed., October 7th.

"This could easily be the best year yet for school spirit. We plan to do everything within the limit of the law to excite the student body, but the minute we lose the backing of the Administration and the Student Council, we quit.

"And if the Council or the Administration feels we aren't doing our job, we quit."

At the conclusion of the Committee meeting, Council President Tom Hoffman declared, "John and Jack were hand picked as co-chairmen. We know they and the rest of the Committee can do a great job.

Reading Course Begins Monday By Appointment

The first of four courses in reading improvement will begin next Monday, according to Dr. Stanley P. Weissman, Director of The Reading Clinic.

It is provided for students interested in improving their reading speed and comprehension.

Weissman said that former students have improved their speed as much as 300 percent, along with excellent gains in comprehension.

Since the course is voluntary, space is limited, he urges interested students to register immediately.

Varsity Rifle Tryouts

Try outs for the varsity and freshmen rifle teams will be held in conjunction with the NRA rifle instruction course. The Course begins on Oct. 6, and continues through the 13th.

The course is open to all male undergraduate students of Villanova. It will cover safety rules and techniques of riflery. Lou Spevetz and Dan Spada will conduct the course. A charge of $3.00 will be required for ammunition, targets etc.

An NRA certificate will be awarded to all who successfully complete the course. Both those interested in trying out for the team, and those desirous of obtaining a certificate are invited.

Sports Chatter:

Another Open Letter

Tony Macklin

The following is an open letter to Bill Shefski of the Philadelphia Daily News:

In the September 25 issue of your newspaper you attacked this column and this writer. You felt that we "screamed of the pathetic way the Wildcats gave in to West Chester last Saturday."

We are very much upset. What we were trying to stress was not stated clearly enough to be understood and was overlooked.

The letter that filled this column last week was "an open letter to the freshmen" (not an open letter to the football team as you quoted).

In that letter, as the banner headline across the top of the page stated, we stressed that the heart-breaking defeats, such as the one to West Chester, along with wonderful victories are ". . . all a part of what makes spirit."

Spirit Problem

School spirit has always been a problem here at Villanova, as well as on all campuses. We tried to call the freshmen (and entire school) to support the team. We were trying to show that victory isn't a test of spirit, defeat is.

We felt that the defeat to West Chester was "humiliating and deserved" but we certainly never used the term pathetic.

It is not easy to criticize a football team but this was a shattering loss, the most shocking one we seniors have seen in our career here at Villanova. We didn't feel that it was right to give it praise.

We of the sports' staff live and die with our school teams. Mine is a loyalty that can be traced back to high school.

Consummate Loyalty

We have consummate loyalty in this column, on this paper, and on this campus, for our athletic teams. But blind allegiance seems rather tied up with ignorance. We are trying to keep a policy of honest, thoughtful sports reporting and editorializing.

The questions aroused by your article have reached sleep-robbing proportions. Should we go back to the ostrich ("we were great but we lost, just wait 'til next week") type of sports writing or should we be critical?

In the September 24 column we were critical but we also promised the freshmen that " . . . overall you will see a highly competitive, exciting, winning brand of ball."

Great Affront

You took great affront, Mr. Shefski, at the term "outgutted" which we used. As you know, we said that "The Rams of West Chester outfought, outhustled, and outgutted the bewildered Wildcats."

You wrote and we quote: " . . . the editorial used one term that shouldn't be applied to anyone who is brave enough to puton shoulder pads and who uses them."

You continued "It (this column) said Villanova players were "outgutted" by West Chester players. "Guts," as everyone should know, is sland for "brave."

We shudder in this column at that interpretation of our words. We have tremendous respect for each member of every team at VU. Certainly anyone who puts on shoulder pads—and uses them has courage.

More Inspired

By using the word "outgutted" we established a degree. Perhaps more inspired or out-desired might have been better terms.

You also wrote that "Leon Horin didn't look like he was being "outgutted' when he romped 70 yards for a touchdown in the third period only to have it nullified by a clipping penalty."

Certainly Leon Horin wasn't "outgutted" when he romped for that TD. But football is a team effort and not a game of individuals. Horin was great, but whether Leon was the "bravest" man on the field was immaterial in our statement. We felt the team as a whole was "outgutted" (outgritted, if you will).

The main difference between the two teams was a psychological one. It was West Chester's big game, for Villanova it was but a "warmup". West Chester refused to give in. We could not pass over the psychological aspects as unimportant.

Job To Do

The football team, as an organization representing Villanova University, has a responsibility to do a good job (play to the best of their ability) . We of the Villanovan also have the responsibility to do a good job. If we don't, we expect and receive censure, as you deemed necessary.

Every word that has appeared in this column and will appear in the future is carefully thought out. These columns are not done in just a hit-or-miss manner. As such, each sentence, every word is important. A careful reading is essential.

Sometimes we do commit errors in judgement but at all times we try to do a competent, consructive column. The column of the 24th was not meant to be derogatory. But it was meant to have some sting.

By TOM TROY

Editor's Note . . . Tom Troy picked the Yankees and Giants to win their leagues . . . . But is considered an authority on Villanova athletics . . . This article is written to give a general look at Villanova's sport prospects in general and on paper.

Coises! Foiled again! I'm beginning to feel akin so that comedian who, posing as a songwriter, lists all his, frustrating near misses: "I'm Dreaming of a White Thanksgiving," "Seventy-Five Trombones," "Lay Down Your Hand, Zulekia Dobson;" his one big hit was "Remember Pearl Harbor"—written in 1937!

For I was going to begin this article something like this: "Welcome to the greatest year in Villanova's sports history!" Then . . . Boom. West Chester. West Chester? West Chester! Not since Johnny Chung and the Plainfield Teachers were upset by an inquisitive reporter, has there been a greater debacle than occurred on September 19th.

But I'm pretty intrepid and so I'll say: Welcome to the greatest year in Villanova's sports history.

Villanova finds itself blessed this year with its finest football team in at least six years, one of the best basketball teams ever assembled on the Main Line, a track team which should reassert itself as one of the best in the nation, and baseball squad which should measure favorably with any past Wildcat nine.

Before the West Chester game, coach Frank Reagan proclaimed that the 1959 football team should be the best of the six teams he has had at Villanova and should improve over last year's 6-4 record.

He had good reason for optimism. Returning from last year's squad are 19 lettermen, including eight who started more that half of the 1958 games.

Led by red-shirt Bill Craig, Ed Lemkin, Frank Cappelletti, Joe Luzzi, and Pud Nagle, the interior line is big, tough and and experienced. Larry Sopko, a very eager junior guard, probably will move to a starting position before too much of the season passes.

Tom Heron and sophomore Sam Gruneisen are both big rangey ends; they are adequate receivers and tough to fool on defense. They're backed up by Paul Tomczyk, burly Ron Meyers, and Frank Sylvester.

Lettermen Pat Brennan, Jim Osborne, Jerry Wenclawiak and Chuck Walsh, and a host of aspiring sophomores provide a capable line reserve.

With the exception of quarterback, the backfield is also fortified with returning starters and reserve lettermen who saw plenty of action in 1958. Leon Horin and Billy Paczkoskie are both brutish type fullbacks. Each runs hard and blocks very well. On defense Paczkoskie hits with a ferver that really shakes opposing backs.

At halfback, John Daniels, Jim Ward, Reggie Powe, and Frank Ficca form a quartet of good experienced runners, while Ficca is also a fine pass receiver, particularly on the down and outers. He also rates as the best defensive back on the team. Ward and Daniels are also good pass defenders.

Quarterback is indisputably problem spot on the team. Ed Roehre is the man on the spot. A senior, Roehre is handicapped by the fact that he played behind Jim Grazione for two years. A good passer, sound in the fundamentals of quarterbacking, he needs only experience.

Wayne Kautter, small but deft in his ballhandling and sharp in his passing, also lacks experience. Sophs Nick Lagone and Tom O'Rourke can't be figured on too much this season. But Roehre and Kautter should be able to handle the job.

Then, so why West Chester, you ask. There's already been too much furor aroused over this game (and ensuing columns about the game) for me to say anything. So I'll let somebody who played the game speak—Pud Nagle probably the best, certainly the roughest 'neman:

"I guess we lost because we figured that just putting on our uniforms would be enough. We didn't take West Chester too serious. We had beaten a better team last year."

George Raveling

But I'm convinced that Villanova's football team is going to take every opponent very seriously from now on. The team held a secret meeting last Wednesday night. They kept everybody out. I think this conference is going to produce some fine results: about seven wins.

Pud Nagle, on Thursday morning, also said:

"I think we have a good team. And everybody else on the team thinks so too. And we're going to have a good year."

Pud isn't the boasting type. His actions always are louder than his words.

If the World Series is on hand, can next year's baseball season be far behind? Just gaze over toward Ithan Avenue and you'll see work being done on a brand new baseball field. A new field should have some significance, furnish some clue as to the caliber of the team that will play on it. The field is new, but the players are old. And that's real good.

Returning from last year's team (which finished 13-8) are seven regulars, a couple of starting pitchers and several fine reserves. And moving up to varsity status are several very fine sophomore prospects.

Back from 1959's team are infielders Bob Klinck, Fred Anthony and Jim Huggard; outfielders Paul Borian, Ed Monahan and Tom Griffith; catcher Jack Fahey and pitchers Lee Parry and Frank Kreutzer.

Bill Platco, Don McGinley, Denny Cardone, and Denis Magee are reserves who might move into starting positions this year. Sophomores Phil Fidalgo, Sam Gruneisen, and Al Weigand look like the best of last year's freshmen team.

Coach Art Mahan, who works miracles (more or less), should have a team at least as good as the 1958 squad which entered the N.C.A.A. playoffs. His only need would appear to be a right-handed pitcher to balance the lefty dominated staff of Parry, Kreutzer and Fidalgo. But the 'Cats should be roaring come next June.

There's little doubt that Jim Elliot's 'Cats will be roaring next year. Once again the finest track coach in the country has assembled a power house. Dominated by sophomores, this year's team might approach the astounding record of the 1956-1957 team. Remember, that team won two IC4A titles, the AAU and the NCAA titles.

From 60 to 880 yards the wildcats can fly. And there are so many fine runners that you must hesitate before you posit any of them as being superior to any others. Look, at the sprinters:

Joe Mannion, largely over shadowed by the great Ed Collymore, last year raced the 100 in 9.6 and the 220 in 21 seconds flat. He also was a member of the mile relay team which won the Championship of America title at the Penn Relays, and set a Villanova record for the mile relay in Los Angeles last May.

Otis Drayton, running for the Philadelphia Pioneer Club last June, sped to a record 9.4 victory in the 100 yard dash. Drayton also ran the opening leg on the frosh mile relay team which won at the Penn Relay.

Frank Budd, who defeated Bobby Morrow in the 60 yard dash last winter. Budd anchored the all frosh 440 yard relay team which set a Villanova Stadium record last spring. Budd also broad-jumps.

Bob Raemore, the outstanding athlete from Williamsport, Pa., won three P.I.A.A. titles while a senior in high school. As a frosh, Raemore usually ran the anchor leg on the mile relay team. He might be the best quarter-miler.

Other sprinters are soph John Mannion, junior Dan Stager, and seniors Jim Blackburn and footballer John Daniels. Blackburn was probably the most improved member of last year's team and should figure highly in Coach Elliot's plans this year.

If sprinters are plentiful, then quarter-milers are tripping over one another. Besides all of the sprinters who run the 440, there are:

Nick DeAngelis, ex-football star at Monsignor Bonner, who was a member of the varsity mile relay team last year. Nick improved tremendously over last season and should be even better this year. He is also strong in the half-mile.

Bob Coffill, a member of the frosh mile relay team. Coffill, a product of Rindge Tech, is also an outstanding hurdler. At the Quantico Relays last spring he smashed the Villanova record for the 440-yard hurdles, finishing in 53.5 seconds. He also broad jumps.

Pat Nicastro, the finest middle distance runner to come out of Philadelphia in years. Pat is also an excellent half-miler. Last year he ran an outstanding 1:51.9 880 yards, only three seconds off the Villanova record. Held by a guy named Delany.

Frank Hegarty, one of the most impressive runners at the 1958 Penn Relays while a senior at St. Francis Prep, was an important member of the frosh mile relay team last year. He also runs the half mile.

Besides Nicastro, Hegarty and DeAngelis, one other half miler is sure to attain prominence: Jon Dante. One of the most "beautiful" runners on the frosh teams, Jon might be one of the big stars at Villanova if he can escape injury.

Other middle distance runners are Carl Wagner, Ernie Muir and John DeSanto.

Bob Godesky, the best distance runner at Villanova last year, has not returned to school this year, but the 'Cats still have several runners who could pick up points. Returning from 1959 are Tim McNamar, Gene Rodgers, and Bill Tinney.

Besides this trio, there are many soph distance runners: Dante, Wagner, Angelo Siveri, Bob Collins, Art Crowley, and Jerry Hackett.

In the hurdles Coffill is joined by Leon Pras and Ron Myers, the big football end.

John Buckley, winner of the outdoor IC4A broad jump title in 1958 and 1959, is ineligible to compete until February. This means he'll miss much of the indoor season, but will be able to defend his title in June. John broke his own Villanova record at the IC4A meet last May, leaping 25'6½".

Buckley's absence until February means that Budd, Coffill and Kent Lydic, a senior, will be Villanova's main hopes in indoor competition. Lydic, along with Norbert McNulty, a junior, will also pole vault.

Charles Stead's graduation leaves Villanova without an already established star in the high jump for the first time in years.

But there appears to be an ace in the hole—a fellow named Hubert White. Hubie cleared six feet the first time he ever jumped. He also set a Villanova record in the hop-step-and jump the first time he competed in that event.

Villanova's biggest problem in the past years has been getting points in the field events. Again, this problem reappears. Right now only sophomore Jerry Donini appears to be capable of scoring in the big meets.

Senior Jack Donahue is a very hard worker and with some experience behind him might surprise. Jim Ward and basketballer Dick Kaminski might help out in the javelin.

Thus, The Villanova track team would appear to be extremely strong in the sprints and middle distance, well off in distance runners, capable in the other track events, but weak in the field.

I look for the 'Cats to regain both IC4A titles and to finish high in both the AAU and NCAA meets.

Now, the basketball team. Undoubtedly the most controversial athletic group on campus. Not just this year, but for practically every year in the past decade.

What other team has produced characters like Bobby Powers, a whirling deverish who used to dribble behind his back, spin the ball on his finger, bounce the ball off opponents' heads?

Like Bob Schafer who was, or claimed to be, kidnaped, then scored over 40 points the next night?

Like Joe Ryan who made you love him one game, then hate him the next?

Like Gene O'Pella who ripped the entire backboard down one night and forced the game to be played on an abreviated cross court at St. Joe's?

And this year's team certainly has its share of characters too. But that shouldn't stop them from improving last year's fine 18-7 record and once more getting a post-season tournament bid.

Captain Joe Ryan graduated and Jim Kenny, a whiz as a sophomore has not returned, but eight members of the 1958-1959 squad, including three starters and the number one reserve, have. And moving up from last year's successful freshmen team are five men, including Hubie White, the most sensational freshmen in Villanova history.

Back from last year's varsity are Bob Liberatore, Don McGinley, Tom Samulewicz Dave Severance, Dick Kaminski, and starters Jim Huggard, John Driscoll and Captain George Raveling.

The 'Cats of Coach Al Severance are going to be big, fast, experienced, and deep. They have rebounders, scorers, and ball handlers.

Right now, four positions seem set. 6-8 Driscoll and 6-6 Raveling will be the forwards, 6-3 White the center, and 5-10 Huggard one of the guards.

The other guard position, left vacated by Kenny, is up for grabs. The most likely candidates appear to be Kaminski, Joe Zawacki, a transfer student from St. Louis University, and Bob Liberatore, a tremendous shooter.

A fine bench will be provided by Severance, Samulewicz, McGinley and sophs Jim McMonagle, Joe Walsh, and Bill Penny.

Last year Raveling was one of the top rebounders in the East, averaging 16.2 grabs per game. Driscoll has the potential to grab as many this year (snatched 12.2 in 1958-59) and White could very likely top this total.

The scoring will undoubtedly be led by White, the ace from West Philadelphia High, and Huggard, the fiery backcourt leader of the 'Cats. Hug averaged 15.2 points last year and should be in the 20's this year. White scored at a 28.7 clip for the frosh should average 20 for the varsity.

Both Raveling and Driscoll scored over ten a game last year and should improve. Kaminski, Zawacki, and Liberatore can all hit from any part on the court, too.

One weakness in the team would seem to be Driscoll and Raveling's propensity to foul. Driscoll, particularly, is guilty of too many personals. Big John fouled out of nine games last year.

But this squad must be the best at Villanova since Bob Schaefer and Jack Devine led the 'Cats to the N.C.A.A. tourney in 1955. They could be better. If they're not they can only blame themselves. But I'm saving my money to go to the N.I.T. or N.C.A.A. come March.

Unbalanced Equation

X + 555 Yds. = 48/20 = V.U. (0-2)

By JIM MURRAY

This is the UNromantic story of the eleven Musketeers and the day they went Wildcat hunting.

Villanova's football team traveled to Xavier of Ohio for a game Sunday—The 8000 fans saw "Little" Xavier put on its greatest offensive show in years, the final count 48-20.

The end came right at the beginning. That is to say not until after the first quarter (28-0) did the game take any resemblance to a contest. The statistics of this game read somthing like the records of a team's first five games.

The game started off rather ordinarily with V.U. kicking off, after this — ordinary — was a term used for 50-yard passes, 60-yard runs, and touchdowns. Xavier's Mighty Musketeers used a wide open offense to run through, and over the Villanova wide open defense.

Costello Wasn't Funny

After senior half-back, Ed Serieka, scampered around end for 66 and 54 yard carries—quarter-back Ron Costello flip-to ends, Mullen and Clark, in that order for T.D.'s. Serieka kicked both extra points. (He ended up six for seven for the day and has a sore toe.) Larry Cox plunged in from the one for Xavier's third tally. The fourth T.D. covered 96 yards by air on Thomas-to-Smith passes, and that was the story of the first quarter and the game.

The next period marked a regrouping of Wildcat defense and a short glimpse of offense but the score showed Xavier ahead 34-7. The second half was fairly even and both teams added 2 touchdowns to their total.

The game looked like the biggest aerial bombardment since the blitz on England. The 'Cats threw 43 passes for a new record. Xavier gained 310 yds. of their 555 total via the air lanes.

Frank Ficca played the best all around game for Villanova.

What Team Needs

If this season is going to look anything like a success the team needs three things—(1) Defense—especially pass defense (2) Offense—enough said (3) Every students' support.

If we analyze this last point this conclusion can be drawn (1)It takes a little something extra to get behind your team when they're losing. (2) The coaches and players are getting blasted by more than enough outside sources, if you're not behind them it's not even logical for them to go out and knock heads to represent You. (3) You rub elbows with the players in class and you know they're trying—maybe too hard—give them that little extra boost for that game they're not supposed to win—West Chester and Xavier showed you how it works. "End of the bench" . . . Just one line, Villanova over Holy Cross and I'm not kidding.

Sophs To Play Big Part As Swimmers Meet Yale First

By GENE HEWITT

Yale furnishes the stong opposition, that signifies the Cat's schedule this year in their first meet at Yale. Led by Co-Captains Frank Keefe and Joe Harvey, the swimmers will try to improve on last year's seven and five record which saw them beat LaSalle for the first time in seven years.

Bolstered by last year's strong freshmen team, the sophomore swimmers are strong in all events except possibly the breastroke and the butterfly. The loss of Larry Palacio and Jim Gregory by graduation leaves the team with a large hole to fill.

The answer in this event will have to come from sopho Brian Reilly, Bob Benson and Matt Mone along with Junion Bob Dow.

All other events are very strong. Captain Keefe and soph Don Reed form the strongest backstroke combination in the team's history. In the distance events Captain Harvey and senior Bruce McCreedy are the returning starters from last year.

Carton Question Mark

Steve Carton, one of the top divers last year in the East, is hampered with a bad knee and his status is still in doubt.

The sprints seem to be the strongest point with the list headed by Soph Ed Jenson who right at this point is the best sprint man to swim for Villanova in the past few years. Returning to fill out the sprints are four very good men, Frank Dunne, Bruce Casson, Bob Donahue and Mike Gleason.

Another problem is a new event, the 200 yard individual medley, which at this point is wide open. The majority of meets this year are home, eight in all and should provide Cat fans with many exciting and memorable moments.

Basketball Managers

The varsity baseketball team has openings in its ranks for conscientious individuals who wish to be managers. Those interested contact Coach Severance.

After a twelve year cessation of gridiron hostilities Villanova returns to Worcester Saturday to do battle with Holy Cross.

In the last game played in the series in 1947 The Wildcats defeated the Crusaders, 13-6. This was the second win in six encounters for the 'Cats over the boys from Mt. St. James.

Judging by the results of last weekend's games, the Blue and White will have a tough obstacle to surmount in their quest for victory number one of the season and number three in the series.

No mention crusaders underdogs against Dartmouth need be made here of the calamity which befell Frank Reagan's charges Sunday at Xavier. But it would be well to note the significance of Holy Cross's initial victory over Dartmouth.

In pre-season ratings the Big Green were touted as sure fire bets to capture the Ivy League title. Hence the Royal Purple of Eddie Anderson went into the game as decided underdogs.

However, sparked by aggressive line play and a hard-charging backfield the Crusaders upended the Big Green, 31-8 at Hanover, N. H.

Minus Eight on Ground for Big Green

In complete charge all the way, the staunch and stingy Crusader line held Dartmouth's vaunted running attack led by All-East halfback, Jake Crouthamel, to a minus eight yards rushing! Holy Cross's forward wall anchored by stellar guard, Vin Promuto end and captain, Charlie Pacnas opened gaping holes in the Big Green line to allow senior fullback, John Esposito and junior halfback Dick Skinner and other speedy Crusader backs to amass 245 yards on the ground.

This win was considered to be the upset of the week in the East for Holy Cross was expected "to be a year away."

A Year Away?

"It would be a good thing," said Dr. Eddie Anderson at the outset of the current football campaign, "if we could go to sleep like Rip Van Winkle and wake up a year from now."

But a year from now what is described as the biggest and fastest, bunch of freshmen to matriculate on Mt. St. James in four years will be available.

Holy Cross lost heavily by graduation and acquired only 13 recognizable football players from the Sophomore class.

They also lost two key performers from last year's squad. Tom Moynihan, expected to replace Tommy Greene as the No. 1 quarterback, was ruled ineligible for football because of scholastic inadequacies.

3 Injured Stars Return

Another serious loss was that of Bernie Leonard, incipient first string tackle, who accepted a baseball bonus from the New York Yankees and was therefor ruled ineligible.

This bad news was counteracted by news that three key men who missed practically all of last season through injury would be available for full-time duty this fall.

They were the aforementioned Pacunas, an outstanding all-around end and pass receiver; Promuto, rated one of the finest guards in the country, and Terry Byron who was slated to replace Moynihan.

Anderson Changed Strategy

Since Byron's forte is running, Dr. Anderson decided to stress the terra firma aspect of football. This follows three years during which The Royal Purple relied almost exclusively on the air arm of Tommy Greene.

Fortunately for Anderson he was blessed with an abundance of good running backs like Esposito, Skinner and Johnny Allen, baseball catcher who attained regular status at the end of last year.

Up front the Crusaders count on Pacunas, Bernie Buzyniski, Joe Guden, and Jack Fellin to hold down the terminal slots.

Inside Promuto, a 220 pounder, is only one of several mammoth linemen. The others include Joe Lucido and John Carullo, 225 pound senior tackles, and Ken Desmaris, made-over guard who is now Anderson's first-string center.

Father Klekotka To Speak To Council Tomorrow Nite

This week's Student Council meeting has been postphoned 24 hours, until tomorrow evening, Council Chairman Tom Hoffman announced. The postponement was made so that Very Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., president, may address the Council.

Father Klekotka stated that the Council was the organization most representative of the student body, and that he is most pleased with the outline of activities proposed to him by Hoffman. He indicated that he was in favor of many and varied activities sponsored by the Council for the student body.

Council Action

Following Father Klekotka's address, the Council will act on the Student Insurance program proposed and approved by last year's Council according to Tony Godwin, chairman of the Student Union and Special Problems Committee.

A brochure explaining the program to the students is in preparation.

The Student Union and Special Problems Committee plans to conduct a food poll next semester, similar to last semester's controversial poll.

According to Godwin, the poll will be conducted only after students have had the opportunity to become familiar with all dishes prepared in the cafeteria.

Bill Henry, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, stated that his committee will conduct a thorough and extensive study into the Council's Constitution and by-laws, with a view toward improving and clarifying the documents.

Dance Plans

Bill Vincent, treasurer of the Council, will propose that the N.F.C.C.S. dance be renamed the Student Council dance, and be sponsored by the Council.

Academic Affairs Committee Chairman Neil Drislane outlined partial plans for the coming year. An integral part of the program is the possibility of establishing a Fine Arts Department.

This department would deal with the appreciation in technique of art and music.

The backing of a guidance program to aid and prepare prospective students of the graduate school is also sought.

A plan for a student tutor program, which has had very little backing in the past, has been inaugurated, but will receive its greatest support near mid-year exams.

Security Talk

JUDGE ROBERT MORRIS

Former Investigator Speaks To First Law Forum Tonight

Judge Robert Morris, former chief counsel for the Senate Internal Investigating Committee, will be the speaker for the opening session of the Villanova Law Forum series tonight, it was announced today by Harold Gill Reuschlein, Villanova's Law Dean.

A member of the New York Bar and a distinguished author, Judge Morris will discuss the subject "The Decline and Fall of American Internal Security" in the first of six sessions planned for the forum this year.

Villanova's Law Forum, beginning its fifth year, will present six prominent lawyers during the coming weeks who will discuss trends in the law and critical issues. Professor William B. Ball of the law faculty is director of the Forum.

With Senate

Judge Morris' career includes two years, from 1959 to 1958, as chief counsel to the United States Senate Internal Security Subcommittee. He had served in the same post five years earlier.

Morris also served as Municipal Court Judge in New York. He is a graduate of Fordham University School of Law and was a Communist Counter Intelligence Officer with the United States Navy during World War II.

Author of Book

A native of Point Pleasant Beach, N. J., Morris is the author of a book "No Wonder We Are Losing" a study of the cold war.

Villanova Law Forum sessions are held in Garey Hall, law building, and begin at 8:30 p.m. The forum is intended primarily for Villanova students but is open to the public, space permitting.

Morris served with the Navy from 1941 to 1945 and during that time was officer-in-charge of such offices as counter intelligence, psychological warfare, and Communist counter intelligence .

In the spring of 1959, Morris spoke to the Friends of Villanova library.

Frosh May Lose Regs Today With Win Over Sophs

The freshman class today takes on the sophomore class in a contest of athletic prowess in an effort to shuffle off their orientation regs.

Conducted on Mendel Field, the activities will be under the direction of Ed Geisz, of the intramural department. Ralph Lanciano, sophomore class vice president, is in charge of freshman organization.

Lanciano will be assisted by Pat Dineen, Ed Fitzmorris, George Hurley, Ron Klammer, Jim Pleve, Tony Bateman, and Chuck Kelly.

The highlights of the afternoon will be the annual frosh-soph touch football game.

Other events include a tug-of-war, football punting for distance, football throwing for distance, rope climbing, egg toss, wheelbarrow race, horse shoes, hula hoop, and push ball.

All rules from last year will be retained with the exception of a 20-man limit on push ball and unlimited substitution during the touch football game.

New Weekly Activity List To Be Ready For Oct. 19

A weekly listing of all student activities will soon be published for general distribution, according to Eugene Ruane, of the public information office.

It will list special lectures, field trips, dances, forums, seminars, sports events, all fraternity and sorority activities, concerts, meetings, debates, play rehearsals, ticket sales, and intramural activities.

'We want to include as much extra-curicular information as we can," said Ruane. ....

The pamphlet will be put together on Friday Oct. 16 and circulated the following Monday. It will cover all activities for the week of Oct. 19.

The listing will be distributed by mail to the departments which donated information. Copies will also be available for the dormitories, bulletin boards faculty, officers of societies and clubs, moderators and department heads. It has not yet been decided whether or not personal copies will be printed.

The purpose of such a pamphlet is to familiarize the students with the activities of the campus and thereby create an active interest in the various clubs and organizations which might otherwise be unnoticed by many students.

Dean's List Shows 27 Perfect Marks

Twenty-seven students received perfect 4.0 averages for last semester, according to the dean's list just released by the recorder's office.

Of this total, 14 were members of the graduation class. The 4.0 students are:

Bindas, Paul T., CE, SR.,	4.00

CAMPUS CINEMA

Possibility of Week-end Movies Being Investigated By Council

The possibility of popular movies on campus is now being investigated by the Student Union and Special Problems committee of the Student Council.

Tony Godwin, co-chairman of the committee, said this week that the proposed program is still subject to Administration consultation and approval.

For Second Semester

The committee would try to establish its program in good time for the second semester, since "this semester is so broken up with social events, the venture would lose money."

Naturally, said Godwin, a nominal admission fee would be charged, but he promised that if the idea materializes, such a fee would be much less than for tickets at local movie houses.

He cautions against becoming too expectant about the success of the project. "As things stand, we dare not presume too much," he said. "It all hinges on Administration approval."

Already the committee has been deployed to the local film distributers to secure information about available films and rental costs.

Shown Weekends

The movies would be shown on weekends, and would be partially financed by school funds partially by the admission price.

"We would secure the best films possible within our budget," Godwin promised. First run shows were virtually precluded in his estimate. Their rental costs are in the range of $150.

"But there are numerous year-old movies of good quality that we could easily afford," he said. He quoted $35 to $40 as their standard cost.

Theatre Classes Issue Schedule For Coming Year

The Graduate theater department of Villanova University has announced their tentative schedule for the coming of the school year.

It includes an early December production of "Our Town," by Thornton Wilder as well as a new "Experimental Theater" series which will present eight or more one act plays in the East Lounge of Dougherty Hall.

First of Series

The first of this series will take place on the afternoon of October 26, with the two one act plays for that afternoon soon to be announced.

These plays will be directed by graduate students and the casts will be a combination of both graduate and under-graduate students.

The production will be open to all interested in attending and the department hopes that Villanova will reflect some of the ever growing interest presently connected with the theater.

First of Series

The try-outs throughout the year of the "Experimental Theater" series will be open to anyone who is interested. There will be advance notice as to when the tryouts will take place.

On December 10, 11, 12, a full three act production of "Our Town," will be given by the graduate department under the direction of Mr. Bernard Coyne of the department faculty, with a full graduate cast.

Dr. Khouri Tells Council "Russia Wanted K. Visit"

Nearly 150 students heard Dr. Fred Khouri, of the Political Science Department, discuss "Khrushchev's Visit to the U.S." last Thursday evening, in the first Student Council-sponsored forum of the year.

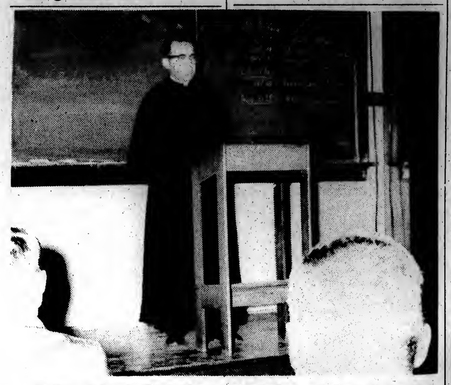
"Khrushchev always wanted some direct contact with our country and its social, economic, and educational institutions," said Khouri.

"Possibly he was doubtful of the reliability of his foreign officials' reports," he added. "It also gave him an excellent chance to communicate directly with the American people."

Peaceful Co-existence

Khouri noted the recent gradual transition toward peaceful co-existence that is prevailing in Russia. Khrushchev, he said, believes fervently that Russia will one day surpass the United States in economic production and world standing, and is therefore content to foster peace.

"By strengthening his standing, hope for world peace in the future is somewhat brighter."



He emphasized that tne United States first tendered the invitation because it felt that Khrushchev had not been receiving an honest picture of America in the past.

Besides that, President Eisenhower was long desirous of meeting the Russian premier face to face, he said.

Prominant Authority

Dr. Khouri is a noted authority on world affairs, and a specialist on the middle east. He has a wide reputation on campus by virtue of his frequent responses to lecture before various groups.

The Student Council arranged the forum as a trial venture into the field of co-curricular improvement, its announced goal for the current year.

Father John A. Klekotka speaks before meeting of the IRS last week in Vasey Auditorium.

Fr. Welsh and Fr. Kenny Appointed As Moderators

Rev. Dante Giralomi, dean of student activities, has announced the appointments of Rev. Robert Welsh as moderator of the junior class and Rev. Robert Kenny as moderator of the sophomore class. Both were appointed on Sept. 15.

Father Welsh, alumnus of West Catholic, was formerly assigned here in '56.

Prior to '56, he had taught moral theology at the House of Theology, Washington, D. C. During these years he was assistant to Rev. Norbert Whitley, O.S.A. Master of Professed.

Among his students were Fr. Kenny and Fr. Burke. Father Kenny, in 1958, left Villanova to teach at Bonner High School with Fr. Harry Erdlin, O.S.A.

"Both Fathers Kenny and Welch had been active in class affairs since their appointment," and Fr. Giralomi.

Fr. Kenny, moderator of the Spirit Committee, was active in orientation week. He and his class officers are now in the midst of elaborate preparations for the Sophomore Cotillion to be held on the Friday night preceding the Rutgers game.

Father Welsh, moderator of the Steering Committee, is presently working with junior committee members in organizing the St. John's Orphan outing to be held on Dec. 5, followed by a party at the Orphanage on Dec. 8 and the Charity dance on Dec. 11.

Lynx Plans For Top Year, Now Accepting Material

The campus literary magazine, the Lynx, has formulated plans to increase its output and its quality for the coming year. The publication has begun to accept material for its first issue which will be published before Thanksgiving.

Editor Frank Murtha is optimistic about the coming issue.

"Since we plan to produce three issues this year we have set October 15 as deadline for accepting material. We feel this is not too early a date as there is an increased interest in the magazine now."

National Magazine

Murtha added, that "each manuscript that is submitted will be carefully read and constructively criticized. The better works have possibilities for publication in national magazines."

Managing editor Tony Macklin adds, "There must be many students who feel they can write. This is their chance. The satisfaction is certainly worth the effort."

Moderators Dr. John Phillipson and James Mitchell, of the English department, agree that the Lynx's outlook is bright. There is still a great demand for literate writing, they say.

Students from all divisions and classes of the university are invited by Murtha to submit their work. Poetry essays, dramas, short stories, and chapters from novels are desired.

Submit Material

The material may be given to either Dr. Phillipson or Dr. Mitchell at the English office second floor Vasey Hall or may be dropped off at the publications office in Dougherty Hall.

SOPH BLAZERS CURRENTLY BEING FITTED IN DOUGHERTY HALL

New To Campus, C.C.D. Addressed By Fr. Mynaugh

The first meeting of the Villanova Chapter of the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine was held in Vasey Hall on Monday, Sept. 28.

The newly formed group was addressed by Father Charles Mynaugh, regional director of the C.C.D., it was announced by vice-president, Gene Felch.

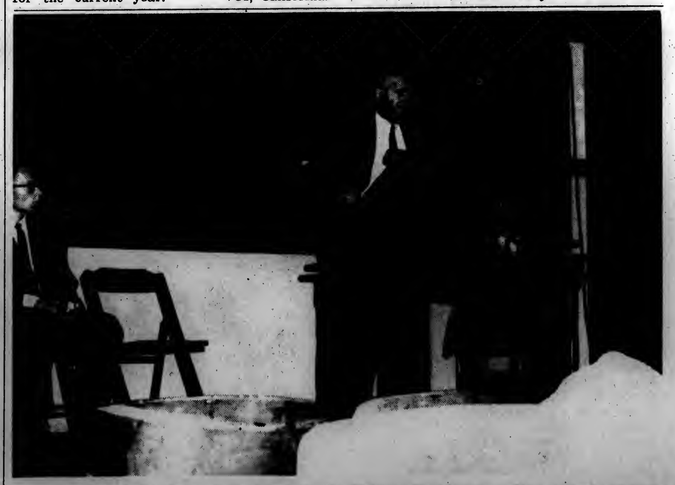
Fr. Mynaugh, in his address, stressed the need for the expansion of the C.C.D. on the college campus. In recent years the movement has been active on the campuses of most of the Catholic colleges in the Philadelphia area.

Members of the organization will attend a regional C.C.D. conference next Sunday at Holy Family College. The program will include a general assembly, two training conferences, followed by another general assembly and social.

Following a teaching methods course to be held on the Villanova campus within a few weeks, the group will assist with the religious instruction of various parish groups in the area. These groups will include grade and high school students as well as special groups.

President of the group is senior engineer Tom LoCasale; sophomore Maurice Murphy is secretary. The next meeting will be held today.

Poetry Contest Closes On Nov. 5



The National Poetry Association has announced its annual competition for college students ,teachers, and librarians.

The closing date for the submission of manuscripts by college students is November 5th. Shorter works are preferred.

Each poem must be typed or printed on a separate sheet, and must bar the name and home address of the student, as well as the name of the college attended.

The closing date for the submission of manuscrifts by College teachers and librarians is January, 1959.

Manuscripts should be sent to: National Poetry Association, 3210 Selby Avenue, Los Angeles 34, California.

Campus News In Brief

Service Exam Planned

John Moritz, Villanova Placement Director, announced recently that the Foreign Service Officer examination, conducted by the State Department, will be held December 5, in approximately 65 centers throughout the country.

To be eligible, candidates must be between 21 and 32 years of age as of October 19, which is the closing date for receipt of applications.

Persons 20 years of age may apply only if they hold a bachelor's degree or are seniors in college.

Application forms and other information may be obtained in the Placement Office, located in the basement of Sheehan Hall.

AIEE Convention Held

This year the annual AIEE-IRE convention for Eastern colleges was held at Princeton October 1, 2, 3.

Leo J. Young, branch chairman and Professor Richard D. Avil, branch consellor, represented Villanova. Professor Avil stated that this is the first major meeting for the new year which should include four to six field trips in addition to the monthly meetings.

Of primary interest to the student body is the Student Paper Competition which selects a prize winning paper to represent the district at the finals next summer.

The society is a joint chapter with a mutual president and vice-president and separate secretary and treasurer.

Scalia States Agenda

The junior class steering committee held its initial meeting last Wednesday night. A general outline of class functions for the coming year was presented to the 32-member advisory group by class president, Bob Scalia.

Scalia also announced that Week will be May 2-7, The prom is scheduled for the 6th and the Dinner Dance is slated for the 7th.

Bob Redmond, day-hop arts, and John Livezey, resident engineer, were named co-chairmen of the prom committee.

Other heads of committees announced were Bob Bohn, resident arts, chairman of Orphans outing; A. J. Calimano, resident C&F, and Tim McNamar, resident arts, co-chairmen for the dinner dance.

Scalia also reminded the committee that there will be a junior class meeting in 206 Vasey Hall tomorrow at 10:30.

Faculty Wives Meet

The Villanova Faculty Wives Club will hold its first meeting for the new year on October 8, at 8:15 p.m., in the Naval Science Building.

Mrs. Albert H. Buford, publicity chairman of the group, announced that the Very Rev. John A. Klekotka, president, will deliver the welcoming address to the group.

Plans for future events and functions are presently in the formative stages, and will be presented by Mrs. Charles Brudule when the arrangements have been completed.

Juniors Get Rings

Ring Committee Chairman John Fitzgerald has announced several changes in the procedure of procuring class rings, which were first made available to students yesterday.

Rings not picked up yesterday, or which were returned for correction, may be obtained in the University Shop after October 20.

Students who felt that their rings were improperly fitted were asked to wear them until October 20, Fitzgerald said, because frequently students unaccustomed to a heavy ring will mistakenly believe it is not correctly fitted. After this, genuine complaints will be handled.

Fittings for anyone who did not order a ring last semester will be taken on October 13. Fitzgerald emphasized that rings of all classes previous to 1961, and in almost all styles will be available.

Nurses To Be Capped

Caps will be bestowed on Villanova's sophomore nurses this Sunday at 4 p.m.

Very Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., president will present the caps to thirty nurses, the largest group ever to be capped at Villanova, during ceremonies in the University Chapel. Rev. Joseph Burns, O.S.A., will deliver the sermon.

The design of the caps has a special significance for the nurses. Before being folded, the cap resembles a Sacred Host, while folded, it resembles a bishop's mitre. The back of the cap shapes into a blue Villanova "V."

The girls to be capped are: Louise Antonini, Florence Benas, Gael Casey, Judith DeStephano, Mary Fay, Joan Gadren, Patricia Heap, Judith Jones, Judith Koscielniak, Edith Mihaly, Janet Pomponio, Marylin Rushin, Loretta Schmidt, Constance Vivino, Johanna Jahner.

Suzanne Colon, Sandra Cowhig, Patricia Duffy, Mary Gamber, Mary Kleha, Anne McCrea, Patricia Massi, Josephine Morello, Frances Myers, Catherine Rucker, Mary Scanlon, Margaret Sharkey, Phyliss Taylor, Mary McConaghy, Mary Hickey.

Prom In The Making

The Junior Prom will be held May 6th, it was announced by Bob Scalia, class president.

"Though all of the committee chairmen have not been named yet, our program to present a memorable prom is well under way," said Scalia .

"Bob Redmond, Arts day hop, and John Livezey, resident engineer, are general co-chairmen and Joe Del Guercio is chairman of the Band Committee."

Chairmen of the decorations, ticket, publicity, and Prom Queen committees will be named in the near future.

Favors will be handled by Joan Flood and Angela Colisanto.

"We chose the chairmen of each committee with an eye toward getting the best men available for the jobs and played no favorites".

New Law School Board Members

A joint announcement has been made by the Very Reverend John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., Villanova president and Dean Walter B. Gibbons, Esquire, Harold Gill Reuschlein of the School of Law at Villanova and Chairman of the Board of Consultors to the School of Law, of the appointment of four new members to the Board.

The new members of the Board are calculated to bring to the Board effective representation from areas in and outside of Pennsylvania which have not been represented in the past.

The four new members are:

Andrew B. Crummy, senior partner in the firm of Crummy, Gibbons and O'Neill, Newark, New Jersey, and a Fellow of the American Bar Foundation.

James P. Garland, an associate in the firm of Semmes, Bowen and Semmes, Baltimore, Maryland, and a graduate of the first Law School class at Villanova.

Vincent P. McDevitt, vice-president and general counsel, Philadelphia Electric Co., vice-chancellor of the Philadelphia Bar Association and a former member of the Board of Governors, American Bar Association.

Hon. James M. Quigley, Member of Congress, representing the 19th Pennsylvania District, partner in the firm of McNees, Wallace and Nurick, Harrisburg, and a graduate of Villanova College in the class of 1939.

Psych. Society Meets

The Villanova Society of Psychological Investigation held its first formal meeting of the semester Wednesday night, Oct. 7, in Vasey Hall.

The meeting, directed by James M. Driscoll, president, derived specific projects from the club's central topic for this semester, "The Investigation of Psychological Tests and Testing."

Applications for membership also were accepted by those who successfully completed three or more credit hours in psychology.

The interest centered around this year's topic, and the direction is given by moderator, Dr. Frank McGurk, complemented by other members of the Psychology Department.

Belle Masque Rehearsing First Musical Production

Belle Masque, the drama light of Villanova, has begun rehearsal for its fall production, "Bonds of Interest," written by Jacinto Benevente. They have decided to put it on in musical form.

Drama Department

George Herman and Richard Duprey, head of the university drama department, have written the score and Sue Arnold, drama graduate student, is handling the choreography.

The cast is large and contains a dancing and singing chorus. Among the principal players are Tom Flynn, '61 and Ray Kantra, '60, who play Crispin and Leander, the two rogues.

"Their escapades are lively and promise to delight the audience," said Alan Willig, member of the cast.

The famale leads are Connie Donahue, Villanova Engineering student and Carole Miceli of Rosemont.

Harlequin

Other members of the cast include Tom McCoy as Harlequin, Lincoln Hallowell as the Doctor, and Tony Provenzano as the Captain.

"Bonds of Interest" is Commedia del Arte type theatre which was done very successfully at Hedgerow last season.

Villanova's musical version will be performed November 18-19-20-21 in the Field House.

Tried To Muffle Spy-Hunter Morris

The announcement that Judge Robert Morris would address the first law forum of the current series, moved our journalistic fervor to search into his background.

Many of us do recall his name in connection with the famed spy hunts of the early fifties, with the Senate Internal Security Sub-committee.

But an obsure, yet fascinating, facet of his career revolves about the many times the man was repressed, along with all his incriminating evidence against subversives.

This was prior to his service as senate counsel. He was an intelligence officer in the Navy during the war, when he set to work against the Red menace.

He uncovered reams of evidence of infiltration in high places, but was repeatedly muffled. Finally the authorities decided to dissolve the counter-intelligence agency, and he urged them hotly not to take the step. Did he succeed in maintaining this arsenal against Communism?

"Well, if he did," asked Sen. William Jenner, "then how did he suddenly end up in romote Pearl Harbor?"

Not only were the members scattered, but their files were ordered destroyed—files about Communism on the waterfront, in convoys to Russia, and in maritime units.

Out of nowhere the question was finally asked: what high authority gave such an order to destroy useful files?

That was the question Bob Morris asked and Admiral Nimitz asked. Admiral King, who had the answer, said cryptically: "The White House."

While we latter day politicians at Villanova are pondering the implications of this, U.S. News and World Report shows it a matter of record that a similar attempt was made, at the same time, to destroy War Department records on subversion. Sen. Bridges blocked this in time.

Sen. Jenner said that "Communists fear indefatigable string collectors like Bob Morris. They dread the strings he collects."

This is the same Bob Morris — now Robert Morris, Justice—who will discuss the "Decline and Fall of American Security" tonight.

He's the first of a compelling array of speakers to speak from the law forum podium. This isn't an appeal for large attendance tonight.

On the contrary, Dr. Ball, who arranges the forums, would like to keep undergraduate attendance to a minimum, because of the close quarters of the assembly room.

But he's more than willing to accommodate the keen minds on campus who might want to attend.

Robert Morris, counter-spy, should supply a resonant evening.

Circulation Help

To the Editor:

Having just read with interest Bill Speer's article on the drastically undermanned Villanova Staff. I'd like to say that with an undergraduate enrollment which numbers in the thousands it's too bad only ten people are helping out.

As circuation manager, I am especially dismayed at the small circulation staff. Everyone will complain if their parents suddenly stop receiving their papers, but surprisingly few are willing to assure their being sent.

Team Records

To the Editor:

In reply to the editorial "An Adult Approach" appearing in the last issue of the Villanovan, I have the following information to offer, a record of Villanova football teams and their coaches for the past 35 yetrs!

Years Coaching	Coach	W - L - T
11	Stuhldrher	72-28-10
7	Smith	41-17- 3
6	Oliver	33-20- 2
2	Leonard	12- 6- 0
3	Raemo	16-11- 1
6	Reagan	16-34- 0

The above history has been given me by an outraged alumnus, S. Anthony DiSanto, D.D.S. His troubles in research should effectively demonstrate his personal feelings on the matter.

Betting On The GOP

By MATT McCUE

These coming elections cannot help but have a strong effect on next year's presidential race. They will also serve as a good indication of the type of congress that our new president in 1960 will face.

The time would now appear ripe for this writer to make a fearless forecast as to the nature and character of the 87th Congress.

Republican Congress

I predict that the Republican party will recapture a majority in congress, a majority which will be substantial in the house and slight in the senate. Now that I've stuck my neck out with such reckless abandon, let me elaborate.

This prediction is based on the incredibility poor record of the Democratic Congress of 1959. With the greatest Democratic majorities of any congress since the heyday of F.D.R., they have accomplished almost nothing.

They have fought among themselves over the issues of civil rights and labor; they have tried to force depression-stopping legislation on the nation when it was obvious that we were recovering from the slump by normal processes.

They have quibbled pettily with the president over two of his appointments, even succeeding in blocking one while forcing the other to withdraw.

In the two major accomplishments of the 86th Congress, they could hardly be said to have played a mojor role. The admittance of Hawaii into the union as a state was a bi-partisan effort, while labor reform was, in effect, beaten through their reluctant midst by the president and his Republican minority.

Last Efforts

In one of their last efforts of the session, the Democrats finally succeeded in overriding a presidential veto and passing a public works bill. This bill, while it contains some worthwhile features, was not called a pork barrel for nothing. It was just another example of the "big spend" in operation.

To sum up, the Democrats of 1959 left a truly brilliant trail of unfulfilled pledges and broken promises.

Perhaps we are being unduly optimistic in assessing the intelligence of the average American voter. But if I'm not, then we will have a Republican Congress in 1960.

Do you think a Third Major League will survive?

A third major league might seem ridiculous at first. However, there are many ball players who would welcome the opportunity to play ball in such a league. After the initial organizational problems have been overcome, the league just might work providing it received financial support and the backing of the fans.

David Lamond '63, Arts

I think the quality of the present players in the minor leagues is not of major league caliber. There might be enough good ball players for a few teams but not enough for an entire new league. In my opinion two teams should be added to each major league. Then in the future there might be the possibility to start a third major league.

Louis Trombocco '63, C&F

The third major league has a chance of survival if the backers have the courage to continue their support in the first few years of trial. In these first few years the fans will probably not see the quality ball they expect and, therefore, will lose interest. However, if the teams do survive, in about six years they will measure up to any team in the present majors and will also the support of the fans.

V. White '62, E.E.

Since I am not an avid baseball fan my opinion can not be taken as one of a well-advised person. However, I think that if enough influential people would back the league it could succeed. There are certainly enough capable players on the farm teams to form a third league, and, I am sure, there are many cities, especially in the south, that could finance a major league team.

Robert Hopkins '61, C&F

No. My opinion is that there is not enough major league material in class A ball to warrant a third league. If there were, why wouldn't some of our present major league teams strengthen their personal, so there would be better competition between teams? A third major league would result in a poorer game of baseball. Therefore, the attendence would diminish, and a league cannot survive without a good financial income.

Don Berry '62, Arts

I feel that a third major league will not survive. To begin with, the added games will cause confusion and disinterest. The farm system will also suffer because the majors will be using many of its players.

Father McFadden on K's Visit:

Inviting Premier A Move Toward Peace

The invitation to Nikita Khrushchev to visit our country has drawn a variety of response from Church and civic leaders concerning its wisdom. The Rev. Charles McFadden, O.S.A., an authority on the philosophy of Communism, here presents his views in an interview with Jack Maurer.

PART I

What possible good can come from Khrushchev's visit?

Naturally, I would not be so naive as to think that we could convert Khrushchev to our outlook on life.

But Khrushchev never saw the size, power, and productivity of our people. No amount of reading impresses like first-hand vision. Even though he would never admit it, I would hope that what he saw here would deter him from undertaking a nuclear war. I would hope that he learned that we could destroy him just as truly as he could destroy us.

Was our relatively cold reception wise?

Khrushchev witnessed the complete support of our government by our people in its opposition to Communism. He rode past millions of our people—and rarely received any applause. This cold and formal reception surely dispelled any thoughts which he might have had that our government's action in handling the USSR do not reflect the attitude of our people as a whole.

Were there any other advantages to inviting him?

It should have been very educational for our people to see first-hand the blind, determined, unwilling-to-give-an-inch mind of a Communist.

Also the President's willingness to discuss issues with Khrushchev must have satisfied those among our own people, those in our government, and those allies who want to be certain that no stone has been left unturned in our efforts to avoid a catastrophic war.

We must always remember that a constant struggle for power and leadership goes on within the USSR. There are those who would like very much to see Khrushchev out of the picture. If he falters a step, his "consorting with capitalistic leaders" will bring him to a quick demise.

Do you consider the invitation an approval of Khrushchev's crimes?

We often hear the remark: "You wouldn't invite a murderer or a gangster into your respectable home; how can you justify inviting this murderer of whole nations to visit us?"

I would answer that if an evil man plotted the destruction of many innocent people, I would be very willing to speak to him in my home or any place else if I thought that I could thereby save those who were labeled for destruction.

I would make certain that no one thought that I approved of this man and I would extend him only such courtesies as the meeting necessitated. I think that our President achieved this objective to an exceptional degree.

Would you say that the Catholic Church opposed the visit of Khrushchev to this country?

It would be very incorrect to say that the church took any official stand on this matter. I am not aware of any statement by any bishop explicitly rebuking our government for its action. Most of our hierarchy simply used the occasion to remind people and the nation of the evils of Communism and to call for special prayers for peace and victory over Communism.

You must agree that the recent message of Our Holy Father reflected approval, rather than opposition.

What do you think of certain prominent American churchmen referring to Khrushchev as "Khrushchev the Killer."?

In formal diplomatic negotiations, I believe the restrained language of diplomacy should be used. Outside of this, I believe in calling a spade a spade!

If I may use a comparison: Christ was extremely polite and restrained during His trial before Pilate. But you will recall the strong and descriptive language which He used in everyday life to characterize the Pharisees.

I see no reason why a senator speaking in Congress or a bishop speaking to his people should hide or minimize Soviet atrocities by honey-coating their words.

Will such outspoken opinions hurt the reputation of the Church in this country?

The Catholic Church in this country, as elsewhere, openly and vigorously placed the correct labels on Communism when it was unfashionable to do so.

The Church fought Communism every inch of the way during its growing periods, and, rather than suffering in its reputation, it grew in both numbers and national prestige.

Today, the American people have belatedly seen Communism in its true light. Today a man's patriotism is questioned if he does not strongly oppose Communism. All of our citizens are on the band-wagon against Communism and in their hearts—if not on their lips—they must be saying that the Church had Communism properly tagged down through the years and they were too blind to perceive it.

"LOOK MOM — I'm in the Daily News." That seemed to be the cry of the resident undergraduate last weekend.

WVIL sure got their listeners last Monday evening.

I hope that interest will continue, but there as the song says "somethings gotta give."

Page 2:

It was certainly evident that the personality tests given to Hall prefects are getting stiffer. Many upperclassmen delved into their handbooks just to make sure that some of the little heard of restrictions had any valid foundation.

The telephone company has gone all out to accomodate the resident students by placing two telephone booths in the stadium. Privacy is privacy, but that is ridiculous.

"Lady Chatterly's Lover" is now being offered in two versions, condemned and "way out."

ATTENTION FR. BURKE:

For all those who are interested in gaining entrance to the stacks, duplicate graduate students matriculation cards are now available in room 126 Sheehan Hall. This room has been rumored as the center of the underworld on campus.

Well now that the freshman know what a mixer is there will be less of a crowd at the next one. It is rumored that social custom was broken at the Rosemont mixer last weekend. Too bad.

If you are alert you would has noticed that the screens were being replaced in the dormitories. This was a diversionary tactic on the part of the administration in order that the student might gain confidence and strength to stand the shock when the windows are removed next week.

Several students are wondering when the minor sports program at Villanova is going to be extended to include football.

Last week's issue of the VILLANOVAN carried an article in which it was mentioned that there were distinguished freshmen attending Villanova this year. It might interest the author that things look bright for the future also, since DONDI has been accepted into the Class of 1962.

Hardiest congratulations to the Cloister A.C. for their victory over the first floor Sheehan Hall Devils.

"All of us are going to do better tomorrow — and we would, too, if we started today."

Strawberries and Little People . . .

Bergman and Disney Film Champs

By Philip Ludlow

Two men who as first glance seem very far removed are Ingmar Bergman and Walt Disney. Actually these two movie makers, the Swede and the American, have a great deal in common.

Both are represented by films in the Philadelphia area. Bergman's "Wild Strawberries" is downtown at the World and Disney's "Darby O'Gill and the Little People" is travelling the neighborhoods.

A comparison of these two films is not so farfetched as it would seem. Although vastly different, these films do have many similarities.

Both are about old men and their outlooks, both have vivid effects, both have death-couch scenes and most of all both capture the spirit of man.

Beautiful Film

"Wild Strawberries" is a puzzling film. It is a beautiful film but there will be a number of people who will walk out on it. There is little action and if action is the only thing the moviegoer is looking for then "Wild Strawberries" could be called dull.

But for anyone who wants a unique and challenging film experience that Swedish picture is a must. In fact it is the type of picture that merits more than one viewing.

Gunnar Fischer's camera work is magnificent; vivid black and white, sometimes soft, sometime harsh. Fischer and Bergman create a visual poem: ambiguous at times, symbolic, ironic, but always sensitive, and imaginative.

Simple Plot

The plot is simple, a seventy-five year old man, portrayed

Ahmad Jamal
At Red Hill

superbly by Victor Sjostrom, after fifty years as a doctor travels to Lund to receive an honorary degree. He learns more about humanity and man's needs in one day than he had learned in seventy-five years.

Bergman has captured many moods, both delicate and frightening. The nightmare death scene and the eerie dream trial are scenes of haunting quality while the pastoral scenes and "children" scenes are quite charming.

Disney also has spun webs of charm and has come up with some eerie scenes to chill the youngsters. "Darby and the Little People" is aimed at a smallster audience and should thoroughly delight them.

Disney Warmth

It is the tale of a whimsical little old Irishman and his adventures with the leprechauns. Disney has effected some very clever scenes full of color and the usual Disney warmth.

Both Bergman and Disney have made modern film history with their tasteful and individualistic styles of movies making. Each has a different style but they both have the same purpose.

REFLECTIONS . . .

. . . "The Big Operator" with Mickey Rooney is another nominee for worst picture of the year . . . Ahmad Jamal at the Red Hill . . . The Phillies are erecting a covering for the bandstand in case it rains during the Connie Mack Stadium Jazz Concert October 15-16 . . . Favorite album of the week is "An Hour with the Ramsey Lewis Trio" swinging in the Ahmad Jamal vein. Favorite single is "Misty" by liquid-voiced Mathis.

Training means learning the rules. Experience means learning the exceptions.

Oh! To Be In Philadelphia, Now That Floods Are There

jim mcateer

THIS WEEK I will plunge right into the thick of this neverending commentary on collegiate life and times. As you remember, this is a "feature column"—not syndicated, but getting there. Writers of feature columns (that's also me) must be bright, witty, intelligent and d . . . fools (that's also me).

McATEER

The purpose of a feature column, sometimes obscure (as in the case of this one), is to entertain, divert, amuse, educate, and generally uplift the reader, which is why so many feature writers fail (this, too, is me?)

You will notice that, in the three weeks of classes that have gone the way of all flesh, I have not asked if you had a nice summer. Frosh, of course, do not appreciate the significance of this ommission, but any senior who has had it asked of him 562 times each fall for the past four years should be very grateful to me.

And with that good deed for the day finished, I will devote the remainder of this column to the entertainment, diversion, amusement and education of freshmen, who need it, heaven knows.

But first a question: why, when you had pulled yourself up by your bootstraps to the exaulted position of high school seniors, did you frosh willingly choose to metamorphose (there's a quaint word) yourselves to the lowest form of human life—the college freshman?

NEVER MIND answering that. Just pull out your intricately detailed maps of the route to Rosemont, retire to the T-House, and drown your cares in a cup of apricot juice, large. When you return from your revelry, hop into a transportation unit (car, etc.) and avail yourselves of the joys of the nearby City of Brotherly Love, that is, Philly.

PHILADELPHIA, you will soon learn, is a thrilling, thriving metropolis, made up of houses and numerous other buildings. These "others" are built primarily of brick and history. For instance, you can see the Liberty Bell (free) and the E. A. Poe House (50 cents).

Philly is also a land of contrasts: in one street, you may see a child wearing a Zorro cape and a space helmet, and in another you might not. Also, you will find that we have a climate for every taste, ranging from the invigorating "Hell Freeze" of winter, to the lazy, golden "Big Schorch" of summer.

Of course we do have periodic floods, during which all contact with the outside world is cut off, but these occur only during the rainy season, which lasts from October to July.

Besides these natural blessings, our beloved City Fathers (taxpayers all) have endowed us other benefits. Roads, for example, are excellent (judging by local standards, of course). And the citizenry is wonderful.

People come in all types and temperments, from Main Liners—whose attitude of contemplative dignity has occasioned remarks that they are snobbish poops—to South Philadelphians—whose gay, carefree manner has led less-penetrating observers to call them drunken rowdies.

All in all, and guided by this gentle introduction to our fair city, I am sure that your four years at Villanova (should you be so fortunate as to last) will be one Grand Ball.

In an effort to bring art and "color" into the feature pages, and to provide students with a reasonable outlet for their artistic ventures the editors wish to announce the addition of a new feature hereafter known as "EXPRESSION."

Each week the editors will select the best poem or drawing (suitable for newspaper reproduction) to be featured in "EXPRESSION."

Any student whose work is published will receive a cash prize of five dollars.

Students desiring to submit material are asked to please contact Tom Wolf in room 306 Sheehan or Bill Speers in the Villanovan Office.

COUNCIL IN THE ROUND . . .

Appreciation To Committees

In philosophical circles, the relationship of potency and act is regarded as one of the fundamental explanations of existence. In the merry-go-round of student government, however, the only explanation of its existence on the campus is act—pure act!

This is my fourth year of being connected with the Student Council at Villanova and I have never seen a group so enthused about showing concreat results as this year's Council.

WE HAVE MOST of the true leaders on campus and they are earnest about their work. It is my firm conviction that, if the students support our programs, you will see tremendous gains made by the '59-'60 Council—but you, the students, must get behind your Council.

A special note of thanks goes to Ken Kraemer, Neil Drislane and the Academic Affairs Committee for the fine job that they did in arranging the forum on Mr. Khrushchev's visit.

This forum is in accordance with the new Student Council policy aimed at developing an intellectual atmosphere on our campus. Ken, our Exxecutive Vice-President of Education, took charge of arranging and publicizing this event.

The attendance at the forum was encouraging, as 150 students listened to Dr. Khouri. This is an indication of student approval to this Council policy. In the future, we hope to expand this program to bring in noted authorities on a variety of topics.

You, the student ,must remember that we need your support in this type of program or it will be discontinued. Get behind your Council and help us out and we will try to do our best for you.

THE SPIRIT COMMITTEE under John Oberlies and Jack Valva also deserve a round of praise. The committee has ignited a student body spirit that has recently been dormant.

We all want a very spirited undergraduate body and with the enthusiastic Spirit Committee members; this year should sparkle with those events which would make it so.

Look for a great amount of imagination and ideas stemming from this year's Spirit Committee and join in the fun!

"Jazz in the Quad," a Spirit Committee presentation, also received the approval of most of the residents; unfortunately, things got out of hand slightly at the end and this incident might refrain us from continuing this program.

We must have the assurance from the student body that they will cooperate completely with the Spirit Committee.

ANOTHER DISAPPOINTENG note came from John Valva as he reported that all the Spirit Committee signs for the Holy Cross game were removed. These things are unfortunate, but the contriving of a few can very easily interrupt the enjoyment of the rest.

Fred Smolinski, who handled the Senior Car Program very adroitly, is looking for student members for his Student Activities.

V.U. Male—Books, Bridge and No "B"

By Mary Lou Scanlon

THE VILLANOVA MALE comes in assorted sizes, shapes, weights and colors. He is found in the browsing room, on the parking lot, in the lounges, at parties, running to, coming from and sometimes in classes, mostly the Pie Shoppe, almost anywhere but behind a book. His specialties are girls, sports cars, athletics, bridge, jazz, poker—anything but his major.

The Villanovan is faith with a physics book in his hand and a prayer in his heart, hope with a 69 average after finals, charity to a freshman nurse learning chemistry.

His mother dotes over him, his dad begrudgingly loans him the car, his pals win money from him, his girl takes his frat pin, the Army calls him and St. Jude watches over him.

HE HAS the strength of Gibralter after an all night bout with the books, the patience of Job with his roommate, the eyes of a hawk (that nasty word) for certain co-eds, the speed of Mercury when the prof doesn't show in ten minutes, the wisdom of Soloman to a big-eyed high school girl, the hunger of a wolf after eating a V.U. Friday night supper, the slipperyness of an eel when a term paper is due, the slyness of a fox when playing cards with the boys, and the pride of a peacock on graduation day.

SPEERITUALISM . . .

Charlie's Frank With Fred: "All Is George With Jacks"

bill speers

Time: Present
Place: Near
Cast: Freddie the freshman; Charlie the sophomre
Enter Freddie and Charlie

Charlie: Well kid, here we are. This is where we eat our daily victuals. (heh-heh)
Freddie: (In utter amazement) Gee! Charlie this sure is neat. I see that it even dispenses baked beans.
Charlie: (Proudly) Yeh Freddie, Ya' gotta go pretty far ta beat this set-up.
Freddie: Boy! it sure is crowded.
Charlie: Well whatta' ya expect it's lunch time.
Freddie: Oh Yah! And besides that I see a lotta guys are studying.
Charlie: (Puzzled) Studying?
Freddie: Yah. Like those guys over there. Looks to me like there're using visual aids or something.
Charlie: (hysterically) Visual aids!! Har-har what a jar. Them's cards, not aids, sonny.
Freddie: (Again in utter amazement) Cards! you mean Playing cards? During school hours?
Charlie: Ya' don't have to make it sound like the eighth capital sin.
Freddie: But I was under the impression that a collegiate atmosphere was at all times one of dignity; exemplary of its vital role in forming the ideals of the men and women who will some day be world leaders.
Freddie: (dejectedly) Sob!
Charlie: Oh, and another thing, kid. When you're carrying a stack of books like ya' got there, at all times keep your Business Math Book on the top. Makes Ya' stand out. Gives ya' stature. A man among men ya' might say.
Charlie: (Again, puzzled) What is it wit you? Are ya' a radical or somethin'. Sit down before ya' have the whole place...
Freddie: (reverently) What ever you say, Charlie.
There is a pause here as Charlie bows his head when a student dressed in an olive-colored tie passes their table.
Freddie: Why did you bow your head when that fellow walked by.
Charlie: (Disgustingly) Why did I bow my head? Why didn't you take off that stupid dink? Do you know who that was? It just happened to be a member of the fraternity.
Freddie: (puzzled) The fraternity?
Charlie: Yeah the fraternity. On this campus they are known as the cream of the hops, whatever that means. But as far as your concerned there your superiors. Get that?
Freddie: Right Charlie. Are you a member of the fraternity?
Charlie: (saddly) No, I'm sorry ta' say I'm not. Didn't quite make the grade.
Freddie: How come Charlie?
Charlie: Well, ta' make a long story short, my big brother once sent me out for a screw driver and I brought him back my father's tool chest. (At this point he is near tears) The most unkindest cut of all.
Freddie: I think I know exactly how you feel. Sorta' like the time when I was a kid. The gang would never let me come to any of their parties because I always won at "Pin the Tail on the Donkey."
(Dejectedly) Sob.
Charlie: Well, I better be gettin' ta' class.
Freddie: Yeah! I guess I'll be going home.
Charlie: Home? At 10:30 in the morning?

Charlie: Yeah, I got early classes this year. I'll see ya' later, kid.
Freddie: Yeah. So long, Charlie.

Opinionated Students Rebel! But It Sure Is Hard To Tell

jim bising

THE FOOTBALL EXPERTS' convention of Villanova University held in between Sheehan and Sullivan Halls on the night of September . . .once again demonstrated the poised and quiet manner in which Villanova students state their opinions and differences of opinion without attracting any sensationalism or cheap outside publicity.

The loss of two football games is unquestionably a traumatic experience for the majority of the student body (except for those students with good memories who can remember the 1954 and 1955 seasons, when the Wildcats compiled the enviable record of two victories and eighteen defeats.

The lack of real pride in Villanova which was demonstrated by those who seem to claim that they are concerned about her fortunes must be a source of disappointment to the more mature members of this scholastic community.

IT IS RUMORED that NEWS photographers are on constant standby duty, waiting for another chance to scoop the other city papers (and the Villanovan). Who can say who will be the next "protester" to have his picture on the front page of the city's most dignified newspaper? Perhaps it will be Count Villian V?

Meanwhile, the less important parts of campus life continue as before. People attend classes for one reason or another, and others occupy themselves as best they can with the various means at their disposal.

This season is not over, and seasoned football tacticians who are so critical of the manner in which the team is being managed might consider the effect that their "no confidence demonstration" will have on the outcome of the remaining games of this season. Maybe they don't really care?

Column 3

Three Little Words—And A Best-Seller

frank murtha

"SEX, SEX, SEX"! This is what I'm calling my new novel which, as the title indicates, should be a best seller. Actually I haven't written it yet but it shouldn't take me long to do so. I've got the plot all outlined. It's a tender story of a young girl's awakening to love. Originality should count heavily in its favor.

Murtha

The sub plot involves two sadistic perverts and their search for happiness in a world they never made. Of course there will be two ore three nymphs for spice but on the whole it will be a powerful down-to-earth novel about people. I find people are the best subjects for powerful down-to-earth novels and I try to include them in the story whenever I can.

In fact that's my basic literary thesis, that people are important. Believe me, there's nothing like people.

The primary story is that of Ann Smith, a young sensitive girl brought up in the slums of the east side. Since the city is not paramount in the novel I have cleverly omitted giving it a name. After all, the east side is the east side regardless of the city.

However, from what is said and the type of characters involved you can pretty well tell that it is a large city, on the Atlantic seaboard or for that matter, the Pacific seaboard, possibly even the Gulph coast. Universality is a major asset in this novel.

ANN IS torn between love for brutal, drunkard father and hate for her kind long suffering mother. This leads her to believe she is different and in an effort to find herself she turns to young sensitive Johnny Doe who, through some gross misunderstanding has a police record of 23 arrests and no convictions. Interestingly enough, Johnny's uncle is tough but fair Judge Doe.

Johnny finds himself somehow the leader of a teen-age gang and 300 pages are devoted to his attempts to break away from this evil influence. Finally he accomplishes this by staging a rumble between his gang and the Bats who happed to possess an arsenal of 37 Thompson submachine guns and two crates of hand grenades.

John ingeniously provides his gang with blank ammunition for their weapons and this, together with the fact that Johnny, unbeknownst to the gang, has soldered up the nuzzle of their anti-tank gun accomplishes what no amount of pleading could do, it rids Johnny of the evil gang influence. He finds himself.

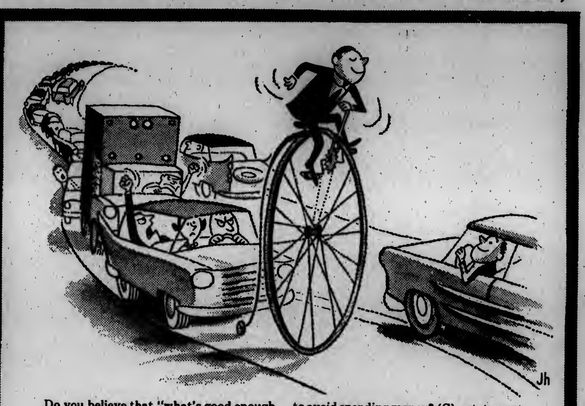
Then he and Ann, who has waited for him, stand hand in hand as the sun sets over the tenements of the east side. They are mutually resolved to find a better world for their children, both intelligitimate at this time. Thus the novel ends; leaving a few strings tantalizingly loose. It should be number one on the best seller list for quite a while.

Father Lawless Named Director Of Part-Time Div.

Rev. George P. Lawless, O.S.A., has been appointed Director of Villanova University's undergraduate Part Time Division it was announced this week by the Very Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A. University President.

Father Lawless succeeds Dr. Eugene P. Powers who resigned recently to become Dean of the Departmnt of Education at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College.

A native of the Chestnut Hill section of Philadelphia, Father Lawless was educated in Our Mother of Consolation School there and the Augustinian Academy in Staten Island, N. Y. He was graduated from Villanova University in 1952.



Father Lawless was ordained to the Priesthood in 1956 and following his ordination attended Catholic University in Washington where he earned his Master's Degree in the classics. He is presently working on his Doctor's Degree at the University of Pennsylvania.

Father Lawless has been a member of the University faculty for the past two years. He will be assisted in his new position by Mr. Charles Bruderle.

The Treasury Department's lowest balance for a single day was $28,239.61 on December 31, 1789.

Do You Think for Yourself?

(PUT THESE QUESTIONS ON YOUR BRAIN-PAN AND SEE IF THEY SIZZLE*)

Do you believe that "what's good enough for your father is good enough for you" is (A) a remark indicating that Father had things pretty fancy? (B) a parental trick to avoid spending money? (C) a statement unconsciously revealing an ultra-conservative attitude? (D) an admission that you deserve as big an income as Pop?

A☐ B☐ C☐ D☐

If you saw a man on his hands and knees in the street, searching for something, would you (A) try to find it before he does? (B) tell him it isn't worth getting run over for? (C) ask him what he's doing down there? (D) offer to buy it from him when he finds it?

A☐ B☐ C☐ D☐

Do you think that the old saw "an apple a day keeps the doctor away" is (A) simply a trick to get you to eat apples? (B) rough on the doctor? (C) a health precept that can apply to other fruit, too? (D) applesauce?

A☐ B☐ C☐ D☐

Would you choose a filter cigarette because (A) of what is said about the tobacco? (B) you could hardly tell the filter is there? (C) it has the most advanced filter design? (D) it claims to filter well because it tastes weak?

A☐ B☐ C☐ D☐

Why do men and women who think for themselves usually smoke Viceroy? Because they've found out the Viceroy filter is the best of its kind ever developed, for finest tobacco taste. A thinking man's filter.

And they know Viceroy delivers a rich, satisfying taste that's never been equaled. A smoking man's taste.

A thinking man's filter . . . a smoking man's taste. How about you trying Viceroys?

By the way, if you checked (C) in three out of four of these questions . . . man, you think for yourself!*

The Man Who Thinks for Himself Knows—
ONLY VICEROY HAS A THINKING MAN'S FILTER . . . A SMOKING MAN'S TASTE!

"It's 'planned parenthood.' We plan to take advantage of every tax deduction the law allows!"

And It Continues!

In the last 100 years, the U.S. population has multiplied 7 times; production has multiplied itself 25 times. There are more jobs per 1000 population available today, with machines doing 94% of the work, than there were in 1850, when machines did but 6% of the work.

In 1910 you paid more than $1 for every 100 miles of use you got out of an automobile tire. Today you can get 100 miles of use out of 10 cents' worth of tire.

Better things for more convenient and pleasanter living for more and more people have been coming our way for so long that we are no longer startled by innovation.

Singers Again Under Direction Of Herbert Fiss

The Villanova Singers will again be under the direction of Mr. Herbert Fiss, with the Rev. Henry B. Syvinski, O.S.A. as Moderator.

On the Singers' schedule for the near future include the Law School Red Mass, the Nurses' Capping Ceremony, and the N.R.O.T.C. Military Mass.

One engagement has already been completed, as the group entertained a convention of the American Association of Textile Chemists in Reading, Pa. on Sept. 25th.

The Singers have increased their enrollment considerably this fall, the organization now numbering approximately 80 voices, over half of them freshmen who are expected to provide a solid foundation for the years to come.

President of the Singers this year is senior Charles Carroll. Other officers include vice-president Frank Perry, sec-treas. Butch McNally, librarian Phil LoPiccolo, and Student Council Rep. Tom Natal.

K of C Plans For Breakfast

The Father Ludwig, O.S.A., Council 4609 of the Knights of Columbus will hold its third annual Communion Breakfast on October 11.

The Breakfast, which will follow Mass at 9 a.m. in the University Chapel, will be held at Stouffer's Restaurant in Wynnewood, Pa.

Toastmaster Irv Keller will introduce the Very Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., president, the principal speaker.

Dr. Eugene Powers, former Dean of the Evening School, and first Grand Knight of the council, has been invited as a special guest. Dr. Powers is now Dean of Education at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College.

Knights from any council may attend the Breakfast.

Dave Grenon, chairman of the Breakfast, said that tickets may be obtained from any member of the ticket committee, or in 344 Sheehan Hall. Ticket price is $1.00.

NFCCS Moderator

The Rev. Dante L. Girolami, O.S.A., dean of student activities, has recently announced the appointment of Rev. Thomas Burke, O.S.A., as moderator of the National Federation of Catholic College Students.

The N.F.C.C.S. is an intercollegiate organization which holds as its goal the advancement of Catholic action.

It is conducted principally by students under the leadership of Tom Hoffman, president of the Student Council, and Senior delegate Ron Dobies.

A junior delegate is still to be appointed by the Student Council.

Departments Add to Staffs

Various department chairmen of Villanova have announced additions to their staffs for this academic year.

History Department

Doctor Harold F. Hartman of the History Department stated that the new faculty members of his department are:

John J. Logue, a graduate from Yale University, who received his Masters degree from the University of Pennsylvania. Logue will serve as an Assistant Professor in Political Science.

Dr. Joseph George, Jr., a graduate of Boston University, who received his Master's degree and Ph.D. at the same University. George will serve as an Instructor.

Mathematics

The Chairman of the Mathematics Department, Dr. Emil Amelotti, has announced several new members in his department:

Dr. George Forodorri, of the University of North Carolina, who will serve as a part-time instructor of Statistical Methods I.

Mr. F. McPherson who will instruct a computer course called "Punch Card Data Processing".

Mr. A. Dando, who will also instruct computer course students on the subject of Programming Univac Solid State Computers.

Mr. J. Sgambati, who comes to Villanova from West Chester State Teachers College and will serve as a part-time instructor.

Mr. Thomas Gormley, a graduate of Villanova, who will also serve as a part-time instructor.

Philosophy

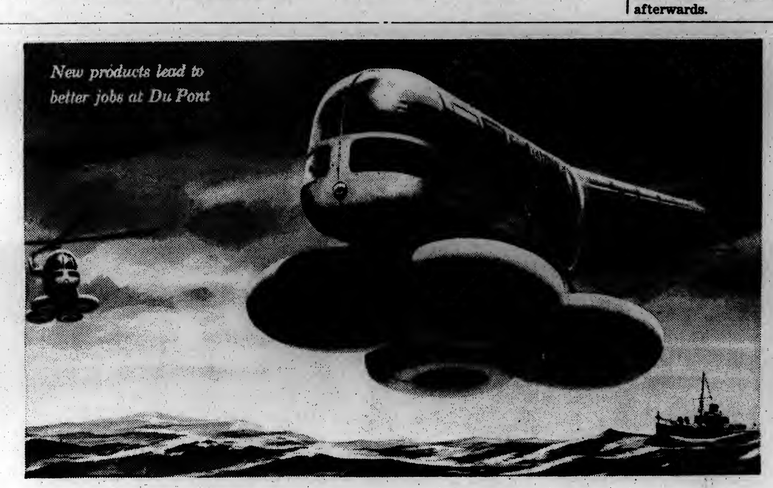
New members of the Philosophy Department faculty, as announced by Dr. Donald A. Gallagher, vice-chairman are:

Dr. James F. Anderson, a graduate of the University of Virginia who received his Master's degree and his Ph.D. from the University of Toronto.

Rev. Harry J. Erdlen, O.S.A., as an Instructor of Philosophy. Father Erdlen is a graduate of Villanova and has a Master's degree from Catholic University. This is his second time as an Instructor at Villanova. He was here previously for the 1957-1958 term and then was transferred to Msgr. Bonner High School in Drexel Hill, Pa.

S. C. Requests Suggestions On Student Trips

The Spirit Committee is at work making plans for future activities, according to Dave Grenon and Tom Raymond, co-chairmen of publicity.



Both feel that the student body has cooperated fully so far, and that the football team will prove themselves to the spirited student body.

It was revealed that students trips are in the planning stage for the Army and Rutgers games. The Spirit Committee would appreciate any suggestions that would help to make future trips and rallies a success, they said.

Tomorrow, a rally for the coming game with Boston College will be held. The Spirit Committee hopes that large numbers will make the trip to the game.

The committee adds that all students will govern themselves in a manner befitting Villanova men while at the game and afterwards.

DOUGHNUTS YOU CAN'T DUNK

These bizarre-looking underpinnings have taken a lot of the risk out of ticklish overwater helicopter operations. Tough and lightweight, they can be inflated in a few seconds. They're made of neoprene-coated nylon fabric.

This year nylon, product of Du Pont research, is 20 years old. Since its discovery, hundreds of new jobs have been created. To improve it in the laboratory. To make it in the plant. To find new uses. To advertise it across the nation. To sell it in world markets. These new jobs range from trainee to administrator.

At Du Pont, our business is to discover the undiscovered. We don't find a nylon every year, but we come out with new products often exciting in their degree of improvement over the old. New plastics like "Teflon"* fluorocarbon resins, new finishes like "Lucite"* acrylic automotive finishes, new families of products like the polyesters—"Dacron"* polyester fiber, "Mylar"* polyester film, "Cronar"* polyester film base.

How does all this affect you?

When you join Du Pont you and your future are backed by research, and its promise of growth. Each year more jobs are created, all the way to the top.

At the bottom rung of the technical graduate's ladder, you are given an actual project assignment almost at once and begin to learn your job by doing it. All training is personalized—tailored to your background and interests. It permits periodic evaluation of your performance. Our promotion policies are based on the conviction that you should work at the top of your ability. It stands to reason, then, that the better your training, the more rapid your rise is likely to be . . . and the brighter your future.

If you would like to know more about career opportunities where growth through research has been the history and continues as the objective, see your placement officer for literature, or write E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co (Inc.), 2420 Nemours Building, Wilmington 98, Delaware.

PLAYER OF THE WEEK

Swimmers Name Captains

by Gene Hewitt

This is a study of contrasts. A study that begins back in the fall of 1953 and one that shall end in the spring of 1960. Two high school freshmen are about to embark on a path that will lead them to Villanova.

Joe Harvey in his first year at Roman Catholic High in Philadelphia tries out for the school swimming team. But the team disbands for lack of a pool in which to practice regularly and Joe's interests turn to cross country and track. He gains his letter in track and in the fall of 1956 comes to Villanova .

Frank Keefe begins his career at East Haven High School in New Haven, Connecticut and goes out for the swimming team This team unlike Roman Catholic's has a pool in which to practice and Frank develops. For three consecutive years Keefe wins all-State honors in swimming and captains his team in his senior year.

He enters Mercersburg Academy for a year of prep school and here, he again captains his team and garners . All American Prep School honors in the hundred yard backstroke. He arrives at Villanova to the cries of "Bwana Bwana" in the fall of '56.

Why Villanova

Why did these two come to Villanova? For Joe the answer was easy. Wanting a good Catholic education in this area, he chose Villanova, as to him, it was the best answer. For Frank, it was a little more complicated. He also wanted a good Catholic education but he desired to go to a school that had swimming as a interclegiate sport but did not have a scholarship program for it. The question arises: Why didn't he want a scholarship. His answer was to the point "I do not want to swim under the the obligation and pressure of a scholarship." And so Frank saw his answer too in Villanova.

Once at Villanova they both enter the C & F school but Joe goes into Accounting and Frank into Marketing. Frank joins the freshman mermen and quickly shows his great ability. In sophomore year Joe decides to go out for the swimming team.

In practice he impresses his coaches Ed Geisz and Jack Lumsden with his desire and ability and becomes a started in the 220 freestyle. Keefe also becomes a starter and quickly asserts himself as one of Villanova's great backstrokers. The two of them practice day in and day out both in the afternoon and evening. They average a mile and a half a day in training and soon both win points consistently.

Junior Year

Villanova's greatest year in intercollegiate swimming finds Frank swimming the 100 yard backstroke in the medley relay and the number one man in the 200 yard backstroke.

Joe moves up to take on the toughest assignment on the team, that of swimming back the 220 and 440 freestyle in all the meets and asserts himself as the team's best in these events . At the conclusion of the year Keefe looked back upon these achievements: holder of the Villanova record of 1:02.9 in the 100 yard backstroke, a member of the record holding 200 and 400 yeard stroke and 9th in the 200 backstroke. Harvey finds himself as the top distance man on the team and, the first swimmer from Villanova to enter the 1500 meters in the Easterns and the winner of the most improved swimmer award.

Now the contrast is to end for a while when at the election of Captains for the Villanova University Swimming team for 1959-'60 they find themcselves as Co Captains of the team in what promises in their own words "to be one of the greatest seasons in the team's history."

Finally we find their opinions concurring on a particular subject and quoting, "A great deal of credit must go to our coaches Ed and Jack for all the assistance ,help and advise they gave without hesitation to us. Without them none of this would have been possible for us at Villanova."

Last seen Harvey and Keefe were swimming in the pool, one on his back and one on his stomach concurring in one sense but contrasting in the other.

Frosh Football Season Opens Under New Coach

by John Duffy

The Villanova football team—Freshmen edition—is a team packed with talent and for the most part proven football players.

The FROSH team is coached by William J. Brannau, better known as Bill, a graduate of Southeast Catholic High School in Philadelphia. Mr. Brannau and the Villanova athletic department have succeeded in getting some of the areas top schoolboy prospects to further their education at Villanova.

The frosh are deeply endowed with top flight quarterbacks—which in the years to come should answer the Varsity's quarterback problem.

Richie Richman, the southpaw slinger from Overbrook High, Philadelphia, is a top flight prospect; also in this category are Ted Aceto, from Gloucester Catholic, New Jersey, and Harry Glick from Lansdale Catholic.

St. Peter's Alumni

Saint Peter's Prep of Jersey City, made a few choice donations to the Main Line campus in the persons of Louis Rettino, a 6'1" 217 pound fulback, and Richard Grande, 6'2" 230 pound tackle. Hows that for size?

Closer to home, two Philadelphia Prep schools made significant contributions to the Wildcat Lair. St. Joe's Chipped in with two of their best, in end Mike Delone, 6'3" 210 and Robert Kowalski, 5'10" 220 pound guard. From LaSalle, we asquired Arnold Buben, everybodies all Catholic last season. Arnold's a healthy 230 pounds distributed on a 6'2" frame.

These fellows mentioned were just a few of the many boys packed with potential, now in residence on the Main Line Campus.

After the first week of school Coach Brannau had a list of seventy would be players, who would have played their way through driving rain, blinding snow, and freezing sleet, but after one heartbreaking loss, half of those brale aspirants dissapeared quicker than a plate full of pancakes at a boardinghouse. This situation preplexed Mr. Brannau to such an extent that he still hadn't quieted down when this article was written.

When practice started Mr. Brannau had 35 players and for one reason or another he now has 27. The coach plans to carry 35 ball players on his roster this fall. If there are any ablebodied frosh—and I mean ablebodied, who would like to play football and has had any previous varsity experience go down to the field house and see Mr. Brannau, as he would be only to happy to give you a chance.

Mr. Brannau said of his present squad that their attitude was very good and their desire something to behold.

When pressed about the offense the coach said he would use a wide open T, split ends, flankers, and throw the ball a lot, "if we learn to block and tackle first".

In short the offense will somewhat resemble that of the varsity, only it is hoped with better success.

As of now the Frosh schedule is not yet completed. They play at West Point on October 16 and entertain Bullis on October 23. Then there is a trip to West Chester to play the Rams on October 30. I am certainly glad that Glen Killenger doesn't coach the freshmen up there, he coaches everything else.

All in all I and everyone involved with the frosh gridders look forward to a fine season and to the day that the little Wildcas can unleash their tremendous potential in behalf of the varsity.

Mural Sports in Full Swing

by Dan Grove

This fall the intramural association, under the direction of Ed Geisz, is presenting another well-rounded program, designed for the active participation of you, the members of the student body of Villanova.

Intramurals are Villanova's answer to "Slenderella", designed for the removal of the spare tire. The active participation of each and every student is necessary to carry on a successful program.

This year the touch-football league has 50 teams lined up. Three have already been played: The Dukes marched over the One Eyes, 13-0; D.P.M. over the Savages, 6-0; and the Cuttless Wonders tied Carsen's Raiders, 6-6.

There is a great need for officials for both 2:30 and 3:30 games. If interested please contact the Intramural office, located in Room 112, Alumni Hall.

M.U.F.F. DAY is the next big activity on the Intramural schedule. It is a field day contest between the Freshman and Sophomore Classes. If the Freshman win, the orientation period will be over.

The Intramural swimming and diving championship will be held in the pool, located in the Field House, on October 13, at 4:30 P.M.

The cross-country championship will be on Thursday, October 15th, at 4:30 P.M. It consists of a 2 mile round-the-campus marathon.

The Intramural Hexathon will be held during the week of October 19th—through the 22nd. The Hexathon will consist of events in the following sports: Rifle, Swimming, Basketball, Football, Gymnastics, and Foul Shooting.

Cats Hang Themselves

Tony Macklin

There was a hanging at Fitton Field last Saturday.

The Holy Cross Spirit Committee proposed the execution with a banner which read "Hang All the Wildcats." The Wildcats complied most politely to this proposal. In fact, they adjusted the rope.

The hangman was that old villain "their own mistakes." He was aided by that mainline malady "wasted opportunities."

The Wildcats made more mistakes than Henry Aldrich in his prime.

The mistakes were numerous: collisions, foul-ups in the backfield, botched tackles, dropped passes, and wild passes.

Toncic Tonic?

Shades of Ivan Toncic, Villanova does throw passes! (Toncic threw four TD flings to lead Pitt to a comeback victory over UCLA). The VU quarterbacks threw more passes than the remarkable panther but didn't share his distain for the virtue of the goal-line.

Actually the VU pass passion was slightly pungent. The 'cat rubber-arms threw 31 passes and completed only eight. Some of the pass receivers treated the ball as though it were a textbook. Six times the text got cribbed.

The Wildcats passing began early. After the Crusaders had ground out a touchdown in 15 plays and had thrown their first pass for the extra point and an 8-0 lead Villanova started to move the ball.

Leon Horin, who played a fine game, shot for 41 yards; and a penalty put the ball on the Cross five. Horin lost one and then four. So Roehre threw two passes, both incomplete.

Some Luck

Then with 4:15 left in the first period the 'cats got hold of a blocked kick on the 22. After an incompleted pass Villanova got the luck they often don't. Cross defender Rich O'Brien batted a pass out of Tom Heron's hands but Sam Gruneisen picked it off at the five.

A penalty gave Reagan's rumblers the ball on the 2½, first and goal to go. Russo lost six. Then Roehre threw over yruneisen's head, Gruneisen and Sroka ran into each other on a pass pattern, and O'Brien intercepted a last down Roehre toss.

In the third quarter a pass to Heron brought the ball to the 17. Incomplete to Heron. Gruneisen dropped a pass. Kautter couldn't find anybody open and was "forced" to run for a four yard gain. Last down brought an incomplete pass directed at Ficca.

Within the ten yard line, the 'cats threw on five out of eight plays: within the twenty, the 'cats threw on eight out of twelve plays.

Pass Happy

VU loves to pass inside the ten. Two weeks ago at Xavier, Roehre threw four incomplete passes in a series of downs from the four yard line.

A ground TD still counts six points, doesn't it?

If the 'cats are going to continue this pass passion it might be a good idea to give their receivers jelly bread or slap glue on their fingers prior to the game.

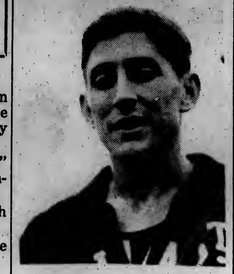
Also the quarterbacks' control could stand a honing. The 'cats receivers consistently got free but to no avail.

Reagan Innovates

Coach Reagan did innovate for the Holy Cross game. He stitched up some of the holes in the defense and opened up the offense.

Reagan said before the game that if the team cut out the stupid mistakes and started playing the kind of ball that they were capable of they could give anybody trouble.

Unfortunately they didn't cut out the mistakes. However they still failed to crush the feeling among the faithful that they have potential.



This Saturday is another game. The 'cats get another chance. Tom Dooley never had it so good.

All Americans 3 Times

After he was hanged and burned in effigy on Sunday night, head football coach Frank Reagan demonstrated one of the reasons he was selected to be coach and atheltic director. On Monday Reagan sent a letter to the Administration asking clemency for the student body, many members of which had degraded him. If Mr. Reagan had deficiencies as a football coach (and that's debatable), he certainly has none as a man.

Paul Cameron, All-American tailback from U.C.L.A. a few years ago, is playing a slightly different game nowadays. Cameron acts as a bodyguard for Ricky Nelson. Sic transit gloria.

A Nickname, A Quote, A Raised Eyebrow

Members of the track team have already tagged freshman hurdler Charley Hammock with a nickname. "More Bounce to the Ounce"—a very appropriate monicker as anyone who has ever seen Charley run will attest.

Hammock, star at Roman Catholic last year, should be a cinch to break the Villanova record for the 120 yard high hurdles. As a matter of fact he tied the record (14.3) last year!

Interviewed at halftime of the Villanova-Xavier game, John Pont, head football coach at Miami U. (Ohio), was asked what he would tell his team were it trailing 34-7.

Pont replied: "I don't know. None of my teams have ever been down by that much at halftime. "A good answer to a silly question.

Sometimes you wonder about the integrity of professional football: Tommy McDonald, fine slotback of the Eagles, was able to catch 26 passes good for nine touchdowns in the six game exhibation season. This despite the fact he was often double or even triple teamed.

In the Eagle's first league game against San Francisco, McDonald caught one pass for 16 yards. And the Forty Niners have, on the admission of their own coach, the weakest defensive backfield in the league. Something's wrong somewhere.

Errors, All-Americans, Broken Feet

What was going on in Felix Mantilla's head when he threw that ball? Mantilla made a terrific stop of that crazily bouncing grounder off Carl Furillo's bat, but he was way off balance when he threw. Besides, I think Furillo was already crossing the bag when the poor throw bounced in front of first baseman Frank Torre. That may have cost 15 big ones.

I wonder how many Villanovans know who the only two three-time All-Americans from Villanova are? Well, the two famous gentlemen are Don Bragg and Ron Delany. Perhaps it might surprise you to know that an All-American track team is selected. Why not?

Gene O'Pella, mammoth end of last year, who went to Canada to play his pro ball, broke his foot in practice and will probably be out of action the entire season.

And as Don Adams says: "A good quarterback and a good halfback go hand in hand—but not while walking on the campus!"

Wildcats Seek Boston TD Party Saturday

Eagles and 'Cats Seek First Win

Mike Donahue

A well rested Boston College eleven that promises to be "up" for Saturday's game is next on the agenda for Villanova's traveling Wildcats.

The game to be played at the Chestnut Hill, Mass. stamping grounds of the Eagles is the thirteenth in a row to be staged on BC's home site.

Saturday's encounter will be the twenty-fourth in the series which began in 1922.

Villanova is on the short end an 11-12-1 record in previous frays with the Maroon and Gold.

Win No. 2 was racked up last year, 21-19, as Jim Grazione had his greatest day. Graz scored two touchdowns, one on a 53 yard scamper and passed for another.

On defense the former South Catholic great knocked down BC's attempted two-point conversion and intercepted two passes at keypoints in the game.

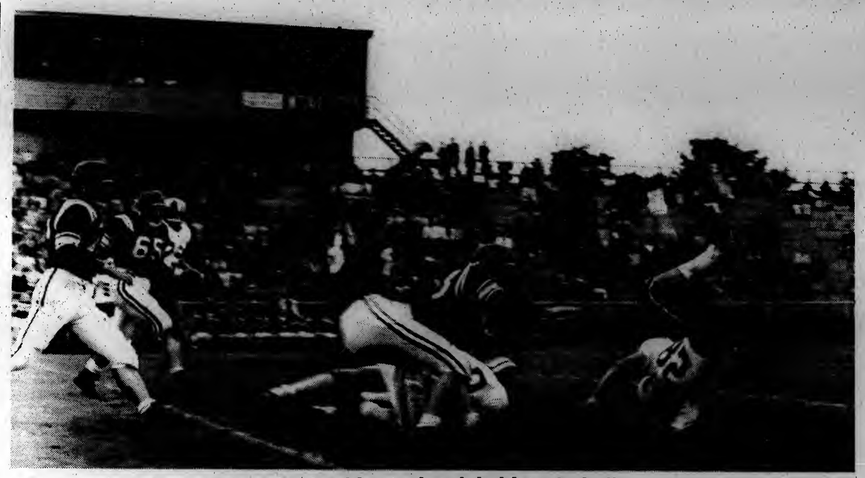
All Ready

The Eagles of Mike Holovak should be in tip-top shape for Saturday's tiff.

They will have had two full weeks from the ill affects of meeting Navy and Army, two of the East's strongest teams, on consecutive weekends.

Navy knocked off the Eagles, 24-8, on September 26 with little strain.

This was followed up a week later by a sound passing at the hands of Army. The Black Knights of the Hudson demoralized the Bostonians, 44-8, as such luminaries as Bob Carpenter, Bob Anderson and Joe Caldwell led the Army offense in rolling up 560 yards.



Two Losses

Despite these two setbacks, the Eagle eleven still looms as a potintially good team. They have a dynamic little halfback named Jimmy Sullivan who startled the Michie Stadium crowd by gathering in the kick-off after Army's first TD and swivel-hipping his way down the sidelines before a frantic lunge by an Army defender brought him to the ground after a 64 yard return.

John Amabile, Don Allard's successor at quarterback, performed capably in the first games. Other backfield starters are Tom Casey, and Vin Hogan, halves and Frank Robotti at fullback.

The Eagle forward wall is led by Captain Frank Casey, rated along with Vin Promuto of Holy Cross as one the East's finest and Larry Eisenhauer, stalwart right end.

Crusader tumbles on head, holds onto ball.

'Cats Third Crusade Failure: 20-0

Jim Murray

Last Saturday the Wildcats of Villanova showed the Crusaders of Holy Cross a new wide open offense. This coupled with their still wide open defense-pass is still a dirty word—gave the Crusaders a 20-0 win.

The Crusaders marched 78 yards the first time they got their hands on the ball for the game's first. It was entirely a ground drive with Holy Cross running through and around the Villanova line. Senior fullback, John Esposito crashed into the endzone from three yards out for the score.

The Wildcats went into their 'new' offensive formations and two plays after they received the kick Leon Horin broke loose. Big Leon burst through the line for 41 yards to the Holy Cross 10 yard line. The Crusaders were penalized and the ball was moved to the 5—first and goal for Villanova.

Stalled Attack

Here, Leon Horin was brought down two times by crashing Crusader linemen. With the ball on the 10 senior quarterback, Ed Roeher, tried two passes to Russ Frantz—the passes were incomplete and Holy Cross took over.

The Wildcat line held the Crusaders on this series of downs. Barry Bocklet tried a third down quick kick, but Villanova linemen, Larry Sopko broke through and blocked the kick. Tackle Tom Kepner caught up with the ball on the 22 and the 'Cats were in scoring position again.

On a third down play Ed Roehre shot a 20-yard pass intended for Tom Heron. The ball was deflected by halfback Dick O'Brien into the arms of soph end Sam Gruneisen.

Foiled Again

It was first and goal from the 2½-yard line but again Holy Cross held. Soph back Nick Russo from Atlantic City, N.J. was upended for a six yard loss. Roehre's third pass was intercepted by O'Brien who deflected this pass into his own hands.

In the second quarter Holy Cross took advantage of the lagging Villanova pass defense and Ken Komodzinski threw a pass to end Bernie Buzyniski for 18 yards — Buzyniski shook Wildcat defender Frank Ficca scampered the last 4 lyards untouched. Halftime score was 14-0.

The third quarter was again the scene of another Wildcat failure.

With Wayne Kautner at the helm the Wildcats sailed to the 17 on two pass plays to ends Groneisen and Heron. Again, Holy Cross tightened up and stopped the 'Cats on the 13.

From here it was a matter of Holy Cross keeping the ball on running plays and taking the ball from Villanova passers. In the fourth quarter Charlie Pacunas intercepted a pass and set the Crusaders final score.

The 'Cats again spent most of the day in the air throwing 31 passes they completed 8 for 121 yards. The 'Cats completed 6 of their passes to Holy Cross defenders. So, 14 for 31 doesn't seem bad—well that's one way to look at it.

It was the third loss for the Wildcats but they played their best game of the season. They showed glimpses of what they Can do and let's hope we get the whole picture next week.

Placement Says Engineers Are In Greatest Demand

The recruiting picture for 1959-60 promises more opportunities in more varied fields than ever before, according to the new edition of the College Placement Annual, being released November 16, 1959 by Director of Placement in the basement of Sheehan Hall.

The Annual is an official, non-profit publication listing the job opportunities normally made available by the more than 1,700 participating companies.

Villanova University is one of nearly 600 colleges and universities throughout the United States and Canada where it is being distributed. Copies for personal or reference use are available to all registered Seniors.

Engineers In Demand

In 1959-60, as in most years in recent history, engineers will find themselves most in demand among the recruiters. Close to two-thirds of the companies listed in the Annual are interested in hiring some type of engineer, and cumulative totals show more than 3,600 company openings for engineers of various types.

Mechanical engineers, for the third year in a row, will be the most popular—some 800 companies list openings for them—but the twin specialties of electrical and electronic engineering are close behind.

The third most desirable man, in the eyes of the recruiters at any rate, will be the chemist. In the most startling jump in demand revealed by the Annual, the number of companies offering openings in that field went from 396 in 1959 to 672 this year.

Another hanging at Villanova. This time it's the freshman attempting to lynch a white hat, symbol of soph authority. The lynching followed a hectic MUFF day, which the frosh lost 110-80.

Soph Snared For Slipknot Amid Muff Day Skirmish

By RON KLAMMER

Another "hanging party" shook Villanova last Wednesday, the second in as many weeks.

However this one was spontaneous as enraged freshmen grabbed the tug-of-war rope and heaved it over a limb on the south side of Mendel Field. The object of their attack was the entire white hat committee.

That symbol of authority over them, the white hat, was snatched from the head of Tony Latorre. The thief was immediately upended by a burly sophomore and he never did get to the rope because of the successful counterattack of sophomores and a blast of Intramaural whistles.

Thus, the two symbols did not meet and this failure carried through the day as the frosh were mauled 110-80.

Minor Contests

The minor contests went to the freshmen, but the major ones were strictly sophomore.

The local color came through in the form of Father Dunn, caught in the middle of the push ball battle, racing as fast as one of his track idols. Tempers flared over this game more than any other.

Every time heads got hot a new team rushed out on the field. This was the Intramural Department's answer to last year's brawl.

Last year's dispute was over a disqualification of a scholarship athlete and a stoppage of the football game with ten minutes left to play. This year the push ball scored.

The two platoon system however gave more excerise to the teams than the game, for the two teams were on and off the field more times than you could count.

Showed Disapproval

The frosh showed their disapproval early during the game as they hissed and booed an offside and silent prayers were said that this would be all.

It wasn't.

The Intramural Committee did an admirable job acting as fight breakers led by Father Kenny, and everyone just loved Jim Moran as head referee during the touch football game.

Although the contest was decided by the football game it was far from over. Many, knowing it was lost, fought individual battles on the field.

The first disaster occurred when Don Boehemcke called time out as he pleaded for tape as his left sneaker came apart.

Defensive Ability

The M-A-B painters, known for their defensive ability as well as the Chinese Bandits of L.S.U., managed to lead the scoring with two intercepted passes one going for a touchdown.

The offensive unit however managed to play the extra points but came off second best. The win in the football game upt the cream on the cake for the

Villanovan Receives High Rating From Associated Collegiate Press

The Villanovan has received a First Class rating in the 1958-1959 Associated Collegiate Press evaluation.

Lawrence M. O'Rourke, former editor-in-chief, was informed of the award last week by Duane Andrews, one of the evaluators and a former staff member of the Minneapolis Star-Tribune.

The Villanovan was one of 31 papers entered in its class: weeklies with a circulation of between 2001 and 4000. Besides the First Class award, three others were possible: All-American, given only to distinctly superior journals, Second Class, and Third Class. Papers which did not measure up to this last classification were not rated.

After basic considerations were taken into account, standards were set by the judges and the papers were compared with one another.

In elaborating on the Villanovan's showing in this comparison, Andrews declared that of seven gradcs ranging from "poor" to "superior," the paper scored "excellent" in news sources.

Balance and handling of news was "very good," balance of news—feature copy was "very good," as was the writing and editing of news stories.

Sports coverage was considered "excellent," while sports writing was rated "very good." Editorials were "very good; excellent."

Photography was rated "very good, showing a great deal of action." Printing and typography were "excellent."

Official announcement of the Villanovan's award came from Fred L. Kildow, Director of A.C.P.

Reagan Resigns Position As Head Football Coach; Stays As Athletic Director

Frank Reagan, head football coach, resigned his position yesterday morning, it was announced by Very Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., president.

Joe Rogers, first assistant coach, has been named acting head coach for the remainder of the season.

Regan, who has been serving in the dual capacities of Athletic Director and coach, will retain his position as Athletic Director.

His Own Decision

In an exclusive statement to the VILLANOVAN, Reagan declared, "The decision on my part to step out of the football picture has been made after long and careful consideration, and the action is taken with the utmost regret . I feel, however, that I am acting in the best interests of the university.

"My association with Villanova has been a most happy one, and the future of the athletic picture here seems to me important enough to warrant what might be termed an unprecedented action. My sincere hope is that in other hands, our football destinies may take a turn for the better.

"I am glad the Athletic Board has seen fit to name Joe Rogers as head coach. Rogers is a young man of unquestioned ability, and if an improvement is possible, he is the one to effect it. He has my wholehearted support.

Not Exactly Compatible

"Experience has shown me that the dual posts of Athletic Director and football coach are not exactly compatible in every respect. With the elimination of the coaching duties, I hope to be able to devote my time exclusively to the promotion of our athletic program, but while I devote my mind and energies in that direction, a part of my heart will remain forever buried on the football field."

Regan's "unprecedented action" gave a thorough jolt to the campus. It was a sobering influence after weeks of turmoil. Bill Craig, tri-captain, was not surprised, however. "I knew at half-time of the B.C. game that something was coming," he said .

Those who have had personal contact with Reagan have great respect for the man. Craig is one of them. As he said, "He was very good to us. He treated me as a gentleman at all times. I was proud to have played under him."

As is everyone else, Craig is puzzled by what has happened. He feels it is something you

Frank Reagan, head football coach, resigned his position yesterday morning, it was announced by Very Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., president.

Joe Rogers, first assistant coach, has been named acting head coach for the remainder of the season.

Regan, who has been serving in the dual capacities of Athletic Director and coach, will retain his position as Athletic Director.

His Own Decision

In an exclusive statement to the VILLANOVAN, Reagan declared, "The decision on my part to step out of the football picture has been made after long and careful consideration, and the action is taken with the utmost regret .I feel, however, that I am acting in the best interests of the university.

"My association with Villanova has been a most happy one, and the future of the athletic picture here seems to me important enough to warrant what might be termed an unprecedented action. My sincere hope is that in other hands, our football destinies may take a turn for the better.

"I am glad the Athletic Board has seen fit to name Joe Rogers as head coach. Rogers is a young man of unquestioned ability, and if an improvement is possible, he is the one to effect it. He has my wholehearted support.

Not Exactly Compatible

"Experience has shown me that the dual posts of Athletic Director and football coach are not exactly compatible in every respect. With the elimination of the coaching duties, I hope to be able to devote my time exclusively to the promotion of our athletic program, but while I devote my mind and energies in that direction, a part of my heart will remain forever buried on the football field."

Regan's "unprecedented action" gave a thorough jolt to the campus. It was a sobering influence after weeks of turmoil. Bill Craig, tri-captain, was not surprised, however. "I knew at half-time of the B.C. game that something was coming," he said .

Those who have had personal contact with Reagan have great respect for the man. Craig is one of them. As he said, "He was very good to us. He treated me as a gentleman at all times. I was proud to have played under him."

As is everyone else, Craig is puzzled by what has happened. He feels it is something you

Judge R. Morris Addresses Forum On U.S.S.R. Threat

The response of the free world to the growing threat of Communist envelopment is that we are now dismantling our internal ramparts, claimed Judge Robert Morris at the first Villanova Law Forum last week.

Former Counsel

Judge Morris, former chief counsel for the Senate Internal Investigation Committee, informed the Forum that we face a crisis, not only externally but internally.

"Within the past 13 year's" he said, "Russia has become masters of over one-third of the world's population.

"The recent vote in the United Nations for the admittance of Red China was 44 to 29." This, he pointed out, 'is substantial evidence of the ever increasing force which the Communist party has been able to muster.

"As this force gathers and becomes more menacing," he ad-

Seniors Outline Agenda For Big Social Weekend

Senior Steering Committee Outlines Plans

Homecoming and all the events that comprise the Weekend were the main subjects of the first senior Steering Committee meeting.

In his opening address before the committee members, senior president Ray Rafferty explained the format of the approaching weekend.

Plans include the annual Nick Basca Memorial Dance on Friday night, sponsoring of a senior float at the half-time festivities on Saturday, and a jazz concert with the Dukes of Dixieland on Sunday.

Chairmen Introduced

Chairmen of these activities were introduced and each gave reports on their various endeavors.

John Wallin, chairman of the Basca Dance, stressed the importance of senior support for his affair, especially from a promotional viewpoint. The dance will be held on the evening of October 23.

Tony Godwin and Mike Marinak of the ticket committee plan to sell tickets in the Pie Shoppe and C and F Cafeteria beginning Monday. They will also conduct a door-to-door campaign through the dorms for the convenience of residents.

Publicity chairman Bruce Sturm and Pete Longworth promised an active campaign, and refreshment chairman Dave Brian declared that he would do his best to assure the best possible refreshments.

New Band To Campus

Con O'Donnell, decorations chairman, plans an Old-Time theme, "like Homecoming 1910." Gordon Burlingame plans to bring a new band to the campus: Eddie Bigham, who formerly accompanied Martha Raye.

Joe DuRocher, co-chairman of senior float along with Chuck Ward, presented a general preview of what he and his committee have planned.

Bill Galm and Ron Magray, co-chairmen of the jazz concert, advanced various details of the affair. Of special note were the rates of the ducats: reserved seats, $2.00; general admission $1.50 and $1.00.

A brief discussion followed these announcements, after which Rafferty announced the chairmen for the remaining events of the year.

Dixieland Dukes To Play Concert

Homecoming Weekend will be highlighted by a Jazz Concert, featuring the Dukes of Dixieland, Sunday, October 25th, at 2 p.m. in the Fieldhouse, said Ray Rafferty, senior class president.

This Jazz Concert will be presented by the senior class for the benefit of the Augustinian Seminary Guild.

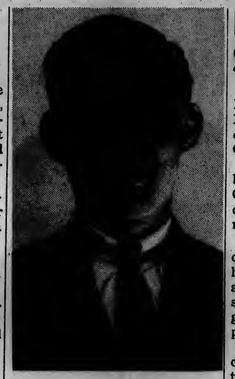
Co-chairman Announced

Rafferty has announced that the Co-chairmen will be William Galm, Eng. and Ron Magry. C&F. Publicity Co-Chairmen will be Jay Touhy, Arts, and Jay Sands, Arts.

Don Ropain, Arts, and Howard Silcox, C&F will head the Ticket Committee. The Technical committee will be under the direction of Harry Seigfelt and Rich Gerstner, both Eng. The Program Chairman will be Jim Connor, C&F.

Since this is the first big weekend of the year a capacity crowd is expected by Rafferty. The weekend will commence Friday night with the Nick Basca Dance which will be followed Saturday with the Virginia Tech game.

Topped Off By Jazz



The weekend will then be topped off by the Jazz Concert on Sunday with the Dukes, courtesy of the Wm. Honney Agency.

Tickets go on sale tomorrow in the Student Council office, from 10:30 a.m. until 2:30 p.m. General sales begin Friday. Prices are $2, $1.50, and $1.

For the senior Prom, February 19, Tom McCoy and Jim Foley will act as co-chairmen. The senior Dinner Dance the following night will be under the direction of Bill Henry and Jack Heffernan.

Father's Day activities will be handled by Tom Labreque, and the Senior Parting Festival will be chairmanned by Harry Rowe and Tom Moakley.

Two innovations sponsored by Rafferty are now in the formative stages. The Senior Lecture Series will have Bill Rogers at the chair, and Senior Night will be handled by Sheldon Pollock and Ed Scott.

Juniors Planning 1959 Ring Mass

The introduction of the class moderator and the announcement of a Ring Mass highlighted last Thursday's junior class meeting.

Bob Scalia, class president, opened the meeting by introducing Rev. Robert Welsh, O.S.A., to the large turnout.

Nick Cassetta, secretary, then revealed the plans for the Ring Mass.

"We had originally intended to schedule the Mass for Oct. 17. However we pushed the date back to Nov. 21 when we learned that some juniors would not get their rings until October 20."

Cassetta also mentioned that present plans call for a breakfast to be held immediately after the Mass in a restaurant yet to be selected.

The remainder of the meeting was devoted to acquainting the class members with the heads of the various committees set up by Scalia to handle junior class functions.

Committee chairmen include Harry Wolfington and Jerry Carlin, Orphans Outing co-chairmen, Chet Buttonow, Charity Ball chairman; Bob Bohn, Orpans Party; Neil Vaughey, general chairman of the Orphans Weekend.

Doyle and Scott Soliciting Photos

The Chairmen of the 1959 Homecoming, Dave Doyle and Ed Scott, announced the opening of the annual Homecoming Queen Contest.

Pictures of candidates must be submitted to the Student Council Representative of any organization of which the submitter is a member.

With the picture must be included the candidate's name, height, weight, color of her hair and eyes, her occupation, the submitter's name, and the organization through which the picture is being submitted.

Final date for entering the contest is October 20, but pictures submitted before October 18 will be published in the Villanovan.

A preliminary judging of candidates will take pace in the Pie Shoppe on October 22, between 9:30 a.m. and 2:30 p.m. This judging will eliminate all but five contestants.

Deciding votes will be cast on the evening of the Homecoming dance, October 23, as couples enter the Field House.

The queen will be crowned during intermission at the dance.

CH.E's Tour Plant

The senior Chemical Engineers led by faculty members, Dr. Robert J. Snyder and Dr. William Rice visited the Alan-Wood Coke and Steel Company in Conshohocken last Monday.

The twenty-one seniors who attended were given guided tours noting carefully the production of coke, the by-products of coke, gas burners, and steel processing.

Richard Gerstner, spokesman for the group, stated that the group planned four more trips this semester, some of which will be open to juniors as well as seniors.

Junior Class yearbook pictures will be taken tomorrow, beginning at 9 a.m. at the Grotto between the Library and St. Mary's Hall. On Friday at 9 a.m., sophomore pictures will be taken at the Grotto.

Father Wm. Farrel Named Advisor To Villanova Alumni

Rev. William E. Farrel, O.S.A. has recently been appointed Faculty Advisor of the General Alumni Association. Father replaces Very Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A., who has been named president of the University.

Father Farrel graduated from Villanova in 1945 with a civil engineering degree. A naval ROTC graduate, he entered the Navy upon graduation. Following his discharge he was employed in Rochester, his home town, and Cleveland, Ohio.

Father Farrel then entered the Augustianian order. He has also spent two years at Catholic University studing for his Masters' Degree.

Father Farrel's new position will mainly concern relations between the alumni organization and the University.

Alumni Association president Charles Boyle also has announced the appointment of the Standing Committee Chairmen. Chairmanships named were for the Alumni Foundation, reunion committee, student interviewing, and the Alumni Relations Committees.

Fr. Falvey Says Fellowships Are Now Available

The Rev. Daniel P. Falvey, O.S.A., Chairman of the Library Science program, has announced that fellowship are available for graduate work in Library Science. Each fellowship includes a stipend of $1600 and remission of all tuition and fees.

Interested students may obtain applications in the library from Father Falvey. The applications should be returned no later than March 1, 1960.

John James, a 1959 graduate of Villanova, presently working for his master degree in Library Science, was a recipient of a fellowship. He is the first layman enrolled in the full Library Science program. This program has been previously attended only by priests and nuns.

Father Falvey also announced that the Evening Division conducts graduate and undergraduate Library Science courses in the late afternoon.

Despite the grimaces and apparent power being exerted in the tug-of-war, the freshman lost the Muff Day competitions to the sophomores 110-80.

The frosh and the soph prepare to become Atlases as the pushball falls during a Muff Day battle.

WVIL Features Macklin And Speers on 1st Digest

WVIL has begun a new season of broadcasting from atop Dougherty Hall. One of the most promising new programs is a show titled "Digest" that will be aired every Sunday night from 7:30 through 10:30.

This innovation is a monitor-type show on the college level. WVIL even has Miss Digest for breathless weather.

John Oberlies, Program Director of the station, and Bob DeLisa, Personnel Director, will handle the running of the program.

It will be kicked off each Sunday by a carefully chosen LP.

Sports Controversy

Then at 8:00 come the sports reports. There will be a commenary by Tony Macklin, Villanova Sports' columnist, on the game of the weekend and then Oberlies and DeLisa will question him.

This program will show the Villanova sports scene as a student sees it. It promises to be an interesting and revealing picture.

Last Sunday gave a hint of what is to come as Oberlies' and DeLisa's questions were right to the point.

Macklin sidestepped some of the more deadly ones but he did hit the fact that a Villanovan reporter is not taken along on the games by the team. He felt this handicapped coverage.

When Oberlies asked why the first string backfield wasn't used when the 'Cats had the ball on the 15. Macklin stressed that none had come through in the clutch and Reagan's giving everybody a chance couldn't be validly knocked.

After the shots at the football team WVIL aimed at the personality of the week who was the controversial Villanovan columnist who writes "Speerituality," Bill Speers.

Speers made the point that he was trying to bring things out into the open." Oberlies asked him why he felt that there were only three organizations on campus that were really worthwhile to the student through his college career and afterward.

Speers felt that the organizations outside of the Student Council, The Villanovan, and Beta Gamma would not be missed if they went out of existence and that their benefits were not lasting.

Noted Thomistic Scholar Joins Philosophy Dept.

Doctor James F. Anderson, the newest member of the Villanova Philosophy Department, is both a distinguished scholar and a competent professor.

A native of Dover, Delaware, Doctor Anderson is a graduate of the University of Virginia, in 1933. He later received his doctorate from the University of Toronto, where he studied in the Pontifical Institute of Medieval Studies.

Since obtaining his Ph.D. in 1940, Doctor Anderson has taught in various universities and colleges; more recently at Marquette University and the University of Notre Dame.

Presently, he is teaching Rational Psychology in the undergraduate school and is conducting a class in graduate metaphysics. The latter division of Philosophy is Doctor Anderson's specialty which he will be teaching next semester.

Along with his teaching experience, the Doctor has published quite a few books on the subject of Being. These include "Summa Contra Gentiles" Book II, from the Latin plus a translation from the French of "The Dark Knowledge of God".

From his own pen come "The Bond of Being", "The Cause of Being" and finally an "Introduction to the Metaphysics of Saint Thomas Aquinas," have helped to establish Doctor Anderson as an expert in the field of Metaphysics.

He now resides in Wayne with his wife and seven children.

Belle Masque Experiments With New Drama Form

Belle Masque's Fall production, "Bonds of Interest," will be the Society's first experiment with the Commedia dell 'Arte dramatic form.

George Matey, publicity director of the organization, stated that "the Commedia dell 'Arte form, added to an original musical score and choreography, should make this one of Belle Masques most interesting presentations."

The score was written by Richard Duprey, head of the graduate theater department, and George Herman. Sue Arnold, drama graduate student, is handling the choreography.

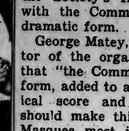
Explaining the Commedia dell 'Arte form, Matey said that it is an Italian form dating from the 16th Century, in which the plot is written out, but the dialogue is improvised by the actors.

Belle Masque, however, will use the dialogue of the play's author, Jacinto Benavente.

Benavente has won the Nobel Prize for Literature, and is noted for his "theater of ideas," drama strongly tinctured with symbolism and irony.

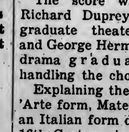
First Workshop

Matey also announced that the first of the Society's Dramatic Workshop series will be presented on October 26. The one-act play will be directed by Owen Klein, who holds an assistantship from the theater.



Three Villanova Middies Honored

Three senior midshipmen in Villanova NROTC program received letters of commendation from their summer cruise stations.



John Nolan

John Nolan was commended by the Commandant of the Fifth Naval District for his cooperation in portraying a principal role in a movie produced by Harold Baim Film Products, LTD. of London England.

Frank Boes

"Nolan's conduct and bearing was exemplary at all times during this filming," said the letter.

Ed Duckworth

From the Commanding Officer of the USS Leopard came praise for Frank Boes and Edward Duckworth. The letter said, in part: "These midshipmen have, with relatively little experience in submarines, acted continuously in the highest traditions of the Naval service".

Naval Book Arrives

In his new book "Most Dangerous Sea", LCDR Arnold Lott, U.S.N., excitingly covers a hitherto obscure phase of WW II—mining and mine warfare. The book is due for publication this November, and should hold special interest for NROTC students, since most WWII minesweeper personnel were reservists.

Student Senate Snagged By Cafeteria Complaints

The ever-present, but as yet unresolved problem of securing better cafeteria facilities and services was among several topics discussed at the Student Senate meeting, October 5.

"There have been improvements made since last spring but on the whole the situation is not much better than last semester," said Bill Vincent, senior senate member who was appointed by student council last spring to investigate the cause of complaints arising over cafeteria issues.

"The cafeteria supervisor promised to provide better grille facilities in both the Pie Shoppe and the day-hop cafeteria even if it meant raising prices."

When queried as to whether the promise had been fulfilled Vincent remarked, "Well they did raise the prices."

Vincent also noted that certain requests, such as bigger trays, in the resident cafeteria had been granted.

"There's a motion in committee for study right now that proposes having a prefect sample resident cafeteria food before the students are served," said Vincent.

"The bill should be ready for Council debate in the near future."

LKD Pledging Now

Head pledgemaster, Carl Kierney, announced that the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity began its pledging last Monday.

This year LKD has received the largest group of pladges in the history of the fraternity.

Pledging will extend over a five-week period. Upperclassmen will introduce the new members to the functions of the frat for the first four weeks, and the last week will be devoted to the general harrassing of the new members.

"Regs" for the pledges have not been decided on as yet. Suggestions range from doctor's kits to ear muffs. Big brothers will not be assigned until next week.

Plan Poem Volume

The American College Poetry Society has announced that its second annual anthology of college poetry is now being compiled.

Contributions must be the orgional work of the student and may deal with any subject. Poems may not exceed 48 lines. Only five poems per contributor may be submitted, according to the Society.

Entries not accepted for publication will be returned if accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope, but they cannot be otherwise acknowledged, nor can the Society compensate students for poetry which is published.

Material should be submitted to Ann C. Fox, care of A.C.P.S., Box 24463, Los Angeles 24, California. All entries must be postmarked not later than midnight, Dec. 1, 1959.

Chi Epsilon Mu Outlines Agenda

The School of Engineering's honor fraternity, Chi Epsilon Mu, held its first meeting of this school year, Monday, Oct. 5.

The first topic of discussion, following the opening prayer by XEM President William Barron, was the attempt to attain membership in the national honor society, Tau Beta Pi.

High hopes are held by Dr. Kolner, moderator, that XEM will be accepted this year.

Pledges are chosen from the top 20% of the juniors and the top 25% of the seniors studying engineering at Villanova.

A committee of four, Joe Lauzon, Bill Baron, Bob Gores, and John Costalnick was given the job of "welcoming" the 40 new members.

Plans for the coming year include a stag dinner tentatively planned for December 7 and a similar event in the spring.

Ed Duckworth The letter said, in part: "These midshipmen have, with relatively little experience in submarines, acted continuously in the highest traditions of the Naval service".

Naval Book Arrives

In his new book "Most Dangerous Sea", LCDR Arnold Lott, U.S.N., excitingly covers a hitherto obscure phase of WW II—mining and mine warfare. The book is due for publication this November, and should hold special interest for NROTC students, since most WWII minesweeper personnel were reservists.

Student Senate Snagged By Cafeteria Complaints

The ever-present, but as yet unresolved problem of securing better cafeteria facilities and services was among several topics discussed at the Student Senate meeting, October 5.

"There have been improvements made since last spring but on the whole the situation is not much better than last semester," said Bill Vincent, senior senate member who was appointed by student council last spring to investigate the cause of complaints arising over cafeteria issues.

"The cafeteria supervisor promised to provide better grille facilities in both the Pie Shoppe and the day-hop cafeteria even if it meant raising prices."

When queried as to whether the promise had been fulfilled Vincent remarked, "Well they did raise the prices."

Vincent also noted that certain requests, such as bigger trays, in the resident cafeteria had been granted.

"There's a motion in committee for study right now that proposes having a prefect sample resident cafeteria food before the students are served," said Vincent.

"The bill should be ready for Council debate in the near future."

LKD Pledging Now

Head pledgemaster, Carl Kierney, announced that the Lambda Kappa Delta fraternity began its pledging last Monday.

This year LKD has received the largest group of pladges in the history of the fraternity.

Pledging will extend over a five-week period. Upperclassmen will introduce the new members to the functions of the frat for the first four weeks, and the last week will be devoted to the general harrassing of the new members.

"Regs" for the pledges have not been decided on as yet. Suggestions range from doctor's kits to ear muffs. Big brothers will not be assigned until next week.

Plan Poem Volume

The American College Poetry Society has announced that its second annual anthology of college poetry is now being compiled.

Contributions must be the original work of the student and may deal with any subject. Poems may not exceed 48 lines. Only five poems per contributor may be submitted, according to the Society.

Entries not accepted for publication will be returned if accompanied by a stamped, self-addressed envelope, but they cannot be otherwise acknowledged, nor can the Society compensate students for poetry which is published.

Material should be submitted to Ann C. Fox, care of A.C.P.S., Box 24463, Los Angeles 24, California. All entries must be postmarked not later than midnight, Dec. 1, 1959.

Chi Epsilon Mu Outlines Agenda

The School of Engineering's honor fraternity, Chi Epsilon Mu, held its first meeting of this school year, Monday, Oct. 5.

The first topic of discussion, following the opening prayer by XEM President William Barron, was the attempt to attain membership in the national honor society, Tau Beta Pi.

High hopes are held by Dr. Kolner, moderator, that XEM will be accepted this year.

Pledges are chosen from the top 20% of the juniors and the top 25% of the seniors studying engineering at Villanova.

A committee of four, Joe Lauzon, Bill Baron, Bob Gores, and John Costalnick was given the job of "welcoming" the 40 new members.

Plans for the coming year include a stag dinner tentatively planned for December 7 and a similar event in the spring.

Freshmen Insurgents

Nearly two weeks ago, freshman class at Gettysburg College was seized with the perennial urge to upset the authority of the sophomore initiation committee. Spirited mobs of freshmen watched their orientation regs being carried aloft in the flames of giant bonfire they had lit in protest to sophomore "tyranny." Fear enveloped the entire college and the girl residents even bolted their doors against the possibility of a panty raid. The sophomore overlords stood by helplessly during the whole business.

This isn't generally known. but the same problem confronted a somber group of White-hats here at Villanova last Wednesday evening, when word reached them that undercurrents of rebellion were gathering strength in the frosh dorms. As the aftermath of a humiliating MUFF day trouncing that very afternoon, the young plotters were planning a bonfire to end all bonfires.

Their faces overcast with trepidation, the White-hats trooped through the frosh dorms to dispel any visions of insurrection the frosh might have entertained. First they quoted to them from the Student Handbook, with liberal reference to passages prohibiting any and all uprisings by frosh, however disenchanted with orientation they might be.

If this appeal to school spirit didn't work, the threat to fine each rebel $2.50 (price of regs) was extremely convincing.

As the smoke clears away, praise is in order for the White-hats, whose skillful arbitration succeeded in averting an unpleasant incident.

Of course, no one would have been greatly disturbed if the abortive plot had succeeded (except, perhaps, a few White-hats), but the freshman class should learn that it's not advisable to flaunt tradition here at V.U., at least not at this early stage.

But before anyone begins to heap abuse on the insurgent frosh, we should pause at least to admire the apparent class unity demonstrated in the attempted revolt. Upper classes can take note.

As for the bonfire, certainly we can't countenance their affront to soph authority, but at least none of them called a Daily News photographer in advance.

Homecoming Plans

Reports of senior class progress with the first big social weekend at Villanova are growing optimistic. The planning machinery for the Basca Dance, Homecoming festivities, and Jazz Concert is grinding at high pitch, according to Ray Rafferty, class president.

The sophomores plan their Cotillion weekend; the juniors plan their Junior Week; but it traditionally falls on the shoulders of the senior class to prepare a Homecoming weekend which it shares with the other three classes.

Special effort is directed toward the Sunday afternoon Jazz concert, which aids the Augustinian Seminary Guild with its proceeds. The Jazz Concert chairmen have convinced the skeptical head of the Guild, Rev. Francis X. Kelly, that the senior class will turn the affair into a financial success.

Senior cooperation is gratifying, and one organization has even consented to postpone a picnic scheduled for the afternoon of the Jazz Concert.

The senior planners have committed themselves to provide an exciting weekend. It only remains for the student body to join the ticket lines which will begin to form this afternoon.

We also might mention that the visible diligence of the senior class promises to shame the lack-lustre performance of last year's senior class. In publicity alone, it already excels.

The Villanovan was publicly annoyed last year that it was often forced to track down an officer to get any information about a senior function. The Villanovan this year is inundated with publicity from representatives of the class, and we only regret that space limitations can't accommodate all of it.

Letters To The Editor

Says McCue Miscues

To the Editor:

In last week's Villanovan an interesting article appeared, entitled, "Betting on the GOP". It was interesting so far as its whole premise was based on a completely false statement, that statement being the fact that this year's election will have a strong effect on the presidential campaign of 1960.

I would like the author, Mr. McCue, to tell me just how a county or municipal election can have any bearing on the presidential election of 1960. Yet, these are the only important elections for this, an "off-year," election.

Stassen Support

The only conclusion I could make was that Mr. McCue was a die-hard Stassen supporter; hoping that Stassen would lead the Republicans to victory in Philadelphia, and thus control the Pennsylvania delegation to the National Republican Convention next summer. Such a thought, if true, is completely absurd.

Mr. McCue came up with a second miscue, when he implied that the 86th Congress was finished and that next year's session would be the 87th.

Any high school student, with a fair knowledge of P.O.D., knows that there are two sessions of Congress. The 86th Congress has had only one session; the second is to convene next January.

Ignore The Triteness

To the Editor:

Having made the mistake of reading "Speerituallism", I would like to point out several things to Mr. Speers. If the students at Villanova wished to enjoy a diet of sensationalism they would read the Daily News.

However, when they read the VILLANOVAN they expect to read material written on the college level.

In using the hackneyed theme "insult the C&F students" it appears to me that you were at a loss for a subject for your column and therefore this unfunny subject appealed to your tasteless sense of humor.

In doing this you are violating the very principle we are trying to attain on this campus, student unity.

In the future Mr. Speers, if you have no better material to write on I would suggest your column to go unwritten. A nickel will purchase all the sensationalism and triteness the Villanova student needs.

Privacy Precious

To the Editor:

A few weeks ago we were informed that the screens were being replaced in Sullivan and Sheehan halls. Where are they?

Tonight as much time was spent batling bugs as was spent on studies. Fighting these green, red, brown, pantechnicon, black, yellow, chartreuse, invaders was not only time consuming, but annoying.

Residents of Sullivan Hall need no longer fear these pests (their screens have been replaced), but three-quarters of Sheehan Hall are still under attack.

It is too much to ask for privacy while studying?

Resents Insults

To the Editor:

The intentions of this letter are not to "cut-up" the Arts school, as has been done to the C and F school lately; for I have respect for the Arts students.

But can this question be answered: What is the reason for, and why is all this sarcasm being poked at the C and F school as a whole?

I realize that not all of the Arts students have this attitude toward the C and F school; but just a few who have such a down-graded look at the C and F students, that they feel they must publish their feeling in the Villanovan to indirectly show their superiority.

CAMPUS CAMERA

"Some people say that school spirit is lacking at Villanova. What would you say is the cause of this?"

This is simply a reflection of the "modern" attitude that prevails on most campuses today. The student just won't give of himself unless there's something in it for him. He will support only a winning team and refuses to believe that a great team is often the result and not the cause of student spirit and support.

George Ruth, '61, M.E.

What's the matter with student spirit and support? Why should the students support the school when the students have no say in what goes on in the school. The school isn't run for the students even though enough money is paid to it from the students. There's also too much faculty intervention in school activities.

Rallies are curtailed since they might make too much noise, but the main trouble is that students are kicked around too much and this leads to an "I don't care attitude" now prevalent on campus.

Frank Contey, '61, M.E.

Since my freshman year at Villanova, the spirit and loyalty of the students has been ambivalent! These students back the teams when they are winning and refuse to talk about the teams when they are losing. According to these grand-stand managers, it is always the fault of the coach, never the team, or the student body.

When a team is playing on the field, or on the court, does our student body back them 100%? 75%? 50%? No! Why? Because the students only back a winning team; but losing is part of the game, and a good loser makes a better gentleman.

Ed. Morhauser, '61, Pre Med

I feel that with the possible exception of Engineers and similar students in time-consuming courses, the main reason for the lack of support may be attributed to sheer laziness on the part of the student body. Also, one-half of the enrollment is comprised of day students, who, for the most part, lack the interest and spirit of the residents. Therefore the deficiency must be made up by those on campus. More interesting activities for the day-hops is a possible solution to this problem.

Rogar Lazar, '62 E.E.

I don't think the spirit at Villanova is dying. I believe that at this moment there is more spirit than I have ever seen here, but it is lying dormant, just waiting to burst with the team's first victory in football. I'm sure that the students are doing their part. Now let's see the team do theirs.

"Look Back in Anger" Sizzling Film Lesson

"If you slap my face—by God, I'll lay you out!" "I want to be there when you groval . . . I want the front seat." "I don't care if she has a baby. I don't care if it has two heads."

This is Jimmy Porter, snarling Jimmy Porter, the angriest of all the angry young men. He is presently inflicting pain in the film version of John Osborne's "Look Back in Anger" which is appearing in town, at the Trans-Lux.

Sensitive Child

Jimmy Porter is a fascinating character. He is a vicious, sensitive child of a man. He is forever striking out to be heard, to have his words have some effect, even if that effect humiliates his wife. He wants to hurt others, move them to feeling he is trying to tear them to his level.

He rages against a world in which nothing is important. He is a failure, a university graduate who is running a sweet stall in the market of a gray dismal midlands town.

Out of his mouth rambles an avalanche of words, smashing against those around him with the impact of boulders.

Jimmy Porter is attempting to destroy the "art" of polite conversation. His speech is barbed and deadly. He has cut out all common place bantering.

This is something everyone wants to do at one time or another but can't because he or she wants to be liked. We sacrifice a lot for peace.

Barbaric Chaos

However if we all followed the lead of the rabid Mr. Porter our civilization would fall into barbaric chaos.

Jimmy has decided to fight the world on his own terms. He has invented a vague ideal world of relationships based on honesty, loyalty, love and passion. He is trying to find some way to ease his failure and helplessness.

He is somewhat of a coward for he has withdrawn from the real battle of the world and has substituted for it the battle of a small dingy flat.

The enemy is his wife Allison. She is a hostage he has torn from the stultifying clutches of the upper-middle-class that he hates so violently. He "saved her" and she is now paying a harsh price for her background and culture.

Flaring Performance

The acing in this film is stunning. Richard Burton, minus his usual breast-plate and sword, gives a crackling, flaring performance as Jimmy Porter. He draws gasps of anger from the feminine members of the audience for his callousness and brutality.

While Jimmy Porter may alienate certain members of the audience he is actually an appealing character. Porter's childish tantrums, his razor wit, his soulful wild trumpet playing, his romanticism shows him as a somewhat pathetic individual too.

As Jimmy himself says, "Why don't we brawl? It's the only thing left I'm any good at." Burton grasps every nuance and savage impulse of the man who wants everything, and wants nothing.

Mary Ure, playwright Osborne's wife, gives an equally effective performance as Allison Porter. She captures the weariness and sadness of a woman mercilessly hounded and unable to cope with the world around her.

Allison and Jimmy are caught in an unfathomable trap. She leaves him but is drawn back.

Beautiful Squirrel

Jimmy is a "sloppy, scruffy sort of bear" and Allison is a "very beautiful squirrel." These little games are their only means of escape. These scenes are hauntingly tender and poetic.

Jimmy Porter (Richard Burton) tries to arouse his wife Allison (Mary Ure) in John Osborne's "Look Back in Anger." This film shows an angry young man at his angriest.

Gary Raymond, wo was in the original play, plays the good-natured friend with a perfect Welsh accent and Clair Bloom performs beautifully in an off-beat role.

Edith Evans, as Mrs. Tanner, has a gripping death scene and S. P. Kapoor portrays an "Untouchable" who comes to England to be free and remains an "Untouchable." These last two roles were added for the movie and are a very definite help.

"Look Back in Anger" moves at a remarkable clip due to the graphic direction of Tony Richardson, the orginal London director. The camera work and jazz score set penetrating moods.

Third "Angry" Film

"Look Back in Anger" is the third movie to be made from the work Britain's angry young men. Kingsley Amis' Lucky Jim was the first John Braine's magnificent Room at the Top followed. Now "Look Back in Anger" has achieved importance. One may not agree with the way that the angries say things but one must admit that they do have something to say.

Still the angry young men are a very controversial group. Somerset Maugham has said that they are "scum."

John Osborne has cried through Jimmy Porter, "How I long for a little human enthusiasm. How I want to hear a warm, thrilling voice cry out Hallelujah! I'm alive!" Does this sound like scum?

Osborne's writing is full of diatribes, but his diatribes are certainly though-provoking. He has said "I want to make people feel, to give them lessons in feeling. They can think afterwards."

"Look Back in Anger" is a lesson in feeling.

Father McFadden on K's Visit:

Invitation Was A "Calculated Risk"

In part one of this article, some of the possible good effects on the United States of Khrushchev's visit were noted. What are some of the effects of the visit on the Soviet people?

The Soviet people have been taught to hate us. This is even more true of the people of Communist China. They have been told that we live in poverty. They have been told that we plot their military destruction.

Khrushchev now returns and publicly states to his people (and to his allies in China) that the United States sincerely seeks peace, that the Soviet standard of living is far below ours, that they must learn to peacefully co-exist with us.

These statements, one would hope, should have an extremely divisive effect upon these peoples. They cannot help wondering about the truth of anything which is told them from now on. "Divide and conquer" has never been a bad recipe for victory—perhaps we can learn to use it.

Now that good effects have been covered, what possible harm could result from the Khrushchev visit.

It did provide Communism with an opportunity to sell its ideas to our people. Millions of dollars could never buy the TV, radio, and newspaper space given to Khrushchev for the dissemination of his false philosophy.

His recent book on "Co-Existence" was carried serially by a local paper on its front pages—and we were told how fortunate we were supposed to be to have this book at our disposal. If our papers wished to publish his "plan for our destruction," I think they should have carried equal front-page criticism of it.

Happily, however, I think our people were not deluded by Khrushchev's interesting personality, his facile ad-libbing, or by his homey presentations of the Marxist line.

There is the danger that some of our allies, particularly our small and almost defenseless allies, might be led to believe that we were about to make a deal with the Soviets. This is a very real danger.

Not many years have passed since major powers made secret agreements on the destines of small nations. In this instance, we profess that we have kept all of our allies fully informed on the content of the talks. We can only hope that this is true.

Millions of people in Poland and Eastern Europe are in Communist slavery today because of agreements in which we played a major role. We trust that this betrayal of innocent and defenseless peoples shall never happen again.

Would you approve of our having extended this invitation?

Military men frequently use the phrase "calculated risk" to describe an action which involves the danger of serious losses but which, if successful, will produce benefits of greater magnitude.

I would be inclined to view the invitation in this fashion. I would also feel that Khrushchev had to take a calculated risk when he accepted it.

I think Khrushchev has probably risk more for Communism and for himself by accepting the invitation than we have risked by offering it.

Naturally, it is too early to evaluate results, but. for the moment, it would appear that we have gained more than we have lost by having extended the invitation.

In a word, previous to his coming, I would have been willing to run the risks involved. Now that it is over, I would feel that things went along even a bit better than I had expected.

What comment would you make on Khrushchev's statement: "Communism will bury you?"

Khrushchev explained that when he made this statement he did not mean the Communism would destroy us through military aggression.

In accordance with Marxist theory, he explained that the Communist form of society would "bury", that is, it would succeed the capitalist form of society—just as inevitable as our feudalism .
form of society "buried" slavery and

In response to this view, I would like to emphasize that man is an individual and a social being. As an individual being, he posses a personal dignity, important inalienable rights, and an eternal destiny. As a social being, he posses an abundance of duties to fellow-man, to the family, to the State, to the Church, and to his Creator.

The only form of society which can hope to succeed permanently is one which is in harmonv with the nature of the citizen who composes it.

Capitalism was a false form of society because it so completely glorified the individual that it rejected most of the social responsibilities which rest upon man. Capitalism thus contained within itself, as the Marxists truly note, "the needs of its own collapses."

Communism, on the other hand. is just as truly a false form of society as was capitalism. Communism so completely glorifies, in a materialistic way, the social responsibilities of man that it obliterates all values relative to the personal dignity of man. Communist society, therefore, also contains within itself "the seeds of its own collapse."

I would say that our age, which has to a great extent already "buried" capitalism, is confronted with the tremendous task of creating a form of State which assumes and fulfills all of its duties to the citizen without destroying the dignity of the individual.

If we don't succeed in this vital task, Communist society will almost surely "bury"us. If we do succeed, we shall continue to survive long after Communist society has collapsed.

Augustinian Background Basis for VU Tradition

Part I

SOMEONE PASSING by the rear of the Villanova monastery on a warm afternoon would most probably find the members of the Augustinian community seated on the benches chatting and enjoying the sun.

These men largely embody the tradition of Villanova, for, long before the last wing of Alumni Hall was built or the present chapel was constructed, the Augustinian fathers were holding class on Villanova soil.

Generations of Villanova graduates and teachers have passed away, yet there are still Augustinains guiding their university through the problems of an era of expansion.

Villanova began its long history by the acquistion of a country estate known as Belle Air, the property of a leading Catholic layman and Revolutionary War veteran, John Randolph, by the Augustinian community of Philadelphia on October 13, 1841.

The following August, community life was established at Villanova, and a novitiate was founded in December.

Refer to centerfold pictorial essay for more of Villanova Tradition.

The new monastery was placed under the patronage of Saint Thomas of Villanova, a former Augustinian provincial of Spain, who had served also as Archbishop of the university city of Salamanca.

One of these pioneers, Father Alonos, was the co-founder of the first university in North America, that of Mexico City.

In keeping with the Augustinian tradition as educators, the Fathers were quick to open a school at Villanova. On September 18, 1843, classes were opened with thirteen "youths", probably of grade school, or high school age in attendance.

Threatened with imminent danger of the "Know-Nothing" riots in Philadelphia, which threatened to involve Catholic establishments in the area, and under-staffed as a result of the illness of three out of four faculty members, Villanova closed its doors February 20, 1845.

Not daunted by its temposary setback, Villanova reopened in September with twenty-four students in attendance. The first public commencement was staged July 21, 1847.

A charter from the state of Pennsylvania empowered the new college "to grant to graduates or persons on whom such degrees may be conferred, diplomas or certificates as is usual in college or universities."

The severe depression of the late 1850's, plus a desire to devote more time to ministering to the parishes assigned them, induced the Augustinian Fathers at Villanova to close the college again ,in June of 1857, the same year in which the first seminarian educated at Villanova was ordained.

phenomenal DUKES OF DIXIELAND

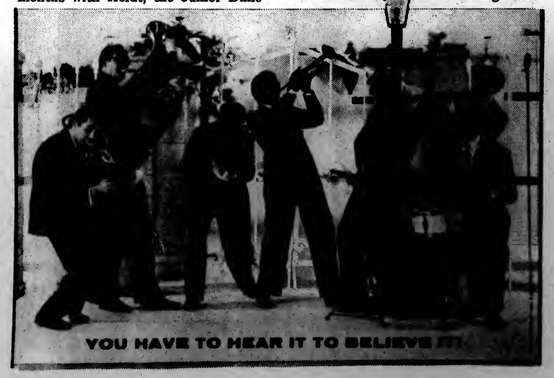
THE DUKES OF Dixieland, to play jazz at a Basca weekend concert, have had a meteoric career since 1947, when two members of this jazz combo — Frank and Fred Assunto — got together a high school Dixieland band in their native New Orleans.

Taking the name Basin Street Four, Five, Six or whatever number of players they could round up whenever they decided to have a session, they rehearsed after school and filled weekend engagements in a local restaurant, "The Famous Door."



WHERE MANY IN New Orleans failed because of ambition, they persisted. Their big moment came when they prepared to play on the Horace Heidt radio show, which came to town on a talent-hunting expedition.

Their performance on the show drew kudos from every side, and they were invited to join the Heidt organization on the road. After several months with Heidt, the Junior Dixie Band, as they called themselves, earned enough money to move up the ladder.

They returned to New Orleans, changed their name to the Dukes of Dixieland, became professionals and bought themselves uniforms. Since that time they have appeared in top clubs and hotels in the major cities across the nation, and have established an enthusiastic following everywhere.

AN INSPIRATIONAL force for the Dukes has been Jac Assunto, father of Fred and Frank, who is known as Papa Jac in the combo. Jac can more than hold his own as a musician, but also has helped the combo immeasurably through his training in business administration, in which he holds a degree from Tulane University.

The rest of the combo is composed of Jack Maheu, clarinet, Stanley Mendelson, piano, Tommy Rundell, drums and Bill Port[illegible]ba and string bass.

SPEERITUALISM . . .

Photogs' Plight; Old Grads In Sight

bill speers

"One picture is worth a thousand words," so the man said. But the pix below is worth just one—sick. This one word best describes the rank conditions now existing for a group of five students known as the photography staff.

It is the immense job of this minute staff to photograph, develop, and print pictures for the Belle Air Year Book, The Villanova Engineer, and Business Whirl, The Villanovan and just about every other publication on campus.

With this arduous task in sight, the sight, the photo staff has at its disposal to antiquated compartment atop Good Counsel Hall commonly referred to as a dark room.

The temperature in this compartment is rarely below 90 or 85 degrees. This is about 15 degrees over the prescribed temperature for the processing and storage of film. Therefore, a refrigerator was procured in order to preserve the film.

But this still does not completely solve the problem. Since the lack of ventilation and the high humidity often damage film before it is processed. Also because of the low electrical load carried by Good Counsel ,new equipment frequently cannot be used.

And to top everything off, the plumbing went berserk last May. (picture below) and has made like "Old Faithful" ever since. (The latest being last Wednesday).

Surely, a forward-looking, constastly-expanding university like Villanova can find suitable quarters for these five somewhere. Perhaps some obscure nook in Sheehan or Sullivan Hall.

Class of 1959

Where are they now? Well, by the looks of it most of them are still here on campus. Actually, about 40 of last year's seniors are presently roaming around the V. U. campus. Over thirty of them are in the Law School.

Among them: are Bob Pinto, former Belle Air editor-in-chief, Tom Forklin, Kevin Johnson, Ed Leary, Vince Bifferato, Bernie Auellino, Joe Lynch, John Cannon, Former Belle Masque star, and last year's Villanovan feature editor, Ray Quaglia.

Owen Kilen, Belle Masque graduate, along with former Villanovan editors Larry O'Rourke and Paul Buckley form the bulk of the graduate Drama school, while Bob Murphy, former Student Council prexy, is completing his five-year course in electrical engineering.

Some of the Arts students did go out and get jobs though. For instance, former WVIL station manager, Tom Washington, we hear is doing very well with a Madison venue advertising firm, while our own Tom Goldschmidt is teaching English.

COUNCIL IN THE ROUND . . .

Student Council Critics Answered; Three Hour Sessions, No Picnic

bob delisa

Ed. Note: Student Council President Tom Hoffman relinquishes column this week to S.C. Vice-President, Bob DeLisa.

IN RECENT WEEKS, your Student Council has been criticized by various outside forces as being "full of sound and fury, signifying nothing". They ask us why, in meeting after meeting, the S.C. members bicker and argue over seemingly unimportant, trite topics. They ask us why we sit in meeting for two and three hours and supposedly accomplish nothing.

Here then is my answer to those persecutors. If anyone thinks it's a ball to sit in wooden chairs for three hours trying to accomplish or arrive at some decisions on student policy, they're crazy. You ask then, why you do it? Sometimes I wonder.

Some may excuse our actions by saying that due to our parliamentary procedure, the meetings are forced to drag along at a snail's pace. Others say the reason why meetings are so bulky is because our motions and proposals are not properly and thouroughly investigated before bringing them to the congress floor.

And there are still more who say that there are too many blowhards on the Council who love to hear the resonant sound of their own voices. Let us now investigate these problems.

FIRST OF ALL, although parliamentary procedure seems to prolong meetings, it is still a necessary evil. Without it we would have utter and complete chaos. We might partially solve the problem by vesting a stronger power in the chairman. Power that would allow him to cut debate and "railroad" legislation. Also I strongly favor complete investigation of all motions before the congress meetings.

Eileen Greyson, a nurse, had a proposal on the floor of our last meeting, that was so thouroughly investigated by her, that not even one question rose from the lips of our most vehemently objective members. The motion was presented, explained, and passed in a matter of three minutes. This, to me, is good student government.

As to the last problem, namely the one concerning loud mouths; yes, we have them. But so does any other organization of our size. However, many of these people have valid points which deserve consideration. The ones who hurt our Council, are the ones who must always get in the last word, no matter how much they must prolong the other members agony.

So you see all these arguments are valid with temperance. This year's Student Council has some of the finest personnel that we've ever had. Men who are really dedicated to student government on this campus, are men who are convinced that student government is good and is needed.

Here's hoping that any members who are guilty of the sins mentioned herein, will take a good long objective look at themselves and ask "am I helping Student Council" or hindering it?

For Females Only: How To Be A Shulman

Mary Lou Scanlon

THIS is an honest-to-goodness, sure-fire, road-to success, do-it-yourself formula for producing other G. B. Shaw's, R. W. Emersons and M. Shulmans. If each of these men has attained fame in some capacity as a writer—so can you.

Now here are the special ingredients. To begin with, a writing utensil is needed. Most any old one will do. So grab your pen (the one that even writes on butter) pencil, crayon —anything. Next a piece of paper, even a little scrap will do, even the back of your history pony.

But now the trouble begins. The problem: What shall I write about. Do not fear, I have the answer. Write about you and what interests you about a few million other Americans. It must have wide appeal, you know. Now that you have picked your topic and outline it (you did) let us proceed to the finer points of writing.

IF YOU are a female, you have one strike against you already. Be not afraid, however, simply do not be feminine in your writing. Half the world are men, you know.

Elvis To Speak On Berlin, Count To Growl As Senior

natalie attired

Peach - pickers and beachcombers . . . let's go to press.

BASCA WEEKEND—It is only fitting that the Senior Class initiate the first big social weekend with a jazz concert. It appears that the freshmen could use some counseling as far as enjoying the various activities are concerned. We must remember that experience is the best teacher and the Senior Class is certainly experienced. (If you don't believe it, ask me some time.) The "Dukes of Dixieland" are considered the best in Dixieland jazz, in short, 'a real swinging outfit'. Like crazy and all that rot!!!

STUDENT COUNCIL NEWS —Plans are hurriedly being made by the Student Activities Committee to engage Elvis Presley to speak at Villanova on the Berlin question. Obviously the big 'E' will have some new and smashing opinions on German independence. (Actually I believe it is a plan to improve the hip-swinging clowns' social position. In my opinion, anything would be a step up.)

SERIOUSLY — Congratulations to the Student Council on their progress, so far this year in handling "responsible projects" by "thinking big". Meanwhile, at which branch of the Salvation Army can I claim my furniture???

SCREENS AGAIN—We know. It only stands to reason. What blind fools we were!!! The real reason why the screens were removed has finally been discovered. They were being measured for blackout curtains, so the University will be fully prepared in case of another attack by the Daily News.

DEAD or ALIVE—It is the sincere wish of this reporter in lieu of the gigantic plans being made for Homecoming Weekend by the Senior Class and the Spirit Committee that they form a committee to approach Count Villan IV in his urban repose at the Norristown Zoo and ask him to growl . . . JUST ONCE.

B.C. GAME—Did anyone see the subliminal advertising of Dougherty Hall this past weekend for the game??? Is it asking a team or asking the students to conjure a winning spirit??? This could, should and actually would bring many of the indulate students out of their indulate mood.

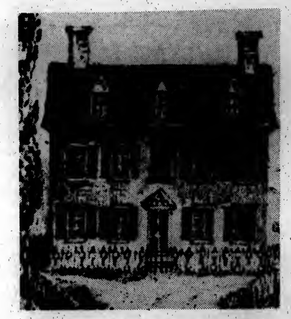
TRAFFIC LIGHTS NEEDED —The engineer of the new C&F building must have been a Chinese escape artist. During a between class movement I had my 5 foot 6 frame jostled into a classroom and had to listen to some lecture on "Personality of a Truck Farmer" or something like that until the crowd in the halls filtered down enough so I could move out of the building.

PRATTLE PROVERB—As the twig is bent, so grows the tree.

GRENDEL'S CAVE . . .

I Want Wide Open Spaces

jim merikangas
guest columnist



I DON'T want security! Everywhere I turn my life is regulated. My birth was recorded with the government, the government forced me to attend a school of its choice (accredited by a state agency) at age eighteen I registered for compulsory military service. I signed a contract with the government for four years college education with the provisions that I study certain courses, remain single until I graduate, and serve three years on a man-of-war.

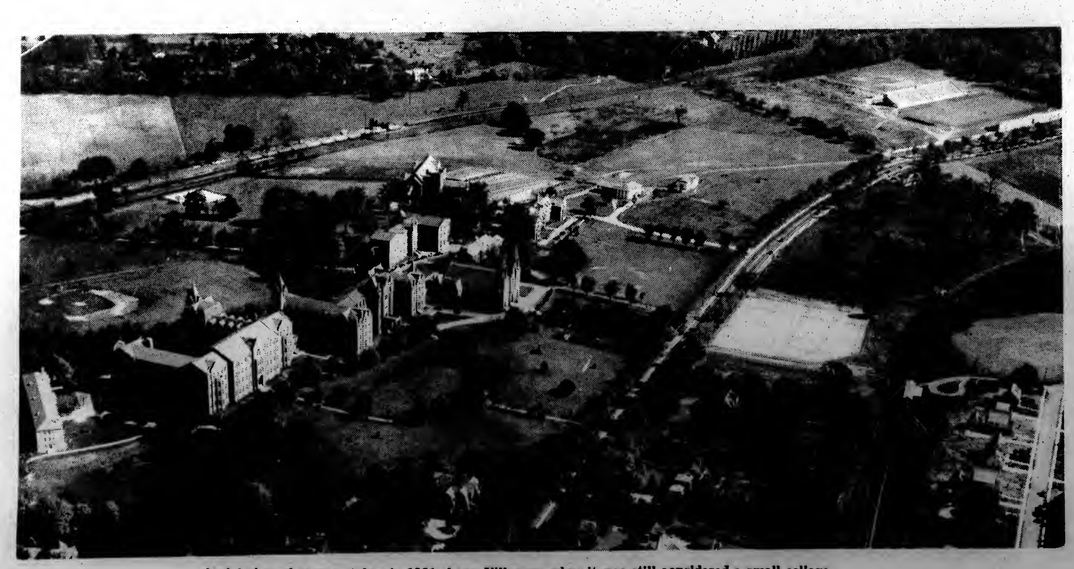
The pay I get for this has money deducted for income tax; to be sure the government gets it before it is spent; although the government gets a goodly part of it when it is spent, and money is deducted for social security, a compulsory insurance policy. A license is required for much of my activity and much of my activity is forbidden until I have lived for twenty one years. Of course before I come of age I can be called upon to sacrifice what is left of my freedom for the common opinion of what is the common good. I may be forced to join a certain organization in order to get work, and if I do not strike when they do my life is in danger.

AT ANY TIME the permission of my next of kin and a court order is obtained, I may be committed to a state institution for life merely for thinking the wrong thoughts. When I reach an arbitrary age I may be forced to retire, and when I die I have not the right to decide ahead of time whether or not an autopsy will be preformed. My body may be given up for cremation and my goods distributed against my will. Awaiting my children will be even more controls restrictions and regulated opportunity. Big Brother is watching me right now and he is legislating my freedom away.

I want the freedom to starve if my ventures fail, and the freedom to live in ignorance of socialized medicine. If the current trends continue my offspring will be determined by state controlled contraception and my death by euthanasia. I wonder if this is what Jefferson had in mind? But then it is a comfort on cold winter nights to know that the state is taking care of me. Even though it may be against my will. I may within my heart choose between good and evil, between heaven and hell, and after all, that is all that really matters.

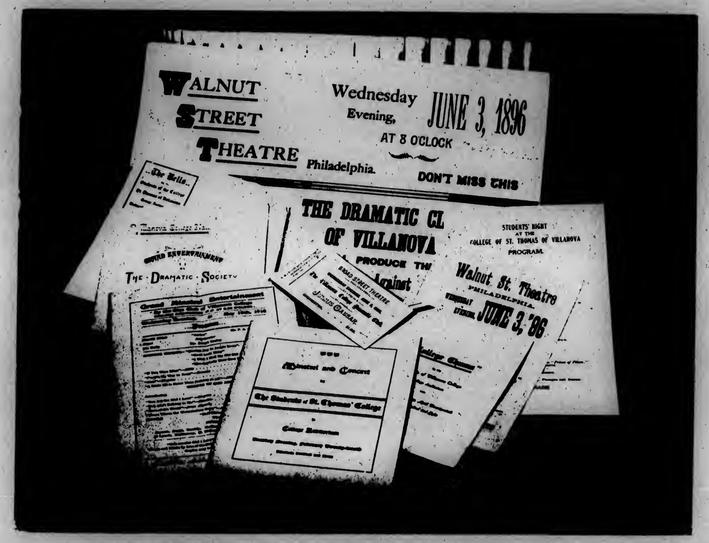
VILLANOVA TRADITION .....its buildings

Randolph Mansion is the building that first occupied the site where St. Rita's Hall now stands. It was one of the original buildings of the Belle Air estate.

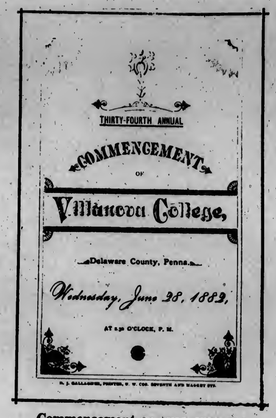


Alumni Hall, as an observer from the railroad tracks might see it, is conceptualized in this architect's sketch.

This is an early view of Mendel Hall and the monastery of St. Thomas of Villanova. View is from the railroad. Upon close scrutiny the garden surrounding Mendel Hall may be observed.



Fire gutted most of the monastery in 1933. It was the second major fire on the Villanova campus In 1928 Mendel Hall was damaged extensively by a blaze.



Aerial view of campus taken in 1931 shows Villanova when it was still considered a small college.

.....its activities

Posters exemplify tone of students activities at the turn of the century.

Commencement as ever, was one of the most important events on campus.

Laberdisk (hb), James Kirch (lt), Joseph McCullough (qb).
Bill Hazel (g), Walter Burns (e), John Plumtatt, manager, Thomas Rogers (hb), Lee Buffington (e), and Andrew Whitley.
Edward (Chicago) Wade, Laforge (c), Bill Hazel (g), James Dean, William J. Shanihan (re), Harry Conway (rt), William Nolan (g), Michael Boyle.

Basketball was also an early sport of Villanova. Unfortunately this photo of the first team was not indentifiable.

Boxing, too, was a major athletic activity at Villanova. The ring sport, now discontinued, was quite popular. In this photo (1938) a Villanovan spars with an opponent from Rutger's.

Wall Appoints Chairmen For Sophomore Cotillion

Tom Wall, sophomore class president, announced initial plans for the Soph Cotillion to be held on November 13.

Chuck Kelly and Pete Kelley were named co-chairmen of the affair. Refreshments will be provided by committee members Brian Riley, John McGovern, and Bill McKinney.

Decorations committee chairman Fran Meyers and his group, Dan Martin, Jim Bollini, and Dick Lennon, plan on a Latin American theme.

Terry O'Brien and Nick DePadova have arranged for Howard Lanin and his Orchestra to provide music for the dancing from nine to one.

The ticket committee — Tony Bateman, Ed FitzMaurice, Mike Pastore, Anne McCrae, and Janet Pamponio — is selling tickets in the Pie Shoppe. Tickets are also available from class members.

Mike Fallon and Jim Brennan will handle entertainment, while Don McAllister and Jerry Cavanaugh head the maintenance committee.

In announcing the Cotillion committees, Wall said that he was "gratified with the committees' work thus far. This will be one of the best Cotillions ever held on campus." He added that "the job of staging this event is too much for a small group to accomplish. The ultimate success of the Cotillion depends on everyone's pitching in and lending a hand."

Concurrent with Wall's statement came announcement from the Blazer committee that all blazers ordered last week will be delivered shortly before Christmas, and that any balance will be due then. No more orders for blazers will be taken until next October, the committee added.

Rocket Society Meets

The Valley Forge Section of the American Rocket Society Inc. will hold a meeting this evening.

Mr. Martin M. Decker, President of the Decker Corporation, will speak on "Russian Scientific Laboratories". Movies and slides will illustrate the lecture.

This meeting which will begin at 8 P.M. will be held at the First Wayne Federal Savings and Loan Association, 123 W. Lancaster Ave., Wayne, Pa.

Coast Guard Explains O.C.S.

A United States Coast Guard representative will be in Dougherty Hall on Tuesday, Oct. 27 to discuss the Coast Guard Officer Candidate School program with interested students.

Literature will be made available and the representative will answer questions regarding specific programs. Each program is a means of fulfilling your military obligation and offers various career opportunities as well.

Each program calls for college graduates, but underclassmen are free to inquire about future classes.

Competitive Basis

Selections for the Coast Guard Officer Candidate School are made on a competitive basis and class convenes three times yearly, February, July, and November.

Those selected receive 17 weeks training in subjects including navigation, seamanship, gunnery, and law enforcement.

Upon completion of training, graduates will be commissioned as ensigns in the U. S. Coast Guard Reserve and later afforded the opportunity integrating into the Regular Coast Guard on a continuing basis.

Young officers may apply for flight training qualifying them for aviation duties, other types of specialized training, or post-graduate level studies in one of many different fields.

Many Invited

Any interested students between the ages of 21 and 27, who will possess a baccalaureate degree in the near future are invited to visit the representative while he is on campus.

Professor O'Toole Ass't. Law Dean Receives Award

Professor Thomas J. O'Toole, Assistant Dean of the Villanova Law School, was the recipiant of the annual Human Relations Award given by the Philadelphia Chapter of the American Jewish Committee, announced Law School Dean Harold Gill Reushlein.

Presentation of the award to O'Toole at a dinner last week was made in recognition of his work with the Institute of Church and State, an activity of the Villanova Law School. He is director of the Institute.

The Institute, active for four years, brings together lawyers of all creeds and religious to discuss issues of law concerning church and state.

Presentation of the award was made by Award Committee Chairman Samuel Feldgoise. O'Toole received a silver medallion on which is engraved "Behold how good and pleasent it is for brethern to dwell together in unity". The award was established in honor of Saul Satinsky.

Nova Talks on German Problem

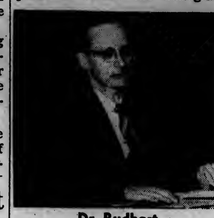
Dr. Fritz Nova, moderator of the International Relations Society, addressed the organization's second meeting of the year last Thursday evening, with a discussion of the German Unification problem.

Stressing the fact that unification of East and West Germany hinges on the solution of the crucial Berlin situation, Nova also explained significant events from the German surrender in May, 1945, to the present statue of the cold war.

Germany Division

The circumstances surrounding the division of Germany into two separate political entities were given particular emphasis.

Reference was also made by Nova to the Bonn Constituent Assembly's choice of a "Basic Law" to rule West Germany, rather than the more permanent title of a constitution.



In this way, said Nova, the Germans indicate their notion of the temporary nature of the present Republic.

A question period following the lecture provided for the development of more particular issues, among which was the question of East German political opinion.

Nova forcefully expressed the belief that the average citizen of East Germany today, seeks unification with his western countrymen.

Attend Council

Immediately prior to the lecture, the IRS elaborated on plans to attend the Collegiate Council for the United Nations convention, to be held at Beaver College.

Dr Rudhart

Delegations will also be sent to the Middle Atlantic States convention in New York on Oct. 23, president Joe Pultorak announced.

Also listed among the society's activities was the participation in a Foreign Student's Reception sponsored by the World Affairs Council of Philadelphia.

Closing the meeting, Pultorak expressed the desire that any prospective new members who were unable to attend as yet, should appear at the next meeting on October 22.

It was announced that a special film on the "European Defense Community" will be shown at that time.

Foundation Announces More New Fellowships

The Woodrow Wilson National Fellowship Foundation today announced the opening of competition for its fellowships for the academic year 1960-61.

The chief purpose of the fellowship program is to offset the critical shortage of qualified college teachers be encouraging college seniors of outstanding ability to consider college teaching careers.

First Year Grad

To this end the Wilson Foundation annually awards 1000 fellowships for first-year graduate study at any university of the recipients choice in the United States or Canada.

Woodrow Wilson Fellowships carry a stipend of $1500, plus full tuition and fees, and, in the case of married Fellows, a dependency allowance for wives and children.

The program is open to college graduates in the natural and social sciences and in the humanities. Both men and women are eligible, and there is no limit on the age of the candidate or the number of years he may have been out of college.

Those who receive awards are not asked to commit themselves to college teaching, but merely to "serious consider" it as a possible career.

No Direct Applications

The Woodrow Wilson Foundation does not accept applications directly from students. Candidates for the award must be nominated by a faculty member.

Nominated students are invited to declare themselves as active candidates for the award by completing the necessary application forms.

Winners of the award are selected through screenings of the applications and personal interviews by regional selection committees, made up of faculty members from the regions' universities and colleges.

The closing date for nominations for the academic year 1960 to 1961 is October 31, 1959. Nominations will be sent to the Chairman of the selection committee for the region in which the prospective candidate is now located. Chairman for our region is John A. Lester, Haverford College.

Beta Gamma Hears Hartman Lecture

Yesterday evening, the members of Beta Gamma Debating society heard Dr. Hartman, Chairman of the History Department and an authority on constitutional law, give a lecture on the Supreme Court.

The purpose of the lecture was to provide the members of the society with authoritative background material on this year's national debating topic—Resolved: That Congress should be given the power to reverse the decisions of the Supreme Court.

Senior Arts major, Dom Costa, the society's new President issued an invitation to the new freshman class and interested upperclassmen to join Beta Gamma, which he termed one of the most progressive activities on campus.

Costa sees no reason why Villanova's debating team should not have a highly successful year.

Morris Reveals Red Threat

ded "we respond by dismantling our own internal ramparts. If such mathematical increases persist, we may find ourselves living again in the Dark Ages.

Loss of Time

"What we have lost in time we can never make up," Morris said.

"From 1950 to 1951 the United States did not even have a missile program. We were convinced in 1945 the Soviet post war intentions were peaceful.

"Following World War II" he said, "the United States turned over to the Soviet Union the largest missile factory in the world, Nordehausen, Germany. While we were asleep, they took advantage of a susbstantial head start," Morris stated.

"What, in point, is the reason for this?" He asked. "The reason is," says Judge Morris, "that we have in this country the advance guard of Communism, whose main purpose is to 'throw dust in our eyes' and in this they are being tremendously successful."

Morris, who is a former government investigator, has served with the Navy in their Department of psychological Warfare.

Coalition Government

"Again in 1945 we forced the government of Free China into a coalition government with Red China, at a time when the Reds in China were all but defeated," he said. "When Free China eventually broke off negotiations, the United States, as a reprimand, imposed an embargo on China which virtually disarmed her. It was 1948 before munitions finally began to leak back into Free China, but by that time the battle of China had been won. Communism had won the day."

Communism, accused Morris, was also winning its day in this country. "Our only means of gaining an insight into the underground Communist network in this country is by encouraging defections and receiving direct testimony from former party members.

"But as witnesses began to testify, they earned the label of informer. Gradually the number of defectors decreased."

Card Carriers

Morris quoted the one instance where a defector testified that 1,100 of the 11,000 members of a New York teachers union were card carrying members of the Communist Party.

19 of the 24 members of the Executive Board of this union were known Communists, known at least to the members of the investigating committee.

Morris cited that in every case of contempt brought before Chief Justice Vinson, the charges were sustained. "With the accession, however, of Chief Justice Warren, a combination of 29 major decisions succeeded in dismantling the safeguards of internal security."

Separate Authority

Morris also pointed out that in 1953 Congress gave the President the authority to separate from government service anyone whom he considered a bad security risk. Under this provision 314 persons were dismissed from government service.

"But in the Cole vs. Young case," he said, the Supreme Court ruled that he could dismiss only those in sensitive positions. As a result, all but 14% of those 314 bad security risks were reinstated, many with as much as three years back pay."

Morris quoted an old law school maxim, "We are a government of law, and not of men."

Passport Ruling

This same court also ruled that the Secretary of State may not withhold the passport of a dedicated Communist, even if it were known he was going abroad to undermine this country.

"The counter offensive is on," said Morris; "Soviet aggression is both external and internal. There is no real distinction. Every little insignificant seeming thing they do is part of just one big picture.

"We have now adopted a wait and see attitude, to see if the cold war will thaw. We waited at Yalta, and we waited at Geneva in 1955. There will be no thaw.

"They have succeded in throwing the dust in our eyes."

Reagan

can't put your finger on. "We made cheap, stupid mistakes. It isn't just one thing, it is a combination of little mistakes. You can't blame the coach."

Reagan is considered to be a top administrator as is shown by his recent election as a member of the executive council of the Eastern Inter - collegiate Football Association. He is also president of the IC4A Track and Field Association.

The general opinion on campus is that the resignation is an unfortunate situation but that a change may be the answer to Villanova's football problems.

Changing Trends Produce Great Job Opportunities

accounting, 516; chemical engineering, 472; and business administration, 459.

Industrial engineers, though still sought-after, found the demand for their services falling slightly, from 481 last year to 431.

And, smaller in number but reflecting changing occupational trends, the number of firms seeking mathematicians grew from 177 to 193, and the number seeking electronic computing personnel continued to increase. In all, 236 occupations are either referenced or cross-referenced in the book.

Examining the openings and opportunities for women graduates, the Annual ,for the first time this year, contains a special listing of those firms which offer professional employment to women.

Job Opportunities

Nearly 600 of the firms listed offer a reception for the ladies as well as for men; the job opportunities range from accounting to aerodynamics and aero engineering and from probation work to land law examination to dentistry.

Articles in the opening section of the Annual give tips on all aspects of recruiting and job-hunting, including writing resumes, interview do's and don'ts, and training programs.

N.S.A. Slates Test

The National Security Agency will hold examinations on campus, December 12, 1959, announced John Moritz, Villanova Placement Director. Applications may be obtained at the Placement Office in the basement of Sheehan Hall.

All applications must be forwarded to the Educational Testing Service, Princeton, New Jersey by December 5, 1959.

Math, engineers, and physics majors are not required to take this test in applying to the Security Agency.

LUCKY STRIKE presents

Dear Dr. Frood:

Dr. Frood, Ph.T.T.

DR. FROOD'S MORAL OF THE MONTH

Things worth having are worth working for. For example: If you want a football letter, find a football player and ask him to write you one.

Dear Dr. Frood: I'm flunking everything but math. I get D in that. Help me.
(Name withheld by request)

Dear Withheld: Spend less time on math.

Dear Dr. Frood: I have a ravishingly beautiful girl in my class. Sadly, she is witless. Should I flunk her?
Bookish

Dear Bookish: Pass her. Other professors are waiting.

Dear Dr. Frood: I go steady with two girls—one in the dorm, one in the Theta house. Traveling between the two places is making a wreck of me. What to do?
Tired

Dear Tired: Get your girl to get your girl into her sorority.

DR. FROOD AND THE AMAZING NEW FILTER

I had occasion recently to study the remarkable "no smoke" filter made of solid lead. No matter how hard you puff, you get no smoke. Incidentally, a pack of these cigarettes weighs 2 pounds. Luckies weigh less . . . and you get smoke. The best.

Dear Dr. Frood: Nobody likes me. Girls despise me. Men can't stand me. Profs detest me. Dogs snap at my cuffs. What should I do?
Hated

Dear Hated: Don't ask me. I don't like you, either.

Dear Dr. Frood: I'm a non-conformist. But I smoke what everybody else smokes—Lucky Strike. How can I be different and still smoke Luckies?
I. M. Odd

Dear Mr. Odd: Light both ends of the Lucky and insert a straw into the middle. Sip the smoke through the straw and say "wildsville" after each puff.

COLLEGE STUDENTS SMOKE MORE LUCKIES THAN ANY OTHER REGULAR!

When it comes to choosing their regular smoke, college students head right for fine tobacco. Result: Lucky Strike tops every other regular sold. Lucky's taste beats all the rest because L.S./M.F.T.—Lucky Strike means fine tobacco:

Harriers Place 1-2, Lose Meet

Despite outstanding performances by Angelo Sivieri and Lance Hugelmeyer, the Villanova harriers were out-run by St. Joe's last Friday, 25-36.

Sophomore Sivieri, West Catholic grad, broke the string first in the smart time of 25:37. Hugelmeyer was right behind him in second place with the time of 25:52.

The next seven places were taken by St. Joe's, thus the defeat. First man across for St. Joe's was Kevin Quinn.

From the outset, the only question of the outcome of the race was who was going to finish behind Sivieri. He literally ran away from the pack.

A Promising Start, But—

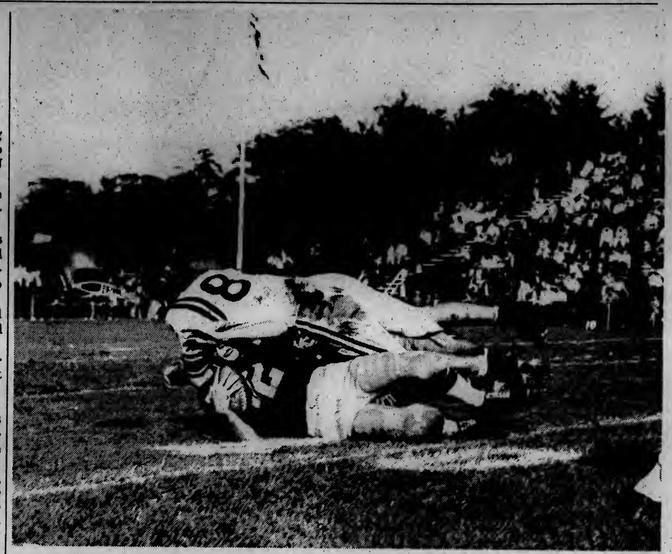
Traveling over hill and dale, he and Hugelmeyer made the outcome look promising for Villanova fans.

The Hawks overall strength wiped out both their performances though.

St. Joe's, always a strong cross-country squad, seems to be reveloping another MAAU championship squad.

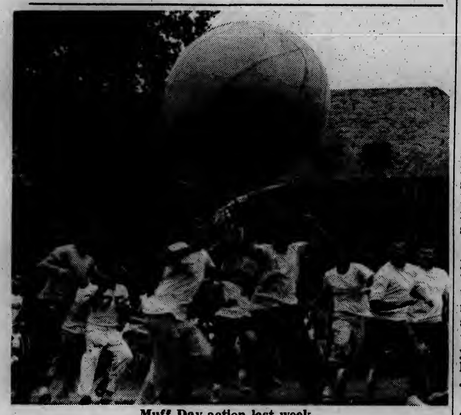
Last year was the first in the last twelve that they were displaced from their title.

Running on their home Cobbs Creek course, St. Joe's displayed some new-found strength as testified by their first finisher who is only a soph as is Sivieri.



Tim McNamar and Hank Neil finished strongly to take 9th and 10th places respectively.

The Wildcats will have to expect strong performances at their next meet with N.Y.U.



Freshmen Win

A surprising performances was turned in by the V.U. freshmen squad as they won over the Hawklets 21-34.

A record time, for freshmen, was turned in by Pat Traynor and Owen Maguire who tied for first.

Boston College quarterback John Amabile losses head — no helmet — as Villanova defender slams him to the turf.

Muff Day action last week.

Shooters Set Sights on Success

With his experienced sharpshooters setting their sights on new team and individual high scores, Rifle Squad Captain Frank Murtha confidently looks forward to Villanova's sixth consecutive winning season.

Only one member of last year's highly successful squad will be absent as the team steps to the firing line. However, ready, willing, and reputedly able to take his place will be three of the standouts on last year's freshmen team: Carl Ackerman, Bob Kaufman, and Johnny Gariglinamo.

This trio will team up with such dead-eyes as Lou Spevetz, who, along with Captain Murtha, has been on the squad all four years at Villanova; Charles Russell, who has three years experience; Junior Nat (Tex) Coursey, probably the most improved man on the squad; and one of his classmates, Ed Hogan.

At the conclusion of the National Rifle Association course currently being held on the Main Line Campus, Sergeant Rielly, USMC, Team coach; Major Rooney, USMC, team moderator, and Murtha will select additional members, and will also name a freshman team.

Two Major Tournaments

Although the schedule is still incomplete, six matches have thus far been confirmed, including contests with St. John's of Brooklyn, Georgetown, Penn State, and Rutgers. Also on tap are two major tournaments, one is at the Coast Guard Academy in New London, Conn., in which V.U. will compete against such teams as West Point, Annapolis, and Kings Point.

The other is the National Championship, to be held in the spring, with the top shots in the country competing. In the former, an open shoulder to shoulder tournament, Villanova has always placed in the upper half, and promises to do at least that once more.

In a rifle match, ten men shoot for each team, with the top five scores counting in the final tally. Each man gets ten shots, scoring up to ten points per shot. Although individuals have hit perfect scores, the team is yet to do it. This could be the year.

Although target shooting is not a major sport or even a good spectator sport, it is still a Villanova sport, and therefore worthy of the backing of the entire student body. Team members should be congratulated upon victory and consoled upon defeat. The outlook, however, seems to predict more handshaking than heart breaking. HENRY F. SCHULTZ

The Sophomores, under class president Tom Wall, defeated the Frosh 110-80 in the annual Intramural Muff Day. They scored victories in 8 of the 12 events on the program. The Freshman Team participated under Ralph Lanciano of the Orientation Committee. Since the Sophomores won the contest, the Frosh must wear the Regs until

Joe Manion

Nick DeAngelis

Villanova, for years a foremost track power, has produced several outstanding performers on the cinders, including Ron Delaney and Don Bragg.

This year VU is expecting positive performances from two speed merchants along the Delaney line—Nick DeAngelis and Joe Manion.

Both these men are juniors with fine high school records, and as track coach, Jumbo Jim Elliot, stated, "Fine boys to work with and I expect great things from them."

A Sprinter and A Middle Distance Man

Joe is the sprint man on the main line campus, competing in the 100, 200 and 400 yard dash. Nick is a middle distance runner, doing mostly 440 and 880, but he, too, does shorter sprints.

The main meet which brought these two fellows into the national lime-light was last spring when they and Charley Stead and Ed Collymore defeated the Texas mile relay team at the California relays in the Los Angeles Coliseum. They ran with a time of 3:10.4 to the Texans' time of 3:11.2 and as Coach Elliot smugly added, "On grass, too."

This victory over Texas ended the Longhorns' victory streak of 3 years. The last team to defeat the Texans before that? Naturally our 'Cats back in '57.

West Catholic Grad

Manion, a junior, hails from Southwest Philadelphia. Joe graduated from West Catholic High School, Philadelphia, in 1957 after four successful years. Joe was a star track man on the West track team that has won the Pennsylvania State Catholic Track Championship for the past thirteen years.

In high school Joe's chief track opponent was the same Nick DeAngelis who is now his teammate and close friend. The Manion-DeAngelis battles highlighted the area's schoolboy track meets back in their senior year of 1957.

Joe not only excelled at track but also in other fields. Always an above average student, Joe was Editor of West Catholic's yearbook in his senior year. Joe is a Commerce and Finance student, who is majoring in accounting.

Nick Had Many Interests

The other member of Villanova's track stable is Nick DeAngelis a junior from Upper Darby. Nick graduated from Monsignor Bonner High School in Drexel Hill, in June of 1957.

Track was only one of the many sports of which Nick was a participant in high school. He was also a member of the baseball and basketball teams, but his big sport was football. He was an all-Catholic halfback and enjoyed many a fine hour on the gridiron with the Bonner Friars.

Nick's talents also were channeled in many other directions while at Bonner. He was president of the school, sports editor of the yearbook, and a participant in dramatics as well as one of the top academic figures in his class.

Dean's List Student

Nick is also on the Dean's list here at Villanova, with a 3.25 average. In his first two years Nick studied engineering but this year has switched his attention to physics.

Doubtless with the successful backgrounds and outstanding characters, as well as the proven qualities of these two talented young men, they promise to reach and exceed the great expectations set forth for them by Coach Elliot and will lead the Wildcats through the coming two track seasons successfully and victoriously!

sophs who never eat cake but do drink "dessert".

Ed Geisz stated that the turnout was terriffic and it was the best year yet. He was happy to say that he believed everyone had a chance to participate as the records show well over three hundred names due to the two platoon systems.

Ralph Lanciano who organized the Freshmen, stated that lists were posted, but most of the organization took place on the field at the time of the events.

Best Organized

He further said, "I did my best to organize the frosh and I was very pleased with the way they conducted themselves."

Although many freshmen were not sure of the procedure for "signing up," and the committeemen surprisingly first heard of their appointments through the VILLANOVAN earlier that Wednesday.

Geisz said, "Pre-organization would not go over because of the participation and enthusiasm of the classes."

Intramurals Start; Old Look Young

by Dan Grove

The first full week of intramural football got off to a fast start, with fifteen games being reported.

The most impressive win of the young campaign was posted by the Old Men of the 4:30 Austin League, as they routed the Canucks, 51-0.

The Old Men are a collection of past intramural stars, quarterbacked by Don "Whitey" Brass, the Intramural Athlete of the Year 1959. At this early date the Old Men look like the team to beat in the championship competition.

The scores of other games played last week are as follows: The Cowboys over the Knights, 14-0; the Dukes, 6 — the One Eyes, 0; Guaomnis, 6 — Langrans Lushes, 0; the East Coast Beat-niks cooled Carsens Raiders, 7-6. The Spear Chuckers rolled over Urassis, 34-0; Avonalius defeated the Huns, 6-0; The Knights won their tilt with the Guttless Wonders, 12-7.

D.P.M. Beats M.A.B.

The Awful Awfuls took the Incognitoes, 9-0. D. P. M. beat M. A. B. 14-6; in a battle of initials; M.L.C.A.A. shut out Langram's Lushes 13-0; the Dukes trampled Carsen's Raiders 50-0, then beat the Savages, 37-0. Thumb's A.C. tapped the Cloud Busters 15-0; and the Chinese Bandits topped the Encee Boogums, 14-6.

Two special events are on tap this week in Intramural Competition. The Intramural Diving and Swimming Championships will take place on Wednesday October 14, in the V.U. pool. On Thursday, October the 15, the Cross Country championships will be held.

This race will be run over a 2-and-one-half mile course set-up on campus. Anyone wishing to enter should report to Ed Geisz in the stadium at 4:30. Mr. Geisz is hoping for a large turn out for both events. Also, spectators are welcome to attend all events.

Matt Coney, member of the Intramural Council, voiced the opinion of the Council in agreeing with Geisz that this was the best year ever.

FOOTBALL: ITS CAUSE AND CURE

Next Saturday at the football game while you are sitting in your choice student's seat behind the end zone, won't you give a thought to Alaric Sigafoos?

Alaric Sigafoos (1868-1934) started life humbly on a farm near Thud, Kansas. His mother and father, both named Ralph, were bean-gleaners, and Alaric became a bean-gleaner too. Later he moved to Oregon and found work with a logging firm as a stump-thumper. Then he went to North Dakota where he tended the furnace in a granary (wheat-heater). Then he drifted to Texas where he tidied up oil fields (pipe-wiper). Then to Arizona where he strung dried fruit (fig-rigger). Then to Kentucky where he fed horses at a breeding farm (oat-toter). Then to Long Island where he dressed poultry (duck-plucker). Then to Alaska where he drove a delivery van for a bakery (bread-sledder). Then to Minnesota where he cut up frozen lakes (ice-slicer). Then to Nevada where he computed odds in a gambling house (dice-pricer). Then to Milwaukee where he pasted camera lenses together (Zeiss-splicer).

Finally he went to Omaha where he got a job in a tannery beating pig hides until they were soft and supple (hog-flogger.) Here he found happiness at last.

Why, you ask, did he find happiness at last? Light a firm and fragrant Marlboro, taste those better makin's, enjoy that filter that filters like no other filter filters, possess your souls in sweet content, cross your little fat legs, and read on.

Next door to Alaric's hog-floggery was an almond grove owned by a girl named Chimera Emrick. Chimera was pink and white and marvelously hinged, and Alaric was instantly in love. Each day he came to the almond grove to woo Chimera, but she, alas, stayed cool.

Then one day Alaric got a brilliant idea. It was the day before the annual Omaha Almond Festival. On this day, as everyone knows, all the almond growers in Omaha enter floats in the big parade. These floats always consist of large cardboard almonds hanging from large cardboard almond trees.

Alaric's inspiration was to stitch pieces of pigskin together and inflate them until they looked like big, plump almonds. "These sure beat skinny old cardboard almonds," said Alaric to himself. "Tomorrow they will surely take first prize for Chimera and she will be mine!"

Early the next morning Alaric carried his lovely inflated pigskin almonds over to Chimera, but she, alas, had run off during the night with Walter T. Severidge, her broker. Alaric flew into such a rage that he started kicking his pigskin almonds all over the place. And who should be walking by that very instant but Abner Doubleday!

Mr. Doubleday had invented baseball the day before, and he was now trying to invent football, but he was stymied because he couldn't figure out what kind of ball to use. Now, seeing Alaric kick the pigskin spheroids, his problem was suddenly solved. "Eureka!" he cried and ran to his drawing board and invented football, which was such a big success that he was inspired to go on and invent lacrosse, Monopoly, run sheep run, and nylon.

Basketball Managers

Sack of Troy

World Series the Greatest

Tom Troy

I know it's certainly been said before but I think the fact that a sporting event, such as the recently completed Series, can capture as much newspaper space as politics or Lunik is an indication of the greatness of America. End of flag raising.

I'm not a gambling man, but I would be willing to lay 1000-1 that Boomer Phelps becomes a star before the season ends.

Item: the University of Chicago won the tiddlywinks championship of the world last Friday. The University's team won by default when the Cambridge University team which had challenged Chicago forfeited.

The British 'winkers couldn't finance their way to Chicago after a London brewery withdrew its monetary support. Unpatriotic, ruddy blokes!

I hope the football team wins a game soon. I've discovered (through insidious investigation) that, since the West Chester game, the team has been scouted every game by employees of Oliver H. Bair, Co.

Brains and Brawn

In recent years my attitude towards baseball has changed from Rah! Rah! to So What? But for two innings of the fifth game of the Series I reverted to my earlier status—an avid fan.

What drama. What a battle of wits. Professors Alston and Lopez were thinking so hard you could hear them.

Dodger Seventh inning: two on, two out, Bob Shaw hurling for the Sox. Charley Neal, a righthander, coming to bat. Jim McAnany, a rookie, in left field.

Whirr, schickeda, geshickeda go the cogs in Doctor Lopez's cerebum. A conference at the mound: Al Smith moves to left field.

You've Gotta Have Brains

Then the inning of the entire Series, the Dodger eighth. Wally Moon leads off by singling. Norm Larker fouls off a couple bunts, then flies to right. But Gil Hodges bounces one through the middle and Moon races to third. Hodges goes to second on the throw.

Don Demeter is scheduled to bat, but earlier in the game he had failed to get the ball out of the infield with Hodges on third.

Depucketa, depucketa, depucketa. They gray cells in wizard Alston's brain stir furiously. Demeter returns to the bench, left-handed Ron Fairly pinch hits.

In the Sox bullpen are lefty Billy Pierce and righthander Dick Donovan. Whizzz. Not a hard decision here for Lopez. In comes Pierce.

Casey Switches To A Switch-Switcher

Brring. A quick cerebric message to Alston. Fairly retreats and Rip Repulski, a righthander, pinchhits for the pinchhitter.

Dingdingding. Quick as repartee from Mort Sahl, Lopez flashes a signal to catcher Sherm Lollar. Pierce checks the sign, then intentionally walks Repulski.

Due to bat now is weak-hitting John Roseboro. ZZZZ. Alston doesn't even have to think. 92,706, have already thought for him.

Carl Furillo, Hero, strides to the plate.

Schickeda, schickeda. Lopez paces to the mound, looks at Pierce, raises his right arm. Bushy browed Dick Dovovan slowly, even casually, walks into the lions den. Furillo, Hero, stays at the plate; he swings his magic wand menacingly.

A ball. Then Furillo, Hero, swings. A loud crackk! A high pop-up to the infield, two out.

Checkmate

Now Don Zimmer, a .187 hitter. Depuckeda . . . A lefthander, a lefthander, my kingdom for a lefthander. But Alston knows there ain't no mo. Senor Lopez has checkmated him.

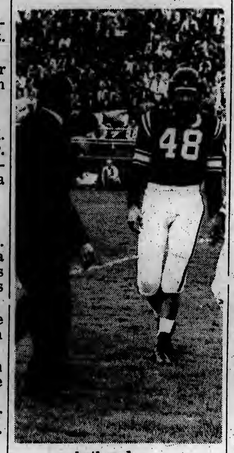
Hollywood wood never be so naive to construct such a plot.



Bobby Kahana, halfback from Roman Catholic, has to be the best allround football player in Philadelphia's Catholic League. He can run, pass, kick, block, and tackle. Villanovans will get an opportunity to see Kahana in action when Roman plays Monsignor Bonner,, the probable champs this season, at Villanova in a few weeks.

To soothe a few shattered egos: last year the most successful sporting team at Villanova was the . . . golf team. Seriously, I offer belated congratulations to coach Jim Elliot's fine team.

Despite Wilt, I don't think the Warriors can capture the N.B.A. crown unless Paul Arizin, the peerless, can repeat his tremendous performances of last season, and Tom Gola, the fearless, can finally play a full season.

Sports Chatter

What is the Matter?

Tony Macklin

The Boston College campus newspaper, The Heights, had the following to say the day before the BC-Villanova games:

"It should be remembered that even a toothless, clawless, old Wildcat can grow cagey with experience. The question at hand is, however, how does it get down from its tree without any claws?"

This proved to be a good question then and still is today.

Actually, the claws are there but they are so far withdrawn in muchly-ruffled fur that it's questionable when we'll ever see them again.

Little Spark

Only once in the first half did the Wildcats show any semblance of spark against the vengeful Eagles. That was at the start of the second period with BC leading 14-0.

Johnny Daniels broke up a pass play with a great diving effort that forced the Bostonians to kick. He then took the punt, feinted and ripped to the 15. This was VU's only spectacular play of the oh-so-long afternoon.

Sam Gruneisen threw a tremendous shattering block to free Daniels. Gruneisen has a great future.

With the ball on the 15, first and ten to go Villanova unleashed its impotent ground attack; BC took over, and romped.

When the score reached 22-0 Wayne Kautter second-string quarterback finally got a shot. By this time the game was lost and so he is not entirely to blame for the wild desperation passes he threw.

The first half was horrible, humiliating, and infuriating. The crowd was stunned by the ease with which the Eagles hammered the usually formidable Mainliners. They gloated in the "big show." They marvelled at the "novelty of BC running it up on anyone."

The second half of the game was a "what's the use of playing it" type affair. The 'Cats managed a score on a pass from Roehre to Ed Bohan.

The only other optimistic note was struck by the play of soph quarterback Tom O'Rourke. The Boston press called him "slick.' Both Bohan and O'Rourke should see a good deal of service in the future.

Uninspired Ball

The ball played by the 'Cats in general was sloppy, clumsy, and lifeless. It was enough to make one start writing epitaphs.

However the patient is only in a coma and it's not time for epitaphs yet. The problem is to find a cure.

One must remember that the ballplayers and coaches are human beings. When you listen to the radio or watch from the stands you lose perspective. Men become machines or gladiators. Perhaps it would be better if they were. But they aren't.

They have failed so far, there's no question of that. The question is why? Certainly they don't like to take the throttlings they have been undergoing. Nobody likes to fail.

'Cat Dilemma

What is the answer?

Reagan can't be sleeping much anymore. He can't solve the problem. Hes got the horses but they won't run. They just won't run. . . . . .

Johnny Amabile, 5'8" sparkplug quarterback of BC, told us one possible answer. Amabile thinks that VU uses too many formations. "Too many formations make you ineffective. When you started using that straight T for a little while you started to move."

Eddie Roehre disagreed. Roehre has terrific self-confidence. It would take a bomb to knock the twinkle out of his eyes. So far none of the four losses has been bomb enough.

Same Old Story

Roehre shook his head, "It's the same old story. We need blocking and tackling. If we had gotten the blocking we could have passed them to death. I watched half the game on my back."

So you have heard two approaches.

One thing is certain, the team needs confidence. They are down. As Amabile said, "You need a win quick." The team is becoming demoralized and needs that victory.

Amabile felt that VU hit as hard as Army and Navy. He cited Myers and Horin as particularly tough.

Mental Block

In this writer's opinion, the 'Cats have a granite-like mental block. They don't feel that they are going to score when they get close and they don't score. A good solid TD march should shatter that block.

Villanova is a big, strong, slow team. They have to come up with a running attack. The first two downs were always without gain.

VU has no breakaway threat. We have no man good for three yards. BC got three and four yards consistently. VU got four yards total on the ground to 136 for the boys from the land of the broad A.

The Wildcats need to gain poise. They lose their composure easily and flounder. They need to have more faith in themselves, in their quarterback (whoever he is), and they need a team leader.

Each week we honestly feel that a victory is forthcoming. So far we have been wrong.

Miami of Ohio is next. Miami smashed Xavier but lost Saturday to Kent State 14-6. If the 'Cats don't get mad and snatch this game, we may well have to wait until December for victory.

Wildcat Eleven Miami Bound

Wildcats Still Seek First Win

Miami University of Ohio, one of the Nation's leading small college football teams, will furnish the rugged opposition when Villanova's travel-weary 'Cats conclude the first half of their schedule Saturday at Oxford, Ohio.

Saturday's clash will mark the first time Villanova has met Miami on the gridiron.

The southwestern Ohio school, sometimes referred to as "The Yale of the West", is so dubbed only in academic circles, for Miami hasn't had a losing football season in seventeen years.

It's list of alumni and former coaches reads like a Who's Who in sports.

Familiar Names

Paul Dietzel, Ara Parseghian, Weeb Ewbank, Paul Brown, Woody Hayes, Sid Gillman, and George Blackburn, are some of the former Miami coaches who have gained national prominence.

The present Redskin coach 31 year old John Pont. In slightly over three years Pont's team have amassed a glittering 21-7-1 record.

His 1957 and 1958 teams won championship honors in the Mid-American Conference.

Pessimistic Outlook

At the outset of the current campaign Pont feared that his minions would hardly be able to break even let alone duplicate or better last year's 6-3 mark.

Apparently, though, Pont's expressed fear was merely the standard pessimism of most college coaches for his Redskins have not yet tasted defeat.

One of the Redskins' victims was Xavier. The Ohioans whalloped the Musketeers, 33-7. (For anyone who has a short memory Xavier pummeled Frank Reagan's charges, 48-20).

The chief reason for Pont's "wait and pray" attitude was his lack of experienced tackles. He had three lettermen, Ron Brooks, Jack Tibbets, and Bob Fletcher ready to man the position but none of these men could match last year's tackles in physical stature.

Strong Inner Defense

Pont's tackles last year both weighted well over 230 pounds.

The middle line, a strong point last season, poses no problem this year either. Jim Daniels, Gary Cobb, guards, and Gary Huber, at center figure to get the job done for Pont inside. All are punishing blockers and defensive standouts.

The real Miami bright spot, however, is the backfield. At fullback Pont has a converted tackle, Dave (Bo) Chamberlin. In three games last year after switching from the line, the 6-1, 220 pound pile driver compiled a natty 7.3 yard per carry average.

Two Scatbacks

At left halfback is Bill Miller, 5-9, 185, who was fullback until Chamberlin entered the picture. Backing Miller up is Johnny Moore, 173 pound scatback.

Right half is manned by another speedster, Dave Gilbert who carries 187 pounds on a 5-9 frame.

The Redskin quarterback is Tom Kilmurry, a 6-1, 175 pound senior from Teaneck, N. J., one of the few players on the Miami roster who does not hail from Ohio.

B.C. 39 - V.U. 6 - Let's Start All Over!

By JIM MURRAY

Before 13,000 fans at Alumni Field in Boston the Villanova football team dropped a 39-6 decision to Boston College.

If the score isn't indication enough of one-sidedness of the game the statistics will show why B.C. could stand for Bewildered Cats.

The Eagles had 19 first downs, 343 yds. total yardage, a 13-20 passing percentage with 3 interceptions and 2 fumbles recovered. The 'Cats had nine first downs, 106 yds. total—102 were by Airon 9-24 passes—yes, 4 yds. on rushing, while they intercepted a pass and recovered a fumble.

Rather than make this a long narrative on Boston College's greatest day I'll just say the well rested B.C. gridders played like champs against the 'Cats.

Scoring Plays

Here are the scoring plays for Boston College and the scoring play and highlights of the V.U. attack. For B.C.—George Van Cott end run 9 yds, Louis Kiroval PAT; in second period Van Hogan 15 yd. run and pass to Ross O'Hanley for conversion; Hogan 4 yd run and Van Cott run. This made the score 30-0 at half time. The Eagles scored on a 9 yd run by Hogan and scored their final 2 points on a safety late in the fourth quarter.

The Wildcats scored their lone touchdown on a 19 yd pass from Ed Roehre to Ed Bohan. John Daniels scampered 60 yds to the B.C. 15 in the second quarter but the 'Cats couldn't score.

What's Wrong?

That is more than enough said about the B.C. game — but what's wrong with our team? Certainly all kinds of answers come up: The coaches are the blame, the team just doesn't have it, nobody is too much interested the way they're playing. So who cares.

You can't pin down one of these or the other 4,698 reasons why Villanova is losing but you can take these three things and do something. STOP yes STOP.

Forget about the first four games—after carefully examining the records I see nothing worth remembering. Realize that it is a combination of things, not one thing responsible for the first four failures.

Start from scratch, without blaming anybody or everybody on this team's lact of success, because it's obvious their pressing so hard they can't even hold the football during a game. If this sounds a little Rah, Rah it's meant to be.

Maybe if everyone in this school gets behind everybody else and stops blaming everybody we could start a football season in the middle of the year.

So this week is relax week That is we lost our First Four. Forget It Week.

We don't' have to win every game at Villanova but let's play football like a team with everybody on the same side.

Rally, Basca Dance Begin Homecoming Weekend Fete

Eddie Bigham, a familiar name in Main Line entertainment circles, will provide the music for the annual Nick Basca dance to be held Friday evening from nine to one in the Field House.

Proceeds To Guild

Tickets are now on sale in the Pie Shoppe and the C & F Cafeteria. The price of ducats is $2.50. Proceeds from the dance will go to the Augustinian Seminary Guild.

"This will be Bigham's first appearance on campus," said Ray Rafferty, general chairman of the Homecoming Weekend. "His society band is very popular with the local country club set," he added.

Besides the society orchestra, Bigham has an 18 piece jazz band. It is composed of professional musicians who once played for such famous jazz men as Tommy Dorsey and Stan Kenton.

Intermission Ceremony

At intermission of the dance, the Homecoming Queen will be crowned by Rafferty, senior class president, and Tom Hoffman, Student Council chairman. The Queen will be chosen by popular ballots, which are being circulated this week.

"An old time theme, like 'Homecoming 1910' will be the theme for the dance", according To Con O'Donnell, chairman of decorations. "The motif should be most unique."

Other committee chairmen include Tony Godwin and Mike Marinak, tickets; Bruce Sturm and Pete Longworth, publicity; Gordon Burlingame, entertainment; and Dave Brian, refreshments.

Rally and Dance

Preceding the event, a rally and parade will work its way across the campus. In competition for the annual Nick Basca Award, dormitories will be decorated along a "beat Virginia" theme.

The judging of the various buildings is the task of several members of the faculty and administration, who will lead the band and students in the mammouth pre-game festivities.

Nick Basca

Michael M. (Nick) Basca was an outstanding Villanova football player and member of the class of '41.

During World War II, Nick died in action while serving in a tank battalion. Basca began playing for the Wildcats in 1938. Just as a side line, Villanova won eight, lost none, and tied once in the '38 season.

Nick was a teammate of Dave DiFillipo, our present line coach. He starred at left halfback in the seasons of 1939 and 1940.

Dixieland Dukes Here For Concert

The senior class will sponsor the Dukes of Dixieland Saturday at 2 p.m. in the field house.

The Dukes, who are among the royalty of jazz, are considered as the best New Orleans jazz group to appear in recent years.

The Dukes, totaling seven, will have a repertoire of all the jazz favorites.

Class President Ray Rafferty will be M.C.

Tickets can be purchased in the C&F cafeteria and the Pie Shoppe for the remainder of the week.

Tickets will also be available the day of the concert.

Reserved seats are $2.00, $1.50 for general admission, and $1.00 for balcony seats.

Co-chairmen for the affair are Ron Magray, Sr. Pre Law and Bill Galm, Sr. M.E. Tickets: Bill Silcox, Sr. Accounting and Don Ropane Sr. Pre Med. Publicity: Jay Sands, Sr. Pre Med. and Jay Touhy, Sr. Arts. Technical Committee is under Richard Gerstner, and Harry Siegfelp, Sr. M.E. Program: Jim Connors, Sr. I.A.

Hoffman Will Introduce $5000 Treasury Tonight

By THOMAS M. WOLF

At tonight's Student Congress meeting, Chairman Tom Hoffman will introduce what he terms the "most progressive idea the Council has ever attempted since its inception on campus"—a $5,000 Student Council Budget.

Expecting universal support from the Council for the budget—at least in principle—Hoffman envisions a revolution in the operation of student government at Villanova, which such a treasury would facilitate.

"We have all sorts of ideas," he said, "but the money we need for them doesn't appear to be available under the present set-up."

Hoffman will clearly define in the wake of ultimate Administration approval of the treasury.

In an equally confident manner he elaborates on the possible sources of income for the proposed treasury. The source is expected to loom as the highest obstacle for final passage of the budget.

Fill Treasury

The problem is to fill the treasury first, and then to appropriate funds to the sundry committees which implement the legislation of the Congress.

Not disclosing any figures, Hoffman said he plans to derive the treasury's greatest income from an unprecedented student taxing system.

The tax, he emphasized would be nominal and no doubt voluntary, but in return, the student would receive a Student Council activities card. This card would bestow a wide field of advantages on the holder, specifically, reduced prices for social functions.

Hoffman also proposes to supplement the treasury by having the Council acquire control over the parking lot for football games. The parking is now in the hands of an outside operator.

Taking It Slow

Because of the delicate nature of the entire idea, Hoffman has

Sixty Nominated For Who's Who

The final selection of the Villanovans to appear on the Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities will be announced at the end of this month.

Tom Hoffman, Student Council President, voted that this privilege means national recognition for those outstanding students who are among the final selection.

60 Nominated

The process of selections is begun with more than 60 nominations.

The names are submitted from the Deans of each school, 50 names selected and submitted by Council and Senior Class Officers, and Two Senior nominees from each recognized organization on campus, sponsored by the moderator of each organization.

The students nominated must posses a cumulative average of at least 2.4, be in good standing in the discipline, spiritual, and social facets of the school, and be active in recognized compus activities.

Final Selection

The final selection, some 32 in number are chosen by a committee made up of five faculty members and two students.

The final 32 chosen represent Villanova University in the list of the outstanding students, of colleges and universities throughout the United States.

Eight Floats Being Planned For Homecoming V.P.I. Game

This year's Homecoming Weekend plans for half-time activities of the Villanova-V.P.I. game are now in the latter stages of planning, according to Joe DuRocher, float co-chairman.

Spirit Committee Half-Time Coordinator, Dave Doyle, has tentatively announced the schedules.

The Drill Team, Villanova Marching Band, and Count Villan V, augment the program evolving around the Queen.

Eight Floats

Eight floats have already been accepted as competitive entries, the senior, junior ,and sophomore classes, Semper Fidelis, the Spirit Committee, and the fraternities lead the expanding entry list.

Co-chairmen of the Senior project, DuRocher and Chuck Ward, have already demonstrated their intent to capture the honors. DuRocher comments: "We have a float that is a float."

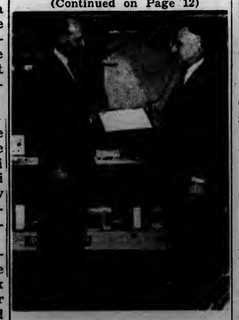
Entitled, "A Tribute to College Days," the regalia will be led by Volkswagons bearing the "1960" banner, and will picture both the good and the tough times of college life.

A little light was also shed upon the activities of Phi Kappa Pi. Fred Wiele, director of the "engineering engineers," announced that they will have the best float on the field, and it will be, "A new deal in new dimensions."

Men At Work

The new deal refers to the fact that the sophomores are representing Phi Kappa Pi with the theme "Phi Kappa Pi men at work," and the new dimensions refer to the exeraordinary size of the float, reaching twelve feet into the air.

A real demonstration is expected during halftime. The Drill team will probably "break open" the festivities with their usual precision. They will lead the floats around the field and receive the queen and her court.



Engineers Given $5,000 Equipment

C. H. Rice, Manager of the Electric Utility Sales Division, Atlantic Region of the Westinghouse Electric Corporation on October 15 presented $5000 worth of engineering laboratory equipment to Villanova on behalf of the Westinghouse Educational Foundation.

Rev. Anthony J. Mullen OSA received the gift in the name of the university.

Originally the equipment was designed by faculty members at

Bob Scalia Proposes That Council Make Sullivan Basement A Lounge

At last week's meeting between Rev. Joseph Kemme, O.S.A., vice president of student affairs, and the Student-Administration Committee, the matter of opening Sullivan Hall basement as a student lounge was proposed by junior class president Bob Scalia.

Father Kemme took the matter under advisement, but felt that certain questions would have to be resolved before final approval is granted.

At the same time, an alternate proposal for the use of Sullivan basement is before the administration. Joe Perozziello, photo editor of the LYNX, the BELLE AIR, the VILLANOVA ENGINEER, and the VILLANOVAN, has requested part of the available space as a photo darkroom.

Scalia contends that a lounge equipped with T.V., ping-pong tables, etc., would "give the 1600 residents a place for bull sessions and thus leave dorm rooms for study purposes. It would provide another T.V. room since the Pie Shoppe is inadequate because of its early closing on weekends, and help keep residents from going stir-crazy on weekends when no social events take place."

At the fifth pre-game rally, a solemn group of cheerleaders listen while some old-fashioned "rabble rousing" is done via megaphone. The Spirit Committee expects last week's spirit to carry over to the Homecoming game.

Council May Give Awards

Mutual assurance of student-administration cooperation concluded last week's meeting between Rev. Joseph Kemme, vice president of student affairs, and the Student-Administration Committee.

Tom Hoffman, council chairman, presented to Father Kemme a suggestion that special awards be presented to all students actively participating on the Council for at least two semesters.

Previously, awards have been given only to seniors. Underclassmen received no recognition for Council work. Hoffman's proposal included the provision that the Council Chairman would nominate recipients of the award.

Father Kemme stated that he "wouldn't like to be the man responsible for selecting award winners," implying that the decision was too important to be in the hands of a single person.

When Hoffman volunteered to change the proposal to include the Student Cabinet as a selection committee, Father Kemme stated that he "would be happy to consider it, provided Father Girolami approves."

Further Proposals

Regarding the proposal that first-rate movies be shown on campus on weekends when no important social events would occur, Father Kemme seemed pleased with the committee's investigation of the proposal, but felt that a few points still had to be ironed out.

After a lengthy but inconclusive discussion, the matter of a student lounge in Sullivan Hall basement was deferred until some later date.

During the meeting, the need for closer student-administration co-operation frequently became evident. The problem was settled when Hoffman promised to work more closely with Father Kemme in this regard.

"Experimental Theatre" To Begin Series Next Week

The opening program in the "Experimental Theatre" series, produced by the Department of Theatre of Villanova University, will take place at 3:30 p.m. in the East Lounge of Dougherty Hall next Monday.

OWEN KLEIN

The purpose of this new series is to present to interesting members of the University the type of play and production that they would not ordinarily see and that is very much a part of theatre.

The plays will be directed by graduate students in Theatre and played by mixed casts of undergraduate and graduate students.

The first two plays to be seen will be The Boor by Chekhov and Escurial by the Flemish playwrite M. de Gelderode.

The Boor, directed by Dennis Cunningham, is a delightful comedy concerning the quick-fire romance between a young, but somber widow and her seemingly boorish visitor.

The cast contains graduate student, Sue Arnold, sophomore Pat Sprenger and freshman William DePaolo.

Escurial, the duplex tragedy of a King and his Fool, will be directed by Owen Klein, former Belle Masque President. The principals will be George Matey, a junior, and freshmen Richard McIntyre and Donald Murphy.

Group Calls For Drama Try-Outs

The Department of Theatre of Villanova University announces the open try-outs for their December production of Thornton Wilder's "Our Town."

This production will be under the direction of Mr. Bernard Coyne of the Dept. of Theatre. Mr. Coyne, recently from Catholic University's Theatre Dept. is a former Villanovan and Belle Masque member.

"Our Town" is the universal story of Grovers Corners, and depicts the warmth and humanity of people who symbolize the American way.

It its simplicity, this play by Wilder has a far reaching dramatic impact which accounts for so much of its popularity.

The tryouts for this show will be held on Thursday and Friday, October 22 and 23 and are open to all members of the University.

They will take place on the Vasey Hall stage between the hours of 4 p.m. and 6 p.m., and 7 and 8 p.m.

Annual Red Mass To Be Held This Friday In Chapel

This Friday evening, at 7 p.m. the Annual Red Mass for the students and alumni of The Villanova University School of Law will be celebrated in the Church of Saint Thomas of Villanova on the campus.

The Mass is traditionally celebrated to ask the blessing of the Holy Spirit upon the students, faculty and alumni of the School of Law.

Vestments Red

The Mass is known as the Red Mass for two reasons. The vestments of the clergy and the alter cloths are of that color which has always been associated with the Holy Spirit. Likewise, the robes of the English judges were red, and in the popular mind this fact was associated with the Mass which the judges attended as a group, attired in their robes.

The celebrant of the Mass will be the Very Reverend John A. Klekotka, OSA, President of the University. The Vice President for Academic Affairs, The Reverend Joseph J. Gildea, OSA will serve as deacon and The Reverend Joseph W. Kemme, OSA, Vice President for Student Affairs, will be the sub-deacon.

The Reverend Norbert W. Whitley, OSA, the Chaplain of the University, will be Master of Ceremonies.

The Augustinian Provincial, The Very Reverend James A. Donnellon, OSA will preside in the sanctuary. The preacher at the Red Mass is to be The Most Reverend John J. Wright, S.T.D., the Bishop of Pittsburgh.

Outstanding Orator

Bishop Wright is widely known as an outstanding orator and is one of the most stimulating preachers among the American hierarchy.

The music of the Mass will be sung by the Villanova Singers, under the direction of Mr. Herbert Fiss, with Dean Harold Gill Reuschlein of the Law School serving as organist.

Members of the general University faculty and of the undergraduate student body are welcome to attend the Mass.

Fr. Klekotka Pledges Full Cooperation To Council

An address by Very Rev. John Klekotka, O.S.A., and a hassel over a technically highlighted the Student Council bi-monthly meeting held two weeks ago.

The president declared that the administration considers the Council to be effective representatives and leaders of the student body.

Encourages Council

"We feel confident," said Father Klekotka "that, under the guidance of your chairman, you will enjoy a most fruitful year. Be assured that we are with you in all your endeavors."

The business part of the session was marked by quick passage of all proposals except the Student Council dance motion.

Bill Vincent tried to untable a motion from last year that the Council move to change the NFCCS annual dance to a dance sponsored by the Council itself.

Here a tabled motion was voted upon before it was untabled, legally untabled, amended, amended again, tabled again voted on and passed, and finally after a half hour of confusion, tabled again upon the advice of Council parliamentarian, Bill Henry.

Motion Tabled

The motion as it stands now, stipulates that the NFCCS dance to be held February 26, 1960 shall be designated the Student Council dance and that the proceeds will go primarily to the NFCCS.

The hassle arose when Sheldon Pollock proposed that any mention of who would receive the proceeds be deleted from the motion.

Several minutes of chaotic debate followed after which Pollock agreed to withdraw his amendment. Then the motion as stated above was passed by the congress and everything seemed to be resolved.

Advised to Retable

However, at this juncture, Henry advised the congress to re-table the motion since he said it was apparent that this matter should be referred to committee for further clarification.

Incredibly enough, Henry's motion was unanimously passed to the benefit o feveryone.

Jim Hooker, Council secretary, was writing furiously to keep abreast of the maze of disorganized action.

Bill Vincent, who made the original motion to untable the subject, voiced regret after the meeting that all the discussion went for naught.

" It would have been better," he said, "to have sent the motion to a specific committee for investigation, rather than table it again."

Peretti Offers Final Chance For Senior Pix

Seniors who have not yet had their portraits taken for the 1960 Belle Air will have one final chance, it was announced by Thomas Peretti, editor and chief.

Seniors must contact Carl Wolfe Studio, 2013 Walnut Street, Philadelphia, Phone LO 4-1338. An apointment must be made before October 30th.

Ray Rafferty Readies Homecoming Weekend

Ray Rafferty, affable senior class president, at the present time is the busiest man on campus as he goes about supervising last minute preparations for the Homecoming Weekend.

Rafferty, in addition to his duties as leader of the class of '60, is general chairman for the first senior social weekend of the semester which will be capped by a jazz concert Sunday afternoon in the Fieldhouse featuring the widely-renowned Dukes of Dixieland.

Rafferty will also serve as emcee at the affair.

Rafferty's emergence as an active campus figure was nothing sudden. In May of his freshman year he ran for Student Council on the "Four For 1960" ticket and was elected along with Tom Moakley, and Ron McGray. "Paul Iffland, infamous president of Cloister A.C., was our only casualty", reminisced Rafferty.

"Bwana, Bwana"

After a large summer at Ocean City, N. J., Rafferty returned to the campus just in time to yell "Bwana, Bwana," and "What do you eat" at a large bewildered freshman class.

Once orientation period was over, Rafferty stuffed his White hat into camphor and along with Iffland handled ("Maybe you should say mishandled") tickets for the Sophomore Cotillion.

Junior year for Rafferty got off to an impressive start as Delta Pi Mu appointed him to the board of trustees for the Joyce Kiely mile.

Asked what sort of official duties this entailed, Rafferty quipped, "We paid all the bills."

Active Junior Year

Rafferty also was a member of the junior class steering committee and co-chair-Junior Dinner Dance.

In May of last semester the personable Rafferty ran for and was elected to the presidency of the class of '60.

Fulfilling Promises

Judging from his intensive and successful campaign to secure the Dukes for a concert, Rafferty is well on his way to fulfilling his promise, of the "best senior class ever."

In addition to his full campus schedule, Rafferty finds time to "be gainfully employed" as a bank teller at Beneficial Savings Gank on City Line Avenue.

He resides at 6050 Overbrook Avenue, Philadelphia.

Council Making Contracts For New Forum Speakers

The Committee for Academic Affairs announced last week its tentative plans for the five remaining forums to be held following the successful forum discussing Mr. Khrushchev's visit to the United States.

The Committee has contacted the Council Against Communist Aggression and the Intercollegiate Society of Individualists to inaugurate their program.

Setting the months of the coming forums as December, February, March and April, Eileen Greyson, member of the Academic Affairs Committees, voiced the committee's intention to present a diversified policy concerning the topics and the proceedure at each forum.

It is hoped that various speakers, who have personally come in contact with the topic, will be available, and plans are being made to secure the services of William Buckly, the editor of the National Review.

A series of two or three forums on one topic will be presented but not in succession in order that they shall not be too specific and limiting.

This is also in policy with the forms of programming which will include panels and debates in addition to the usual guest speaker—question and answer periods.

The guest speakers who have had personal contact with the subject under consideration will be expected to give the audience an exacting account and answer all questions from primary information.

The plans, however, for these speakers are not yet settled due to the uncertain schedule of the forums.

The matter was brought before the Administration last Wednesday evening of the Student Faculty Board. Rev. Joseph Gildea, OSA, was presented with the proposal by the Committee at that time.

Spirit Committee Plans Army Trip

Mammoth plans for the November 7 West Point student trip via buses are now in the making according to Bob Scalia and Frank DeMaio, members of the Spirit Committee and organizers of the sojourn.

Scalia says, "Although these plans have been underway since the Student Council's approval last May, they will become a reality only through the cooperation of the Student Body."

Included among the plans and hopes of Scalia and DeMaio, will be a more organized seating arrangement in the stadium to corporate the rousing cheers of Villanova rooters.

The cheerleaders, headed by Chuck Kelly, will be present to boost the morale of the team and the crowd.

One of the more energetic cheerleaders, incognito as a Wildcat, will also be present to instill more growl into the Villanova players.

In the event of a successful 'bus-riders' turnout the Spirit Committee will provide buses and make all arrangements for any future student trips involving a Villanova team.

Link Hallowell, President of Belle Masque, discusses group's new play "Bonds of Interest" with members in informal meeting.

Masque Plans Announced

"The Bonds of Interest," by Jacinto Benevente, was selected as this year's production of Belle Masque.

Last Monday evening, also, saw the introduction of the new officers by Rev. William E. Farrell, OSA.

They are: Lincoln Hallowell, pres.; Mike Keating, treasurer; Connie Donahue, secretary; Jim Lynch, social director; John McGarry, S. C. representative.

Hallowell used the occasion to point out: "We try to put on that kind of show which best appeals to the students. I personally feel that we have selected the right show."

Stage crews, under the direction of Mr. Bernard Coyne, should be finished by Nov. 1, and ready for opening night, Wednesday Nov. 18. The show will run through to Sunday Nov. 22.

Nov. 13 Publication Date For 27th "Villanova Engineer"

Harry Seigfeldt, editor of the VILLANOVA ENGINEER announced that the first issue will be made available on Friday, November 13.

This issue is to contain as feature a story by senior C.E. Jim Stykes on the new bridge between Staten Island and Brooklyn.

Also to be included are a story on the current series of atomic submarines by senior E.E. Paul Smilgen and two more stories of as-yet-unannounced content.

Further, Dean Morehouse will include a letter of welcome to the class of 1963 and there will be a two-page picture spread on the latest developments in the different fields of engineering.

This year's staff includes, besides the editor, Stanley Ciesielski as business manager, Joseph Lauzon, associate editor, Charles Ubile, assistant editor, Dennis Swift, copy editor, Lee Christinsen, art editor, Donald McKenzie, circulation manager, Joe Perozziello, photo editor, and William Galm, office manager.

Harry Seigfeldt

Editor Siegfeldt would like to repeat that anyone from any school here on campus can work on the "Villanova Engineer".

Council To Handle Retreats This Year

Rev. Norbert Whitley, OSA, chaplain has recently announced that the administration of weekend retreats will be handled this year by the Religious Affairs Committee of the Student Council.

John B. Castano and Tom LoCasale are co-chairmen of the committee.

At present, plans have been made for two weekend retreats on January 29-30 and February 5-7. Transportation to the Pope Pius X Retreat House in Blockwood, N. J., the site of these retreats, will be by bus.

Plans for engaging the Malvern Retreat House for these exercises are underway at present, also. Retreats here,however, would be held with another group due to their extensive bookings.

These retreats, which are to be at the students' expense, will fulfill the university regulation that all students attend one retreat per year.

Attendence forms are now available in the Student Council Office. Students are requested to make plans to attend as soon as possible, since a minimum of 100 students will be allowed to attend these retreats.

Co-chairman Castano said this week, "I believe that these retreats have been scheduled at the best possible time to accomodate the interested student. The committee hopes that many will take advantage of the opportunity offered."

Fine Arts Course Revived By Student-Faculty Board

The possibility of reviving a course in Fine Arts at Villanova was one of the major topics of discussion at last Wednesday's Student-Faculty Board meeting.

The Board, composed of members of both the administration and the student body, seemed unanimous in their approval of such a course. A course in the Fine Arts, however, would have to be initiated on a trial basis, they agreed.

Too Small Enrollment

It was noted that a similar course did appear in the Villanova curriculum several years ago, but its enrollment was not sufficient to warrant its continuation.

It was brought to the Board's attention that when the course was previously offered, there were only 11 enrolled during the fall semester and five during the spring semester. Ironically, only three of the original 11 were men.

The Board delayed further consideration of the proposal until its mechanics could be investigated. The prospects of such a course, however, seem very hopeful to the Board.

Possible letters of recognition for those students who make the Dean's list was also discussed. Such recognition could be confirmed either by individual letters or by notations made at the bottom of semester report forms.

Grant Recognition

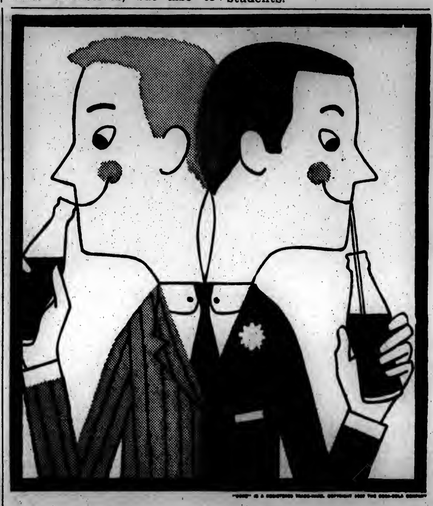
Ken Kraemer explained that "these letters would grant recognition not only to the students themselves, but also to their parents, who are equally deserving, since, in many cases, they are footing a good part of the bill."

Father Gildea suggested that the possibilities of such letters be looked into.

In closing, Hoffman stated that "this was the most successful Student-Faculty meeting I have ever had the pleasure of attending."

The Student-Faculty Committee is composed of Rev. Joseph Gildea, OSA, Vice-President of Academic Affairs, Mr. Edward Murray, and Mr. Ray Cummings, Villanova faculty members; and Tom Hoffman, Neil Drislane, Eileen Greyson, and Ken Kraemer, Student Council members.

Subject To Approval



The purpose of the committee is to investigate, discuss, and take action on university and student problems, and also enactments and recommendations of the Student Council.

All decisions of the committee are subject to the approval of the President of the University.

127 Students Now In Part-Time Division

The Undergraduate Part-Time Division has commenced the 59-60 academic year, with 127 students attending Villanova for the first time.

The evening session is operating with a total enrollment of 847. Saturday classes, held at Hallahan High School in Philadelphia, are attended by 407 students.

Administration Help

The Student Council is just beginning to feel the benefit of broad cooperation by the Administration, but it is definitely there Ask any of the officers who sat across the conference table from Father Gildea or Father Kemme last week, at those meetings where the Council and the Administration confronted each other for the first time this year.

The picture as presented is far removed from the illusion many of us have of an unyielding, stubborn, unsympathetic Administration. Especially ask Council Chairman Tom Hoffman.

After the Student-Administration meeting with Father Kemme Wednesday afternoon, Hoffman happily mused that this was the "best meeting in four years."

His joy over the meeting was eclipsed only by his contentment over the Student-Faculty meeting later that nigh. Here he repeated himself and called it "the best meeting in four years."

Out of the first meeting came the surprisingly prompt approval by Father Kemme for the Council to initiate weekend movies on campus. On each of the other points, the negotiaters were tacitly assured of swift Administration deliberation, on such matters as the student-tutor program, the forum project, and the food poll.

From evidence we have observed, the Administration wants to stay keenly attuned to student affairs. The Council should utilize this cooperation, and not take advantage of it by carrying petty gripes to the meetings. There appears to be slight danger of this, however, judging from Council maturity exhibited thus far.

Our president, Father Klekotka, set the keynote of cooperation by appearing personally at the last Congress meeting, where he pledged support to a responsible Council. And it is gratifying to note that his appearance wasn't an interruption in a busy schedule, but a deliberate part of his schedule.

Father Klekotka also graced the first meeting of the International Relations Society with his presence, an unprecedented action. It's a healthy harmony.

Think It Over

The Student Council tonight considers a delicate move. Momentous might be a more apt description. It is the most significant proposal that the Council has devised since the advent of student government on campus. It will probe the wisdom of instituting a Student Council treasury.

The idea appears to be a bundle of benefits, both for the students and for Villanova. This newspaper will no doubt enthusiastically support the entire motion because of the obvious advantages it contains, both instant and long range.

But we will first give the treasury motion a thorough inspection, weighing each of its items on a sensative scale. It would be advisable for every Council member, indeed every student, to evaluate it also. It is too revolutionary an idea to pass over hurriedly.

In essence, a Council treasury is a must for any respectable undergraduate government. Too many good schools have a treasury for us to be without one. The central notion is therefore needed, but the fringe areas of tonight's budget motion should justly be pondered carefully.

The VILLANOVAN will report the full details of the motion as it is carried through the legislative process. We will also run an occasional analysis.

It is the duty of each student to keep himself informed on the matter, to mold his own opinion, and to file this opinion with his representative.

Mail Bag Raiders

Beginning with this issue, the VILLANOVAN'S circulation is being increased to accomodate the increased enrollment. In past weeks, some students have taken to rifling U.S. mail bags of exchange copies of the paper. We point out that, technically, this is "robbing the mails," a federal offense. and we hope that the increased circulation alleviates the situation.

"THAT'S OUR LITTLE GIRL ON THAT FLOAT."

Letters To The Editor

Peretti Throws Speers

To the Editor:

As Mr. William Speers persists in his obviously incorrect statement "that the only worthwhile activities are the Villanovan, the Student Council and Beta Gamma," I feel obligated to formally rebuke his insidious remarks.

On behalf of the staff, which will spend long hours producing a high quality annual, I believe this is necessary.

The Belle Air is the only permanent record of the year's activities. It is something which is valued and of lasting benefit. One hardly wraps garbage with it.

The time, thought, effort which goes into achieving the purpose of this publication certainly make it worthwhile and deserving of student support.

Mr. Speers feels that it would not be missed. If that is actually the case then we are perhaps wasting our time and should forget about publishing the 1960 Belle Air.

However, we are not affected by such picayune comments and will continue to waste our time in order that we may produce the most outstanding Belle Air in 20 years.

Deplores Hanging

To the Editor:

In reference to the burning-in-effigy by some of the "students", it would be wise for these people to remember that, in reality, the varsity athletic program is meant primarily to attract bodies to the campus as "students" by keeping VU in the sports news.

Some think that these games are played solely for the entertainment of the fans, an idea as wrong as thinking the monastery can be pressured into anything such as changing coaches by students embarrassing their school.

Sending in statistics to the VILLANOVAN proves nothing more than that the sender has time to waste. This "blame-the-coach" attitude is widespread in "all sports," college as well as professional.

Actually this indicates extremely shallow minds, completely ignorant of the situation, searching for an "instant" solution to all of the team's problems.

C and F Not So Bad

To the Editor

"To Be, or Not to Be"

That is the question. Whether 'tis nobler to look at a situation with intelligence and realism or to be prejudiced and childish. The situation, in this case, is the recent bombardment of C and F by certain members of the VILLANOVAN.

Intelligence and realism are two of the elements which, it is hoped—if not assumed, a student should possess—especially if he is on the staff of the school newspaper. Prejudice and childishness, it seems, have been substituted instead. I will explain!

In order to criticise the C and F school and its students, one should look at the situation subjectively. Let's face it, the curriculum there is not perfect by any means.

BUT who makes up the curriculum? The students? Of course not; "the administration". Therefore, why doesn't this prodigious critic of C and F have the sense or guts to criticise with intellect and foresight instead of useless GAB, GAB, and more GAB.

Another point of criticism lately has been the short morning hours of many C and F students and how they leave Villanova grounds as soon as classes are over.

Again, let's look at the situation more closely. Isn't it ayparant to "Whomever it may concern" that many students have to work their way through college and hold down part time jobs and that these students may have a tight schedule to keep.

I hope that in future editions, the VILLANOVAN does not lower its standards by allowing this prejudice and childishness to appear in it. There is so much in the world and in our collegiate environment that needs intelligent introspection.

I hope that those on the staff use their columns to enlighten themselves, by research, and the student body, by good columns, editorials, and criticisms.

"What do you think of unlimited cuts for a student with a 3.00 cumulative or better.?"

Unless he is a genius, the student who attains a 3.00 cumulative average has probably put in a considerable amount of time and effort. Other than having his name published in the Villanovan twice a year and a sense of personal achievement, he receives little else regarding his scholastic accomplishment. For this reason the idea of unlimited cuts would seem to be a deserving reward for those who excel in their particular field of studies.

Robert DiRita, E.E., '62

My answer would be a negative one, for if a student should achieve such an average and be granted the suggested privilege, then his attitude towards attending class would tend to be lax. He would be placing disaster into his own path in taking a chance on losing interest in his studies and eventually causing him to fail one or more of his courses.

Pete Villa, Psych., '61

If a student has a 3.00 he has reached the point where he can cope with any and all of the problems pertaining to his studies. Since he has shown this ability to meet any subject he now realizes that it is possible to continue this high grade performance and will in the future continue to strive for this quality in his work. Unlimited cuts would then be to his advantage as being a source of extra time to prepare for one of his weaker subjects.

Bob Viola, Arts, '60

I think anybody with a 3.00 has already proven himself scholastically. This doesn't mean that they could then take it easy. There should be some sort of control over the administering of the cut program. For instance, teachers should have a list of all the students in their course with a 3.00 or better. When one of these students falls below the standard in class, his unlimited privilege should be taken from him until he restores his proper grade.

William N. Walsh, Educ., '60

You're going to college to learn, not to have a good time and part of college life is to attend your classes. It's not a matter of choice, or at least it shouldn't be. When you have to go out to work someday your employer's not going to ask you if you know your job and when you say "yes," expect him to say "well then, you can go home and we'll pay you as long as we know that you're capable of the work." The present cut system I think is adequate enough.

WVIL Must Change Format; Frat "Bigs" Fight For "Littles"

bill speers

Villanova radio station, WVIL, is undoubtly one of the most progressive organizations on campus. Technically, there are in excellent shape with a professional teletype, which relays news from all over the world, a $2,000 console — acquired last year; and two $750 tape recorders, which will arrive in the near future.

Business-wise, the station is thriving and its membership looms as one of the campus's largest. Still, WVIL does not capture the listening audience it most certainly deserves. The qestion is—why?

The uniqueness of WVIL, lies in the fact that it is the only camus organization that is in direct competition with its professional counterparts. The Belle Masque Society could hardly be said to be in competition with a touring company of "My Fair Lady", anymore than the Villanopan is vieing with the "Daily News" for readers.

On one side of the dial, WVIL faces WIP, and on the other WOR. And along with the likes of WIBG and WPEN, our local station faces rather formidable opponents in the field of radio listenership.

But the station is not without its advantages. Since it is not under the economic pressures of the local commerical stations, WVIL can afford to experiment. Instead of trying to yell louder than WIBG and softer than WFIL at the same time, it would behove the station to install newer new ideas into its repertoire.

More of the conterversial entertainment shows, such as "Digest", have strong audience drawing power. Also, more attention to Jazz (of which only one station in the area is entirely devoted—WHAT) would pull in a vaster audience. Perhaps, different nights set aside solely for one type of music, would pull in a greater number of listeners.

In the field of experimentation, the production of student radio plays—written, directed and produced by the students —would certainly lend more local interest to the station. More imaginative publicity, covering a wider campus area with more frequency should also be forthcoming if WVIL is ever to reach its full potentialities.

Friction within a fraternity! Couldn't exist? Take another look. Lambda Kappa Delta, one of the more noble campus organizations, as of Monday, is undergoing a terrific inter-battle for survival.

It seems that little brothers were distributed among the club members, when it was discovered that a few seniors were alas, left without little brothers. Therefore it was decided that the sophomores would be relieved of their little brothers while the holy senior members were given two little brothers a piece.

Dissension has reigned ever since, with the sophomores leading the offensive. A LKD conclave will convene at Brownie's this afternoon in an effort to resolve the situation.

V.U. Coed-Protected, Inspected, Neglected

Note: Several weeks ago, an artten by one of the more talented icle appeared in this paper writcoeds, in which she prototyped the male student. Heeding the prototyped the male student. Heeding the summons of the gods o fhumor and fun. I would like to answer her article.

THE VILLANOVA COED is a complex creature, a being with four distinct personalities—the freckled freshman, whose first thought is, "Oh, they're animals;" the wiser sophomore who remarks casually, "They are cute animals, though;" the winsome junior might reply sadly, "Yes, but they're the same old animals;" while the lofty, somewhat matronly, seldom seen senior states, "what animals?"

Beginning with Orientation rushing past Capping, and on through St. Agnes, Misericordia and just plain misery, down to graduation, she almost never lacks for attention. The frustrated frosh circumspeck her, the White Hats protect her, the juniors inspect her, and most unhappy day, the seniors neglect her.

Her hectic hours consist of rushing from the Lounge to Mendel, back to the Lounge, to Vasey, back to the Lounge, to the library, back to the Lounge, to Mendal, all the while darting and dashing daringly and daintily among the milling hordes of MALES!

THE COED'S hurried lunch is made more miserably by at least seventeen eager males, crowding around her, annoying amusing, and sometimes even amazing her. During the football season, she is pestered to lend her matric card, flattered if asked to accompany it. During the winter, she is a dance date, in the spring a picnic possible.

The young lady's campus existence is a simplicity of necessity. Without her, make-up departments would collapse, typewriters would cease chattering and begin to gather dust, ticket sales in the Pie Shoppe would diminish, the secretaries would have an even change, and no one would bother to eat in the day-hop cafeteria. —Don McCoy

EXPRESSION, the new Villanovan "art" feature introduced in these pages two weeks ago, will make its initial appearence next week.

Although the responsep to our call for material has been fairly successful, the editors have decided to expand the scope of EXPRESSION. Besides poetry and art work, vignettes and short, short stories will also be accepted.

Any work that is published will be awarded a cash prize of five dollars. After publication, all rights become those of the Villanovan.

Judges for EXPRESSION will be Tom Wolf, editor-in-chief; Tony Macklin, associate editor; and Bill Speers, feature editor.

Material can be submitted to Tom Wolf, in Room CJF Sheehan Hall, or to Bill Speers in the Villanovan Office.

Vendors, Cold Fail To Hinder The Chris and Mahalia Charm

tony macklin

We went to the Phillies' jazz concert last Thursday at Connie Mack Stadium and we thought we had the wrong date or the wrong place. It was lonely.

It was embarrassing to see the musicians walking out to the bandstand at second base, looking up counting the tiny turnout lost in the vast ball park.

The lack of a crowd was not the only drawback. The weather was another, it was cold and foot-numbing. And the greatest fiasco since Mamie Van Doren tried to exylain Jack Kerouac, was the vendors.

Vendors Poor

The vendors were somewhat frustrated for they weren't allowed to hawk their goods with their usual vocal abandon while the entertainment was going on. However they did parade through the stands waving their goods and whispering "get your hotdog sandwich."

Peanuts, hot chocolate, cocacola, pop corn and jazz. Brother.

The funny thing is that the show was a good one, or as good as one could expect in a ball park in the middle of October.

The sound, by Miles Rosenthal who handles Newport, was surprisingly fine. The lighting was effective and the entertainment was excellent.

High Cost

Still $4.50, the price of boxes, is a lot to pay for five acts. It it hadn't been for Food Fair

CHRIS CONNER
To Move Indoors Next

which gave tickets with purchases it would have been a concert for vendors alone.

Chico Hamilton, Mahalia Jackson, and Count Basie were the most effective acts Thursday.

Gospel singer Mahalia Jackson was the greatest crowd pleaser but even she needs people. Her spirit and warmth were extremely infectious but the crowd was too scattered for even her to do much with them.

There were no acts like the Kingstons or the Dukes of Dixieland, not particularly revered in jazz circles but crowd pleasers. They would have helped.

Others Successful

Outdoor concerts this past year, other than in Philadelphia, have met with great success. They have averaged 10, 000 a night. Detroit, Randall's Island, and Chicago have all greeted outdoor jazz most favorably.

Boston held a festival in Fenway Park, also a ball park. It drew 22,000 in three days despite a first night rain.

Even with 22,000 the Boston show lost $1,000.

I don't know what happened Friday night at Connie Mack Stadium, but one thing is certain I'm glad I didn't have a piece of this one.

S. C. Prexy Issues Call For Letters In Solving Problems

tom hoffman

IN THIS ISSUE of the Villanovan, you will see that the Student Council had its first official visits with the Administration and Faculty.

HOFFMAN

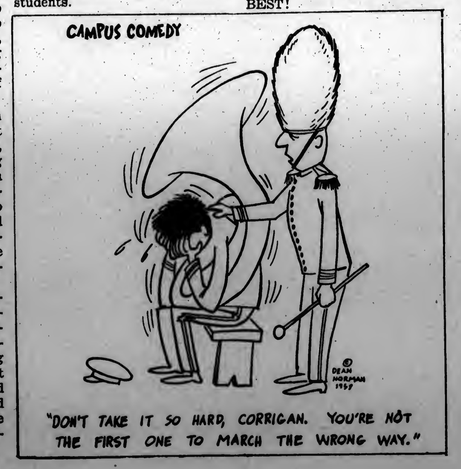
From all indications, student relations with these groups seem better than ever. This is probably due to the increasing amount of maturity that the members of the Student Council are exhibiting.

This is an important factor because to gain the respect of the Administration and faculty we must have a view toward the further improvement of Villanova and all of its phases.

The Student Council desires to be the best in the school's history and from all indications they may very well be the case —if everybody keeps going at the pace that they have.

We have problems! This is not unusual, for every organization or group has problems. But we are an organization representing a student body of approximately four thousand students. We must gear our programs to include all of these students.

What can we do? This is my question to you, the student body . . . I would like to see you present your ideas in letters to the editor in the next Villanovan.



You think of plans that we could use for the student body.

I ENCOURAGE all students to ponder this problem and consider "big" things that we can do. If any faculty or administration members are interested, I also encourage you to write to the editor and contribute to the continued betterment of the Student Council.

Tonight, the question of a Student Council treasury comes to the floor of the Congress. Again, all students, faculty and administration are invited to attend this meeting at 6:30 p.m. in the East Lounge of Dougherty Hall.

We can never be any better. than the student body that we represent. How can you expect the Student Council members to be more interested and active in the student body shows in themselves. We want your help! Come to our meeting tonight and show that you want VILLANOVA'S STUDENT BODY TO BE THE BEST!

"DON'T TAKE IT SO HARD, CORRIGAN. YOU'RE NOT THE FIRST ONE TO MARCH THE WRONG WAY."

Mr. B Continues To Scream As Editor Drinks His Cream

natalie attired

Bocci-players and bagel-beaters—Let's go to press!!!

HELP WANTED — Jobs are now available for circuit riders to repair the miles of campus fencing. Must have own horse. 1060—Mr. R. should not be made to bear the brunt of the attack. Mr. B. deserves much of the criticism. Mr. B. is responsible for the description of the game and therefore for the impression the home fans receive of the team.

Sonny Stein could do better.

MEDIC!!! Lay up to the Belle Air office immediately! The editor-in-chief has developed ulcers and is in need of tranquillizers, more money and sympathy. (What actually is needed is more indians and less chiefs).

HOT MIXER — Last Friday evening, Chestnut Hill College sponsored a 'Night In The Tropics' and meant it. It was so hot, I thought the place was going to be raided. It would have reminded you of home—if you had lived in a boiler room.

GUTTY SCRIMMAGE — Congratulations, once again, to the Cloisters A.C. for their close but coveted victory over the Wayne Webels. A member of the Wayne Webels was quoted as saying after the game—"If recruiting won't do it, what will?" Answer: TEAM PLAY.

PROGRESS — Realizing the permanence of the Villanova co-eds the Chemistry Dept. has just completed engraving two thousand test tubes with His and Hers. Ah, what is more esthetic: NaCl, Dr. Quam and thou!!!

McGILLICUDDY — Rosemont has had so many jazz concerts that people are beginning to call it Connie Mack Stadium. (Think about that awhile). Anyway, they certainly have a 'bull-pen'; and all those girls would like a 'diamond'. But, the one thing they never heard of is 'getting to second base'.

HOMECOMING — This Saturday the Alumni will return to the Valley Forge Motel for their Homecoming. It is reported that they are trying to rent a bus to bring them to the game.

You'll see them on campus. They will holler "twenty-three skiddoo" and will expect a reply. Be very cautious in engaging in a conversation with them. They might ask embarrassing questions like . . . "What happened to Belle Air Hall?" Then you must explain that it was torn down in order to make way for more mud. So far this year we have had more than our share of 'mud'.

PRATTLE PROVERB: An apple a day—costs five cents.

"Give it to me straight, Mack: Will there be anything left after taxes?"

THE SUITCASE . . .

"Boopity Doop Oop" Dig That Sound

SOME PEOPLE like music, I like rock and roll. Excuse me, I "dig" it. Please don't misunderstand me, I appreciate music also, but to me rock and roll says things. True, not especially intelligent things, but at least it will talk to me; genuine music won't even do that, neither will genuine music lovers—at least not any more. You see, at the last meeting of the Opera Classica society they asked if anyone wanted to hear some particular classic.

I requested them, quite innocently I assure you, to play "Don't be Cruel" by Mr. E. Presley. Go ahead and scoff, but "Don't be Cruel" happens to be a classic and you don't have to take my word for it—ask Joe Niagara or better yet the ultimate word, Alan Freed himself.

The slow ones don't get me, it's "big beat" discs which are, to say the least, the most. It's . . . just like someone was pounding on your chest with a sledge hammer, like I mean it "does" something to you! As a close friend of mine (I won't mention his name, because you'll recognize him as the student council president) would say, "Boopity scoop oopa doop oop" with the accent on the first oop and the following doop.

I SUPPOSE I really shouldn't confess my affinity for rock and roll, I'm an English major you know. English majors don't like rock and roll; English majors don't like anything; they're cynics. They're not really cynics, they're just intrinsically lazy and cynicism offers the easiest course of inaction. But don't get me wrong, I kind of like being a cynic, it gives one a little class, if you follow me, sort of like being an individualist.

I'm an individualist too. I pal around with a lot of other individualists. I guess one of the big reasons we hang together is because we all pretty much think the same. Everyone should be individualists. I'm serious, the only true freedom is found in individualism. Ask any individualist, he'll tell you.

Well I guess that's about all for today's column, I was going to offer the ten rock and roll records which I consider to be the all time best . . . or noisiest anyway, same thing; but unfortunately after "Don't be Cruel" and "Ain't that a Shame" I couldn't remember any more titles.

I have all the sounds batting around in my head but no names. Sorry. Skipping what the French say in a situation like this, I'd like to leave you with one thought: don't think for yourself, be an individualist.

"TAKE ME ALONG" . . .

Eugene O'Neill Play Glistens As Nostalgic Musical Comedy

Jim Turner

IT IS GENERALLY known that Eugene O'Neill wrote only one "happy" play in his long and distinguished career, that one being "Ah Wilderness".

This warm, amusing, and tender story of young love, and its effect on a typical American family in the year 1906, has been faithfully and brilliantly adapted by Joseph Stein and Robert Russell into a stunning musical comedy "Take Me Along."

This show has to be one of the finest musical comedies to come along in many years. It certainly boasts one of the most exciting casts ever assembled for the musical stage. Neither time nor space could do full justice to such featured stars as Walter Pidgeon, Eileen Herlie, Una Merkel, Robert Morse, and Jackie Gleason.

Gleason is a revelation in the part of "Uncle Sid", a role that could have been written just for him. Although the "Uncle" role was a minor one in the O'Neill original, it has been expanded for Gleason's talents, without losing the flavor and characterization that was originally intended.

HE STOPS the show almost every appearance. Notably, in his hilarious duet with Miss Herlie in "I Get Embarrassed;" and in a soft shoe rendition with Pidgeon to the title song.

Although he is a stand-out and definitely captures his audience at every turn, it is to his credit and that of the show's director, Peter Grenville, that he never gets out of character, and gives a controlled—and at times—a very sensitive performance.

Walter Pidgeon, as Nat Miller, the head of the simple family, is likewise magnificent. He lends dignity and charm to his role and possesses a surprisingly fine singing voice. His most important number—"Staying Young"—is beautiful and truly moving.

Eileen Herlie as Aunt Lil, the spinster school teacher who has been in love with Uncle Sid for over 16 years, is excellent; and her many scenes with Gleason are among the very best.

As Richard Miller, the 16 year-old boy who "discovers" love and is actually the pivotal character of the entire show, Robert Morse is superb. Here is a young man who has captured all the nuances and boyish characteristics, I am sure Eugene O'Neill wanted this part to have.

• ★ ★ ★

HE IS TREMENDOUS in his role, and probably will be hailed as the "find" of the year. He certainly deserves all the praise showered upon him. Remember that name—Robert Morse.

The music by Bob Merrill is in keeping with the story and at no time does it impede or slow down the action. In fact, it enhances and tends to advance the plot. "Take Me Along"; a fine ballad, called "Nine O'Clock"; and "Staying Young"; are just three of the numbers that you will be hearing quite a lot of after the show opens on Broadway.

The dancing, the costumes, the staging, are all first-rate; and deserve much more attention then I am giving them. It is a beautiful excursion into nostalgia; a bit of Americana that should be seen by all who love the musical theatre.

BMOC's In; Rosies In; But Bising's Out

jim mcateer

A FORTNIGHT AGO, after a few pointless introductory remarks, I made a half-hearted attempt to acquaint the frosh with our fair city, Philly. This week I will continue my one-man campaign against ignorance and illiteracy by coming closer to home and revealing some of the darker secrets of succeeding as a BMOC (or LMOC, or if you're really in bad shape, secrets for succeeding simply as a MOC).

McATEER

To do this, I must first paraphrase that most excellent tome, "The In and Out Book" (Viking Press—an excellent book—buy it) and explain that all things are either IN or OUT. Anything that is not IN is OUT.

A thing may be IN for one of three reasons: It is an ancient, revered, worthwhile establishment (example—Alumni Hall); It is something rare and obscure (example—any form of sweetness and light during exam week); It is so far OUT that even OUT people won't touch it (example—a philosophy major).

COMING TO Villanova is, of course, about as far IN as you can get, but acting impressed with being on campus is OUT.

Rosemont et al. are extremely IN, but it is OUT to admit it. Girls generally are IN. Some, of course, are more IN than others.

BMOC's are IN, but anyone who works too hard at being IN is automatically OUT. OUT people (campus clods) who are sincere OUT people are IN.

Joining campus activities is IN, but if your studies suffer, you are OUT. The LYNX is especially IN because it is so far OUT, but very few people seem to know that.

ARTS STUDENTS are OUT because they refuse to admit that anyone else is IN, but because they decide the boundaries between IN and OUT, Arts men are actually IN.

Bill Speers is way IN (although some people might doubt it), and Jim Bising is just as far OUT, but he's OUT in a very IN manner.

If you are beginning to get the idea you are IN—now let's have a short quiz on the matter:

If someone asked you "How's Tom," would he be referring to Tom Hoffman, Tom Collins, or Tom Dooly? Answer: riddles of this sort are OUT, and in checking the space left to me, I see I'm OUT too.

"It's all right to hold your head up—but don't turn up your nose."

COMING SOON

Rosemont Planning Oscar Wilde Farce

The Jest and Gesture Dramatics Society of Rosemont College will present its annual fall production on November 13, 14, and 15 at 8:30 P.M. The play chosen is Oscar Wilde's famous farce, "The Importance of Being Earnest."

This comedy, considered by many to be one of the finest and funniest plays ever written in the English language, concerns the superficial manners and morays of romance and courtship at the turn of the 20th century.

Alan Willig Stars

Rehearsals have recently begun under the direction of Miss Cecile Sullivan. Alan Willig, senior Villanova English major and cast member of several Belle Masque productions, will play Jack Worthing; and two Villanova graduates, Clemment Birch and John Cannon, will also have leading roles.

In addition, Lynda Lynch, Margaret Brown, and James MacMahon, all of whom have appeared in other Rosemont and Villanova plays, will be featured.

Ticket information will be available at a later date.

New Villanova Directory Tells All; Also Defines and Refines

By Josephine Morello

Here we are in the middle of October, and we've been back to school for a month. Of course, this is nothing to the seasoned veterans, but to the newly initiated frosh who have so far only gotten their feet wet in the whirlpool of college life, it is a milestone. By now, they have been brainwashed, orientated, and instructed to the point that no corner of the campus should escape their knowledge. Still, it is a good bet to assume that much has passed unnoticed. In fact, many of the upperclassmen have yet to become acquainted with various aspects of V.U. With this in mind, the following Villanova Directory has been compiled.

Classes — Educational gatherings held at periodic intervals throughout the day, thereby disrupting the entire university schedule.

Football games — Functions held weekly to teach Fundamentals of Good Sportsmanship, 101 e.g., how to be good losers.

Lynchings — Activities held by those students who failed the course in Good Sportsmanship 101.

Basketball Games — Future events to teach Fundamentals of Good Sportsmanship 102, with special attention paid to the speculative topic, "How a Winner Behaves."

Pie Shoppe—Room located in Dougherty Hall which serves a variety of purposes:

(1) lab. for course in Social Relationships
(2) date bureau
(3) study hall
(4) discussion center
(5) occasionally, a cafeteria

Classroom Annex — White elephant of the campus which serves as a meeting place for classes when all else fails.

Alumni Hall—Dormitory situated between the Chapel and the Library. Although the name of the building has been corrupted to Animal House, one may believe that the latter is the proper title of the residence if he happens to hear the eerie sounds which usually emanate from this building.

New Science Building — A large conglomeration of dirt and wood which will someday form an important part of the campus. At present, however, it serves no purpose but to block the path to the post office.

Library—Building in which each student is forced to spend many long hours, and in which he becomes extremely proficient at filing and filling out forms.

Barry Hall—The Naval Science building in which the future leaders of the U.S.N. learn the difference between boats and ships.

Chemical Engineering Building—Building located next to Barry Hall. It is kept scrubbed and clean by the chem. engineers, and is enhanced by the elegant beauty of Mendel Pond.

Quadrangle—A vast expanse of blacktop placed between Sullivan and Sheehan Halls. Which is strictly a "No-Woman's-Land" after the class day is ended.

Commerce & Finance Building—A large, beautiful, spacious, modern building which, somehow, just made it within the bounds of the campus

Infirmary—A health building so far-removed from the beaten path that it can sometimes facilitate cures by virtue of its remoteness. A student who leaves the C&F with an incurable cold might easily develop curable pneumonia; the thought of the long walk could "heal" many insurance ills; and for those who are really sick and can't manage the walk, Bryn Mawr is just down the street.

Vasey Hall—The building with the white balconies which daily tempt the nurses to climb out and sigh, "O' Romeo, Romeo! wherefore art thou Romeo?"

Austin Hall—The dormitory which undoubtedly houses the student who will eventually stand beneath Vasey's balcony and answer the nurses' query with, "Down here! The grapevine broke."

Mendel Hall—The four-story "stay trim" building and sweatshop for science, arts, and engineering students.

Mendel Dormitory — The scourge of the freshman co-ed who really is looking for the chem. lab.—Honest!

Simpson, O'Dwyer, and Delurey Halls—Dormitories for off-campus residents.

Fedigan Hall—A dormitory advantageously situated for science and engineering students, and well-suited for N.R.O.T.C. members.

GRENDEL'S CAVE . . .

A Graduate's Dream: Patterns, Suburbs And Ranch Wagon

jim bising

ON THE PAVEMENT outside of Buckingham Palace a groove has been worn by the ceaseless, measured pacing of the regiments of guards, who protect the person of Her Majesty the Queen.

BISING

Various parts of this campus, once having been worn into grooved footpaths by the patter of studious feet, have since been covered with asphalt thereby making it easier for those who pass over the same spot at the same time each day, day after day, to fall into some nice "safe" routine upon graduation, an undemanding routine it is hoped, consisting of boarding a train in the morning at some pleasant, suburban location, traveling into the great metropolis with a host of other male creatures who think, dress, and conduct their lives in a pattern similar to one's own.

In the evening the process will result in becoming part of the mass exodus the commercial center leading back to the nice, pleasant, little station in the suburbs, where, as is often the custom, a healthy-looking sort of mate will be found behind the wheel of a ranchwagon.

New housing developments have been constructed with no more variety than the end producting of a canning factory.

INSTITUTIONS OF higher learning have erected dormitories, buildings intended to shelter and comfort a class of society which is supposed to have in its possession some aesthetic faculties, with the same view that a military commander might load a troopship . . . "How many warm bodies can I stuff in that thing without them permanently straining its structure or having them catch some sort of communicable disease?"

A BUILDING is a monument to an age, just as the great gothic cathedrals are still today a vibrant testimonial to the faith and devotional fervor of the middle ages, so should the buildings erected on and by the cultural and intellectual centers of the second half of this century reflect those virtues of this age which are worth preserving for the following generations.

All of us on this campus must be painfully aware of the local adaptation of the sign found on the outside of the World War I French freight cars . . . "Quarante hommes et huit chevaux." At present, the horses and oats have not arrived at north western corner of Ithan Avenue and the Lancaster Pike.

Undergrad Forum Resumes Lectures With Salisbury

The Villanova Forum, a series of lectures on topics of public interest, is being reinstituted on campus on October 28.

The Forum series, which began ten years ago but suffered a lapse during the past few years, is under the direction of Charles Bruderle, assistant Evening School dean.

Rev. Henry Weeks, O.S.A., religion department, Dr. Donald Gallagher, Philosophy department, and Eugene Ruane, director of public information, are the other committee members.

Harrison Salisbury of the New York Times staff will be the first speaker. Under the Forum's general theme, "The Challenge of Change," Salisbury will discuss political aspects of the general theme. The three other Forum sessions this year will feature speakers discussing educational, artistic, and scientific aspects of the theme.

In the past, such noted persons as Jacque Maritain, Elizabeth Bentley, Frank Sheed, Mortimor Adler, and Rev. John Courtney Murray, S.J., have spoken at the Forum.

Salisbury's lecture, which will be followed by a discussion period, will begin at 8 p.m. in Vasey Hall Auditorium. Forum lectures are open to the public free of charge.

Knights Commence Membership Drive

The Father Ludwig Council, 4609, of the Knights of Columbus is launching its membership campaign for the coming year, announced John Lasko, publicist.

Any Catholic man 18 or older is eligible for membership.

Anyone interested in joining the Knights should contact Rev. Norbert Whitley, O.S.A., chaplain, Dr. Robert S. O'Shea of the Philosophy Department, or John Williams in room 22 Sheehan Hall.

Lasko also announced that a first degree installation will be held early in November.

Law School Grads Score Perfectly In N.Y. Bar Exams

Word was received several days ago of the results of the New York State Bar examination given during the past summer.

The Villanova Law School sent three of this year's graduates to the New York Bar examinations, and all of them passed both parts of the examination.

The New York State Bar examination is given in two parts, one dealing with substantive law and the other with procedure. The over-all passing rate this year on the New York State Bar examination was fifty-one per cent.

This is the second successive year in which the Villanova Law School has scored one hundred per cent on the first try in the New York State Bar examination.

The all-time record of Villanova Law School graduates passing the New York State Bar examination of their first try is eighty-nine per cent.

Campus Movies Approved

Villanova will have movies on campus.

The motion was presented to Rev. Joseph Kemme at the Student-Administration last Wednesday and it received almost immediately consent.

In equal haste, the committee in charge, under Tom Natal, Jr., Ec., has scheduled the first show for October 30, "The Glenn Miller Story," starring James Stewart and June Allison.

No Girls

The Administration, in giving the green light to the project, made only one qualification: men only.

Starting on a semi-monthly basis, Natal is doubtful if the movies will be shown weekly, unless the idea becomes a "terrific success."

What would constitute a terrific success? Natal contends that "with 100 people at each performance, we will break even."

He adds that the Student Council is not in the entertainment business, and it is not out to score a financial success with the venture. "We're willing to suffer a minimum loss," he said.

Preceding the "Glenn Miller Story" on the 30th (a Friday evening) will be fifteen minutes of entertainment by the Villanovans, from 7:15 to 7:30, when the movie will begin.

The films will be secured from an undisclosed distributor for a reduced rental, and the projection equipment to be used belongs to the school.

One cinemascope movie is planned by the committee, for the last show in the series.

The project is under the general jurisdiction of the Student Union and Social Problems Committee of the Student Council.

Dr. Khouri Addresses First I.C.G. Meeting

The Intercollegiate Conference on Government (I.C.G.) held its first meeting of the year Oct. 7.

The highlight of the meeting was a speech by Dr. Fred J. Khouri, of the Political Science Dept., and moderator of the I.C.G.

He emphasized the fact that the I.C.G. should keep its politics clean rather than resort to the so called "back-room" politics.

The president of the Student Council, Tom Hoffman, also addressed the meeting. He offered the services of the Student Council in any manner that might aid the I.C.G.

Larry Ruth, chairman of the local chapter of the I.C.G., outlined the plans for the chapter and at the same time appointed four chairmen for the newly formed Standing Committees.

Representatives Of IRS Attend CCUN Conference

An invitation was accepted by Joseph Pultorak, president of I.R.S., to send several delegates to a conference of the Collegiate Council for the United Nations.

The purpose was to establish an interest and structure for the C.C.U.N. within the already organized I.R.S.'s on the campuses of the Mid-Atlantic universities.

This conference, held at Beaver College, was attended by delegates from Drexel, Temple, Penn, Chestnut Hill, and Villanova (C. Chin, W. McClure, W. Williams, J. Driscoll).

Featured, were an interview with Sudir Makin, an Indian scholar at Penn, and a lecture on the, "Transferance of the functions of the U.N.," by Eric Valters, a member of the Secretaries of the U. N.

As it stands, consideration of the proposals will be a major point in the next I.R.S. assembly tomorrow.

Dear Dr. Frood:

Dr. Frood, Ph. T.T.

DR. FROOD'S MORAL OF THE MONTH

Most college students today do not know the meaning of the word "adversity." Those who do are just a handful of English majors.

Dear Dr. Frood: When raccoon coats swept the campus, I wore a polo coat. When the English bobby cape came in, I wore a raccoon coat. I'm always in last year's style. How come?

Dated

Dear Dated: This is an anxiety complex arising out of being a "late-diaper" baby.

Dear Dr. Frood: I am irrationally, incalculably, irrevocably in love with a girl on campus. How can I tell her?

Lovesick

Dear Lovesick: Use small words.

Dear Dr. Frood: When I listen to stupid people or read anything boring, I fall asleep. What can I do?

Superior

Dear Superior: Yours is an extremely difficult prob mfh zzz

Dear Dr. Frood: How can I leave my husband without making him happy?

Prof's Spouse

Dear Prof's Spouse: Leave a note saying you'll be back.

DR. FROOD TELLS WHO HOLDS HIS CIGARETTE HOW

I have noticed that the solid, conservative type carries his cigarette between his first two fingers. The nonconformist carries it locked in the bend of his arm. The self-conscious type holds his lighted cigarette in his pocket. The most intelligent species of all carry Lucky Strike (usually between their lips).

Dear Dr. Frood: Our library is full of "no smoking" signs. When I want a Lucky, I have to go outside. Is this right?

Furious

Dear Furious: It's monstrous. But think of the poor souls who go outside only to smoke brand X or Y or Z.

Dear Dr. Frood: Boys are always whistling at me. Do you think my clothes are too snug?

Prudence

Dear Prudence: It's impossible to tell without a picture. Send one. Please.

COLLEGE STUDENTS SMOKE MORE LUCKIES THAN ANY OTHER REGULAR!

When it comes to choosing their regular smoke, college students head right for fine tobacco. Result: Lucky Strike tops every other regular sold. Lucky's taste beats all the rest because L.S./M.F.T.—Lucky Strike means fine tobacco:

"Delany" Here For Kiely Mile

The torch, renowned symbol of the historic Joyce Kiely Mile, is set aflame prior to last year's race. This solemn rite will be repeated tomorrow afternoon before the Fourth Annual Kiely Mile run.

Annual Joyce Kiely Mile Scheduled for Tomorrow

Tomorrow at 4 p.m., a solemn and traditional event will once again be staged: the annual running of the Joyce Kiely Mile.

It may come as a surprise to those who believe Miss Kiely to be only a myth that there is a real Joyce Kiely, and also an interesting history behind the event held in her honor.

The first Joyce Kiely Mile was run on the home-coming weekend of 1956. Dave Belcher and Jed Dioguardi, both of the class of 1958, unfortunately discovered that Miss Kiely had accepted two dates for Homecoming. Her two dates were Belcher and Dioguardi.

The ingenious pair decided to resolve the dilemma by a mile race, the winner of which would escort Miss Kiely to Homecoming. Each selected representatives to run for them. Belcher chose Ollie Finan, and Chubby McCarthy ran for Dioguardi.

Finan defeated McCarthy in an undisclosed time, and Belcher had the date with Miss Kiely. In 1957, however, at the second annual running, Dioguardi escorted Miss Kiely to the dance.

Since most competitors have been members of DPM, that fraternity has assumed the sponsorship of the event. Last year, John Quinn, one of DPM's top distance runners, defeated Gus Susinjara in the surprising time of 9.53.

The rules of the event have been greatly changed this year. A runner will now be sponsored by each of the four fraternities, and a plaque will be awarded to the winning frat.

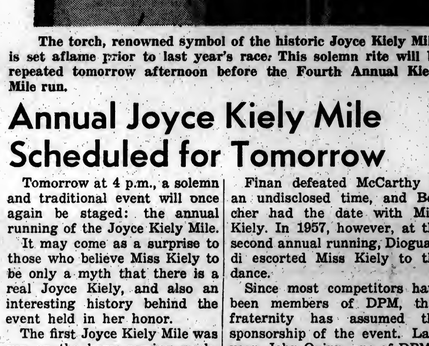
Chairman Bob Bohn, DPM, has said "We hope that the tradition of the Joyce Kiely Mile will be imprinted in the memories of Villanova track enthusiasts for years to come.

The fifth annual Joyce Kiely Mile will be held tomorrow, at 4:00 p.m. The contest, sponsor-by Delta Pi Mu, will be run at Villanova's Goodreau Stadium.

This year, according to Chairman Bob Bohn, the mile will be run on a competitive basis, in contrast to the comic status of former years. The contestants will be sponsored by each of the campus fraternities.

Annual Event

It is the intention of DPM to establish the mile as an annual competitive event between the fraternities and an addition to the activities of Homecoming.



To enhance enthusiasm, the winner's name and his fraternity will be engraved on a plaque, which will be kept as a perpetual award, and presented each year to the winner.

Although the race itself will be competitive, it is not expected to replace the I.C.4A's as the meet of champions. "Comic relief will be in abundance," said Bohn and the farcial spirit that has prevailed in the former events will be retained.

It is promised that Miss Kiely, herself, will honor the event with her presence.

"The Olympic torch will be carried directly from Rome by special courier for the event," said Bohn.

It is also rumored that Ron Delany (of Poughkeepsie, N. Y.), John Landrum (of Atlanta, Ga.), and Herb Elliot (of Goose Neck, Iowa) will appear as guest milers.

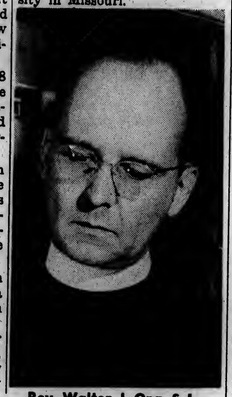
Rev. Walter Ong To Lecture Tomorrow On Renaissance



Rev. Walter J. Ong, S.J., prominent scholar and author in both Renaissance thought and contemporary literature and civilization, will speak tomorrow night in the first floor amphitheater of the C&F Building.

The lecture, to begin at 8 p.m., is co-sponsored by the Philosophy and English Departments. Dr. D. A. Gallagher and Dr. A. H. Buford are co-chairmen of the lecture.

Father Ong, will speak on "Logic and Literary Form in the Renaissance, or the Implications of Ramist Thought for the Modern World", has recently written two books on Renaissance thought.

These works resulted from extensive study supported by a fellowship from the Guggenheim Foundation.

Father Ong is also the author of numerous articles in literary, philosophical and scholarly journals, and a member of many intellectual and cultural societies. Presently he is Professor of English at St. Louis University in Missouri.

Rev. Walter J. Ong, S.J.

National Moot Court Rivalry To Be Held Here

Garey Hall's court room will be the scene of the intra-school elimination round of the National Moot Court Competition.

Six students, David Moscowitz, Henry Lucas, and Peter Nyhardt for the respondents, and Mary McEntee, George Kucik and Shacoy for the petitioner, will participate.

Representing the United States Supreme Court will be the Hon. Walter E. Alessandroni, United States Attorney-Elect for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania and Chancellor of the Philadelphia Bar, acting as Chief Justice.

With him will be Donald Collins, Esq., a former member of the faculty and now practicing in Media, and Anthony L. Bartolini, Esq., an alumnus of the school '57, now associated with the firm of Barnes, Dechert, Price, Myers & Rhoads, of Philadelphia.

The judges will choose three of the students to represent Villanova National Competition Regional Rounds in Philadelphia to be held in November.

LYNX Editors Chagrined At Poor Student Response

The necessity of extending the LYNX's first deadline has tempered the optimism of the magazine's staff.

Repeated requests for material for the campus literary vehicle have gone largely unanswered, according to the staff and moderators Dr. John Philipson and Mr. James Mitchell of the English Department.

Editor Frank Murtha was particularly chagrined. "The deadline has been set back a week to October 22. We have hoped for three issues of the LYNX this year; and our hopes must rest with the literary efforts of the student body. It has become increasingly evident that our hopes are illfounded."

Murtha states that two possible conclusions may be drawn from the lack of productivity. "Either the university has no minds which can produce literature, or else there are minds that can produce literature but are too lazy to try." Murtha leans toward the second conclusion.

Managing Editor Tony Macklin is also disappointed at the present outlook. "It's the same old story. A sprinkling of the same students contribute to every issue," Macklin says.

"It's an enigma to me why there isn't more literary interest and activity on campus."

NROTC Plans For Annual Weekend

The Navy weekend is planned for the last weekend in October this year and will include the annual Navy dance, military Mass and Communion breakfast.

The dance will open the weekend featuring LeRoy Bostic and his band. Al Lawler, midshipman in charge of Public Relations, announced that the dance will be held at the Valley Forge Lodge in Norristown, in a room larger and remodified from last year.

It will be a closed dance, informal and no flowers will be in order.

The Military Mass will be held at 7:45 and will be open to anyone who wishes to attend with the space as the only determining factor.

It is also the only time when laymen are permitted to wear caps in church.

Following the Mass a Communion breakfast will be held in the C&F cafeteria.

The Navy unit will march at the football game against Dayton and the drill team will pass in revue with 32 midshipmen participating.

The maneuvers will be group and individual manipulations with two platoons, each containing 16 men, on each side of the field.

School Infirmary Adds Seven Beds

Rev. Francis X. Boyle, O.S.A., Villanova infirmarian, has announced that the infirmary has recently undergone certain alterations for the betterment of health facilities on campus.

Seven beds have been added to the former eight, thereby doubling capacity. The infirmary building has been fire-proofed, re-wired, and new lighting has been installed. An expansion of the medical facilities has also been effected, and the installation of a new kitchen has been included in the improvements.

Painting of the infirmary interior is not complete, but is is expected that this will be finished by Christmas.

According to Father Boyle, "The innovations have been made to produce a more efficient infirmary. The paints have been chosen with a psychological view in mind."

$5000 Treasury Tonight

no intention of "railroading" it through Congress.

"Tonight we will decide that we definitely want a budget," he predicted. "But as for the details, we will take our time and give it slow deliberation."

Hoffman's idea of taking his time means that the program will not be finalized until the second semester, or thereabouts.

As usual, everything depends on Administration consultation and approval. He hopes to iron out all wrinkles to such an extent that the Administration will not hesitate to approve.

In preliminary hearings, Rev. Joseph Kemme, OSA, Vice President for Student Affairs, waxed sour on the idea. The Administration seems to want to remain non-committal until more impressive facts and figures are forthcoming from the Council.

Fool Proof

"The idea itself cannot be disputed," said Hoffman. "We have worked out a fool proof, no-debt system."

He detailed a bi-lateral system of accounting: A checking account which would provide working capital; and a special Savings Account of $1000. In the event of debt, the Council would dip into the Savings account and cancel all subsequent allocations.

The $1000 would be carried from semester to semester, and would not accumulate.

Hoffman said that neither he nor the Council would ever pretend to be the ultimate judge of treasury policy. "We would constantly seek advice and consultation from Father Kemme and Father Girolomi, the moderator."

Third Meeting

Prior to tonight's meeting, Hoffman met twice with the Council Cabinet to snip loose edges from the bulky motion.

Sunday, the cabinet met informally at the home of Bill Vincent, day hop. Hoffman was excited over the success of the meeting and called it a "perfect atmosphere for discussion — smoke clinging to the walls and coffee all over the table."

Monday night the Senate met to deliberate once more, and tonight, the refined motion will be laid before the Congress, in a meeting which Hoffman doesn't expect to exceed two hours in length.

The treasury will be the only point of discussion this evening.

Expenditures

Hoffman will outline in broad phrasing the expenditures that the Council is contemplating "for the benefit of the student and the improvement of Villanova." They include:

(1) A scholarship fund of $1000 to be divided among four undergraduate students, which will be credited to the tuition of the second semester of the school year.

(2) A forum program. The first of these forums has already been conducted and was considered a general success. Dr. Fred Khouri spoke on "Khrushchev's visit to the United States."

(3) Friday night on-campus movies. This program has already been approved and implemented. The Council expects to break even financially with the movies.

(4) A Student Council Dance. This also promises to provide a source of income for the treasury.

(5) A loan fund. From this the Council may derive income, but Hoffman realistically surmises that it will break even.

(6) A Who's Who banquet to recognize students of high quality who make Who's Who in Collegiate America. This will be arranged by the Social Affairs Committee.

(7) Payment for membership in national organizations such as the National Federation of Catholic College Students.

(8) Financial improvement of freshman orientation.

(9) Improvement in physical and recreational facilities.

Senate Final

In practice, the Senate would have final jurisdiction over the allotment of funds to Council projects. Committees will submit budgets and the Ways and Means Committee will recommend appropriations. The Senate will have the final word.

"If a group wants, for example, $700 for cheerleader sweaters, and the money is in the treasury," said Hoffman, "then the Senate will have to pass on it."

The chairman is delegating responsibility right and left to Committee heads and "I was never more pleased with the cooperation that I've received from the officers and executive vice presidents."

Not New Idea

The idea of a Student treasury is not new in college circles.

The University of San Francisco has a $3000 budget (from taxes). Other schools which tax are Manhatten, Holy Cross, Bonaventure, Sienna ($15 per student per semester), LaSalle, St. Joseph's, and Boston College, to name a few.

With Spirit High Committee Sees Best Homecoming

"The Spirit Committee sees a most successful Homecoming Weekend," declared committee publicist Tom Raymond, "but only if we have complete student support."

Raymond and his fellow publicist, Dave Grenon, is outlining Homecoming activities, explained that the Spirit Committee's major contribution to the weekend will be a spirited student body. "Now that the weekend's plans are pretty well formulated," said Grenon, "it's our job to see that the students hear about them. And so far, we've been really successful in this regard."

Besides spirit, the committee is providing a great part of the Friday night festivities as well as a portion of Saturday's half-time ceremonies.

"We'll show the way to a terrific homecoming weekend," declared committee chairman Jack Valva.

Equipment Included

The laboratory units will include one fractional D.C. motor and a three horsepower D.C. motor, two tachometers, a torque meter and a specialized rotating device that can be operated either as a motor or a generator on A.C. or D.C.

With all this apparatus working on a single shaft, the specialized unit can be operated as a generator driven by the two motors. Used as a motor, it can drive the rest of the equipment, including the two D.C. motors.

According to Mr. Rice, "It is thus possible to duplicate any situation involving rotating electrical machinery and to study the static as well as the dynamic characteristics of converting mechanical energy to electrical or converting electrical energy to mechanical."

Earnest Invitation To Culture

An urgent invitation is extended from the "aquarium" to the student body as Opera Classica steps up its already successful membership drive. O-C's programming of light, familiar selections is credited with adding many members.

Dr. O'Shea Predicts That V.U. will soon whistle Bach

Opera-Classica will hold its next meeting tomorrow night in the "aquarium," the east lounge of Dougherty Hall. The selections to be heard are Beethoven's "Concert No. 5, and "Les Preludes" by Lizst.

The officers of the music appreciation society have been elated by the newly developed interest in the club. Last Wednesday night, thirty-five members showed up at the session, which was devoted to "The Mikado" by Gilbert and Sullivan.

Michael Fallon, O-C secretary, announced that in future sessions the society will headline "La Boheme"; "The Three-Penny Opera", featuring "Mack The Knife"; Siegfried's "Rhine Journey"; and "Concerto In F" by George Gershwin.

Lighter Music Offered

Fallon stated that "more well-known selections will be played in these earlier sessions, which will eventually give way to heavier pieces." "We're sneaking up on them", inserted Dr. Robert S. O'Shea, Opera-Classica moderator.

Dr. O'Shea described the O-C's meetings as "informal gatherings". There're prefixed by a brief resume of the artist and his works with special emphasis on the work to be heard at that particular meeting, O'Shea stated. "Refreshments are served at all the meetings", he added.

Fallon made mention of the society's newly formulated plans to attend, in a group, the Philadelphia Orchestra's student concerts. In the more immediate future, however," Fallon said, "is Dr. O'Shea's plan to have a concert each Thursday morning at 10:30. These concerts will be intended mainly for the day-hop students, but all Villanovans are invited. Our evening concerts will continue as usual."

"Come next May, everyone will be whistling Bach," beamed O'Shea.

Manfredi Speaks To Students In Liason Program

The student liason representative's role at Villanova and in his Alumni area club was the basis of a briefing by Victor B. Manfredi to thirty-two prospective liason officers. The briefing was held last week in Dougherty Hall.

Manfredi, Senior pre-law major, stated he was gratified by the enthusiasm of those attending the meeting. He expects that the representatives chosen will receive the cooperation of all concerned.

"I am sure that the Alumni Association will be pleased with the calibre of the men chosen," commented Sheldon Pollock, Senior Alumni Representative.

"The students will be notified as soon as possible so that they may meet with Alumni Secretary George Pequignot and the Board of Governors to work on Homecoming Weekend," said Pollock.

Applications were received as follows: seniors, 13; juniors, 6; sophomores, 8; freshmen, 5.

Villanova Sends Thirteen to C.C.D.

Villanova University had thirteen representatives attending the Philadelphia Region Confraternity of Christian Doctrine Conferences held Sunday, Oct. 11, at Holy Family College.

The students heard an address by the Rev. Charles Mynaugh, Regional Director of C.C.D. and attended one of five training programs.

Those members who attended reported on the sessions at a C.C.D. meeting on Monday night, Oct. 19. Schedule for a methods course and teaching plans were also discussed. Gene Felch represented Villanova.

The next meeting will be held Monday evening, Oct. 26 in room 204 Vasey Hall at 6:30 p.m. New members are invited to attend. Transportation will be provided to the convent after the meeting for any nurses attending.

Pre-Law Society Plans Trips To Courts In Phila.

The Pre-law Society of Villanova held its first meeting student activities period of October 10. At that meeting, the new officers introducted themselves and briefly discussed the aims of the club.

Al Hulbriwk, Joe Ouellette, Jerry Pajak, Maury O'Connell, and John Barlas are Pres.; VP., Sec., Treas., and Laison officers respectively.

Goes To Court

During the school year, the Pre-Law Society travels to the state and federal courts in Philadelphia to spend the day. On those occasions, the members meet the judge in his chambers and are invited to sit with the opposing attorneys, recorder, and jury.

As the case opens and develops, Villanovans are there to witness the manuevering in the "legal arena".

Conducting Survey

In addition to these trips, the Pre-Law Society, by correspondence, is conducting a survey. The Society is sending letters of inquiry to the deans of 20 leading law schools asking them to list ten courses that, in their opinion, every pre-law student should take.

The officers extend invitation to all students, regardless of what school they are in, who are interested in becoming more familier with the legal profession, to join the society.

Placement In Sheehan

Mr. John Moritz, Placement Director, has formally announced the movement of the Placement Office from the first floor of Mendel Hall to the basement of Sheehan Hall, nearest the C&F building.

Moritz has expressed his hopes that students will take advantage of the opportunities now available to them.

Pre-Law Society Plans Trips To Courts In Phila.

The Pre-law Society of Villanova held its first meeting student activities period of October 10. At that meeting, the new officers introducted themselves and briefly discussed the aims of the club.

Al Hulbriwk, Joe Ouellette, Jerry Pajak, Maury O'Connell, and John Barlas are Pres.; VP., Sec., Treas., and Laison officers respectively.

Goes To Court

During the school year, the Pre-Law Society travels to the state and federal courts in Philadelphia to spend the day. On those occasions, the members meet the judge in his chambers and are invited to sit with the opposing attorneys, recorder, and jury.

As the case opens and develops, Villanovans are there to witness the manuevering in the "legai arena".

Conducting Survey

In addition to these trips, the Pre-Law Society, by correspondence, is conducting a survey. The Society is sending letters of inquiry to the deans of 20 leading law schools asking them to list ten courses that, in their opinion, every pre-law student should take.

The officers extend invitation to all students, regardless of what school they are in, who are interested in becoming more familier with the legal profession, to join the society.

Placement In Sheehan

Mr. John Moritz, Placement Director, has formally announced the movement of the Placement Office from the first floor of Mendel Hall to the basement of Sheehan Hall, nearest the C&F building.

Moritz has expressed his hopes that students will take advantage of the opportunities now available to them.

The Spirit Is Willing . . . .

By TONY MACKLIN

Coming out to school Sunday afternoon, I was picked up by an ivy-type young man. It turned out that his name was John Gillen. He went to Malvern prep and he is presently playing for Penn's Cinderella football team.

Saturday Gillen had intercepted a pass from his linebacker position and had returned it for his first touchdown in Penn's 36-9 victory over Brown.

We began talking and it was obvious the confidence and desire the Penn team must have. He personified it.

I asked him why the Penn football team did have that intangible thing called spirit. Was it Sebo?

Gillen said, "We've got a great bunch of seniors. Berlinger (captain) is a terrific guy! You can't help but get up with him on the team." He fought for words to express his admiration.

Here is one answer to the Villanova football problems, the 'Cats lack an inspirational leader.

A second answer lies in the fact that the team in general does not appear to want to play football.

Villanova has a new coach. But it is very questionable that Joe Rogers or any coach will be able to do much with the team until they regain faith in themselves and decide to play ball.

This makes for a choice state of affairs.

Love, hate, or hold no opinion of the coach, the team has an obligation to themselves, and to those who have faith in them, to put out to the best of their ability at all times.

This is strong stuff but the situation does exist.

Student body attacked

The Villanova student body is under attack from many sides. Coach Reagan resigned and the student body is bearing the brunt of the blame.

There seems to be a very popular feeling that the campus "hanging" had a great deal to do with Reagan's resigning as head football coach.

It should be stressed that the uprising was the work of a few, and while it was tasteless and thoughtless it did show an interest in the team. Promises had fallen through with an ugly thud.

Certainly it hurt Reagan very much. Still Reagan being the man he is, it seems pretty silly to think that this could sway him into the drastic action he took if he felt he could make a winner out of the team.

Hugh Brown in his column in the Bulletin stated, "Reagan said he was "shocked" by the effigy incident," but also that "the continuity of crushing defeats "had been getting me down physically."

Brown quoted Reagan as saying, "I feel that I have tried every possible means to solve the situation, but without success."

The 'Cats weren't winning, and showed no signs of winning. Something had to be done. Reagan resigned.

Now all of a sudden everyone is jumping on the bandwagon and deploring "the Villanova student body" and the "knifing in the back." It seems that the outlook has gone from one extreme to the other.

It was an impersonal thing and Reagan was lost sight of as a man, now it has become a very personal thing and Reagan has been lost sight of as a coach.

Whether Reagan is a good coach or not we do not know. All we know is that the team was not winning and was not even playing decent ball. Some move was necessary.

Respect for Reagan

We of the Villanovan have the utmost respect for Frank Reagan. We were shocked at his decision. But we can understand it and see that there is a great deal more behind it than a hanging.

We concur completely with the tributes given Reagan by Hugh Brown, Larry Merchant, and John Dell. We sincerely hope that Frank Reagan will remain at Villanova as Athletic Director after his contract runs out.

Reagan is an extremely able administrator. All he has to do is get on the phone and doors are opened. The name of Frank Reagan is known across the country.

One problem arises. It does not seem in the cards for Villanova to have both a "name" coach and a "name" Athletic Director. If Rogers cannot mold the reluctant 'Cats into a winner the situation will become close to impossible.

If Rogers can win three or four of these last five games the problem might be solved, but if Rogers is an interim coach the problem will only be increased.

John McKenna, coach of VMI, is already being mentioned as a possible replacement. His contract runs out this year.

So you see there is a great deal beneath the surface, and more than one person in an uncomfortable position.

One thing should be emphasized: Villanova is not giving up football. Villanova has an excellent athletic policy.

All the Catholic colleges with football teams are in pretty much the same predicament, except Notre Dame and even the "fighting Irish" are havtrouble.

Detroit on Move

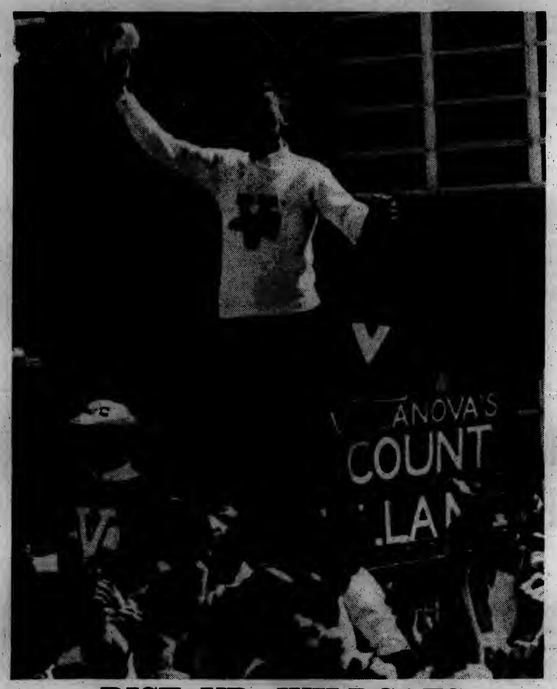
One Catholic college that is taking giant steps in an effort to become a football power is Detroit University. Detroit has a new 80,000 dollar scholarship fund for football. They give out forty scholarships a year and if a boy gets cut after his freshman year the university pays his tuition.

Whether this type of system is the answer is questionable. This system tends to throw balance out of whack. The school breeds "football fanatics" and other important parts of the university suffer.

Here at Villanova the situation is vastly different. The Villanova alumni fund began only five short years ago. Fifty percent of the Villanova alumni have graduated since 1950 which means they are presently raising families and are not able to give very much to the alumni fund. Donors are able to earmark their gifts but football is not the sole benefactor.

Turning back to the spirit problem, the St. Joseph's College campus newspaper "The Hawk" threw a rather wild blast in the direction of Villanova in their October 8 issue.

At first we of the Villanovan who read it were going to ignore them but since they were so interested in Villanova that they devoted most of their sports section to an attack at VU we felt that we at least ought to set them straight.



First of all, we suggest that they leave the ballads to Burl Ives (there was a bit of writing titled "The Ballad of Frank Reagan" from which balladry may never recover).

We agree that the "hanging" of Frank Reagan was a regrettable occurance, but we fail to see how the Hawks can set themselves up as the epitome of anything except volume.

St. Joe's could never have the situation that arose here at Villanova. St. Joe's doesn't have a football team. They can't possibly know how they would act under the circumstances of football failure.

The St. Joe's reasoning that they are superior because they didn't "hang" their baseball coach when the baseball team failed last year is really

...But The Team is Weak

RISE UP, WILDCATS

choice.

The Hawk writer stated and we quote, "We (St. Joe's) couldn't have asked for a more discouraging season, yet I wonder how many students though of "hanging" the coach.

The question is how many students even knew those games were being played?

The writer continued, "Most of us realized that it was just a case of the other team having better talent than we had."

We of the Villanovan refuse to believe that all the teams we have lost to have better talent than Villanova.

Spirit is a strange thing. It has always been a problem at Villanova as at every college. We believe that we do have good spirit.

St. Joe's Loudest

We admit that St. Joe's is loudest. But we remember the incident at the Palestra last year when a girl turned to her St. Joe's date and innocently shook his braggadocio with the simple question, "Why aren't they watching the game?"

It must be remembered that like a jazz lover, just because one doesn't prance around and scream and pound his hands together, doesn't mean he appreciates it any less.

In fact, the less noisy fan often has more interest in a greater knowledge of and a deep feeling for who and what he is watching.

We also remember back to the Penn basketball game last year and it is amazing how shaken the Hawks spirit was by the near defeat.

We of Villanova have undergone five losses that have had the shock that almost seized the Hawks. But I can promise you that we will have a solid backing of fans behind the football team this Saturday.

"Hawk Talk"

The best way I can show the weaknesses in the "Hawk Talk" article is to quote from it "It would appear that the nearby school's (Villanova) trouble is not the coach or the football team. The real problem lies in the student body as a whole. Are the conditions provided for the ordinary student to become a part of the school family, or will he for his four years jog along with the same group he first met in freshman year. Can he express himself when it comes to school functions, or is this controlled by a clique which is difficult to enter. Is the school more intent on posing as the local version of the Ivy League colleges, or is it interested in providing Bill Smaltz with the best all-around education possible. Are the teachers truly interested in the student, or are the classes so big that intimate rapport is next to impossible. Is the school really too big for its "britches?"

How about the library, the cafeteria, and the Nursing school? Surely they should also be chastized in this sweeping condemnation.

Actually the writer is very much off base and sacrificed intelligence for "good copy." If he had searched out the answers instead of just asking questions he would have found the true Villanova.

To try and do it with questions as he did is impossible. The Socratic method is fine but in this case the writer abused it. He was sorely misled.

On this page we have attempted to present a comprehensive analysis of the football picture and spirit outlook at Villanova.

We have come to two basic conclusions. The team must decide to play football and fan support must be made more clear.

It's as simple as that.

New Coach, Joe Rogers, Faces Challenge

by Henry Shultz

Villanova football fans awoke one day last week to find that they had a new football coach—ex-Wildcat great Joe Rogers.

The Philadelphia born, raised, and educated father of six—the seventh is due in January—was just as stunned as any of the students at Frank Reagan's resignation. As first assistant coach, Rogers was naturally the man to fill the vacancy, and, upon request, assumed responsibility.

Rogers has spent most of his life in football, both as a coach and a player, and is therefore no newcomer in the game. He started his career as a halfback for Roman Catholic of Philadelphia, back in 1938. He quickly earned a reputation as a spirited, determined, and hard running ballcarrier. It was at Roman that he first came into contact with Villanova football, through his coach, Villanova alumnus Ed Casper.

JOE ROGERS

Tutored by Ex-coach

His senior year, he was tutored by Jordan Oliver, who coached at Villanova from '43 through '49, before going to Yale.

A few days after commencement from High School, he entered the United States Coast Guard, and spent 30 months in the Aleutian Islands aboard the USS Alberquerque. He was discharged in January of '46, and returned home to find Olivar camped on his doorstep. Olivar convinced his high school ace that there was a place for him at Villanova, and Rogers started classes the next month. That fall, as a frosh, he started every varsity game.

Surpassed Expectations

As a ball-carrier, he passed Olivar's high expectations, and for the first six games was leading ground gainer in the country. He was beat out in the last two games, but finished the year with a 9.6 average, third highest in the country. Rogers always looked up to his coach, and hopes he can match his record. In the three years Rogers played under him, Olivar's teams were 6-4, 7-3, and 8-2.

His senior year Rogers played under Jim Leonard, and Villanova enjoyed one of their best records in years, losing only to Tulsa, 21-19, and finished the year with an 8-1 record.

'52 Frosh Coach

Upon receiving his degree, Rogers was taken on the staff at Waldron Academy as Athletic Director. In 1952, he returned to Villanova as frosh football coach. In 1955, he became backfield coach, the position he held until his promotion last week.

Nothing has been said one way or the other concerning next year, and Rogers has been promoted for the duration of this season.

Few Policy Changes

In his first release to the press, he stated that few serious changes will be made in team policy. He has added a few new plays, and has altered the defense. He states, "I hope some day in the near future, we may score first." He points out that Villanova has been behind at the end of the first quarter, sometimes by several touchdowns.

He adds, "Then we start throwing the ball all over the field. You cannot throw the ball away, and expect to win." He continues, "If we score first, we can use power plays, and if we get our ground game going, we can get our passing game going better."

He is also looking for better play from the sophomores, since they now have four games experience under their belts. Rogers sincerely believes the boys are capable of better plays and says that the time has come when the school will see what their team is really like.

Intramurals In Full Swing Football Teams Enter 3rd Week

by John Duffy

The 1959-60 intramural program at Villanova, commencing with the fall activities, is now rolling under a full head of steam. This fall's lineup is composed of touch football, cross country, swimming, hexathon, and the Nick Basca Award.

The intramural activities are under very able leadership. The moderator is the Rev. John R. Dunne, O.S.A. The director is Edward P. Geisz and the assistant director is Jack Lumsden. All of these gentlemen do a very fine and commendable job, as the record of Villanova intramurals' speaks for itself.

Touch football seems to be the big thing around the V.U. campus, as the number of participants will indicate. There are five leagues and 60 teams in the football setup. Two of the leagues start at 2:30 p.m. while the other three leagues start at 4:30 p.m.

Most Popular Sport

The game itself is divided into two twenty minute halves with a five minute recess in between. Football is the most popular sport in the intramurals, based on the number of men 750, who play the game.

The next sport in line is cross-country. The cross-country race was held last Thursday, Oct. 15, over a two mile course around the campus. In a photo finish John Lucy, a frosh, beat out his classmate Jim O'Brien, by half a second. Lucy's time was 11:11.5 as compared to 11:12.0 for O'Brien. Gene Cassidy, another frosh, was third in the field of 17, thirteen seconds behind.

On Wednesday of last week, Oct 14, 83 contestants invaded the swimming pool in the field house for the 1959 Intramural Swimming and Diving Championships. Two intramural records were broken and one was set.

Records Broken

In the 50 yard butterfly Mike Le Moult, a frosh from Mamaroneck High in Larchmont, N. Y., did 28.1 sec. breaking the old record of 29.7 sec. set by Joe Mason in 1957.

Ed Brier, a freshman from Hope High School in Providence R.I. broke Don Boehmcke's 100 yard free-style record of 58.6 sec. by 3.10 of a second Ed did it in 58.3 sec.

Ed has another record of distinction of which he can be proud. This past summer Ed, placed 10th in the N.A.A.U. long distance championships at Lake Piacid, N. Y.

New Event

A new event, the 200 yd. Medley Relay was inaugurated this year and the relay team of Hicks, Le Moult, Gilbride and Grimm won in the time of 2:01.9 to set the record for this event.

Other winners were Mike Powers, frosh, 25:6 in the 50 yd. freestyle, Al Hicks, frosh, 31:2 in the 50 yard backstroke, Dave La Mond, frosh, 36:7 in the 50 yd, breaststroke, and Mike Le Moult again in the 100 yd. ind.

The 200 yd. freestyle relay went to the team of Grimm, Pellegrino, Longstreth and Brier.

The diving championship went to Al Nencetti with 35:33 points. Tim Barry was second and Joe Scott third.

The Hexathon event to determine Villanova's outstanding intramural athlete in all rounded athletic events will begon on Monday, Oct. 19, and run for six days. Any athlete who fancies himself in condition should give the Hexathon a try.

Basca History

Decorating halls at Villanova started during the Villanova vs Temple series of football games, and has continued up to the present day. William Connally, a Villanova Alumnus, donated an award each year. After World War II, Mr. Connally suggested the award be named "The Nick Basca Memorial Award" in memory of this great Villanova football player who was killed in the war.

At present this event is sponsored by the Villanova University Intramural Department, and is traditionally an exciting and pre-homecoming display.

These sports which have been mentioned are only the fall sports. The winter and spring sports will follow in the completed intramural program set up by the University.

Texas cattleman overheard boasting to a visitor: "We don't brand them. We have them engraved."

X Country Team Drops 2nd To N.Y.U. 19-37

Villanova's cross country team played host on Saturday to the harriers of N.Y.U. However the 'Cats of Coach Jim Tuppeny were the Violets' victims as they met with defeat 19-37.

This meet was the 'Cat's initial home encounter since they opened the season last week with a loss to St. Joseph's on their course.

Villanova's Angelo Sivieri and the Violet's Jimmy Brown matched stride for stride for about 4½ miles of the 5 mile course but Brown opened up a good lead in the last half mile to take first place with the time of 28 minutes and 51 seconds.

Sivieri, the only Cat finisher in the first six men, pulled in second with the time of 29.11.

Nelson Adelman and Charles McGrath of N.Y.U. finished in a dead heat with the time of 29.56 to take third and fourth.

The 'Cats Gerry Hackett and Tim McNamara finished seventh and eighth with the times of 31.07 and 31.15 respectively.

Crossing the finish line in eleventh to fourteenth were Nick D'Angelis, Pat Nicastro, Wayne Haggerty and Larry McGrath.

Haggerty, Carl Wagner who finished 15th, and Ernie Muir who finished 16th, are all sophomores who were in their first call as cross country harriers.

The 'Cats Lance Hugelmeyer who finished second to Sivieri against St. Joseph's was sick and unable to compete.

N.Y.U. is regarded as one of the top cross country teams in the East and the 'Cats put on a good showing for such a young team. All of the team members are sophomores or juniors, many competing for the first time.

Army Thumps Frosh 27-6

by Dan Grove

The Villanova Wildkittens fumbled away a 27-6 decision to the Army Plebes last Friday at West Point, New York. The young 'Cats gave the football away at about the same clip that Arthur Murray does introductory dance courses.

To be exact, they fumbled twelve times and lost possession of the elusive oval eleven times to the opportunistic Kaydets.

Four Fumbles

The Frosh lost four of their fumbles in the first half, but still were able to walk off of the turf with a 6-0 lead. Aside from the fact that the 'Cats were giving the ball away with generosity that would put "The Millionaire" to shame, they dominated the first half of play.

Their only score came when halfback Croyke romped for 55 yards through the Black Knight defense, and to paydirt. The run for the extra point failed.

Besides Cropke's run, the highlight was a VU pass play. Facing a third and fifteen situation, quarterback Richie Richman passed to Mount, who was immediately tackled but before he hit the ground he managed to lateral the ball to Cropke, who picked up the needed first down.

Besides a fair offense the freshmen showed a sticky defense which only permitted the khaki clad boys' from up the Hudson two first downs in the first two periods.

The second half, however, was a different and a sadder story. The 'Cats outdid their first half giveaway program by losing seven fumbles, three of which were on first downs.

This gave Army control of the ball almost the entire second half. This time they capitalized on the gifts. Villanova was forced to play a defensive game, while Army hardly got their defensive unit warmed up.

Show Something

Commenting on the game, Coach Brannau said, "I would rather show something than say something. We have a darn good bunch of ballplayers who show much desire. They simply gave the ball away too much."

He added that the line play was very good, and pointed out that although we gave the ball away four times the first half, we still outscored them.

Looking forward to this with Bullis Prep, Brannau indicated that he would work on the offense a bit more, in order to minimize the bobbling in the backfield. This Friday's game will be the first home game The Villanovan freshmen have played in two years.

'Cats Homecoming Date: Virginia Tech

by Mike Donahue

A revitalized Virginia Tech team, fresh from a 40-14 lacing of arch-rival Virginia last Saturday, will be Villanova's Homecoming Game opponent on Saturday afternoon when the Wildcats return to what they hope will be the friendly confines of Goodreau Stadium.

Last weekend's games involving the two teams present a study in contrast. While the offensively lethargic Wildcats lacklustred their way to a 26-6 refeat (their fifth straight) at the hands of little, but powerful Miami of Ohio, thus marring the coaching debut of Joe Rogers, it was an entirely different story at Richmond in the Tobacco Bowl.

Gobblers Impress

There the heretofore unimpressive Techmen of Frank Mosely swamped the Virginia Cavaliers, as halfback Alger Pugh tallied three touchdowns.

Tech relied mostly on a methodical running game featuring Pugh and second string fullback Don Vaught.

It was the first time this season that the Gobblers fully realized their potential. In preseason ratings, the Techmen were picked as the team most likely to dethrone West Virginia as Southern Conference champs. On paper the Gobblers figured to improve on last year's 5-4-1 record. They had twenty two lettermen returning including an All-American end, three 230 pound—plus linemen, plus twenty four ambitious sophs. However prior to last Saturday the Gobblers had managed only one win in four games.

S.C.'s Outstanding Player

Tech's All-American is Carroll Dale, a 6-1, 205 pound end who was the Southern Conference's most honored lineman last fall.

In addition to being named to the Associated Press 2d team All American, Dale was also Southern Conference player of the year, winner of the Jacobs blocking trophy for the Southern Conference, and for the second consecutive year winner of the Roanoke Touchdown Club's lineman of the year award in Virginia.

A tiger on defense, Dale's speed (10.0) and maneuverability make him one of the nation's most feared yass receivers.

The three giant Gobbler forwards are Don Oakes, 244, Mike Zeno, 230, and Bernie Vishneski, 235, all tackles. Tommy O'Brien, 5-9, 222, and Ed Bartrug, guards, and Chuck Stephens, center are other Gobbler linemen who won letters last year.

Backfield Standouts

Tech's backfield is sparked by a pair of outstanding sophomores, a junior with a patriotic name, and the aforementioned Pugh.

Charlie Speck, a 6-3, 200 pounder has been doing an outstanding job at quarterback for Mosely while Warren Maccarони, 6-1, 210, another second year man is a bruising fullback built much along the lines of Miami's Dave Chamberlin.

Tech's leading ground gainer as a sophomore last fall with a 4.8 per carry average, Patrick Henry, was injured in an early season game and has not seen too much action. However, Pugh has taken up the slack caused by Henry's absence. In fact he has been so successful as Tech's number one ground gainer that off last Saturday's performance, he rates a very good chance of breaking the Tech all time season rushing record.

Mildcats Drop Fifth 26-6

1 First Down In First Half

by Jim Murray

The rampaging Redskins of Miami had little trouble skalping the hapless Villanova Mildcats last Saturday 26-6.

Before 10,000 fans at Oxford Ohio, Miami spoiled Joe Rogers coaching debut handing the 'Cats their fifth loss in as many starts.

It should be noted again this week that the 'Cats again made a non passing team look they had only go to to the air when they needed the big play. Miami collected 123 yds. via the air lanes on a 11 for 18 percentage against the 'Cats lethargic pass defense.

Miami all toll had 278 yds. rushing to Villanova's 42. The 'Cats were 4-22 in the air for 75 yards.

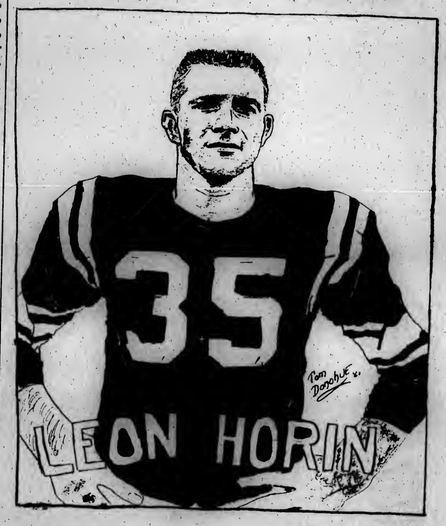
Villanova used all three of their quarterbacks—Ed Roehre-Wayne Kautter-Tom O'Rourke—but just couldn't get any semblance of an offense going till the end of the fourth quarter. The 'Cats had a mere 5 first downs to Miami's 22.

The Wildcats biggest difficulties came in the basic departments of blocking on offense and tackling on defense—they just didn't.

Redskins Romp

The first quarter play was scorless with about 40 seconds remaining. Then the dam broke and the flood of the Miami offense swallowed up the Wildcat defense. Halfback Bill Miller, shot through right tackle for 13 yds. and the first score. The try for two points was stopped.

In the second quarter the fired up Miami eleven were faced with a fourth and one situation on the 'Nova 34—they got the one—TD that is as when Bill Gilbert burst right up the middle to paydirt. The try for two was halted again. (Well that's something anyway).



The Miami team added their third tally in the second period when quarterback, Tom Kilmurray sneaked over from the one. The PAT was good this time. (Law of averages). Halftime score 20-0.

Second Half Same

With Tom Jennings going in from the two the Ohioans ended their scoring (they also had two TD nullified — but we won't mention that).

Leon Horin, who made the Wildcats first first down himself with 1:40 left of the first half, was again called on to prove Villanova does have offensive backs he plunged in for the lone score at 2:40 of the last quarter.

Council Accepts Treasury By Acclamation At Meeting

By Michael Donahue

The Student Congress passed the first three points of the five thousand dollar Council treasury motion last Wednesday at their bi-monthly meeting.

The first section of Council chairman Tom Hoffman's proposed financial system explains the reason why Hoffman thinks the Student Congress is justified in requesting such an allocation.

The essence of his motion is that before a campus organization such as the Council can function effiiciently and perform the sundry activities that would benefit the student body and Villanova, it must establish and regulate an effective financial system.

The second and third points of the chairman's motion describe respectively the administration of the treasury and the make-up of the council committee which would draw up the budget.

The estimated total budget is $5060. Principal expenditures include $1000 for a loan fund, $1000 for a scholarship fund, $600 appropriated for speakers at forums, and $150 for the banquet given to honor those seniors selected for the National Collegiate Who's Who.

The estimated total income is $5950 the largest portion of which ($3500) would be derived from a student tax. At present there are four plans under consideration to obtain a levy of one dollar.

Student Tax

The first plan would have the Student Council receive one dollar per student from the student activities fee of $25. All students would then be issued a student activities card which would enable them to get reduced rates for many activities on campus.

Another proposal being investigated is the possibility adding one dollar to the student activity fees every year. This money would be turned over to the Student Council Treasury.

The third plan would place the raising of the dollar per student strictly on a voluntary basis. All students would be urged to contribute one dollar.

The fourth have the Administration match every half dollar collected in student taxes.

The blanket acceptance by acclamation of the three points was voted in only after each point was passed separately.

After approval of the last point was voiced, Bill Henry, Council parlimentarian suggested that the congress unaminously accepted the three points in toto.

Pollock Walks Out

At this juncture Sheldon Pollock, who had been arguing against the feasibility of the proposed budget all evening, proclaimed he would be no part of an acclamatory vote.

In the event that a student tax is levied by the Council to sustain its treasury, the students would receive a special Student Council Activities Card.

According to Vice Chairman Bob Delisa, the cards would allow students reduced rates for the Council dances and campus movies, in addition to other proposed functions.

"I realize that you want this thing to be unanimous so I will abstain from voting," said the obviously disappointed Pollock.

However, Henry was not sure if such action would be in conformity with parliamentary procedure. He started leafing through his procedural rule book.

Then Pollock suddenly arouse, quickly strode to the back of the room and declared "forget the abstention. I'll just leave the room and then your motion can be unanimous."

Acclamation

Former Villanova Student Released by Communists

By Denis Cardone

Last Friday, John Robert Kennedy, class of 1957, was released from a Czeechoslovakian prison. He completed a 14 month sentence for an alleged border violation from Wieden, Germany.

Behind this news headline which appeared in all of the syndicates, lies an intriging story. What happened to 'Bob' Kennedy, as he is known by his family, or more importantly, what will happen to him?

According to his brother, Eugene, it seems that Kennedy and two soldier companions were on leave in the town of Wieden, Germany.

Minor Offense

On August 23,1958, Kennedy and the other soldier were apprehended by Czech authorities. Their offense was one that many American citizens have fallen prey to since the inception of the 'cold war', namely an illegal border violation.

The three American soldiers were brought to trial and were found guilty with ensuing prison sentences.

Naturally enough, Kennedy's parents were upset and a plea was sent to the State Department.

Czech authorities replied that his sentence would stand and no clemency would be extended.

For the first six months of his sentence, Bob Kennedy received no correspondence from home. The State Department protested and contradictory reports were issued by Czech officals, saying he would be able to receive correspondence, then he would not.

"Bob was upset over not receiving anything from home; he felt he was being ignored", said his brother Eugene.

Received Letters

Eventually, Bob did begin to receive letters from home but, "We haven't heard anything from him since last February", said his brother.

Represntatives of the American embassy at Prague saw Kennedy about three weeks ago. They reported that he looked well enough. Kennedy told them he had been doing construction work during his sentence.

With his release Friday, Bob Kennedy had not been removed from all of his ordeal.

One of his companions Cole Younger, had received a 10 month sentence and was released this past summer.

On his return to the States, he was taken before an Army court martial, where he pleaded guilty and received the following sentences; A $50 fine, 6 months in prison, reduced from specialist fourth class to recruit, and he has to make up the 10 month time of his sentence as a part of his service.

"Will this same fate face Bob when he returns?" was the ques-

Marketing Club Plans Trip To Local Brewery

Gary Kavanagh, president of the Marketing Club, has announced that the club plans a field trip to Schmidt's Brewery in Philadelphia on November 12. Also on the calendar is the annual dinner dance, slated for April 23.

Kavanagh further announced that the club concludes its membership drive tomorrow, and that it will join the American Marketing Association in the near future.

The other club officers are Charles Fettig, vice president; Bob Holt, secretary; Larry Grassi, treasurer; Jim Kearney, Student Council representative; and im Byrne, social chairman.

Parents Day Scheduled By Council For This Weekend

The Student Council will sponsor the Second Annual Parents' Day this Saturday, announced co-chairmen Bob Murphy and Bill Henry.

Tickets for the Villanova-Dayton football game, the highlight of the day, are currently available in the Field House. No tickets are required for the other events of the day.

The co-chairmen urge all students to purchase tickets as early as possible, and to buy them in blocks, so that they and their parents may be together at the game.

Henry points out, "Our aim is not a Mothers' Day or a Fathers' Day, but a Parents' Day, in which parents can spend a day with their children at Villanova."

Activity Schedule

In outlining the activity schedule for the day, Murphy stated, "Last year's Parents' Day was extremely successful, and this year we hope to go one better."

Murphy said that the day's activities will commence at 11:45 a.m. with a combined band-Villanova Singers "Concert on the Green," to be presented from the Dougherty Hall patio. The concert should conclude at about 12:30 p.m.

Lunch will be served in Dougherty Hall between 11:30 and 1:30. At 1:00 p.m., the Midshipmen Battalion will stage a pre-game parade, and kick-off time for the game itself is 1:30.

Welcoming Addresses

The special halftime activities will include welcoming addresses by Very Rev. John A. Klekotka, OSA, president, and Student Council Chairman Tom Hoffman.

The Marching Band and the NROTC Drill Team will present a show honoring parents, and the parade of floats will be featured.

Murphy and Henry emphasized the dual aims of the Council in providing this schedule. Primarily, it will serve to introduce the parents to Villanova, or if they are already familiar with the university, to point out its latest developments.

Secondly, it will provide a most enjoyable day on campus for both parents and students, they said.

'Cats Homecoming Date: Virginia Tech

by Mike Donahue

A revitalized Virginia Tech team, fresh from a 40-14 lacing of arch-rival Virginia last Saturday, will be Villanova's Homecoming Game opponent on Saturday afternoon when the Wildcats return to what they hope will be the friendly confines of Goodreau Stadium.

Last weekend's games involving the two teams present a study in contrast. While the offensively lethargic Wildcats lacklustred their way to a 26-6 refeat (their fifth straight) at the hands of little, but powerful Miami of Ohio, thus marring the coaching debut of Joe Rogers, it was an entirely different story at Richmond in the Tobacco Bowl.

Gobblers Impress

There the heretofore unimpressive Techmen of Frank Mosely swamped the Virginia Cavaliers, as halfback Alger Pugh tallied three touchdowns.

Tech relied mostly on a methodical running game featuring Pugh and second string fullback Don Vaught.

It was the first time this season that the Gobblers fully realized their potential. In preseason ratings, the Techmen were picked as the team most likely to dethrone West Virginia as Southern Conference champs. On paper the Gobblers figured to improve on last year's 5-4-1 record. They had twenty two lettermen returning including an All-American end, three 230 pound—plus linemen, plus twenty four ambitious sophs. However prior to last Saturday the Gobblers had managed only one win in four games.

S.C.'s Outstanding Player

Tech's All-American is Carroll Dale, a 6-1, 205 pound end who was the Southern Conference's most honored lineman last fall.

In addition to being named to the Associated Press 2d team All American, Dale was also Southern Conference player of the year, winner of the Jacobs blocking trophy for the Southern Conference, and for the second consecutive year winner of the Roanoke Touchdown Club's lineman of the year award in Virginia.

A tiger on defense, Dale's speed (10.0) and maneuverability make him one of the nation's most feared yass receivers.

The three giant Gobbler forwards are Don Oakes, 244, Mike Zeno, 230, and Bernie Vishneski, 235, all tackles. Tommy O'Brien, 5-9, 222, and Ed Bartrug, guards, and Chuck Stephens, center are other Gobbler linemen who won letters last year.

Backfield Standouts

Tech's backfield is sparked by a pair of outstanding sophomores, a junior with a patriotic name, and the aforementioned Pugh.

Charlie Speck, a 6-3, 200 pounder has been doing an outstanding job at quarterback for Mosely while Warren Maccarони, 6-1, 210, another second year man is a bruising fullback built much along the lines of Miami's Dave Chamberlin.

Tech's leading ground gainer as a sophomore last fall with a 4.8 per carry average, Patrick Henry, was injured in an early season game and has not seen too much action. However, Pugh has taken up the slack caused by Henry's absence. In fact he has been so successful as Tech's number one ground gainer that off last Saturday's performance, he rates a very good chance of breaking the Tech all time season rushing record.

Mildcats Drop Fifth 26-6
1 First Down In First Half

by Jim Murray

The rampaging Redskins of Miami had little trouble skalping the hapless Villanova Mildcats last Saturday 26-6.

Before 10,000 fans at Oxford Ohio, Miami spoiled Joe Rogers coaching debut handing the 'Cats their fifth loss in as many starts.

It should be noted again this week that the 'Cats again made a non passing team look they had only go to to the air when they needed the big play. Miami collected 123 yds. via the air lanes on a 11 for 18 percentage against the 'Cats lethargic pass defense.

Miami all toll had 278 yds. rushing to Villanova's 42. The 'Cats were 4-22 in the air for 75 yards.

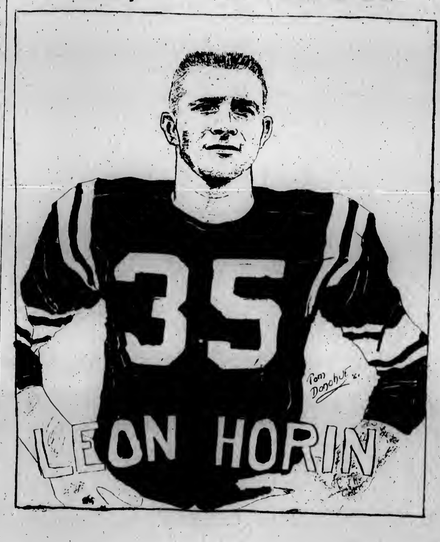
Villanova used all three of their quarterbacks—Ed Rochre-Wayne Kautter-Tom O'Rourke—but just couldn't get any semblance of an offense going till the end of the fourth quarter. The 'Cats had a mere 5 first downs to Miami's 22.

The Wildcats biggest difficulties came in the basic departments of blocking on offense and tackling on defense—they just didn't.

Redskins Romp

The first quarter play was scorless with about 40 seconds remaining. Then the dam broke and the flood of the Miami offense swallowed up the Wildcat defense. Halfback Bill Miller, shot through right tackle for 13 yds. and the first score. The try for two points was stopped.

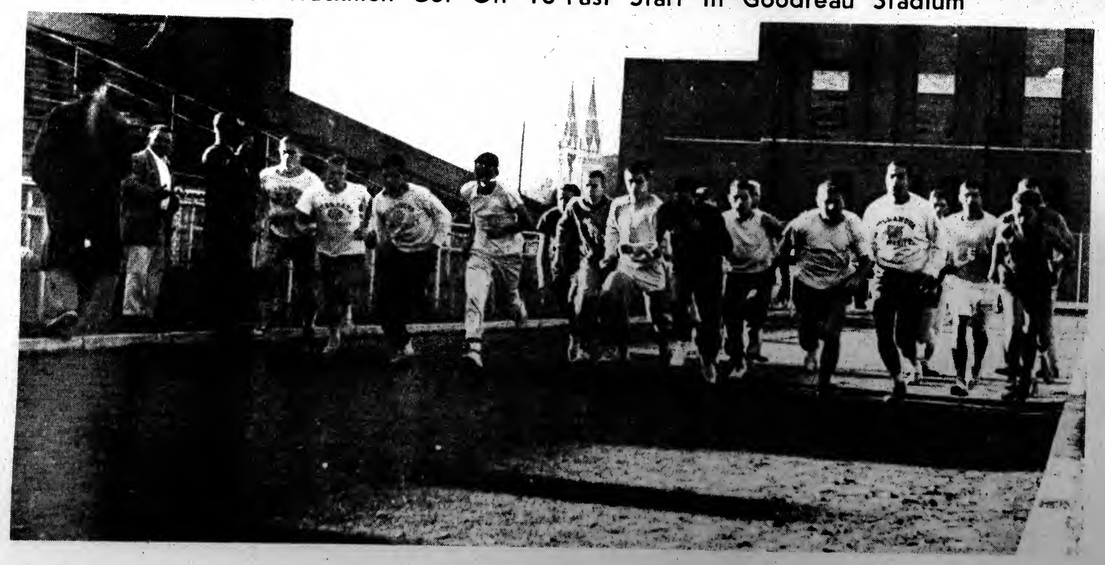
In the second quarter the fired up Miami eleven were faced with a fourth and one situation on the 'Nova 34—they got the one—TD that is as when Bill Gilbert burst right up the middle to paydirt. The try for two was halted again. (Well that's something anyway).



The Miami team added their third tally in the second period when quarterback, Tom Kilmurray sneaked over from the one. The PAT was good this time. (Law of averages). Halftime score 20-0.

Second Half Same

With Tom Jennings going in from the two the Ohioans ended their scoring (they also had two TD nullified — but we won't mention that).



Leon Horin, who made the Wildcats first first down himself with 1:40 left of the first half, was again called on to prove Villanova does have offensive backs he plunged in for the lone score at 2:40 of the last quarter.

Council Accepts Treasury By Acclamation At Meeting

By Michael Donahue

The Student Congress passed the first three points of the five thousand dollar Council treasury motion last Wednesday at their bi-monthly meeting.

The first section of Council chairman Tom Hoffman's proposed financial system explains the reason why Hoffman thinks the Student Congress is justified in requesting such an allocation.

The essence of his motion is that before a campus organization such as the Council can function effiiciently and perform the sundry activities that would benefit the student body and Villanova, it must establish and regulate an effective financial system.

The second and third points of the chairman's motion describe respectively the administration of the treasury and the make-up of the council committee which would draw up the budget.

The estimated total budget is $5060. Principal expenditures include $1000 for a loan fund, $1000 for a scholarship fund, $600 appropriated for speakers at forums, and $150 for the banquet given to honor those seniors selected for the National Collegiate Who's Who.

The estimated total income is $5950 the largest portion of which ($3500) would be derived from a student tax. At present there are four plans under consideration to obtain a levy of one dollar.

Student Tax

The first plan would have the Student Council receive one dollar per student from the student activities fee of $25. All students would then be issued a student activities card which would enable them to get reduced rates for many activities on campus.

Another proposal being investigated is the possibility adding one dollar to the student activity fees every year. This money would be turned over to the Student Council Treasury.

The third plan would place the raising of the dollar per student strictly on a voluntary basis. All students would be urged to contribute one dollar.

The fourth have the Administration match every half dollar collected in student taxes.

The blanket acceptance by acclamation of the three points was voted in only after each point was passed separately.

After approval of the last point was voiced, Bill Henry, Council parlimentarian suggested that the congress unaminously accepted the three points in toto.

Pollock Walks Out

At this juncture Sheldon Pollock, who had been arguing against the feasibility of the proposed budget all evening, proclaimed he would be no part of an acclamatory vote.

In the event that a student tax is levied by the Council to sustain its treasury, the students would receive a special Student Council Activities Card. According to Vice Chairman Bob Delisa, the cards would allow students reduced rates for the Council dances and campus movies, in addition to other proposed functions.

"I realize that you want this thing to be unanimous so I will abstain from voting," said the obviously disappointed Pollock.

However, Henry was not sure if such action would be in conformity with parliamentary procedure. He started leafing through his procedural rule book.

Then Pollock suddenly arouse, quickly strode to the back of the room and declared "forget the abstention. I'll just leave the room and then your motion can be unanimous."

Acclamation

When Pollock had departed Hoffman asked for a vote and secured the acclamation. No sooner had this been done then Pollock re-entered, the room, and resumed his place in the Congress.

The budget motion was the only new business acted on by the congress. At the conclusion

With classic pomp, an Olympian runner lights the traditional Joyce Kiely Torch to indicate that the ceremonies surrounding the annual mile run are officially underway.

Humor, Controversy Spark Frats' Joyce Kiely Mile

Amid medieval pomp and pageantry, the voluptuous Miss Joyce Kiely returned to the Villanova campus last Thursday for the fifth straight year to preside over the race that is run annually in her honor.

Miss Kiely was in as good "form" as ever, as she lead the paraders from Fedigan Hall, across campus, and down to Goodreau Stadium.

Escorting her were representatives groups from three of the four participating fraternities. They were attired in beautifully colored costumes that dazzled and awed the many onlookers.

New Hairdo

Joyce herself was ravishing. With a new hairdo by Howard of Hoboken, and a specially designed outfit by Prudence of Paoli, Miss Kiely increased the heart-beat of many male spectors.

After seeing her standing in her Corvette, head high, streaching like a proud peacock, all that could be concluded was that Joyce is quite a girl.

As her party entered the stadium ,a great roar went up from some 400 spectators. She was finally escorted to her seat of honor as festivities got under way.

In one of the higher moments of the day, a group of sir musicians known as the Villanovans, performed in close order drill. Fresh from an engagement at Kelly's, the group spelled out on the field—"Villanova University in Villanova, Pennsylvania."

The Olympic torch was finally ignited the four runners representing the four fraternities, came up to the starting line.

Vic Demaio ran for Phi Kappa Pi, Ray Kelly for Lambda Kappa Delta, Jim Fitten, Delta Pi Epsilon and Charles Schenk ran for the host frat, Delta Pi Mu.

Offical Starter

For the second straight year Bill Vincent, day-hop, served as the official starter. With a squeeze of the triger finger the race was on. At the first lap, Ray Kelly held a slight lead, while Jim Fitten was noticably beginning to weaken.

At the half mile, DeMaio took the lead while Fitten was near collapse some 40 yards behind the pack.

At the three-quarter mark, DeMaio took the lead while Fitten now almost a 100 yards behind was wilting fast; but at this point about twenty members of DPE charged onto the field and literally carried their entry the rest of the distance, but he placed fourth anyhow.

Coming into the streach Kelly began to make his move. DeMaio also stepped up his pace and at the wire it was DeMaio by three strides in 4:51.3 and Kelly second.

This beat last year's time by over five minutes. This was undoubtedly due to the fact that pit stops were not included in this year's race as they were in last year's.

Varsity Athlete

It was learned, though, after the race, that even though DeMaio was in his fifth year at V. U., he is still considered a varsity athlete since he has received a varsity letter in track last year.

DeMaio was disqualified by DPM president Tom Labrecque in an announcedment last Monday.

Sophs Hire Jazz Groups

Tom Wall, president of the sophomore class, recently announced that a jazz concert featuring the J. J. Johnson Quartet and the Ramsey Lewis Trio, will be sponsored by the class of '62.

The concert will be held in the Field House on Sunday, November 15 between 3 and 5 p.m.

The event is to be the climax of the sophmore Cotillion Weekend and will benefit the Augustinian Seminary Guild.

According to Sid Mark, a disc jockey on a local radio station, WHAT, and an authority on jazz, "J. J. Johnson has been the consistent poll winner here and abroad as the leading trombonist among jazz musicians."

Poll Winner

Until recently he worked with Kai Winding, another famous trombonist. At present Johnson is the leader of his own quartet.

The Ramsey Lewis trio has just finished a highly successful engagement at the Village Vanguard in New York City. This group has Ramsey Lewis as pianist accompanied by a bass fiddle and drums.

In connection with the concert, Tom Wall said, "We of the sophomore class consider ourselves fortunate in obtaining an activity such as the Jazz Concert.

"We plan to do everything in our power to make it a great success. We hope that this concert will be greeted with enthusiasm by the entire student body."

Ticket Sales

Tickets for the concert can be purchased in the pie shoppe for members of the sophomore class within the next week.

Reserved seats are $2.00, $1.50 for general admission and $1.00 for balcony seats.

Accounting Society Having Annual Membership Drive

The Accounting Society of Villanova University is presently holding its annual drive for membership for the coming year.

Membership is opened to sophmore, junior, and senior accounting majors in good academic standing. The cost of this yearly membership is two dollars payable to a student's section representative.

Paul Bowersock states that "The Accounting Society of Villanova University is a society that brings to the student in the course of a year knowledge of what to expect in the accounting profession upon graduation". The society's announced goal is to bring to the student an operative knowledge of his major and his future responsibilities here at Villanova.

The accounting meetings bring to the university speakers from the major facets of the accounting profession. The meetings are held every second and fourth Thursday at 10:30 a.m.

Announcements of all meetings are posted on the C&F bullietin board the week preceding the meeting.

O-C Listens To "3 Penny Opera"

The Opera-Classica Society has announced that it will present a recording of Kurt Weil's "Three Penny Opera," this evening in the East Lounge of Dougherty Hall, beginning at 7:30 p.m.

"Three Penny Opera," a story of an English killer, is the undisputed endurance champion of the New York theatre. The feature selection from the production, "Theme from The Three Penny Opera," has been popularized as the ballad "Mack The Knife."

This presentation is one of many programmed this year by Opera Classica, designed to be of interest to the average person.

Future works will range from popular musicals to operas and symphonies.

Every Thursday at 10:30 in the East Lounge, Dougherty Hall, there will be a special Opera-Classica meting for the benefit of the day students.

Masque Changes Name of Show

Link Hallowell, Belle Masque president, announced that the title of this year's play, "The Bonds of Interest", would be changed to, "The Higher You Climb."

The libretto for the show was witten by Richard A. Duprey, moderator, and the score by George Herman of Clark College in Dubuque, Iowa.

Duprey feels, "with all due respect to the dead Jacinto Benevente," author of the play, that this sixteenth century work has passed down to the Sputnik Era with a new look in Commedia del' Arte theater.

He said that the former title had no significance, and that the new title would be far more descriptive.

"This delightful comedy, already good in its own right, has been transformed into a musical," he said. The play will be Nov. 18.

Msgr. Hessler Speaks

Msgr. Carl P. Hensler, director of the Adult Education Program for the Diocese of Pittsburgh, will attend the meeting of the Society for Advancement of Management tonight.

Jointly sponsored by the SAM and Industrial Advancement Department, the meeting will be in room 110 of C&F Building, at 7:30 p.m.

Organizing Comes Easy To Senior Bill Henry

Bill Henry is flashing his disarming smile more than ever this week. Along with Bob Murphy, he is engineering the second annual Parents Day at Villanova, which looks like it is going to be a large success.

Planning and organizing comes easily to the good-natured senior.

Bill Henry

Bill has been an integral part of student government and activities ever since high school. At LaSalle High he was a member of Student Council, crew, and played end on the football team for 2 years including the 1955 city titlists.

At Villanova Bill has increased his activity. He was one of three elected from a ten man ticket, his position being day hop engineering representative for student council.

His major is mechanical engineering and his senior history form is imposing.

Among his activities are secretary of ASME; a member of the Honorary mechanical engineering frat, Pi Tau Sigma; Steering Committee member; Student Council; chairman of the Ways and Means Committee; co-chairman Senior Dinner Dance; Phi Kappa Pi.

Bill hopes to go to Graduate School for Business Administration.

He has had good experience in engineering, working last summer for Rohm and Haas.

Bill is an avid sports enthusiast. He plays golf, tennis, ("a little bit"), and is on the undefeated "Spearchuckers", presently leading their intra-mural football league.

Bill says of Parents Day, "we expect to equal and very possibly exceed last year's occasion. It should be a very successful day all around."

Student, athlete, individualist: This is Bill Henry.

Eileen Greyson and Neil Drislane, of the Student Council Academic Affairs Committee, prepare tutor program.

Council Plans New Version Of Student Tutor Program

A program which will provide tutors for the explicit aid of students having difficulties in specific courses will get underway today.

This announcement was made by Neil Drislane, chairman of the Academic Affairs committee of Student Council. Drislane's committee is sponsoring the project.

Confidential

To be run on a strictly confidential basis, the program will be provided without charge to the student.

"The student and the tutor will mutually decide on convenient hours for the tutoring session," said Drislane.

'Tutors must have a grade of B or better if they wish to sign up for the tutor program.

Drislane further remarked the advantages that would accure to the tutors, both tangible and intangible.

"Anyone who helps a fellow student should get a termendous feeling of selfsatisfaction. Furthermore, the program in effect will be a refresher course in the subject for the tutor. The tutors would only have to devote a few hours a week to his pupil."

Assistance

Those desiring to tutor or those who would appreciate academic assistance should contact Drislane in 106 Sheehan.

There will also be a desk set up in Dougherty Hall all next week. It will be located near the main bulletin board. Members of Drislane's committee will be on hand from 11:30 to 1:30, Monday through Friday of next week.

The program will provide student tutors for the explicit aid of students having difficulties in specific courses. The following is a prime example of how this ne wsystem would function.

Having trouble in a chemistry course, a student desires extracurricular assistance and is referred to the coordinator of the program, who assigns him to a student chemistry tutor.

Set Schedule

The student and his assigned tutor would then set up a schedule, which would be convenient to both of them. These meetings would be held during the day and not in the evening.

The basic principle upon which the success or failure of this program depends, is the quality and interest of the tutors themselves, said Drislane.

A brochure has been prepared by Drislane's committee which is now in circulation, explaining the salient points of the program.

Sixth Annual Ball

The Sixth Annual Advocates' Ball will be held on October 31, it was announced by Robert G. Sur, president of the Student Bar Association of the Villanova Law School.

Dancing at the ball, to be held at the Merion Tribute House, will be from nine to one. Law students, faculty, and alumni of the Law School are invited.

Literary Club To Resume Activities

Mr. Raymond Burns, of the English Department, has announced resumption of Literary Club activities. As in past years Burns will serve as the club's moderator. Officers have not yet been announced.

The Literary Club plans to meet bi-weekly at 3:30 in room 203 Vasey Hall. At the inital meeting yesterday, Jack Dagney, senior English major, spoke on romantic American author, Thomas Wolfe.

Talks such as the one by Dagney are one of the club's main features. Also planned for the future are symposia, films and possibly group excursions.

Among the tentative topics discussed in coming meetings are phase of the theatre, Sir Walter Scott, Britain's "Angry Young Men," Edgar Allen Poe, Irish authors, and Japanese poetry.

Burns stressed that anyone interested in literature is very welcome to join the organization.

Burns felt that the club's main problem is the failure of members to familiarize themselves with the topic to be discussed.

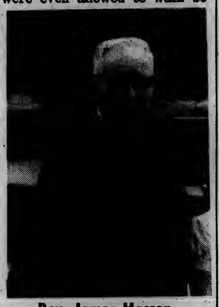
He emphasized that those students interested in the club should acquaint themselves with the material that will be covered.

Monastery's Oldest Priest Filled With Vivid Memories

Rev. James Hasson, OSA, holds the distinction of being the oldest priest in the Monastery. He was first introduced to the University in 1896 when he came here at the age of 16 to study for the priesthood.

Father Hasson is a spry, friendly priest for all of his 79 years. He overflows with vivid and fond memories of the school's tradition. So much so, that most questions of Villanova history are automatically referred to him.

Father Hasson glowed with confidence when he was given the opportunity to identify the ancient pictures which the VILLANOVAN dug out of its files two weeks ago and published as a pictorial feature.



Alumni Hall

He recalls lucidly the time he first came here, when the campus consisted mainly of four buildings — the chapel, Alumni Hall, the old monastery, and St. Mary's Hall which served as the library then.

His eyes sparkle when he recalls having to run from the top floor of Alumni down to the basement to reach the nearest washroom. "During the winter, I had to break the ice in the basin to wash my face," he said.

He remembers that only 75 boys made up the student body at the time. They all lived on the top floor of Alumni Hall; the "large" boys in the east wing and the "small" boys in the west wing. His dorm was merely a large hall filled with beds lined in hospital style.

"It's amazing how discipline regulations have evolved since then," he said. "If a group of nine or more boys received permission from a prefect, they were even allowed to walk beyond the campus boundary into Bryn Mawr."

Rev. James Hasson

Strict Rules

Adding that the boys then governed by strict rules, he said this included "no smoking on campus, no weekend trips home, and no crossing over the boundary without permission."

The penalty suffered for breaking a rule was termed as being "jugged." This meant that a student, during his free time was required to attend a study hall, and under the observant eye of a prefect, study from 50 to 200 lines of history.

"Times haven't changed drastically," he said. "One thing is the same: walking is still the principal means of getting around campus.

"Longer distance transportation has changed radically, though. In those days, horse and buggy and the Penna. Railroad were the usual means of travel

"The railroad is still with us, but . . . (and here was a pause) . . . yes," he mused wistfully, "Yes, I guess times have certainly changed at Villanova since 1898."

LKD Holds Election

Lambda Kappa Delta, Villanova's pre-med fraternity, recently held elections for its 1959-1960 season.

Nick Tenaglia, a senior, was elected president; Ed Morehouser, a junior, is vice president. Dom D'Orio, junior, will serve as secretary; Don Ropain, a senior, is treasurer; and Ralph Lanciano, a sophomore, will represent LKD on the Student Council.

Chem Society Visits National Laboratory

Senior chemistry and physics majors attended the annual College Student Visitors' Day at Brookhaven National Laboratory, Long Island, N. Y. on October 23.

Dr. Bernard Downey, moderator of the Villanova Chemical Society, and Dr. Kenneth O'Driscoll, professor of physical chemistry, accompanied the 20 seniors.

The program consisted of an orientation lecture, and alternating tours through various installations and explanatory lectures. Of particular importance to the students were the research atomic reactor, the giant Cosmotron, and the "hot" lab.

Catholic Youth Week

The National Federation of Catholic College Students, in conjunction with the National Council of Catholic Youth, is sponsoring a Catholic Youth Week from October 25 to November 1.

Ron Dobies, Villanova's delegate to N.F.C.C.S., said that during this week students throughout the country will be urged to attend the Sacraments and to offer prayers for the unity of the Church on earth.

Super Sub!

It's been said that the atomic submarine "Nautilus" stays submerged so long that it only surfaces to let the crew re-enlist.

Perhaps for this reason, the Navy has taken valuable space aboard the "Nautilus" for the only soft-drink vending machine in the entire submarine fleet.

Naturally (or you wouldn't hear about it from us) it's a Coca-Cola machine. And not unexpectedly, re-enlistments are quite respectable.

Rugged lot, those submariners. Great drink, Coke!

Voluntary Tax?

The Council approved the $5,000 treasury last week with amazing swiftness, and all that remains is approval by the Administration. But everything isn't as unanimous as it appears on the surface.

As yet unheard, there is a strong element in the Council which isn't content with Tom Hoffman's favorite proposed method of gaining revenue: a direct student tax.

But a close look at the essence of the tax program shows it to be faulty. The Student Council has never received permission to enforce a compulsory tax. Any tax that would be enacted would be collected on a voluntary basis, so this wouldn't even constitute a tax.

By definition, a tax is a compulsory assessment. The minute that a contribution becomes voluntary, it ceases to be a tax and becomes a donation.

And the Council would be resting on a shaky foundation indeed if it depended on donations. It will be a sorry sight to watch a Council representative soliciting donations down at Registration with an appeal to School spirit.

A contribution will be made voluntarily only if some immediate inducement attracts him. And that inducement at the present time is a Student Activities Card, the merits of which are hardly convincing at this date.

It's a cold political fact that, if the Council Ways and Means Committee promulgates a list of expenditures totalling $5,000, it should have $5,000 on hand to dispense.

And on the basis of voluntary contributions, who will be able to predict the amount which will be collected in a given year? In 1960 it might be $2,000: in 1961 it might be $25. If the Council wishes to make itself a totally responsible body, it had better aim for a stability of income.

Better advantage could be made of a mandatory tax system, in which each student would be assessed equally and with the force of law.

Leaving the tax on a voluntary basis is a Utopian dream. It's inconceivable that Joe Villanova will be eager to contribute a dollar to the Student Council if it is optional.

Keep It a Farce

The splendor was magnificent; the pageantry was gaudy; the atmosphere was charged with frivolity.

And the fifth straight running of the "Joyce Kiely Invitational Mile" was held last Thursday. It was a solid hit, beginning with the luscious "Miss Kiely" being borne in an open Corvette behind a rousing musical escort.

But the day wasn't total nonsense, unfortunately. What was devised as pure farce turned into a flurry of heated exchanges on the racing field. It seems that one of the four frats had one sole object in mind—to capture the racing trophy. It took no part in the festivities, and its members weren't even seen except down at the track.

It entered a varsity athlete as a runner after being warned repeatedly by the host fraternity, Delta Pi Mu, that such a runner would be disqualified. The varsity runner ran, however, and won the race (but not by much). Then the lid blew.

The delinquent frat claimed they were technically justified in entering the letterman. DPM claimed they weren't. DPM runs the entire show, so it's obvious who won the dispute.

All of this furore prompts us to ask one question: what is the purpose of the Joyce Kiely mile? Is it to promote an annual athletic meet, where the runners train and practice to run a deadly serious race, stop watch. et al? We can always watch the IC4A's if that's what we want.

Or is it the purpose of the Kiely Mile to be a mid-term carnival, a traditional farce, a day of beautiful nonsense?

It requires a lot of years to make a tradition like the Joyce Kiely Mile, and the feeling was prevalent, even among that frat's own members, that the gala event was somehow prostituted.

Letters To The Editor

Strong Support Shown For Student Council Treasury

To the Editor:

Any organization before it can function with any amount of efficiency, must establish and regulate an effective financial system so that it can perform the vital activities that would benefit the student body and Villanova itself.

Under our new system I feel certain that the Student Council of Villanova will finally be able to rise above the plateau on which it has rested for many years.

With the development of this budget we will finally be able to solve many of the problems, and take definite action on the proposals which in past years have plagued us immensly due to lack of funds.

Adds To Prestige

To the Editor:

The past week has been a momentous one in the history of Student Government at Villanova.

The proposal for the Student Council's own treasury is the initial step toward the realization of a dream long held by the members of Student Council—both the present body and those of the past.

A treasury of its own would give the Council a great deal more prestige and would aid to eradicate the idea that the Council is merely a useless, puppet-like organization.

The funds in such a treasury would belong not to the members of Student Council, but to each and every Villanovan.

Acceptance of the program by the Administration does not insure its success. The one thing which will make it successful is the backing of the student body.

It would be their treasury and they must back it wholeheartedly in order to reap all its benefits.

Jack King
Engineer, 1960

From Faculty Member

To the Editor:

I have been asked publicly to express an opinion regarding the proposed plan of the Student Council to raise and administer its own funds.

This is an excellent opportunity to test the mettle of our student leaders. The college years should carry one from late adolescence to early maturity, and the amount of responsibility given a student should grow apace.

Our nation is a republic in which each citizen has a voice in government. Our founding fathers foresaw the rule by cultured gentlemen of responsible character.

The autonomous administration of our student government could be the beginning of positive citizenship on the part of Villanovans.

We live in an age in which the laity is coming to occupy a positive place, not only in the organism but also in the organization which is the Church.

No longer is docility a sufficient virtue for the layman; it must now be coupled with a strongly apostolic zeal for action.

The layman has something to say and something to do. He should be heard and allowed to act. Education for lay life needs more than a truncated seminary curriculum and a quasi-seminarian definition of the student.

The layman has a right to responsibility and such a plan as the Student Council has put forth is a sign that the time is ripe to test him and grant him his due.

Forums Help Creativity

To the Editor:

The purpose of this letter is to congratulate the Student Council for its initation of the Council sponsored forums. In past years I feel that there has been a general lacking in this aspect of the intellectual side of college life.

The forum, if it does nothing else, should stimulate a desire on the part of the students for creative thought.

The Council's move is definitely one in the right direction, but I hope that this trend will not end here. The council should in the future encourage the clubs and departments to sponsor more activities of this nature.

Only when this is accomplished will definite head way be made toward the intellectual development of the student.

CAMPUS CAMERA

"Do you think rallies should be held during activities period on Thursday or continue being held at night?"

I myself believe the best time to have the rallies is the way they have been presented in the past. O.K. You ask why I believe this. The reason I do is because the activity period lasts only an hour and by the time a majority of people are participating in it you'll only have a half an hour left. This means you will not get the full effect of a rally because everyone will be rushed. Then on the other hand, having the rallies at night gives no feeling of being rushed and you will get the full feeling and spirit of the Villanova resident student.

Gene Kiener, Psychology, '61

Yes. Everyone unjustly criticizes the lack of spirit of the day hops and I believe that this is just what is needed to bolster it. Not only having the rallies during activity period but a general increase of more activities taking place during the day would lead to increased participation of non-resident students and these activities would be so much the better for it.

Bill Rooney, C&F, '62

Yes, I think that rallies should be held during activities period, for the obvious reason that more students would attend—especially the day hops. Day hops can't always make it at night and having the rallies strictly at night is more like discrimination against the day hops than showing a little consideration for them.

Jack Fiedler, Arts, '60

I am in favor of the traditional Friday night pep rally. The holding of the pep rally during activity period would bolster attendance but the atmosphere of them would be destroyed. Attendance naturally, is the problem. Commuting back and forth is a problem but if it was made a social event the attendance would increase. Having girls invited from other colleges and refreshments at half price would do a lot to stimulate interest. This way the day hops would not feel they are only coming for a half hour where not too much happens and the travelling time is longer than the rally.

Pete Shovlin, Arts, '62

Yes, definitely. A rally is a school activity that concerns the whole student body, and all should attend this. By its very nature, it supercedes all other independent activities. The student activities period is the only time that the resident and day-hop students can unitedly assemble for a rally. With good Spirit Committee planning and co-operation from all students, a rally at that time would benefit the team, the students and the school.

War Years Saw V.U. Go Military With V-12 Plan

PART II

Although no lay classes were taught for the next eight years. The seminary went on, producing twenty-seven clerics by the end of the period. During the Civil War, Villanova devoted its facilities to the direct service of the country by converting them into a hospital.

In 1865, Villanova College reopened its doors to lay students, with Father Ambrose A. Miller as President assited by a faculty of twelve. The subjects taught were Greek, Latin, English ,mathematics, natural philosophy (physics), bookeeping, history, poetry, French, German, and music.

New Growth

THE NEXT STEP in the growth of Villanova was the addition of a west wing to the original class room structure erected in 1848 to complete the building now known as Alumni Hall.

The most revered structure on campus and the focal point of Villanova life, the college chapel, next took its place among the buildings of Old Villanova.

The Villanova 1896 football team poses on the steps of Alumni Hall facing the now present Library.

Ground was broken on March 29, 1883, and the cornerstone was laid on June 3 of the same year, the feast of the Most Pure Heart of Mary.

In 1893 Villanova marked its Golden Anniversary with ninety students, of average age fifteen and one-half years, in attendance, fifteen of whom were ecclesiastical. Sixteen priests comprised the faculty.

"Fedigan's Folly"

The Anniversary celebration past, work began on two gigantic new buildings, the monastery and "College Hall," under the instigation of the then provincial Father John J. Fedigan.

So far beyond the needs of the moment were these two structures, both completed in 1902 that the project was dubbed "Fedigan's Folly." The growth of the Order and the rapid expansion of the college, however, soon turned these structures into monuments to Father Fedigan's foresight.

Economics, sociology, and pedagogy were added to the Arts curriculum in 1905 in a step foreshadowing the establishment of two new schools.

In 1906 and again in 1908 two more strides were taken into the technical fields by the establishment of Electrical and Mechanical Engineering departments.

IN 1915 the School of Science opened. Beginning with a one-year pre-medical program, the school rapidly expanded its curriculum to meet the increasing demands of the medical schools, until a four-year course leading to the degree of B.S. in Biology was offered.

Call to Colors

With the spread of the First World War to include the United States, Villanova's services were again to the colors, this time to train prospective officers. By the end of the war on November 11, 1918, the regular college students in the government-sponsored A.S.T.C. (Army Students Training Corps.) had taken their place.

Once the war had ended and life had returned to normal civilian patterns, expansion was resumed in earnest. In 1920 courses designed to train Catholic businessmen were added to the Arts curriculum.

By 1922, interest had reached such a height that it became necessary to establish a separate School of Commerce and Finance. Father Bartley was appointed Dean of the new school.

At the same time, Austin Hall was built to provide more dormitory space for the growing enrollment.

Sports Growth

In 1927, in response to the growing popularity of intercollegiate sports, the south side of the stadium was erected, and the playing field, track, and stands transferred from the main quadrangle behind the monestery.

Mendel Hall was built with funds solicited throughout the province in 1929 to fill the vacancy left by the fire.

Building continued with the completion of Fedigan Hall in 1930, the Commerce and Finance in 1931, and the Field House in 1932. In 1934, the present monastery was erected to replace a building leveled in another fire in 1932.

DURING THE YEARS which followed, because of the depression and war, no new buildings were added to Villanova's physical plant.

The year 1941 brought the United States into te conflict then raging in Europe.

V-12 Program

In recognition of the outstanding tradition of capable administration leadership, Father Stanford, was among those summoned. The "V-12" program these men formulated, combinating the academic and the military lives, occupied nearly all the daytime teaching facilities of many of the largest colleges and universities in the country, among them Villanova.

POOR ROBERT'S ALMANAC

Editors of the Villanovan have informed me that what this paper needs is a distinctive feature that will build up reader interest to a fever-pitch and stuff like that. So here are my "Sneaky Feelings for 1960," which in the past have been 86 per cent correct, 14 per cent of the time. It's a little early but we're living in a progressive age, man.

BROTHERS

JANUARY

The Academy Award will pick the best song from movies as The Love Theme from "Invasion of the Body Snatchers" . . . Best Seller in books will be "Poems by Yogi Berra." . . . Salvador Dali will call his next abstract "A Horse Giving Birth to a Telephone in the Trunk of a Car." . . . Dot Records will release a new album titled: "Music to Listen to World War III By." Hit song of the album will be "I Remember New York." . . . The Gallop Poll will discover that more doctors smoke than camels . . . On Jan. 23 a man from Bryn Mawr will claim he saw the first robin of spring. The next day Pravda will denounce him as a Capitalist tool, and point out that the first robin of spring actually was glimpsed by a Russian serf on Jan. 4 near Minsk in the year 1602. Pravda will also recall it was the Russians who first invented popcorn, Christmas tree lights, TV Quiz Shows, and a method for getting rid of football coaches.

FEBRUARY

Students graduating will complain that the only thing they got out of Villanova was an education. Students who didn't do so well will form a subversive organization with a movement to unplug the IBM grade sending-out machine from the wall . . . First day of the new semester each professor will greet students with eight volumes of outside readings . . . TV Westerns will try to make a comback with a show called "Ambush at Freud Canyon." An even more popular sequel will follow titled: "Son of Ambush at Freud Canyon." . . . Slowly falling birth rate plus an increase in the number of teensgers will result in a sharp price war among baby sitters . . .

MARCH

The Villanova Swimming Team will swim the channel between the Seaward Peninsula of Alaska for 55 miles to the Chukotsi Peninsula of Alaska with hopes of giving our university national fame . . . The new Buick TV show will require seven makeup men —that is for the car . . . Irritated students will insist on a Summit Conference between Residents and Day Hops . . . Playhouse 90 will have a condensation of two world-famous plays by William Shakespeare produced as a musical skit titled "Romeo and Cleopatra." It will star Shirley Temple and Andrea Gromyko . . . Pravda will announce it has discovered that an obscure 67-year-old Russian athlete named Ivan Gladovitchsky actually first broke the four-minute mile in 1858 by covering the distance in 3:43, while wearing a snow suit . . .

APRIL

The Dodgers and the Giants will announce a six-man trade involving eight pitchers, two shortstops and two hot dog vendors . . . Lassie and Rin-Tin-Tin will wed in the greatest Hollywood marriage since Doug Fairbanks signed up with Mary Pickford. The marriage will break up within three months, with both Lassie and Rinty saying they are still the best of friends and each blaming the split-up on "career troubles." . . . The Student Council will proclaim a "Be Kind to Day Hops Day." . . . A new breakfast cereal will feature as prizes an autographed picture of William the Conqueror along with an 8 x 10 photograph of the 1919 Chicago White Sox . . . Hollywood's latest release "Seven Infidel Presidents" will show that George Washington wasn't kneeling to pray at Valley Forge but was stooping to tie his shoe.

SANDS OF TIME

What is this thing which we call age,
That the young seek and the old deny;
In the book of life it is but a page,
At which we glimpse as time goes by.

How long do we have, none can know;
We can only plan from day to day,
And hope to reach each first new snow,
Then to the blossoms in the month of May.

Is there a scale upon which to measure,
The worth of a lifetime, large or small;
Of one filled with work and pleasure,
Or the other to which the Creator calls.

How often do we stop to think,
Of all the time that has passed us by;
To which many men will raise their drink,
And toast the way that time does fly.

Treasury Is Key To Maturity; Saturday And Float Famine

bill speers

Presently before the Student Council, is a bill calling for the Council's initiation of a new $5000 treasury. During the next few weeks there will be much quibbling as to the merits and the demerits of this bill, but one thing is clearly evident.

SPEERS

If the Council is ever to come of age and gain the respect due it by the Villanova students, it must begin to manage those affairs delegated to it by the administration and those expected to be appropriated by a student government on its own.

How large, a treasury it will ultimately be and how the funds will be procured can finally be decided through debate and discussion in the Council itself. But the important thing should be to get some sort of independent (of the administration) treasury installed within our Student Council.

It may be the view of only one looker-on, but it seemed to us, after last Wednesday's meeting, that some of the opposition to the treasury was personal, i.e. directed at a certain member or members of the Council and not the bill itself, and that other opponents of the bill were taking a negative outlook just for the sake of a negative outlook.

It would be a blot upon the 1959-60 Student Council if the possibility of its having its own treasury was to be canned because of personal or any other petty gripes.

As far as you, the student, is concerned, familiarize yourself with the bill through last week's issue of the Villanovan or a mimeographed copy of the bill which can be obtained in the Student Council office.

If the bill is passed, the cost to you will be nominal (about the cost of a neighborhood movie or a couple of copies of "Playboy") while the positive benefits will be realized in a few years and the potentialities are unlimited.

For all of you who profess the Student Council as a useless organization, give your full support to just this one bill, for student opinion will rank especially high on this issue. Study the bill carefully and make your views known to your representative.

If your not quite sure who your representative is, come up to the second floor of Dougherty Hall, to either the Villanovan or the Student Council office and ask anyone there; they will only be too glad to help you out.

Support your Student Council in this one thing, and you will see just how effective united student opinion can be.

Probably one of the biggest flops of this year, or maybe of any other year, was last Saturday's Homecoming. The weather was not the most desireable—true, but all things being equal, the program could have gone off as usual if it weren't for one thing—the lack of cooperation.

The floats worked on by the students days in advance and even into the wee small hours of Saturday morning, were readied outside the stadium; a half dozen MG's and Jaguars had been donated by a local auto agency for the purpose of escorting the homecoming queens, were all set to go outside the field's walls; Dave Doyle who had been constantly thwarted by circumstance in his attempts to execute a successful weekend, was finally in his glory; then came the news —no homecoming ceremonies.

Why? The track was too wet. OK, but why was this made known just a few moments before the ceremonies were to get under way? So all the hours of work go down the drain; four to five hundred dollars worth of decorations go unappreciated. One observer noticed the desolate and purposeless sight of four girls standing upon a float, that was pushed to the sidelines, as if it was trying to be concealed.

At halftime, silence prevailed. Even though it was not raining at this time, the band was not permitted to march around the track. We don't know from what distant points the returning alumni had come but one things for sure—Ol' V.U. didn't give them much to be proud of.

Many spectators failed to see how the track was poor enough to halt proceedings; and even if the track's condition was questionable, certainly because of the time, effort and money put into these floats an attempt, could have been made to start the events anyhow.

Or at least, a decision could have been announced long before it was, to cushion the disappointment of the spectators and participants alike.

And some clowns keep yelling "What's wrong with the Villanova spirit".

Chairman Pleased So Far; But He Seeks Greater End

tom hoffman

THE DAY IS last Wednesday—exactly a week as passed since; the time is after the Council meeting at which our Treasury system was passed. The Chairman casually rests back in his chair with realization of the accomplishment of our Student Council this evening . He is contented with the progress so far, because we have furnished the basis for further expansions. What could be more soothing to a Council devoted to benefitting Villanova by developing the student body in all ways intellectually, religiously, socially, and recreationally. We want a student body that is pleased with Villanova University.

HOFFMAN

But as the Chairman delights in the Council's accomplishment, he fully realizes the immense task that lies before them. Now we must set up the programs, put the plans into play and get the student body solidly behind the Student Council.

What comes next? Every student must evaluate our proposed program and suggest changes or improvements. Every Student Council member must look at the program even more thoroughly and visualize the ramifications of such a budget. For its ultimate success every Council member must support it wholeheartedly and do their best to see a "pleased student body". There will be small loopholes, overlooked at this point, but which will be ironed as time goes on.

VAGUELY HE RECALLS three points which the Student Council heard in his opening speech this year, "For effective student government this year, we must understand that: 1) Students elected to office must clearly understand their responsibilities and opportunities. 2) The officers and members of student government must believe in student government and be ready to expend effort and make personal sacrifices to make it effective . Hurried student government meetings with some members tardy and others leaving early for other engagements will never be effective. 3) Only worthwhile projects should be sponsored by a student governing body. Appeals to students in behalf of these projects should assume maturity on the part of the students and be presented to them in a dignified way."

Finally, special thanks goes to the following who have contributed heavily to the Treasury program: Bill Vincent, Bob DeLisa, Neil Dreslane, Fred Wiele, John Driscoll, Bob Benson, Len Carnegie, and John Castano. They are the people working with their committees that are working out many of the suggested programs.

Local College Girl Given "The Works"

The Portrait of A Monster by Natalie Attired

IN ORDER TO gather material for this column it is sometimes necessary to go out into the field. One of the methods used in gathering news is the interview.

This time we visited a neighboring girl's college, and interviewed what we though to be a typical representative of this institution's mthods and policies of education an dtraining. However, your opinion is what counts.

In the course of the interview we questioned her as to how she would cope with a problem which recently embodied many of our students. I refer to the screen situation. She replied that she would make the problem known to the Administration by letter. To this indicated a naive outlook on life.

Futher questioning revealed to us that her dating pattern was, let us say, static. This might give us a clue to the source of her naivete.

WHEN ASKED TO what type of gentlemen she is friendly with; she replied that they were typical American college boys who had no idea as to what specific goals they were aiming at. Later we earmarked to ourselves that it would be fruitless to refer to her as the proverbial "guiding light."

Wishing to test her capacity for kindness and consideration we posed this question. "If you were in New Yorv City and wished to travel from one point to another, a medium distance, and your escort expressed his desire to go by subway, when it could be reached by cab, would she comply with his wish?" She answered that she would take a cab and tell her escort to get lost, on the subway.

We now wondered what her religious preference was. She then, quite lady-like, for a change, showed her enthusiasm for the Knights of Columbus.

Interrogating her further we asked her of her plans for after graduation. She's looking forward to getting a job in a big city and leaving her family. We asked if she had heard of Rona Jaffe . . .

We close by saying, "Ain't college grand!"

New York City Ballet Charms Capacity Academy Audience

tony mackin

The incomparable New York City Ballet enchanted a capacity audience at the Academy of Music last Friday night in one of their three performances in Philadelphia.

Their first selection was the poetic classic, "Swan Lake." It was danced with spell-binding grace and beauty. Allegra Kent was exquisite as Odetta, the Swan Queen and the charming Pas de quarte was warmly received by the ballet-omanes.

"Fanfare," choregraphed by Jerome Robbins, was the second choice of the troupe. To music by Benjamin Britten (The Young Person's Guide to the Orchestra) the dancers appeared as the different instruments of a symphony orchestra.

Vivid costuming accented the effectiveness of this spirited dance.

Touches of Humor

This was the most humorous of the night's attractions and the antics of the bass and percussions particularly delighted.

There was one slight imperfection in "Fanfare" in that the harp of the orchestra was not entirely coordinated with Juliana who portrayed the harp on stage.

"Fanfare" was followed by Glinka's "Pas de Trois" with Patrice Wilde, Violette Verdy, and Jacques d'Ambroise. d'Amboise, "the flying fullback," is one of the largest and finest dancers in ballet today.

He received the night's greatest ovation for his amazingly graceful leaps and whirls. He is a confident, gifted artist.

Cowboy Classic

d'Amboise reappeared in the concluding selection of the night, "Western Symphony," which captured the flavor of the West within the framework of the classic school.

The New York company is fresh and sparkling. Its performers possess youth and vitality and appear to enjoy themselves at every moment.

The choreography, costumes, and lighting handled by George Blanchine, Karinska, and Jean Rosenthal, respectively, plus the energy and brilliance of the dancers and the excellent orchestration under Hugo Fiorato created a memorable evening of entertainment.

Large Univ. vs Small College

jim bising

THE LACK OF informal contact between the faculty and students o fan educational institution is one of the supposed disadvantages of a large university in comparison to a small college. Although the needs of society demand that a substantial segment of the populace be educated to the best of its ability, the student who attends the large university of today must have more attention paid to him than has been the case in recent years.

A school such as Villanova, in addition to having the common difficulty of an ever increasing enrollment, has the problem of having a large number of its students come from the same section of the country; moreover, a large number of these individuals, for one reason or another, reside at home in the same environment in which they have been having to overcome the mentally cramping effects of the home and high school. The continued contact of the student with people who are mentally awake, widely travelled, and well read should benefit any person who is really interested in the world in which he lives.

AT PRESENT, the contact between the majority of Villanova students and the men who are paid to instruct them is less intimate than the status of relations which existed between Henry Ford and Sam Gompers. There are exceptions to this statement, but I maintain that the one or two students that rush up to the front of a classroom when a lecture is ended do not represent the majority or the general state of conditions here.

Those concerned can react to this situation in one of three ways: they can continue what will happen); someone (with an official title of some sort) might proclaim "Get Acquainted Week"; some of the culprits on both sides of that desk in front of the classroom might show some innitiative and get together.

The success or failure, greatness or mediocrity of any human institution depends upon its leaders and its followers. Failure often occurs when one or both of these groups fails to participate in the life of the community. What is happening here?

Dear Bothered: Say you have a headache. Better still, admit you have no head.

DR. FROOD ON A CURIOUS DECISION

There is considerable talk in tobacco circles about the introduction of new cigarette flavors. It is expected that you will soon be able to buy cottage-cheese cigarettes, sarsaparilla cigarettes and fresh-garden-vegetable cigarettes. You will be happy to know that Lucky Strike has decided to stick with its own remarkable taste—that of fine tobacco only. A pleasant decision, I'd say.

COLLEGE STUDENTS SMOKE MORE LUCKIES THAN ANY OTHER REGULAR!

When it comes to choosing their regular smoke, college students head right for fine tobacco. Result: Lucky Strike tops every other regular sold. Lucky's taste beats all the rest because L.S./M.F.T.—Lucky Strike means fine tobacco.

also devotes considerable time to covering foreign news.

Although he has covered virtually all types of news during a career which spans almost thirty years, Salisbury is noted primarily as an expert in contemporary Russian affairs.

In 1944, he made his first trip through Russia, visiting the steel, munitions and aircraft factories that were to contribute to that country's rise as one of "The Big Two." During this tour he also visited such "forbidden" cities as Tashkent and Samarkand.

Unprecedented Journey

Salisbury returned to Russia as the TIMES' Moscow correspondent in 1949, and remained there for five years, culminating his tour of duty with an unprecedented journey through Soviet Central Asia.

His reports on this trip were one of the first intimations to the American public of the tremendous industrial area being constructed by the Communists in a region that had been sealed off to foreigners since Czarist times.

These articles served as the basis of his book, "American in Russia," and earned him the Pulitzer Prize for excellence in foreign reporting in 1954.

In the fall of 1957, Salisbury made his third major tour of Communist territory, this time visiting seven of the Russian satellite countries.

He was the first American correspondent to have visited Albania in twelve years, and he reported that this little-known nation was "actually a little bit of Stalin's Russia, preserved under glass—the satellite of satellites."

Fourth Tour

Recently, he concluded his fourth tour of the Soviet Union, this time visiting the almost-unheard-of Outer and Inner Mongolia. He also covered Vice President Nixon's Russian trip, and Premier Krushchev's tour of the United States.

Earlier in his career, as United Press correspondent in Chicago, Salisbury covered the tail end of the gang wars of the Prohibition Era. Following this, he covered the Al Capone tax evasion trial, the assassination of Huey P. Long and the ensuing chaos in Louisiana.

During World War II, he served as London Manager of UP and later, as Director of European coverage. In this latter post, he handled such stories as the North African campaign and the Teheran Big Four conference.

Delinquency Study

More recently, Salisbury made an investigation - in - depth into the causes of recurring and spectacular juvenile delinquency, resulting in a series of notables articles and his newest book, "The Shook-Up Generation."

During his coverage of adolescent gang land, Salisbury was referred to by the juvenile thugs as "the man from the NEWS," the NEW YORK DAILY NEWS being the only newspaper the young gangsters read.

"Salisbury's appearance at Villanova establishes a high precedent for the quality of future speakers at the Forums," stated Mr. Eugene Ruane, director of public information, who is handling publicity for the event. "Happily, the tentative line-up of speakers promises to be just what we're looking for."

Ruane further declared that the Forum series will consist of three more speakers during the course of the acadmic year. Speaker for the next lecture will be announced shortly.

Prior Leave

"Technically, anyone who isn't where he is supposed to be without prior leave is A.W.O.L., according to the Army", he replied. "Cole Younger received the maximum sentence the Army could give for this offense", he said further.

It is a matter of conjecture what the Army will present to Bob Kennedy when he returns. His family can only hope for justice for a young man who has gone through a great deal in the service of his country.

Knights Awards First Degree To 12 Candidates

Twelve candidates were exemplified with the first degree in the Father Ludwig, O.S.A. Council, Knights of Columbus, Oct. 19. The ceremonies took place at 6:30 p.m. in Vasey Hall Auditorium with Dr. Robert O'Shea, Grand Knight, presiding.

The twelve candidates include both instructors and students of Villanova. They are: Dr. Gerard V. Dalcourt, Gabriel J. DiFederico, Vincent A. Bauso, James J. Phair, Robert M. Rose, Thomas F. Raymond, Edward Overfield, Michael F. Fallon, Ludwig J. Franz, Robert Macrina, Joseph R. Clark, and Francis A. Coccagna.

O'Shea announced that the next monthly weeting will be held on Monday, November 2, at 6:30 p.m. in Vasey Auditorium. At this meeting the installation of the current slate of officers will take place with the District Deputy, Mr. William Gallagher, and his installation team presiding.

He also announced that Dr. Eugene Powers, Past Grand Knight, has been invited to attend the installation. All members of the K. of C., both of this Council and outside Councils are invited to attend this annual meeting.

I.R.S. Observes United Nations

Plans for the observance of United Nations week were the chief topic of discussion at last Thursday's meeting of the International Relations Society.

It was announced that an exhibit concerning the United Nations, its functions and services, has been placed on display in the university library as a part of the society's contribution to the success of U. N. week.

It was further agreed that I.R.S. would donate to the library a book of historical or political significance, the title to be announced at a later date.

Tentative arrangements have been made for the society's annual field trip. This year, it has been decided to spend a day at the United Nations building in New York.

The event will feature a guided tour, lectures and if possible, a session of the General Assembly.

The date for the excursion has ben temporarily set for December 7.

Chairman of the U. N. Trip committee, Larry Ruth, announced that fees for the trip will depend on the number of members attending, and will be due by November 19.

The meeting terminated with a thirty minute film entitled, "The European Community," which dealt with the German Unification question in relation to Soviet Russia.

Severence Must Cut Squad

By Jim Murray

Head basketball coach Al Severance has a problem. With just five weeks remaining before the season's opening games with Princeton, coach Severance has the unhappy task of cutting his varsity squad to manageable proportions.

As of last Wednesday there were over 20 candidates for the varsity team. Included in this group of eager, hardworking prospects are eight members of last year's team (five lettermen).

There are seven sophomores, two transfer students, and a couple of seniors who played on the 1956-57 freshmen team, then voluntarily remained inactive for two years, devoting their time to study.

The returning lettermen are Captain George Raveling (6-6), Jim Huggard (5-10), John Driscoll (6-8), Bob Liberatore (6-1), and Richie Kaminski (6-1).

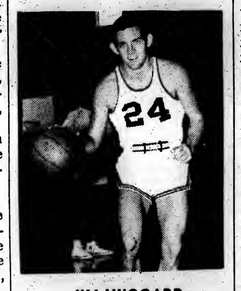
Others from the 1957-58 team are Tom Samulewicz (6-5), Dave Severance (6-3, and Don McGinley (6-1).

Seven Sophomores

Sophomore candidates are Hubie White (6-4), Dick LeFevre (6-1), Jim McMonagle (6-3), Bill Penney (6-3), Joe Walsh (6-6), Ed Boyle (6-1), and Don Winters (6-1).

The two transfer students are Joe Zawacki (6-1) from St. Louis.

Thus, although coach Severance has a problem, it's a problem that very many basketball coaches would love to have. Practicall everyone of the abovementioned players would be a prime candidate for nearly any team in the country.



But this Villanova basketball team must be the finest in years, for this year's schedule is one of the toughest in the country. Many critics of last year's Villanova team crowed about the "soft touches" on the scedule. There are no soft touches this year.

Tough Schedule

Included on the 24 game regular season schedule are Princeton, Clemson, North Carolina State, Duquesne, West Virginia, Seton Hall, Canisius, Manhatten, N. Y. U., St. Bonaventur and Wake Forest.

Then there are what will probably be the toughest games of all: the four played against the city teams in the Big Five Competition.

An oddity in the scheduling is that Villanova will play a home game some 500 miles from Philadelphia. The 'Cats will meet North Carolina State in Greensboro, North Carolina. They'll be the first teams to play in the new Greensboro auditorium.

extra point and Bullis led 13-0 as the half ended.

A penalty netted Bullis their third score of the afternoon. After Sutton had sneaked for a first down on the Bullis forty-four, Dick Richman picked off Sutton's first down pass and returned it to the Bullis forty. A personal foul penalty nullified the interception and gave Bullis possession of the pigskin on the VU forty. Two complete passes by Sutton and a two yard run by Foley put the ball on the Frosh twelve. Sutton then faked to his halfback and rounded end for the score. He threw the two point conversion to Spears.

Cats Threaten

Shortly thereafter Villanova threatened. A Villanova guard, Armstrong, intercepted a Bullis pass and carried it to the VU forty-three. Thomas and Sharaghnessy picked up ten yards apiece and Glueck rolled out for eleven more. On second down Thomas picked up another first down on the Bullis thirteen. Bullis stiffened their defenses and permitted no gains on the next three downs. On the last down Glueck's pass was intercepted by Povick and the threat died.

Bullis scored their last two points when Sutton tackled Merendo in the end zone following a punt.

In the waning moments of the game the Cats finally got a sustained drive going and kept it rolling. The Cats took the ball on downs and marched sixty-eight yards for their first score. The drive was highlighted by the passing and running of Glueck and the hard charges of Thomas. Thomas scored the TD on a five yard plunge. The try for the extra point was foiled.

Post-Game Interviews

In an interview after the game Bob Hayes, the Bullis coach said, "This was our hardest game so far this year. Your pass defense was weak but your line play was tremendous." Quarterback Bobby Sutton, stated that he was impressed by the Cats hand rushing line. "They were putting pressure on me every time I threw the ball, that big end (Mount) dumped me about four times."

Coach Brannau said that, "They were a lot bigger and little bit better than we were." He went on to say, that he was very impressed by Sutton's play and the size of giant Jerry Spears. He also cited Jack Mount (end) and Thomas for jobs well done for Villanova.

The Freshmens next game is next Friday against West Chester at Villanova.

LANGUAGE MADE SIMPLE: NO. 1

In this day of swift international communications, like radio, television, and the raft, it becomes more and more important to be solidly grounded in foreign languages. Accordingly, I have asked the makers of Philip Morris whether I might not occasionally forego levity in this column and instead use it for a lesson in language.

"Of course, silly!" chuckled the makers of Philip Morris, tousling my yellow locks. Oh, grand men they are, just as full of natural goodness as the cigarettes they make, just as clean and fresh, just as friendly, just as agreeable to have along in all times and climes and places. "Of course, fond boy," laughed the makers and tossed me up and down in a blanket until, giddy with giggling, I bade them desist, and then we all had basins of farina and smoked Philip Morrises and sang songs until the campfire had turned to embers.

For our first lesson in language we will take up French. We will approach French in the modern manner—ignoring the tedious rules of grammar and concentrating instead on idiom. After all, when we go to France, what does it matter if we can parse and conjugate? What matters is that we should be able to speak idiomatic conversational French.

So, for the first exercise, translate the following real, true-to-life dialogue between two real, true-to-life Frenchmen named Claude (pronounced Clohd) and Pierre (also pronounced Clohd).

CLAUDE: Good morning, sir. Can you direct me to the nearest monk?

PIERRE: I have regret, but I am a stranger here myself.

CLAUDE: Is it that you come from the France?

PIERRE: You have right.

CLAUDE: I also. Come, let us mount the airplane and return ourselves to the France.

PIERRE: We must defend from smoking until the airplane elevates itself.

CLAUDE: Ah, now it has elevated itself. Will you have a Philippe Maurice?

PIERRE: Mercy.

CLAUDE: How many years has the small gray cat of the sick admiral?

PIERRE: She has four years, but the tall brown dog of the short blacksmith has only three.

CLAUDE: In the garden of my aunt it makes warm in the summer and cold in the winter.

PIERRE: What a coincidence! In the garden of my aunt too!

CLAUDE: Ah, we are landing. Regard how the airplane depresses itself.

PIERRE: What shall you do in the France?

CLAUDE: I shall make a promenade and see various sights of cultural significance, like the Louvre, the Tomb of Napoleon, and the Eiffel Tower . . . What shall you do?

PIERRE: I shall try to pick up the stewardess.

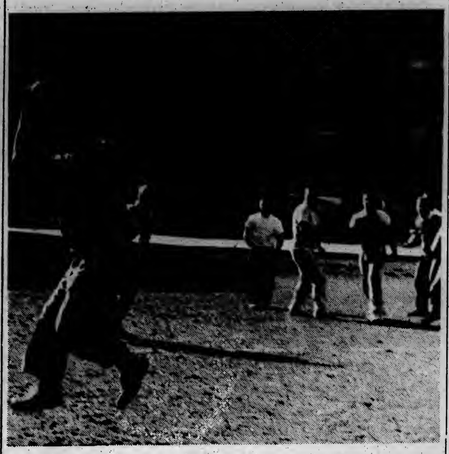
Football Teams Start To Go Go In Intramurals

The five league, sixty team touch football program moves into its fourth week after last week's action.

The 2:30 p.m. Mendel Field Field league saw no football action this past week although two teams did rack up wins. The Mares forfeited to the Cowboys and the East Coast Beatniks did likewise to the Knights.

Three good football games highlighted the proceedings on Mendel Field at 4:30 p.m. last week. On Monday Blitbs beat Alpha Company 18-0 in a game that was closer than the score indicates. On Tuesday in a real squeaker the Incognitoes sneaked past the Awful Awfuls 18-15. In a real defensive battle on Wednesday the Thumbs A.C. overcome Charlie Company 6-0. The teams had Thursday off due to rain.



Dukes Swamp Guannis

The Dukes had a busy time last week on Austin Field at 2:30 p.m., on Monday they rode rough shod over the Guannis 28 to 0. Tuesday they had the day off because of the Navy drill but came back strong on Wednesday to push over a touchdown against the Langan's Laskes and then held on for a 7-0 win.

The 4:30 p.m. games on Austin Field were as different as day and night. On Monday the spectators were treated to a scoring feast as the Spearchuckers rolled over Urassis 35 to 0. Wednesday, however, D.P.M. slipped by the Chinise Bandits 7-0.

In the various leagues there are several tight races which should prove very interesting. Ed Gietz and Jack Lumsden the Intramural Directors urge as many spectators as possible to come to the games and cheer their favorite team and classmates on to victory.

Intramural Pass Completion

Sports Chatter

Starved For Victory

Tony Macklin

Villanova has four more shots at victory. But it seems certain that this Saturday is the must game if victory is to be had this horrorball season.

Dayton is having a sad time but they have won a game. They nabbed their first game over Richmond 6-3. In looking at their record one sees an incredible lack of scoring punch, and the fat and slow "Flyers" look very much like a setup.

However, and there always is a however. Dayton is hungry and primed for an all out effort.

Saturday night they were shut out for the third time this season 3-0 by Xavier (a team which mauled the 'Cats 48-20). But in losing by three small points Dayton had two touchdowns nullified by penalties, lost another on a goal line fumble, and missed two field goal attempts.

Callous Call

Another example of tde misfortune that has hounded the "Flyers" this season is the Holy Cross game. Holy Cross won on a TD set up by a penalty against the coach for coaching from the sidelines.

We felt we were going to see it invoked again last Saturday but it seems Philadelphia area referees aren't nearly so callous (Dan Smeddy excluded.)

Actually for a while Saturday it appeared that the 'Cats were to be all fortunate. Three important breaks went their way. First VPI was offsides as VU prepared to punt. This led to the first 'Cat score.

Then an 81 yard TD punt return was nullified by a clipping penalty. Thirdly Reggie Powe recovered a Tech fumble on the Virginia six and this set up the second Villanova touchdown.

Over Roehre's Head

But turnabout is lousy, a pass from center flew wildly over Ed Roehre's head as he was ready to punt.

Ideally Roehre, seeing he was trapped, would have stepped out of the end zone and given VPI a safety and two points, but lost with surprise he attempted to run and was dropped just outside the end zone.

The "Gobblers" then plunged for a touchdown and the ball game.

So this Saturday with Dayton and Villanova on the field something radical will happen. Let's hope it's a Villanova victory.

Beyond the Dayton game come Army (3-2) with Joe Caldwell firing like Wyatt Earp, Rutgers (4-1), and Detroit (3-3) with a 38-14 victory over Xavier.

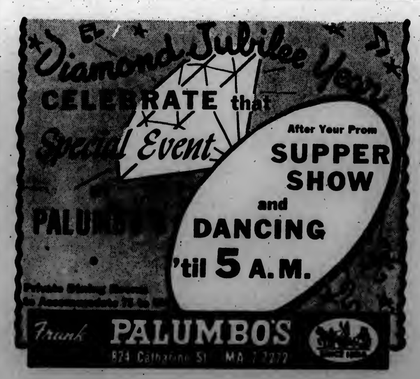
Dayton Must Game

So if the 'Cats don't strike down Dayton, Villanova will have a winless football team this season.

The Wildcats are improving. They finally played a football game Saturday. Their blocking and tackling was better. They even gang tackled, something we don't usually see at Villanova. And gang tackling was necessary for Tech is a rugged, powerful ball club.

On offense the 'Cat line opened holes consistently and Leon Horin went slashing through for solid gains.

Each of the three quarterbacks contributed. Nick Langone chugged around end and powered over center with gritty determination, Kautter punted well, and Roehre engineered a touchdown march and performed capably until his interference collapsed.



Still it is hard to get used to the picture of a quarterback with his hands outstretched in a "what can I do, it wasn't my fault" pose.

Ragged Air Defense

The pass defense was weak once again last Saturday. VPI's first TD was on a discouragingly easy pass play. A sharp passer could shred our air defense in its present state.

Coach Joe Rogers appealed to many of the fans with his policy of giving the players a chance and not yanking them out of action before they have a chance to get their bearings. The team seemed to have more spirit than at any other time this season.

All in all, there is a flicker of optimism about this week's game with Dayton. Two desperate teams, both starved for victory, will clash. It's now or never for the Wildcats.

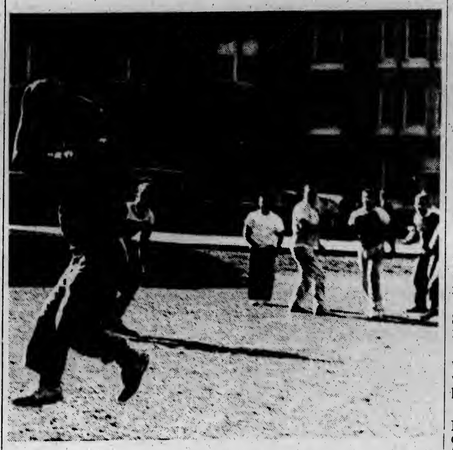
Football Teams Start To Go Go In Intramurals

The five league, sixty team touch football program moves into its fourth week after last week's action.

The 2:30 p.m. Mendel Field Field league saw no football action this past week although two teams did rack up wins. The Mares forfeited to the Cowboys and the East Coast Beatniks did likewise to the Knights.

Three good football games highlighted the proceedings on Mendel Field at 4:30 p.m. last week. On Monday Blitbs beat Alpha Company 18-0 in a game that was closer than the score indicates. On Tuesday in a real squeaker the Incognitoes sneaked past the Awful Awfuls 18-15. In a real defensive battle on Wednesday the Thumbs A.C. overcome Charlie Company 6-0. The teams had Thursday off due to rain.



Dukes Swamp Guannis

The Dukes had a busy time last week on Austin Field at 2:30 p.m., on Monday they rode rough shod over the Guannis 28 to 0. Tuesday they had the day off because of the Navy drill but came back strong on Wednesday to push over a touchdown against the Langan's Laskes and then held on for a 7-0 win.

The 4:30 p.m. games on Austin Field were as different as day and night. On Monday the spectators were treated to a scoring feast as the Spearchuckers rolled over Urassis 35 to 0. Wednesday, however, D.P.M. slipped by the Chinise Bandits 7-0.

In the various leagues there are several tight races which should prove very interesting. Ed Gietz and Jack Lumsden the Intramural Directors urge as many spectators as possible to come to the games and cheer their favorite team and classmates on to victory.

Starved For Victory

Tony Macklin

Villanova has four more shots at victory. But it seems certain that this Saturday is the must game if victory is to be had this horrorball season.

Dayton is having a sad time but they have won a game. They nabbed their first game over Richmond 6-3. In looking at their record one sees an incredible lack of scoring punch, and the fat and slow "Flyers" look very much like a setup.

However, and there always is a however, Dayton is hungry and primed for an all out effort.

Saturday night they were shut out for the third time this season 3-0 by Xavier (a team which mauled the 'Cats 48-20). But in losing by three small points Dayton had two touchdowns nullified by penalties, lost another on a goal line fumble, and missed two field goal attempts.

Callous Call

Another example of tde misfortune that has hounded the "Flyers" this season is the Holy Cross game. Holy Cross won on a TD set up by a penalty against the coach for coaching from the sidelines.

We telt we were going to see it invoked again last Saturday but it seems Philadelphia area referees aren't nearly so callous (Dan Smeddy excluded.)

Actually for a while Saturday it appeared that the 'Cats were to be all fortunate. Three important breaks went their way. First VPI was offsides as VU prepared to punt. This led to the first 'Cat score.

Then an 81 yard TD punt return was nullified by a clipping penalty. Thirdly Reggie Powe recovered a Tech fumble on the Virginia six and this set up the second Villanova touchdown.

Over Roehre's Head

But turnabout is lousy, a pass from center flew wildly over Ed Roehre's head as he was ready to punt.

Ideally Roehre, seeing he was trapped, would have stepped out of the end zone and given VPI a safety and two points, but lost with surprise he attempted to run and was dropped just outside the end zone.

The "Gobblers" then plunged for a touchdown and the ball game.

So this Saturday with Dayton and Villanova on the field something radical will happen. Let's hope it's a Villanova victory.

Beyond the Dayton game come Army (3-2) with Joe Caldwell firing like Wyatt Earp, Rutgers (4-1), and Detroit (3-3) with a 38-14 victory over Xavier.

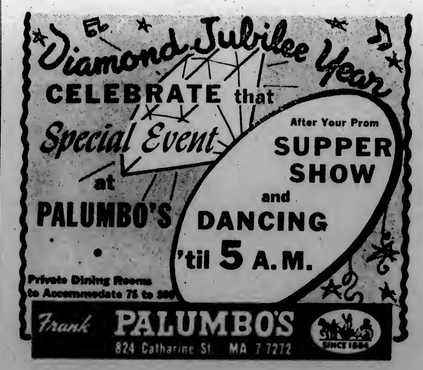
Dayton Must Game

So if the 'Cats don't strike down Dayton, Villanova will have a winless football team this season.

The Wildcats are improving. They finally played a football game Saturday. Their blocking and tackling was better. They even gang tackled, something we don't usually see at Villanova. And gang tackling was necessary for Tech is a rugged, powerful ball club.

On offense the 'Cat line opened holes consistently and Leon Horin went slashing through for solid gains.

Each of the three quarterbacks contributed. Nick Langone chugged around end and powered over center with gritty determination, Kautter punted well, and Roehre engineered a touchdown march and performed capably until his interference collapsed.



Still it is hard to get used to the picture of a quarterback with his hands outstretched in a "what can I do, it wasn't my fault" pose.

Ragged Air Defense

The pass defense was weak once again last Saturday. VPI's first TD was on a discouragingly easy pass play. A sharp passer could shred our air defense in its present state.

Coach Joe Rogers appealed to many of the fans with his policy of giving the players a chance and not yanking them out of action before they have a chance to get their bearings. The team seemed to have more spirit than at any other time this season.

All in all, there is a flicker of optimism about this week's game with Dayton. Two desperate teams, both starved for victory, will clash. It's now or never for the Wildcats.

Dayton Last Home Foe For Wildcats

Wildcat end waits for pass in Tech game.

by Mike Donahue

Dayton University, once an independent power in midwestern football circles, but currently experiencing one of its worst seasons, will be Villanova's final home foe of 1959, as the Mainliners seek to cop the Big One Saturday at Goodreau Stadium.

Incredible at it might seem, Dayton's football fortunes are at an even lower ebb than the Wildcats'. With only one win coach Bud Kerr's offensively inept Flyers have been able to amass a mere 19 points in six games. Their most recent loss was last Saturday's 3-0 whitewashing at the hands of Xavier, a 48-20 conqueror of Villanova early in the season.

No Great Surprise

Unlike the situation here, however, Dayton's unglamourous record comes as no great surprise to football "experts". Because of last season's 2-8 slate and the face that Kerr had no outstanding or even reliable backs to move behind his veteran line, Dayton was not given too much of a chance to improve appreciably on last year's record.

Dayton's lack of scoring punch is a carry-over from last year. In ten games last fall the Flyers scored only 60 points. Thus far in six encounters they have garnered nineteen. By way of comparison the Wildcats have managed to accumulate 53 in the same number of outings.

Famine To End Saturday?

On the basis of these statistics and the 'Cats encouraging showing against Virginia Tech, Saturday just might be the end of the drought .

If the Wildcats are to win they must be able to contain two Dayton standouts, Tony Latell, a 6-1, 220 pound end and Steve (The Rock) Palenchar, 5-10, 220 pound guard.

Latell is a glue-fingered pass receiver who reportedly has scouts drooling over his ability as a wingman. Last season he was 20th in the country in pass receiving as he grabbed 24 aerials good for 359 yards and one touchdown.

One Of Best 'Little' Guards

Palenchar is a diminutive but destructive middle lineman who, according to coach Kerr, "is one of the best blockers and linebackers on any college team in the country." The Rock has also been tabbed by one expert as "the best little guard in college football."

Other Flyer regulars and lettermen include Bob Cyphers, an end converted to halfback because of his breakaway speed; George Markley, Cypher's replacement at end; a Hawaiian halfback named Kwong On Kam who has been re-christened Milton Kam to simplify things for sports commentators and public address announcers; Nate Bruno, halfback, who was voted Dayton's most improved back last year; and stellar quarterback Pat Connor.

Techmen Tops 'Cats 24-14

By Jim Murray

Last Saturday afternoon, before a Homecoming Day crowd of 8,000 the Villanova Wildcats lost a heartbreaker 24-14 to Virginia Tech.

The 'Cats played their finest game of the season but a 12 point fourth quarter for the Gobblers was the difference.

The difference in the Wildcats was the most pleasant aspect of the dreary afternoon. All of the Homecoming activities were cancelled because of the inclement weather.

Even though it was their sixth straight loss, Villanova had nothing to be ashamed of before the hometown fans.

The Techman drew first blood when Charlie Speck found halfback, Buddy Perry a lonesome halfback—that is he was all alone behind V.U. pass defenders—on Villanova's 39 and he went the rest of the way untouched. Chuck Stephens kicked his first of three extra points.

Langone Leader

The Wildcats, under the direction of sophmore quarterback Nick Langone started moving the ball but squandered a scoring opportunity on the six yard line when they failed to score in four tries.

Ed Roehre, senior quarterback, directed the 'Cats 72 yards with a seven yard first score. An attempted pass for two points fell short.

In the third quarter, Dickie Snead returned a Villanova punt 81 yards out a clipping penalty nullified the play and put the ball on the V.P.I. 9 yard line. Reggie Powe then recovered a Virginia fumble on the six yard line .

Fullback, Leon Horin hurdled over the line for the second score and Ed Roehre skirted around end for two points.

A Home Run

Then, the home run—or long pass play—ruined the 'Cats again. This time Carroll Dale was by himself in the end zone for a 28 yarder. P.A.T. was good—score 14-14.

Villanova, forced to kick, sent Ed Roehre back to punt. A bad pass from center gave V.P.I. the ball on the one.

Don Vaught shot in for the T.D. A field goal by Stephens with 3:21 led the game for the Gobblers.

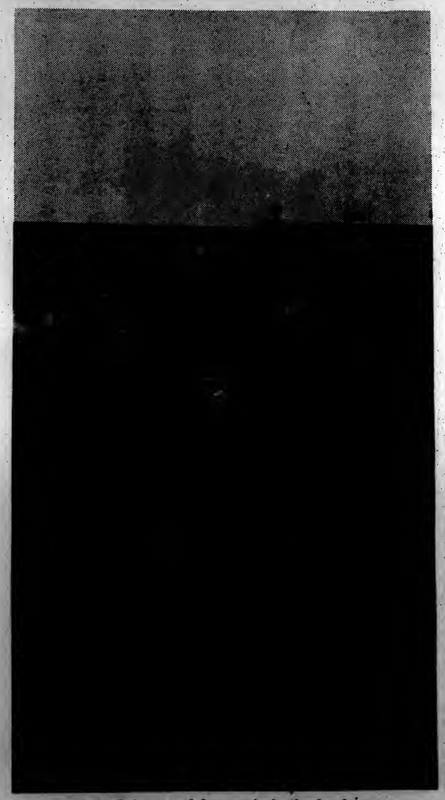
All in all the 'Cats showed their building up to that big win—P.S. buy your Army tickets now.

Wildcat Frosh Gridsters Defeated By Bullis Prep

by Dan Grove

Bullis Prep's 165 lb. quarterback, Bobby Sutton, guided his team with a skill equalling his jailbreaking namesake (Willie) as Bullis School dropped the Villanova Frosh to their second straight defeat, 23-6.

Sutton passed for two TD's, ran for another tackled a VU back for a safety, and passed for one two point after the TD play.



Bullis scored their first TD after VU fumbled on their own eighteen yard line early in the second period. After being penalized to the 23 yd. line, Dunn ran for nine to the Cats' 14 yard line. Sutton's pass was incomplete and, then Dunn picked up the first down on the seven and, then two more yards to the five. At this point a holding penalty was called against Bullis and, on the next play big Jack Mount nailed Sutton for an eleven yard loss. Sutton's pass on third down was incomplete, and, it looked as if the Cats had made a goal line-stand. They were completely fooled, however. with a fourth and 31 situation Sutton dropped back and threw a strike to Cappucio who caught the ball between 2 VU defenders in the end zone. The pass for the extra point was dropped.

Interception Leads to Score

The second Bullis score was set up as Pavich intercepted a Larry Glueck pass and returned it to the VU 35 yard line. On second down Sutton hit his favorite target, 6'6" Jerry Spears, for the first down. After an incomplete pass, Fiorelli swept the end for twelve yards and a first down on the 13. Then Sutton rolled out and lobbed an aerial to Foley, who caught it in the end zone. Charlie Durepo booted the Sullivan Hall. Jack Bishop is ticket chairman.

Tickets for the Army game have been on sale since Monday. Price for the game tickets is $4.00.

Four Hour Trip

Chartered Greyhound buses will leave Villanova from Dougherty Hall 8 a.m. on Saturday. They will make one rest stop on the way. The total time for the trip will be approximately four hours.

The buses will leave West Point approximately one half hour after the end of the game, and will return directly to Villanova, making one rest stop.

Price "Non-Inflationary"

In commenting on the trip, Scalia quipped, "The price is remarkably non-inflationary. It's considerably less than the cost of the round trip by car." He further remarked that the purpose of the trip was to support the team and to boost school spirit, and not merely to spend a weekend in New York.

DeMaio declared, "We've put a great deal of time and effort into making this the greatest student trip yet. I'm sure that the student body will be behind us 100%."

Mr. Eugene Ruane, director of public information, announced that, as part of the Army festivities, the cadets will parade on the plain and pass in review before Very Rev. John A. Klekotka, OSA, president.

Also, the public information office has received six thousand brochures on the background and topography of West Point. These are available to everyone upon request to Mr. Ruane's office.

Father Duffy's Secretary Wishes That Phone Calls Would Cease

Miss Catherine McCormick, secretary to Father John Duffy, first floor prefect in Alumni Hall, has had the wierdest experience of her life during the last two weeks.

In the October 21 issue of the VILLANOVAN, a list of dormitory prefects and their phone numbers was printed. By an unbelieveable coincidence Father Duffy's phone number was misprinted to read LA 5-0747, Miss McCormick's number.

That was when the fiasco began.

Six Called

Thursday night six people called, seeking various parties in Alumni Hall. Then came the Homecoming Weekend and the McCormick home was deluged by an average of 25-30 calls a night.

One young lady called the fateful number on Friday and when she heard Miss McCormick's voice on the other end, stage whispered in amazement, "Mother, a woman answered the phone!"

"All that week, our family just beat a path to the telephone," said Miss McCormick. "Actually I didn't mind the confusion too much, it was just that my sister has a weak heart condition and when she was left alone in the house she had to make six to seven trips a night downstairs to answer the calls for Alumni Hall."

Accepted Lightly

On the whole Miss McCormick has accepted the situation very lightly.

"The only time you really lose your sense of humor is when you get a call for Alumni Hall at about two in the morning.", she said. "One night we received seven calls for Larry Ameche (son of actor Don Ameche). After that night I would have liked to have wrung Larry's neck," she laughed.

"It was very embarassing when we couldn't convince certain people that they were not connected with Alumni Hall," Miss McCormick continued, "but they got the number out of the VILLANOVAN they would insist. Or others would get very indignant and asked to be connected with Father Duffy."

Hilarious

And how did Father Duffy take all of this? "Oh he thought the whole affair was quite hilarious," Miss McCormick added, "in fact the entire office where I work (Augustinian Guild) thought the incident was one big riot. Ater thinking about it, I can hardly blame them."

But just for the record, in case some of you poor souls are still hearing female voices on the Alumni Hall telephone, the correct number for the first floor Alumni is LA 5-9247.

Council Treasury Plan OK'd by Administration

The proposed Student Council treasury plan has been approved by the Administration, it was announced by Tom Hoffman, Council chairman.

The approval was granted at a special Student-Administration Committee meeting held last Thursday evening, attended by Rev. Joseph Kemme, OSA, vice present of academic affairs, Rev. Dante Girolami, OSA, dean of Student Activities, Council vice chairman Bob DeLisa, Bill Vincent, Council treasurer, and Hoffman.

The budget program as approved will function thusly:

There will be two money-raising projects, the movies and the Student Council dance to be held next February 26.

The latter event is not yet a reality. However, little opposition is expected to the approval of the dance. The motion to hold the dance will be untabled at tonight's Council session.

Whatever profits are realized from these events will be matched by the Administration. Thus, it for example the combined revenue raised by the Council amounted to $500, the initial treasury would contain $1000, the other $500 coming from the university.

To Be Saved

"The important thing to note," reminded Hoffman, "is that the money made will be saved. Nothing will be spent until the next school year.

"When you get right down to it," he continued, "the treasury as a working program will not get underway until next September. The concern of this year's council is to get money into the treasury and to set up the mechanics of the program."

The program as outlined holds only for this year. For the 1960-1961 school year money will be appropriated as a direct allotment from the Administration.

The funds will come from the student activities fee. However, no increase in the fee will be necessary. Hence the treasury program will be instituted without any additional cost to the students.

"I am very satisfied with the progress made in this vital matter," said Hoffman. "The Administration was very cooperative and seem pleased at the initiative the Council has displayed. They were very encouraging and most helpful."

It is Hoffman's belief that this is the biggest project any Villanova Student Council has ever undertaken. "Yet it remains for the Council members themselves to follow this thing through."

Requiem Mass This Morning For Captain Martin Gillan

A solemn Requiem Mass was celebrated in the Villanova Chapel this morning for Captain Martin J. Gillan, U. S. N. (Ret.) who died last Friday, He was 60.

Captain Gillan left behind him a long career in the Navy and twelve years on the Villanova faculty as a professor in the Elec. Engineering Department and more recently as dean of Research and Development.

Papal Knight

In 1957, the late Pope Pius XII named Captain Gillan a Papal Knight of the Order of the Holy Sepulchre for his work in the field of Catholic education.

Selection as a Papal Knight is one of the highest distinctions possible for a Roman Catholic Lay person.

Among Captain Gillan's close friends on the Villanova faculty was Captain James Donnelly of the Mech. Engineering Dept., whose naval career nearly paralelled Captain Gillan's.

Donnelly recalls that he and Captain Gillan both graduated with the class of 1920 from the Naval Academy. For six months both of them served with the fleet in World War I, as midshipmen, a practice unheard of today.

Both were stationed on Pearl Harbor at the end of World War II. Captain Gillan was a member of Admiral Nimitz's Staff while Captain Donnelly worked in the very next building.

Before WWII, Captain Gillan had been Chief Engineer on the aircraft carrier Saratoga.

Murphy Against Student Tax Plan But Wants Budget

Bob Murphy, last year's Student Council chairman does not favor a student tax.

"But if there has to be a tax, a voluntary levy as proposed would be practically useless," said Murphy. "Only a mandatory tax would be feasable."

On the general idea of the tax, Murphy takes issue with current Council Chairman Tom Hoffman, who has tentatively backed the compulsory tax plan.

"On the whole, though, I think the budget idea is a sound one," continued Murphy.

When queried as to whether he favors the more 'progressive' elements in the budget, Murphy emphatically assented, "Definitely. I am completely in favor of a strong aggressive budget unhampered by resistance. However I understand that some provisions will be deleted, perhaps cut, because there is some doubt that the council can han-

Captain Gillan left behind him a long career in the Navy and twelve years on the Villanova faculty as a professor in the Elec. Engineering Department and more recently as dean of Research and Development.

Papal Knight

In 1957, the late Pope Pius XII named Captain Gillan a Papal Knight of the Order of the Holy Sepulchre for his work in the field of Catholic education.

Selection as a Papal Knight is one of the highest distinctions possible for a Roman Catholic Lay person.

Among Captain Gillan's close friends on the Villanova faculty was Captain James Donnelly of the Mech. Engineering Dept., whose naval career nearly paralleled Captain Gillan's.

Donnelly recalls that he and Captain Gillan both graduated with the class of 1920 from the Naval Academy. For six months both of them served with the fleet in World War I, as midshipmen, a practice unheard of today.

Both were stationed on Pearl Harbor at the end of World War II. Captain Gillan was a member of Admiral Nimitz's Staff while Captain Donnelly worked in the very next building.

Before WWII, Captain Gillan had been Chief Engineer on the aircraft carrier Saratoga.

Murphy Against Student Tax Plan But Wants Budget

Bob Murphy, last year's Student Council chairman does not favor a student tax.

"But if there has to be a tax, a voluntary levy as proposed would be practically useless," said Murphy. "Only a mandatory tax would be feasable."

On the general idea of the tax, Murphy takes issue with current Council Chairman Tom Hoffman, who has tentatively backed the compulsory tax plan.

"On the whole, though, I think the budget idea is a sound one," continued Murphy.

When queried as to whether he favors the more 'progressive' elements in the budget, Murphy emphatically assented, "Definitely. I am completely in favor of a strong aggressive budget unhampered by resistance. However I understand that some provisions will be deleted, perhaps cut, because there is some doubt that the council can han-

Salisbury Asks, "Will U.S. Balance China?"

"Eventually, something will be needed by Russia to balance the power of a rising China. That something may very well be the United States."

So declared Harrison Salisbury, Pulitzer Prize-winning correspondent for THE NEW YORK TIMES, speaking at this year's first session of the Villanova Undergraduate Forum.

Salisbury spoke on "A New Look At The Soviet Challenge, before a near-capacity crowd in Vasey Auditorium last Thursday evening.

His lecture covered the political aspects of the Forum's four-part consideration of the general theme "The Challenge of Change." Future speakers will discuss the educational, artistic, and scientific aspects of the theme.

Soviet "Soft" Approach

In opening his lecture, Salisbury briefly summarized Russian history in the past forty years. He pointed out that the comparatively "soft" approach of the Soviets to the world situation is a definite reaction to the hardship and terror of the Stalin regime.

"Under Stalin," said Salisbury ,"any display of friendship toward an American resulted in, at the minimum, a nasty interrogation session, and quite possible permanent employment in the 'Industrial Department' of the MVD (Soviet secret police) —the official title of the slave labor camps."

He emphasized the striking nature of the change in the Soviet way of life. "The people were tired of being told they would have to sacrifice for the future. In the turmoil following Stalin's death, they made it known that they wanted things now!"

The rise of Khrushchev, he continued, is due to the fact that his ideas coincide with the general desires of the Russian people. "It is widely believed that Khrushchev would have come to power regardless of the exact circumstances following Stalin's death. Of all top Communists, K's opinions were closest to popular opinion."

Current Soviet foreign policy is a direct result of the peoples' desire for some comforts in life. The Soviet economy cannot stand competition with wealthy western nations in all fields. The government will have to cut back on military and technological spending if it is to afford consumer goods.

To emphasize the importance Russians attach to material goods, Salisbury said that many people bribe tenement landlords into renting them rat-infested cellars, so that they may have priority for new housing as hardship cases.

The huge apartment buildings being constructed in Soviet cities are by no means comparable to American houses, however, "frequently, these huge buildings will split in two, or will have a wall collapse, even before people move in," Salisbury explained. "And almost every new apartment has huge nets built out all around the second floor. These are to catch tiles that fall off outside walls and would otherwise seriously injure pedestrians."

"These apartments are an indication of some progress, however. You can also see progress being made in Soviet clothing styles, western-style commodities that are beginning to appear in stores, and in the general attitude of the people."

To finance such consumer advance, Salisbury explained, the government must have peace with other nations. Russia is playing up to the west, also, because of increasing Chinese power.

"Many people do not feel there is anything mysterious in Russo-Chinese relations. But many others, including myself, disagree. I believe my case is proved by the example of Outer Mongolia."

Mongolia lies between China and Russian Siberia. Its inhabitants are nomadic, about as civilized as were American Indians when Europeans first came to the new world. "For years, Russia has controlled the Buddhist monks who rule Mongolia, but they hadn't spent one nickel for Mongolians until around 1950, when they began to realize that China was waking up."

China began sending technological experts to Mongolia free of charge, to build houses, factories and roads. The primitive Mongolians are quite impressed with this, and have begun to regard Russians as interlopers.

"By sheer population percentage, China must take over the Communist world when she achieves sufficient economic power," Salisbury concluded. "I feel that, in self-preservation, Russia will move more and more to the west. The United States can take advantage of this by holding out on any form of alliance with the Soviets until they really need us."

Harrison Salisbury addresses the Villanova Undergraduate Forum.

Rafferty Lauds Cooperation

The Executive Council of the Senior Class met last week to discuss both past and forthcoming events.

Ray Rafferty, Senior Class president, began the session by relating the fact that the student council-managed Homecoming weekend had been the most successful in the history of the university despite the problems encountered.

He felt that Student Council had done an "excellent" job in handling the program.

Thanks Officers

"The officers wish to thank all those who helped make the weekend so successful. The results achieved were due to them," Rafferty said. "We are grateful for the support we received and, we believe that it will continue in the future."

He expressed gratitude for the "tremendous publicity" the VILLANOVAN had given to Basca weekend.

Designated as particularly outstanding among the weekend's activities were the Basca dance with the music of Eddie Eigham and the Jazz concert with Downbeat Magazine's favorite sons, the Dukes of Dixieland.

Profitable

Class Treasurer Chuck Ward was pleased with the outcome. "Overall the weekend was profitable both financially and entertainment wise. We are more than satisfied," he said.

After the review of the Basca Weekend a motion was passed in which F. Anthony Macklin was named as Public Relations man for the Senior Class.

"Tony will act as a correlative force between the Executive Council, the activity, and the Villanovan," Rafferty stated.

The Council then turned to planning future activities. Senior weekend was the first issue. It is scheduled to begin February 19 with the Dinner Dance set for Saturday the 20th.

Alumni Night

Also discussed were arrangements for Senior Alumni night, tentatively slated for December 12.

The meeting ended with Rafferty declaring the hope of a senior weekend and alumni that will be as "memorable as our years here at Villanova."

Marine Officer Selection Team to Recruit for P.L.C.

On November 9th through the 13th, a Marine Officer Selection Team will visit Dougherty Hall to interview students who are interested in becoming officers in the United States Marine Corps.

The two primary programs offered are: Platoon Leader Class for Freshmen, Sophomores and Juniors; the other for the Seniors and recent graduates.

The first program, popularly known as P.L.C. can be summed up briefly by the following features: students remain in school with draft deferment, no on-campus meetings or drills—just two six-week summer courses at Quantico, Virginia; pay while in summer training, and increased pay later as an officer, by reason of seniority; commissioning on graduation day, followed by three years active duty.

Under the OCC program, for seniors and recent graduates, completion of a ten week Officer Candidate School at Quantico, Virginia, is followed by commissioning as a Second Lieutenant and three years' active duty.

For Aviators

In the case of aviators, the active duty obligation is approximately a year and a half longer because of flight training.

Those young men who are interested in becoming a part of the Marine Corps are invited to stop by during the week of November 9th through 13th.

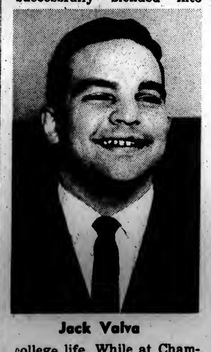
Nurse Graduates Excel In Navy

Three graduates of Villanova's Nursing Division have attained excellence in the Navy Nurse Corps Candidate Program.

Misses Margaret Bonner, Patricia Hunt, and Marsha Marlow graduated first, third, and seventh respectively in a class of 61 from the U. S. Naval School Command for Women.

As juniors, the three had enlisted in the Naval Reserve, along with K. Collins, E. Stewart, and J. Zaremaba, who are currently at posts in Oakland, Calif.

Upon graduation, the six girls were commissioned Ensigns in the Nurse Corps Reserve. They then reported to the Naval School Command for Women at Newport, R. I.



Misses Bonner, Hunt, and Marlow are currently on duty at the U. S. Naval Hospital, Bethesda, Md., and are working toward Masters Degrees at Georgetown University.

Jack Valva—The Man Behind The Scenes

Ask any undergraduate on campus who Jack Valva is and he probably can't tell you. However, show him a picture of our subject and his cognizance becomes immediate.

Valva who graduated from Chaminade High School on Long Island, has successfully blended into college life. While at Chaminade he was homeroom president and on the student council. This has given Jack a good background in student government.

Jack Valva

However, Valva is the "man behind the scene" type person. Jack, who is a very modest person, can often be seen mingling with the "big Wigs" on campus.

In his freshman year he was a member of the orientation committee. As such he has gained many friends on the underclass level.

This year Jack has become co-chairman of the Spirit Committee along with John Oberlies. Few people realize the work that must be done to make a pep rally successful or to organize a good student trip.

And few people realize that Jack Valva is one of the persons who is instrumental in such projects.

"So far we are very happy with the student spirit", Jack has declared. "We have more things planned for the future and hope they will be as successful as our past endeavors."

This year he is also a member of the student council representing the C&F school. In the Council he has been elected to serve on the Student Senate.

"I think the Student Council can do a lot under the leadership of Tom Hoffman. Much of this good work will be an incentive for next year's Council."

One of his pet peeves is the attitude shown on campus toward the C&F students. "To me the C&F school is a part of the university and the students are no different from other students." Such a situation he hopes can be remedied.

In the future Jack desires to continue in student affairs. When he graduates, he would like to be a salesman with his father's firm.

Hooker Nudges Day Hops

Under the direction of Jim Hooker, Student Council secretary, a "Day Students' Relations Committee" has been launched.

According to Hooker, himself a day student, the committee has two major purposes. The first is that of keeping all students informed of school activities by posting more and better notices on all public bulletin boards.

Want Active Students

The second purpose is to facilitate day students' participation in activities. This will be done by arousing the students' interest in extra and co-curricular activities, and then paving the way for his pursuit of these activities through campus organizations.

Underlying this external program is the desire to eradicate the common misconception that student activities are designed for the resident exclusively.

As Hooker points out, "The Day Student is, of course, a first-class student, and as such should be interested and active in as many organizations as is practical."

Hooker's committee consists of Bob Benson, Bill Lang, John Craig, and Paul O'Rourke. They intend to develop a system for the complete integration of every student into campus affairs.

Jim Hooker

"To best develop this system," said Hooker, "A questionnaire will be circulated. These will be filled in by students and submitted to the secretary's office in room 118 C & F, Monday through Friday between 1:30 p.m. and 3:30 p.m."

Reps' Office Hours

In conjunction with this accumulation of opinions and constructive criticism, it has been proposed to the Council that all student representatives hold office hours during which students could personally discuss problems and questions with their representatives.

Also under way are plans to install a sandwich machine and two bulletin boards in the C & F cafeteria, to induce the P & W Company to make the Field House platform a regular stop, and to obtain better traffic control for students crossing Lancaster Pike.

Dr. Buford Will Address Literary Club On Tuesday

Dr. Albert H. Buford, professor of English, will address the Literary Club next Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 in room 203 Vasey Hall.

Buford will attempt to clarify Sir Walter Scott's position in English literature in the field of non-fiction. "Scott is not a highly regarded novelist today, but he is important as a non-fiction writer," explained Buford. "Many people fail to realize this importance."

The Literary Club expects a good turnout on Tuesday, due to Buford's reputation as a speaker. This will be the second talk delivered before the club, the other being senior English major John Dagney's on Thomas Wolfe.

The Literary Club stresses that all are invited to Buford's address. A discussion will follow the talk.

Requiem Mass This Morning For Captain Martin Gillan

"Gillan was a daring man," commented Captain Donnelly. "During the submarine menace, he volunteered to carry high-octane gasoline to Europe on his tanker." He also participated in the North African invasion.

Called Hotshot

"They called him Hotshot in the fleet," said Donnelly. He explained that "hoshot" is slang for a good torpedo. "When a torpedo was cold, it died; when it was a hotshot, it took off like hell.

"This was Captain Martin Gillan," said Donnelly.

Captain Gillan was retired from the Navy in January of 1947 because of a physical disability.

"When he was active, he seemed like the toughest of men," said Captain Donnelly. "But he was one of the finest. He was always fair and honest and was actually kindly despite his gruff exterior."

In 1947, Captain Gillan joined the faculty here, but gradually spent more and more time with research and was finally appointed dean of Research and Development. In this post he acted as Coordinator of government projects at Villanova.

Captain Gillan

A native of Whiteside, Long Island, Captain Gillan was married to the former Mary Carr of the Logan Square section of Philadelphia. A son, Lt. Martin J. Gillan, teaches Navigation and Operations at Villanova to NROTC classes.

Captain Gillan never fully recovered from a lung removal operation that he underwent in March 1958. On last Friday, the "energetic and active" Captain Gillan finally succumbed to a heart attack.

UFO? Vanguard? . . . No, Just A Weather Balloon

Villanova had its own flying saucer scare last Wednesday night shortly after dusk.

The bizarre sight of the meandering 10 story U. S. weather balloon resplendent in all the colors of Joseph's robe amazed the Villanovans who were on the scene.

"It plunged out of the sky line like a thunderbolt," related Vince Kirk, junior math major, concerning the unusual flying object seen by scores of Villanovans.

"It had all different colors and a vapor trail," Kirk added. He was one of the throng congregated on the Pie Shoppe steps peering at the latter-day Haley's Comet.

Comments ranged from the sublime to the ridiculous: "Where's the Daily News photographer?," inquired Josephine Morello, sophomore nurse. "What is this, Sputnik in technicolor," mused another cynical observer.

Doyle Explains Homecoming Difficulties

In regards to many inquiries concerning the cancellation of half-time Homcoming Activities Oct. 29, Dave Doyle, the chairman of Homecoming Weekend, clarified the problem.

According to Doyle, three factors contributed to the lack of festivities at the V.P.I. game: The use of the track was disallowed because of its muddy condition.

The public address system was put out of order due to the failure of a vital component. And the band could not perform on the field nor sit in the stands because of the possibility of rain damaging the instruments.

An all out effort on the part of both the Administration and the Homecoming Committee was made to hold the festivities. But the various troubles which they encountered were too much to overcome, said Doyle.

Regional Forum Scheduled By Accountants Nov. 12

Mr. Alvin A. Clay, acting chairman of the Accounting Department, has announced that the Seventeenth Annual Accounting Forum, sponsored by the Philadelphia Chapter of the Pennsylvania Institute of Certified Public Accountants, will be held this year on November 12, in the Vasey Hall auditorium.

This year's program will include an introduction by Rev. Father Bartley, O.S.A., Dean of the Commerce and Finance School, followed by a discussion of experiences and opportunities in the fields of auditing, taxes, and management services.

The main address entitled, "Today's Challenges to Accountants", will be given by Carmen G. Blough, Director of Research, American Institute of Certified Public Accountants.

Schools Represented

A panel, composed of five senior accounting majors representing Villanova, St. Joseph's, Drexel Institute of Technology, Temple, and the University of Pennsylvania, will question four partners from various size Certified Public Accounting firms, and one Certified Public Accountant now in private industry. On problems relating to the accounting profession.

Villanova University will be represented at the forum by senior accounting major, William Coyle.

At the conclusion of the session, a social period is planned for the students, to afford them the opportunity to talk with practitioners experienced in the accounting field.

Purpose of Forum

The purpose of the Accounting Forum, which is rotated every year among the five top area business schools, is to explain and discuss with the students of the Philadelphia area colleges and universities, the opportunities available to them in a career of accounting.

Realistic Budget

The Student Council has adroitly snipped off the frills of its expansive $5,000 proposed budget, and has resolved on a neat, potent $3,000 treasury which is agreeable to both the Administration and Council leadership.

The original budget was trimmed of unnecessary expenditures and as it stands, it's a realistic program which gives credit to Chairman Tom Hoffman, who labored his utmost for its adoption.

Even the danger of an obviously unpopular student tax has been obviated. The Administration agreed to a generous countermeasure to fill the treasury.

They have agreed to provide $1,000 outright from the Student Activities fee. In addition, the Administration will match—dollar for dollar—any profit the Council might clear from the resident movies program and the proposed Student Council Dance. This should provide $2.000 income. Total: $3,000.

Of course, the question remains as to whether or not the Dance and movies will be profit-making ventures. If the first movie, "The Glenn Miller Story," was any indication last Friday night, there is cause for optimism.

The show was a complete sell-out and the Council made almost $100 on the project.

Again the Administration has shown a disposition to negotiate sympathetically with the Council.

Nearly everyone is happy that the tax idea was abandoned. Perhaps undercurrents of student opposition to the tax played a part in its final rejection.

Hoffman deserves more commendation than he has received for his part in the approved treasury. Neither he nor his class will be here to enjoy the treasury—it doesn't take effect until next year. The Council is looking ahead.

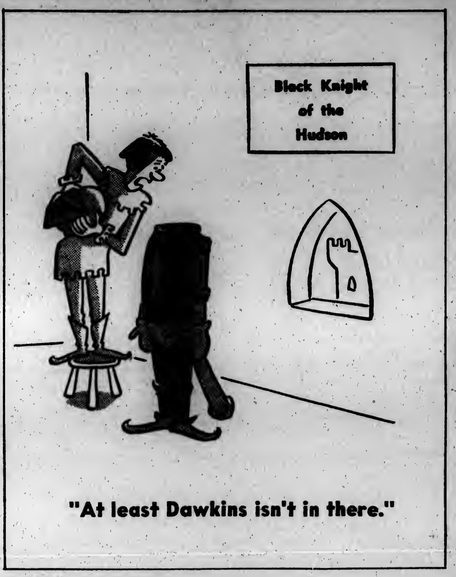
Pulitzer Ignored

Villanova was visited last Thursday by a Pulitzer Prize Winning journalist, an expert in Russian Affairs. He was probably one of the most distinguished forum speakers we will ever pay to speak here. And only 50 people came to hear him.

It's true that the Vasey Hall Auditorium was eventually filled with a respectable audience, but only after some of the most frantic mass pursuasion we have seen.

Twenty minutes late, Harrison Salisbury, noted analyst on the NEW YORK TIMES, finally had an audience almost worthy of his eminence.

Villanovans have a bit of soul-searching to do when they pass up a speaker of Salisbury's caliber (and the admission was FREE).



We've heard a variety of explanations: the students are in an intellectual stupor; everyone was studying for exams (everyone?); the advance publicity was negligible. These might be the causes, but the effect remains—very few came.

Why didn't the Student Council, which has committees for just this sort of thing, help publicize the event? Its massive publicity lured 150 students to hear a faculty member at its own forum last month, "to increase the intellectual atmosphere on campus."

The people who did attend were a mature and appreciative audience, and Salisbury at least appeared to be pleased.

Most criticisms of poor publicity are unfounded, however. Posters were placed throughout the school and announcements were made over the public address system. It was publicized in the VILLANOVAN.

Letters to the Editor are vehicles for expression of your opinion regarding matters pertinent to Villanova. As many as possible of these letters received here are published in the Villanovan.

Tenaglia Hits Villanovan For "Sensationalism, Gossip"

To the Editor:

I would like to congratulate Mr. Speers for his perceptive article in the Oct. 21 issue of the Villanovan, and especially for his instructive comments on the "friction" and "dissension" within Lambda Kappa Delta.

It is indeed gratifying to observe that the Villanovan, unlike certain local papers, never compromises its high journalistic standards.

As Mr. Speers' commentary on L.K.D. initiation clearly shows, gossip-mongering and rumor-spreading are never indulged in by the paper's staff.

We can see, rather a sustained tradition of presenting only news of the highest order, of general interest to everyone, and for the intellectual betterment of all readers.

Unfortunately however, there were a few errors in Mr. Speers' comments which I would like to clarify at the present time:

1.) A "few seniors" were not "left without little brothers." On the contrary, some little brothers who were assigned to them decided to withdraw.

2.) There was never any formal decision to give the "holy seniors" two (of the sophomores') little brothers.

3.) The sophomores have already been assigned little brothers.

4.) L.K.D. was definitely never in a state of utter confusion or on the point of disintegration.

It seems that Mr. Speers has based much of his "news" on rumor. Perhaps if he based it on nothing at all, he would completely perfect his already high literary standards.

If I might offer a suggestion I would advise Mr. Speers, in the future, not to base his comments on rumor, even if it does create a certain, cheap, sensational interest. There is no substitute for reporting accurate news.

Phi Kapp Defends Self In Kiely Mile

To the Editor:

Last week's VILLANOVAN contained an editorial on the oyce Kiely Mile. This editorial stated one of the four competing fraternities "had one soie object in mind—to capture the recing trophy." Although the name of the fraternity was not printed, it is obvious the one concerned is Phi Kappa Pi.

First, let me say that we did want to win the trophy. The race was presented to us as a strick competition, "deadly serious," with a prize for the winner. So, naturally, we, as well as the other fraternities, were out to win .

Second, the reason there was a lack of "participation in the festivities" on our part is that most engineers have laboratory sessions at that time on Thursdays.

Third, the appointed chairman of the race had previously agreed that our runner was completely qualified to run, and had not warned us that our runner would be disqualified. The question of disqualification did not arise until minutes before the race, and even then, it was not definite. The race was run and our entry was the winner. It was after the race was over that the disqualification took place.

I feel that when an editorial is published regarding an event on campus, the writer should obtain facts, and not base his editorial on hearsay.

This editorial put our fraternity in a bad light in his eyes of the readers of the VILLANOVAN, and we feel this is unjustifiable.

We also feel that DPM, the host fraternity, should shed some light on the subject.

CAMPU... Student ...

"What do you think of a voluntary student tax of $1.00 to support the proposed student treasury?"

The proposed Student Council tax is just one more unnecessary financial burden upon the already overtaxed individual student. Certainly, we support a program to insure the financial solvency of our student council but we object to this particular manner of increasing Council finances. We want a good student council, one which is aware of both the university's and the student's needs. We do not want a Student Council whose sole purpose is to use the individual students as a scapegoat for its own mercenary interests.

John DiPapl, Acct., '61

Although I am not against the proposed Student Council Treasury, I am very much against the student tax. In my opinion, you are asking the student to pay for something he is already entitled to. I believe through the proper legislation in the Council, the outlined programs can be sponsored by the Council and paid for by the administration.

John Oberlies, Eng., '61

I feel that this would be a good idea if every student would benefit by it. Student opposition would probably result so therefore, if that be the case, it should be assessed to the Student's Activity Fund. This idea would be beneficial to all and enable the Student Council to carry out its duties and responsibilities to the student body.

Joyce Dacey, Nursing, '63

It is difficult to discern how the student will benefit from such a tax, since most of the proposed allocations mentioned in the last edition of the Villanovan should be the responsibility of the Administration to start with.

In the event that this immaterial and allegedly voluntary tax is approved by the "junior financiers" of the Student Council and the Administration, I feel that the student body would not support it, because who needs two matric cards?

Larry Giardina, Pre-law, '61

A voluntary student tax of one dollar would be a reasonable request seeing as it would be for the students benefit in the long run. Such a tax would be easy to pay because it is such a nominal fee. Since the student body is reasonably large the treasury would be well on its way after the first year's collection.

Interviews Are Coming Rage Seniors Told—Act Your Wage

bob brothers

Seniors are already talking about job interviews in preparation for the 140 companies which will come to Villanova in the spring.

THE JOB AS '60 GRADUATES PLAN IT OFFICE: At least three young and beautiful secretaries with heavy lines and broad minds, ready to come, one at a time, upon buzzer summons.

The office will have a closed door and wall-to-wall carpeting. Paintings on the wall are originals and the desk is slanted at a 45 degree angle (anybody who is anybody has his desk at 45 degrees). Somewhere in the office is at least one live green plant, which he and one of the secretaries—the prettier one—playfully water together.

TRANSPORTATION: The boss's private car ready, upon call, at all hours, including the evenings, when many important conferences are held, frequently with one of the secretaries.

HOURS: Noon til three o'clock, with a couple of hours for lunch, as desired, and time out for golf.

VACATIONS AND HOLIDAYS: Vacations, six to eight months, and leave of absence, on company expense, as desired, during working season. All legal holidays, all day Saturdays, and any afternoon there is a home town game.

SALARY: Reasonable—say eight to ten thousand to start, with unlimited expense account and unlimited credit at the boss's tailor.

AS IT WILL BE OFFICE: A dark corner at a roll top desk among files in in the shipping room.

TRANSPORTATION: A strap, if luck holds, on the subway or street car.

HOURS: Eight to six, with occasional overtime. Lunch time if possible.

VACATIONS AND HOLIDAYS: Two weeks, with pay, after the second year if business conditions improve. Sundays off once a month when possible and convenient to the company.

SALARY: Reasonable—say $50 a week to start, and a raise to $52.50 after six months.

Whether or not your dream comes true always carry an attache case. The slimmer the case the more important you will look. Always carry one, even it its only to pack peanut-butter sandwiches.

Council in the Round . . .

Council Treasury Is Given Support By Administration

tom hoffman

"The Student Council receives permission to set up their own Treasury", roars the Villanovan!

Last Thursday the officers of the Student Council sat down with Fr. Kemme and Fr. Girolami to discuss and evaluate the proposed Treasury. Two and one - half hours later we all left the meeting with an elated feeling of accomplishing something. The administrative members had assisted the Student Council in numerous ways by advising and suggesting changes and new ideas for our own benefit.

HOFFMAN

That evening Fr. Girolami suggested the way in which the Treasury could be started off and how the University would assist us in this endeavor. Fr. Girolami along with Fr. Kemme are the ones who deserve the most credit for putting this idea on a sound foundation.

In presenting this program I was only interested in disseminating as many ideas as possible. I tried to incorporate my own suggestions with those programs from other schools. In short, our report was a conglomeration of ideas — some practical and others not. Last Thursday we set these ideas on a firm foundation and returned to the realm of realism.

We can never expect to change completely overnight, we must start slowly and concentrate our energies and activities upon the proper functioning of the Student Council and see that we can work it better on a smaller scale than the first suggested $5.000 Budget.

Depending upon the ability of the Council's members, we can start out with a budget of around $3,000, and when you stop to consider it, this is not really a small scale.

Now it's up to the Council! They have got to make the programs and projects successful. They have to work out concrete programs. They still need ideas!

Charge of the Flight Brigade

(with apologies to A. L. Tennyson)

Half a pace, half a pace,
Half a pace onward,
Out of the buildings from class
Charged the forty hundred.
"Forward the Flight Brigade!
Charge for the door," they said;
Out of the buildings from class
Charged the forty hundred.

Autos to right of them,
Autos to left of them,
Autos behind them
Blew horns and blundered;
Forward they ran pell-mell,
While books and slide rules fell,
Nothing their charge to halt,
Nothing their noise to quell.

When can their glory fade?
O the wild charge they made!
All the world wondered.
Honor the charge they made!
Honor the Flight Brigade,
Noble forty hundred!

Villanova Movement; Forever Forward

THE PROGRAM, and with it a new era, were inaugurated here on May 30, 1942, when the naval commander of the new V-12 unit called to present his credentials to Father Stanford.

With the military in control, life at Villanova during the war was completely transformed. Uniforms were to be seen everywhere; only a handful of civilian students remained. All administrative duties were handled by Navy personnel, and the Fathers and their lay associates were left free to concentrate their attention to teaching.

Many of the priests were called into active duty as chaplains. To those remaining fell the conduct of government-sponsored night classes for war workers wanting to increase their knowledge and skills.

With the end of the war came a gradual return for normalcy.

So great was the increase in enrollment that a new classbuilding (Belle Air Hall) and four new dormitories (the old Barracks, since replaced by Sullivan Hall) had to be erected.

MEANWHILE THE overflow from the dormitories took up residence in the Field House, where blankets strung in clothesline fashion partitioned the gym into makeshift rooms.

The return of peacetime, also saw the resumption of Villanova's building program. A new Chemical Engineering Building, the finest in the country, was erected. Salisbury Tells of Collegiate Experiences and Opinions

bill speers

Last Thursday evening four members of the Villanovan, namely, editor-in-chief Tom Wolf, news editor Jim McAteer, format editor Mike Keys, and this writer, were priviledged to meet privately with the Pulitizer Prize-winning journalist for the New York Times—Harrison E. Salisbury.

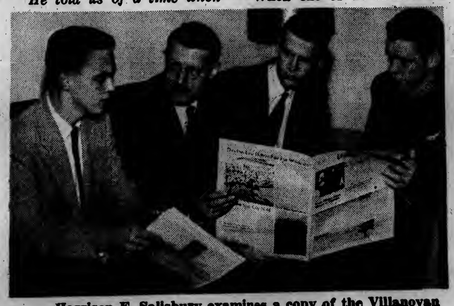
A tall bespectacled man about middle age, Salisbury seemed quite anxious to go over a few editions of our paper with us and relate to us some of his experiences as a newspaperman.

The highlight of our forty minute session with the foreign correspondent was his reminiscences of his college years as editor of his campus newspaper.

He told us of a time when a rule had been passed by the college building superentendent that forbade smoking in the library vestibule under penalty of expulsion.

"This rule forced smokers to go outside when they wanted a cigarette," Salisbury related. "Since the winters in Minneapolis, where I went to college, are very severe, I believed that this rule was unfair and the penalty ridiculous. So I challanged this regulation by purposely smoking in the library vestibule. Well, I was promptly thrown out."

But Salisbury admitted that his expulsion was partly due to the editorial policy he had been pursuing in the college paper. "I needled the hell out of the administration", he said.



After the dust had cleared, he returned to the same college and quietly completed his education. But the best was yet to come. Twenty-five years later, he returned to the same college to conduct a lecture only to discover that the date he was to give the lecture was the anniversary of his expulsion.

He also visited the library and noticed that a smoking room had been installed.

We asked him his opinion concerning journalistic criticism of college administration and he answered that he thought it was a good thing if not carried to far; i.e. to knock it in every issue.

He also let it be known that he is not as conservative as the TIMES. I'd like to see more pictures and perhaps darker headlines in the Times", he said.

When one of us confronted him with the typographical errors, for which the TIMES is notorious, he admitted that it was very unfortunate. "When I write a story that I especially want presented correctly, I just birddog that story right from the typewriter to the press. There's no other way", he smiled.

'Round Campus . . . There seems to be a prevalent desire among many of its members to have the name of Opera-Classica changed to something more appropriate. Lately, the society has developed a very liberal attitude in the field of music and there is no telling how many people have been discouraged from membership by the society's name itself . . . Publicity on the "Dukes of Dixieland" concert poor. Last year publicity was heard over New York radio stations.

Realistic Budget

The Student Council has adroitly snipped off the frills of its expansive $5,000 proposed budget, and has resolved on a neat, potent $3,000 treasury which is agreeable to both the Administration and Council leadership.

The original budget was trimmed of unnecessary expenditures and as it stands, it's a realistic program which gives credit to Chairman Tom Hoffman, who labored his utmost for its adoption.

Even the danger of an obviously unpopular student tax has been obviated. The Administration agreed to a generous countermeasure to fill the treasury.

They have agreed to provide $1,000 outright from the Student Activities fee. In addition, the Administration will match—dollar for dollar—any profit the Council might clear from the resident movies program and the proposed Student Council Dance. This should provide $2.000 income. Total: $3,000.

Of course, the question remains as to whether or not the Dance and movies will be profit-making ventures. If the first movie, "The Glenn Miller Story," was any indication last Friday night, there is cause for optimism.

The show was a complete sell-out and the Council made almost $100 on the project.

Again the Administration has shown a disposition to negotiate sympathetically with the Council.

Nearly everyone is happy that the tax idea was abandoned. Perhaps undercurrents of student opposition to the tax played a part in its final rejection.

Hoffman deserves more commendation than he has received for his part in the approved treasury. Neither he nor his class will be here to enjoy the treasury—it doesn't take effect until next year. The Council is looking ahead.

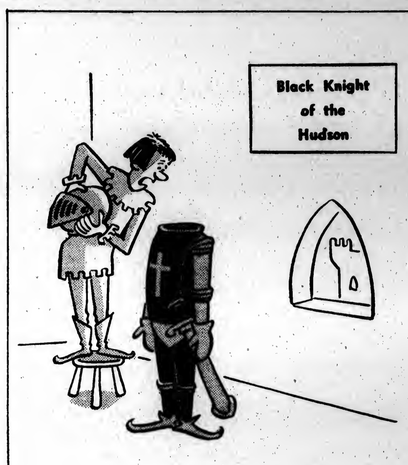
Pulitzer Ignored

Villanova was visited last Thursday by a Pulitzer Prize Winning journalist, an expert in Russian Affairs. He was probably one of the most distinguished forum speakers we will ever pay to speak here. And only 50 people came to hear him.

It's true that the Vasey Hall Auditorium was eventually filled with a respectable audience, but only after some of the most frantic mass pursuasion we have seen.

Twenty minutes late, Harrison Salisbury, noted analyst on the NEW YORK TIMES, finally had an audience almost worthy of his eminence.

Villanovans have a bit of soul-searching to do when they pass up a speaker of Salisbury's caliber (and the admission was FREE).



We've heard a variety of explanations: the students are in an intellectual stupor; everyone was studying for exams (everyone?); the advance publicity was negligible. These might be the causes, but the effect remains—very few came.

Why didn't the Student Council, which has committees for just this sort of thing, help publicize the event? Its massive publicity lured 150 students to hear a faculty member at its own forum last month, "to increase the intellectual atmosphere on campus."

The people who did attend were a mature and appreciative audience, and Salisbury at least appeared to be pleased.

Most criticisms of poor publicity are unfounded, however. Posters were placed throughout the school and announcements were made over the public address system. It was publicized in the VILLANOVAN.

Letters to the Editor are vehicles for expression of your opinion regarding matters pertinent to Villanova. As many as possible of these letters received here are published in the Villanovan.

Tenaglia Hits Villanovan For "Sensationalism, Gossip"

To the Editor:

I would like to congratulate Mr. Speers for his perceptive article in the Oct. 21 issue of the Villanovan, and especially for his instructive comments on the "friction" and "dissension" within Lambda Kappa Delta.

It is indeed gratifying to observe that the Villanovan, unlike certain local papers, never compromises its high journalistic standards.

As Mr. Speers' commentary on L.K.D. initiation clearly shows, gossip-mongering and rumor-spreading are never indulged in by the paper's staff.

We can see, rather a sustained tradition of presenting only news of the highest order, of general interest to everyone, and for the intellectual betterment of all readers.

Unfortunately however, there were a few errors in Mr. Speers' comments which I would like to clarify at the present time:

1.) A "few seniors" were not "left without little brothers." On the contrary, some little brothers who were assigned to them decided to withdraw.

2.) There was never any formal decision to give the "holy seniors" two (of the sophomores') little brothers.

3.) The sophomores have already been assigned little brothers.

4.) L.K.D. was definitely never in a state of utter confusion or on the point of disintegration.

It seems that Mr. Speers has based much of his "news" on rumor. Perhaps if he based it on nothing at all, he would completely perfect his already high literary standards.

If I might offer a suggestion I would advise Mr. Speers, in the future, not to base his comments on rumor, even if it does create a certain, cheap, sensational interest. There is no substitute for reporting accurate news.

Phi Kapp Defends Self In Kiely Mile

To the Editor:

Last week's VILLANOVAN contained an editorial on the oyce Kiely Mile. This editorial stated one of the four competing fraternities "had one soie object in mind—to capture the recing trophy." Although the name of the fraternity was not printed, it is obvious the one concerned is Phi Kappa Pi.

First, let me say that we did want to win the trophy. The race was presented to us as a strick competition, "deadly serious," with a prize for the winner. So, naturally, we, as well as the other fraternities, were out to win .

Second, the reason there was a lack of "participation in the festivities" on our part is that most engineers have laboratory sessions at that time on Thursdays.

Third, the appointed chairman of the race had previously agreed that our runner was completely qualified to run, and had not warned us that our runner would be disqualified. The question of disqualification did not arise until minutes before the race, and even then, it was not definite. The race was run and our entry was the winner. It was after the race was over that the disqualification took place.

I feel that when an editorial is published regarding an event on campus, the writer should obtain facts, and not base his editorial on hearsay.

This editorial put our fraternity in a bad light in his eyes of the readers of the VILLANOVAN, and we feel this is unjustifiable.

We also feel that DPM, the host fraternity, should shed some light on the subject.

CAMPU... Student ...

"What do you think of a voluntary student tax of $1.00 to support the proposed student treasury?"

The proposed Student Council tax is just one more unnecessary financial burden upon the already overtaxed individual student. Certainly, we support a program to insure the financial solvency of our student council but we object to this particular manner of increasing Council finances. We want a good student council, one which is aware of both the university's and the student's needs. We do not want a Student Council whose sole purpose is to use the individual students as a scapegoat for its own mercenary interests.

John DiPapl, Acct., '61

Although I am not against the proposed Student Council Treasury, I am very much against the student tax. In my opinion, you are asking the student to pay for something he is already entitled to. I believe through the proper legislation in the Council, the outlined programs can be sponsored by the Council and paid for by the administration.

John Oberlies, Eng., '61

I feel that this would be a good idea if every student would benefit by it. Student opposition would probably result so therefore, if that be the case, it should be assessed to the Student's Activity Fund. This idea would be beneficial to all and enable the Student Council to carry out its duties and responsibilities to the student body.

Joyce Dacey, Nursing, '63

It is difficult to discern how the student will benefit from such a tax, since most of the proposed allocations mentioned in the last edition of the Villanovan should be the responsibility of the Administration to start with.

In the event that this immaterial and allegedly voluntary tax is approved by the "junior financiers" of the Student Council and the Administration, I feel that the student body would not support it, because who needs two matric cards?

Larry Giardina, Pre-law, '61

A voluntary student tax of one dollar would be a reasonable request seeing as it would be for the students benefit in the long run. Such a tax would be easy to pay because it is such a nominal fee. Since the student body is reasonably large the treasury would be well on its way after the first year's collection.

Interviews Are Coming Rage Seniors Told—Act Your Wage

bob brothers

Seniors are already talking about job interviews in preparation for the 140 companies which will come to Villanova in the spring.

THE JOB AS '60 GRADUATES PLAN IT

OFFICE: At least three young and beautiful secretaries with heavy lines and broad minds, ready to come, one at a time, upon buzzer summons.

The office will have a closed door and wall-to-wall carpeting. Paintings on the wall are originals and the desk is slanted at a 45 degree angle (anybody who is anybody has his desk at 45 degrees). Somewhere in the office is at least one live green plant, which he and one of the secretaries—the prettier one—playfully water together.

BROTHERS

TRANSPORTATION: The boss's private car ready, upon call, at all hours, including the evenings, when many important conferences are held, frequently with one of the secretaries.

HOURS: Noon til three o'clock, with a couple of hours for lunch, as desired, and time out for golf.

VACATIONS AND HOLIDAYS: Vacations, six to eight months, and leave of absence, on company expense, as desired, during working season. All legal holidays, all day Saturdays, and any afternoon there is a home town game.

SALARY: Reasonable—say eight to ten thousand to start, with unlimited expense account and unlimited credit at the boss's tailor.

AS IT WILL BE

OFFICE: A dark corner at a roll top desk among files in the shipping room.

TRANSPORTATION: A strap, if luck holds, on the subway or street car.

HOURS: Eight to six, with occasional overtime. Lunch time if possible.

VACATIONS AND HOLIDAYS: Two weeks, with pay, after the second year if business conditions improve. Sundays off once a month when possible and convenient to the company.

SALARY: Reasonable—say $50 a week to start, and a raise to $52.50 after six months.

Whether or not your dream comes true always carry an attache case. The slimmer the case the more important you will look. Always carry one, even it its only to pack peanut-butter sandwiches.

Council Treasury Is Given Supoort By Administration

tom hoffman

"The Student Council receives permission to set up their own Treasury", roars the Villanovan!

Last Thursday the officers of the Student Council sat down with Fr. Kemme and Fr. Girolami to discuss and evaluate the proposed Treasury. Two and one - ha'f hours later we all left the meeting with an elated feeling of accomplishing something. The administrative members had assisted the Student Council in numerous ways by advising and suggesting changes and new ideas for our own benefit.

HOFFMAN

That evening Fr. Girolami suggested the way in which the Treasury could be started off and how the University would assist us in this endeavor. Fr. Girolami along with Fr. Kemme are the ones who deserve the most credit for putting this idea on a sound foundation.

In presenting this program I was only interested in disseminating as many ideas as possible. I tried to incorporate my own suggestions with those programs from other schools. In short, our report was a conglomeration of ideas — some practical and others not. Last Thursday we set these ideas on a firm foundation and returned to the realm of realism.

We can never expect to change completely overnight, we must start slowly and concentrate our energies and activities upon the proper functioning of the Student Council and see that we can work it better on a smaller scale than the first suggested $5.000 Budget.

Depending upon the ability of the Council's members, we can start out with a budget of around $3,000, and when you stop to consider it, this is not really a small scale.

Now it's up to the Council! They have got to make the programs and projects successful. They still need ideas!

Charge of the Flight Brigade

(with apologies to A. L. Tennyson)

Half a pace, half a pace,
Half a pace onward,
Out of the buildings from class
Charged the forty hundred.
"Forward the Flight Brigade!
Charge for the door," they said;
Out of the buildings from class
Charged the forty hundred.

Autos to right of them,
Autos to left of them,
Autos behind them
Blew horns and blundered;
Forward they ran pell-mell,
While books and slide rules fell,
Nothing their charge to halt,
Nothing their noise to quell.

When can their glory fade?
O the wild charge they made!
All the world wondered.
Honor the charge they made!
Honor the Flight Brigade,
Noble forty hundred!

Villanova Movement; Forever Forward

THE PROGRAM, and with it a new era, were inaugurated here on May 30, 1942, when the naval commander of the new V-12 unit called to present his credentials to Father Stanford.

With the military in control, life at Villanova during the war was completely transformed. Uniforms were to be seen everywhere; only a handful of civilian students remained. All administrative duties were handled by Navy personnel, and the Fathers and their lay associates were left free to concentrate their attention to teaching.

Many of the priests were called into active duty as chaplains. To those remaining fell the conduct of government-sponsored night classes for war workers wanting to increase their knowledge and skills.

With the end of the war came a gradual return for normalcy.

So great was the increase in enrollment that a new classbuilding (Belle Air Hall) and four new dormitories (the old Barracks, since replaced by Sullivan Hall) had to be erected.

MEANWHILE THE overflow from the dormitories took up residence in the Field House, where blankets strung in clothesline fashion partitioned the gym into makeshift rooms.

The return of peacetime, also saw the resumption of Villanova's building program. A new Chemical Engineering Building, the finest in the country, was erected. Next to it rose Commodore John Barry Hall, which houses the NROTC unit, one of fifty-two in the country. A new Library to house the college's overflowing collection of books was also built.

Three years ago a new law building was dedicated. Two years ago it was a new dormitory and the new C and F Building.

Creative Engineering Course Opens Vast, New Vistas For Senior Engineers

Mr. George Auth, along with his associates, coordinates challenging new program which for the next two years will deal itself with the development of hearing devices for the deaf. "Ideas and Creation"—theme.

By PAUL CRAWFORD

Four years ago Villanova added a new course to its engineering curriculum. Its title was "Creative Engineering." Just another course to most Villanovans, but each year it means a great deal more to ten select young men of the School of Engineering. To them it is a chance and a challenge. A chance to express their ideas on a diversity of interesting projects, and a challenge to develop these ideas into a useful end result.

The primary objective of the course is the investigation and discovery of basic visual methods for teaching speech to congenitally deaf children. This course, open to all engineering students, is usually dominated by mechanicals. This is partly due to a lack of interest on the part of the other divisions, and also due to the difficulty of fitting the course into the schedules of many students. The method of selection is based on a voluntary application for the course and a system of exams which are intended to bring any latent talent to the fore. Previous scholastic record is also weighed heavily in considering the applicants. At the outset of the senior year the ten students who best qualify are chosen. This year William Gahs, Stan Bonk, William Barron, Ron Mediatore, Harry Siegfeldt, Jim O'Leary, Frank Perry, Fred Machinchick, John Memminger, and Kevin McClatchy are the nucleus of the course in Creative Engineering ME 244-5.

Mr. George Auth, head of the Mechanical Engineering department at Villanova, is the chief lecturer and coordinator for all phases of the program. Although, it is to be emphasized, that a bulk of the lectures are delivered by guest speakers from all fields of endeavor. This is due to the diverse nature of the course and also to the fact that many other fields beside engineering play an important part in designing for this course. Mr. Auth is thankful for the cooperation of many outsiders and especially grateful for the many people on the faculty here at Villanova who have helped in the various phases of the course's development. Last year Professor Bonniwell of the Psychology Department provided background material along with assistance in developing a machine to test a person's ability to perform occupational tasks under proportionally increasing stresses. This theory along with the machine has drawn wide interest, especially from the armed services.

Ideas and Their Creation

Jim Woodward '59, gave a talk on this subject at a student conference of the A.S.M.E. and received a second place.

In the last three years of the conference, Villanova has taken two first places and one second, and all the prize subjects were a direct result of the Creative Engineering course. This is indeed an outstanding record for Mr. Auth's mechanical marvels.

The general theme of the course is ideas and their creation. Specifically, each year one or more projects are decided upon for the work of the students. During the last two years and continuing into this year the center of concentration has been on devices for aiding the deaf. Some of the key men in developing these aids for the deaf were Joseph Panas '58, James McNamara '58, George Christmann '59, R. Powers '59, and M. Ventura '59.

The primary deterant to speaking to the deaf is their inability to realize what sound is. They have all the physical equipment for speaking, but how can they learn to speak if they do not realize what sound is because they cannot hear it? To a deaf child it is an extremely serious problem to realize that other people are talking and hearing yet try as he may it always ends in a frustrating effort due to the natural incomprehension of what speech is. These are the problems that are being tackled by our budding young engineers at Villanova. Now it will be shown what has been done about these obstacles to a deaf child's normal life.

Members of the Creative Engineering class look over equipment which will aid them in their seach for new discoveries for the deaf.

Toilsome Task

In cooperation with the "Archbishop Ryan Memorial Institute for the Deaf" in Philadelphia, a basic study was made of present teaching methods and means to improve them. By admissions of their teachers present methods of teaching the children were extremely primitive and indirect. Two of the methods were vibrations of the throat when speaking and "lip reading." In the first method the child would hold the throat of the instructor and by feeling the vibrations would know there was a sound being made but rarely could distinguish between a word or a grunt. The second way of teaching was lip reading in which the child tried to imitate the lip formation, tongue placement and breath of the instructor. Often a feather would be placed in front of the instructor's mouth to emphasize the need for breath when making sounds. The above examples show clearly the handicaps presented in instructing the deaf, and the need for some type of equipment to help the children.

The next step was the development of this equipment. To simplify the process the development was to be in two natural stages to correspond with the problem of the child.

The problem of volume, the first stage of development, can be illustrated by the fact that when a deaf child makes a sound, he does not realize that he has spoken. It is not unusual for a child to form a word, and think he has said it, although no sound has been emitted.

The second problem to be tackled was that of specific letter determination. There are many words and letters which have almost identical lip movements and throat vibrations. For example, "T", and "D" are pronounced almost alike as far as tongue formation, breath control, etc. are concerned; the difference being in a subtle tonguing at the bridge of the mouth.

The solution to the first problem—that of volume and pitch control was tried with rather a simple device. It is a well known psychological fact that color most appeals to children. Based on this, a system of lights was set up in conjunction with an amplifier, microphone, and filtering device. Originally the filtering device, which would seperate the pitches, was to be electronic, but this proved to be very expensive. In conjunction with the Physics Department a series of tube resonators was tried, each one tuned to a different frequency. Thus any particular frequency and its corresponding pitch could be picked out of the sound field and converted to electrical energy. The volume indicator was a simple matter of designing and making the amplifier circuit.

Electronics Prove Invaluable

These two components, volume and pitch, were now linked to lights which by brightness or color showed the children exactly how loud or in what pitch they were trying to speak. This instrument has to be refined but the basic idea has proved to be an invaluable aid in teaching the deaf. It is the hope of all concerned to be able to reduce the size and cost of the equipment to a point where almost any deaf child could have one in his home.

The problem of specific letter determination was next approached. Here an oscilloscope was brought into the picture. Each letter when spoken distinctly has its own pattern on the screen of the scope. The deaf child by speaking into a microphone connected to the scope could see a difference in the wave formations on the screen. As an example, take the already-mentioned subtle difference between "T" and "D". Although it is difficult to differentiate between their physical formation, on an oscilloscope the difference is very pronounced, the "T" having a high sharp peak and the "D" a low sloping line. By superimposing the characteristic wave form on the screen of the scope the child could practice matching the form with his own voice.

The difficulties encountered were once more the expense and the speed with which the wave form passed across the screen. The first obstacle is yet to be overcome, but the wave has been slowed down by using a tape recorder that gets the impulse of the child's spoken word and transmits it to the screen at a rate which can be pre-set. The ultimate objective is to make an adapter for a television set (which is in some senses a large oscilliscope) which would enable the deaf child to practice at home. This is what the future students of "Creative Engineering" hope to perfect.

This is just a sketchy outline of what goes on in the basement of Mendel Hall when a few creative students get together. The future holds great promise based on the results of the past. Once again congratulations for a job well done by Mr. Auth, his students, the various departments and their members at Villanova, and the numerous others who have aided in helping those who most need it.

Fourth Annual N.R.O.T.C. Mass Held In Chapel

Last Saturday the N.R.O.T.C. unit of Villanova held its fourth annual Military Mass in the Villanova chapel.

Prior to the Mass the colors were blessed by the celebrant after which the unit filed into the chapel. Mass was sung by the Villanova Singers under the direction of Herbert Fiss.

Upon conclusion of the Mass the battalion, under the direction of Battalion Commander Fred Weile, marched to the C&F auditorium for the Communion breakfast.

After the breakfast the battalion heard featured speaker.

The Navy unit, under the command of Wiele, later marched for the pre-game festivities at the Dayton football game.

At half-time, the champion drill team, under the command of Midn. 1/c Terence Connell, performed as half-time entertainment.

Villanova's Midshipmen attend the annual Navy Military Mass in the chapel. Father John Klekotka, O.S.A., president of Villanova, said the solemn High Mass.

LYNX To Feature Material of Many Contributors

"We are now at the crucial point in the make-up of the LYNX," declared editor Frank Murtha yesterday. "Recently we have had a large number of contributions and we have selected the finer one for publication. But we still have space to fill."

When asked what had been accepted so far, Murtha replied, "Tentatively, we have a good deal of poetry, three vignettes, a couple of short stories and possibly a one-act play."

Murtha stressed that the goal of three magazines a year depends on how quickly the remaining space is filled. "We would like to have an imaginative essay or two and some short stories of fair length," he mused.

Managing editor Tony Macklin remarked that "our appeal has had favorable results. One of the really surprising things is that, so far, no one has had more than one work accepted. This means that the LYNX won't be the collected works of Fred Murtz this year, but will contain the material of many writers."

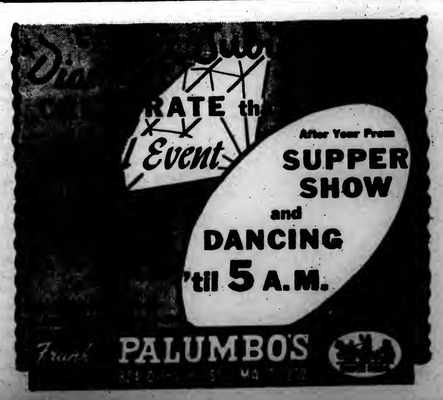
The Society's officers have emphasized that through such informal talks at Flannery's, Villanova students "acquire a greater knowledge of today's financial world."

The BUSINESS WHIRL, official publication of the C & F School, will undergo a complete revamping this year, according to Editor-in-Chief Charles R. Presley, junior Accounting major.

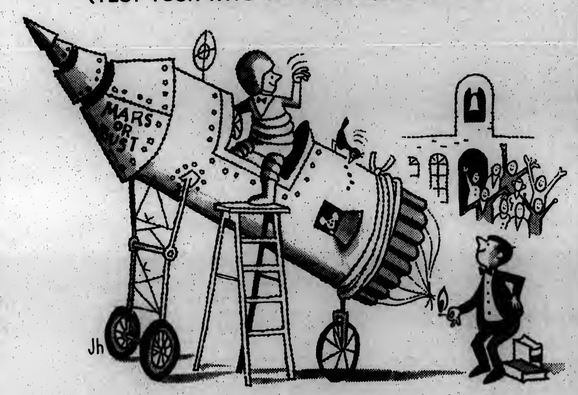
The A.S.C.E. To Attend Classes At Drexel



The A.S.C.E. held its first important meeting of the year on Oct. 27.

Two important announcements were delivered at the meeting. The first was that an invitation has been received from the Bethleham Steel Co. to attend night classes at Drexel on Nov. 2, 9, 16, 23 and Dec. 7 and 14, 1959. The lectures will concern the practical applications of plastic design in steel. Fees will be compliments of the Bethlehem Steel Co.

The second announcement concerned a dinner to be held at the Engineers Club at 1317 Spruce Street on Nov. 10. The guest speaker will be George S. Richardson, consultant engineer, who will speak on the construction of the Fort Pitt Bridge. Tickets will be two dollars.



Further information may be obtained in the Civil Engineering Office.

The meeting was ended with a film on the construction of the Walt Whitman Bridge.

S.C. Secretary Hooker Asks Better Day Hop Relations

An Open Letter To the Day-Students of Villanova
From Jim Hooker

I am writing this letter to you not as Secretary of the Student Council, although it is because of this office I am able to, but rather as one of your elected representatives.

My purpose is a simple one: to offer to you a program which will enable you, as day students, to participate in campus activities. However, I would like first to point out a few things which are related to this program.

Can Be Active

It is my sincere belief that most of the day-students are interested in Campus activities, in varying degrees of course. I also feel that there are those among you who cannot for one reason or another participate in school activities directly.

BUT this does not mean that you cannot be active at all. Remember, however small or large a part you take of the whole, it is still a part and without it, the whole is no longer. So it is the direct aim of the program to enable each and every one of you to take part of the whole.

Some Interests Coincide

At this point some of you are probably saying to yourselves, "so what! what can I do? I have to work after school or I live too far from campus, etc . . . etc."

These are all valid excuses, and I don't mean to belittle any of them, but I do feel that each of you must have some interest which would coincide with an activity on Campus. So join that activity and do what you can when you can. Certainly that's a reasonable request and it leaves it up to each of you to decide just what you can do.

Some of you might say, "I just plain can't do anything." To these I offer the following answer: I don't believe that there is anyone who "Can't do anything." What about football, basketball, and baseball games, swimming, track meets, and dances, these are all activities which you could attend.

If this is all you can do then do it; don't wait for the next guy to ask you, you ask him.

New Publicity Program

Your next question would probably be: "Well, what's your program going to do to help us accomplish this?"

First, and most important, it is to make known to you the opportunities that are available on campus. This will take the form of an extensive publicity program directly towards making you a well informed student at Villanova.

Opinions Voiced

Second, it will give you a chance to voice your opinion in campus matters which concern you directly and indirectly.

This will take the form of office hours for the representatives at which time you may offer your complaints, suggestions, or praise. There will be a food poll run especially for the day students.

During the course of the year this program will take many forms; I ask you now to be aware of them and act on them when they do appear.

When your representative is holding an office hour, go up and introduce yourself to him, tell him what you have to say. He'll listen. He is interested in you or he wouldn't be there.

In closing, I can say only this: I hope you, the day students of Villanova University, will not let yourselves down. I can only offer the program, you are the ones who will make it a big success or a bigger failure. Be Active .....It Pays.

Penn Beats Debators

Beta Gamma Debating Society formally opened its 1959-1960 season last Thursday evening when the team dropped a very close debate to the University of Pennsylvania at Penn's campus.

Mark Quinn, Dom Costa, Frank Murtha, and Jim Rhodes represented Villanova at the initial intercollegiate encounter with the new debating topic, "Resolved: That Congress should be given the power to reverse the decisions of the Supreme Court."

Villanova will get the chance to avenge its defeat when a Wildcat team meets Penn in a return match on November 12. Jim Strazzella, Frank McCormick, Larry Kelly, and Bill Gazi will compose that team which will meet Penn here at Villanova.

On November 13 and 14, Joe Liggera, Gene D'Aquilla, Joe Remy, and Tom Pfieffer will travel to Temple University for the season's first varsity debating tournament. Here they will try to maintain Villanova's position at the head of the Philadelphia area debating circle, a position they established by taking first place at the Rutgers' tournament at the close of last season.

This Saturday Jim Rhodes, Frank Murtha, Dom Costa, and Mark Quinn will take part in a practice debate tournament to be held at St. Joseph's to prepare for the official tournament the following week.

At last Thursday's meeting of Beta Gamma, president Dom Costa announced that four novices John Isselmann, Jim Rhodes, Frank McCormick, and Larry Kelly, were promoted to varsity status.

Spirit Committee Plans Rally

Tom Raymond, publicity co-chairman of the Spirit Committee, has announced that a Thursday night rally in the lower quad will highlight pre-Army game festivities at Villanova.

The rally will take place at 11:15 p.m. More publicity and arrangements are being readied, and will be made available as soon as possible.

Maps showing the automobile route to West Point are presently being prepared for distribution to those who will travel by car.

Raymond emphasized that the Committee owes a special vote of thanks to Frank DeMaio, co-chairman of the Ticket sub-committee, who handled the details of the West Point trip.

"The entire trip promises to be the best ever," declared Raymond. "The Committee feels that the Cadets are a little afraid of Villanova Spirit. By exploiting that fear, we can make this a weekend a complete victory."

Arthur Gladstone McDowell To Speak At Second Forum

The second Student Council Forum, under the auspices of the Academic Affairs Committee, will be held on November 11.

The speaker at this forum will be Arthur Gladstone McDowell, noted lecturer and union leader.

The forum is being directed by Neil Drislane, head of the Academic Affairs Committee and Eileen Grayson, Junior nurse representative, who contacted Mr. McDowell.

Born in Pittsburgh, Pa. on Jan. 29, 1909, McDowell began his education in the public schools of West Sunbury joint township and Butler, Pa., where he was awarded civic recognition for leadership in the Boy Scouts, Y.M.C.A., and religious youth organizations.

After graduation he attended the University of Pittsburgh for two years, terminating his studies because of disputes over labor and civil liberities activities as an officer of the student liberal club.

He later refused the University offer of unconditional reinstatement in favor of doing research aid for the Dairy Drivers of Pittsburgh Teamsters Unions.

In 1930 he joined the Socialist Party and directed the successful governatorial campaign of James Maurer.

He then served as a member of the Legislative Correspondents Association, Harrisburg, Pa., for labor periodicals and was parlimentary secretary to two Socialist members of Penna. House of Representatives, 1931, '32 and '33.

In 1933 and 1934 he became a founder and faculty member of the Chicago Labor College, and lecturer and speaker for a Chicago radio station.

From 1937-1940 he served as National Trade Union Representative and Administration Secretary of the Socialist Party of the U. S. In 1940 he resigned from all parts in the Socialist Party aften ten years of membership in protest against their pacifist position and party oppositions to national defense measures against Hitler. He publicly announced his resignation as a result of an attempt by the party to prevent his public advocacy of Lend-Lease Aid to England and France.

After four years of Union and anti-Communist work, Mr. McDowell, removed to Philadelphia and became Director of Organization for the Upholster's International Union of North America. In 1948 he became Administrative Assistant to President in charge of political education and international labor relations.

At the present time Mr. McDowell is Secretary-treasurer of the Council Against Communist Aggressions and Secretary of the Lincoln-Civil-War Society of Philadelphia.

Judging from the list of accomplishments of Mr. McDowell, his speech should be well worth the attention of every Villanovan.

C.C.D. Begins Courses

The Confraternity of Christian Doctrine opened its Teaching Methods Course on Monday evening, October 26, with 55 students in attendance. The course was opened by Monsignor Charles Mynaugh, regional director of C.C.D. The opening of the course marked the culmination of an organization and membership drive.

The Methods course will run for fifteen weeks but will be suspended during examination week and the week prior to exams, announced Vice President Gene Felch. Members who will teach this year are required to attend the course, completion of which will entitle members to lifetime certification as Confraternity Teachers. A maximum of two excused cuts will be permitted those taking the course. Cuts must be excused in advance except in very unusual circumstances and material covered in those classes must be made up.

Following the opening of the methods course, coffee and cake were served in the East Lounge of Dougherty Hall and President Tom LoCasale congratulated Monsignor Mynaugh on his recently appointed rank of Monsignor. LoCasale also thanked the Monsignor for his assistance in the establishment of the Villanova Chapter.

Arrangement for the reception were under the direction of Charles R. Presley. Hostesses were student nurses Kathleen Cox, Marion Wagner, Joann Dynakowski, Julianne Mattimore, and Marlene Kovacs. C. C. D. Moderator Fr. Norbert Whitley and Dr. Robert S. O'Shea of the Philosophy dept. attended.

The first phases of the C.C.D. teaching program will begin next week when fifteen to twenty members assist in the opening of classes at Pennhurst, a home for the mentally retarded in Norristown. Due to the demand for teachers, members will teach there before completeing the methods course. Other teaching centers will be established in the near future.

Discussion club chairman, Dennis Brennan, announced that the group plans in the near future to sponsor a series of intercollegiate panel discussions on the campus. The proposed discussions would be open to the student bodies of all Catholic College Students in the area and would discuss controversial issues on morals and theology.

"Big Fisherman"

Special rates are now being offered to students for the viewing of the "Big Fisherman" now playing the Midtown theatre.

The story of Simon Peter of Galilee, it was written by Lloyd C. Douglas, author of "The Robe".

Special rates are also being offered to teachers and parents accompanying students.

Tickets may be obtained from Rev. Dante Girolami in his room in Austin Hall.

Ball, Ring Mass Plans Announced

Lou Denison's orchestra has been selected to play at the Charity Ball on December 11.

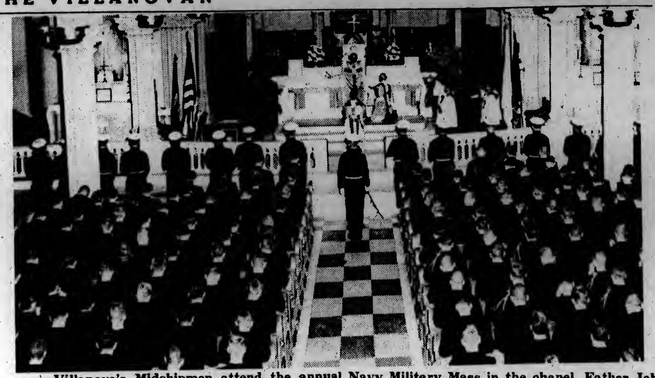
This was disclosed by Chet Buttonow, dance chairman, at the Junior Class Steering Committee held last Wednesday evening. The price of the tickets will be $2.00.

It was also announced that the Junior Ring Mass will be held in the chapel on Saturday, November 21 at 9:00 A.M. A communion breakfast at a yet to be determined site will follow the Mass.

Nick Cassetta, general chairman of the Mass and breakfast, named the heads of the four committees handling both affairs. They are Tony Intrieri, Jack McDonnell and Jerry Carlin, breakfast tickets; Dick Kelley and Butch McNally, publicity; Jim Strazzella, Mass; Frank Carolan and Jim Palair, breakfast.

Fourth Annual N.R.O.T.C. Mass Held In Chapel

Last Saturday the N.R.O.T.C. unit of Villanova held its fourth annual Military Mass in the Villanova chapel.



Prior to the Mass the colors were blessed by the celebrant after which the unit filed into the chapel. Mass was sung by the Villanova Singers under the direction of Herbert Fiss.

Upon conclusion of the Mass the battalion, under the direction of Battalion Commander Fred Weile, marched to the C&F auditorium for the Communion breakfast.

After the breakfast the battalion heard featured speaker.

The Navy unit, under the command of Wiele, later marched for the pre-game festivities at the Dayton football game.

At half-time, the champion drill team, under the command of Midn. 1/c Terence Connell, performed as half-time entertainment.

Villanova's Midshipmen attend the annual Navy Military Mass in the chapel. Father John Klekotka, O.S.A., president of Villanova, said the solemn High Mass.

LYNX To Feature Material of Many Contributors

"We are now at the crucial point in the make-up of the LYNX," declared editor Frank Murtha yesterday. "Recently we have had a large number of contributions and we have selected the finer one for publication. But we still have space to fill."

When asked what had been accepted so far, Murtha replied, "Tentatively, we have a good deal of poetry, three vignettes, a couple of short stories and possibly a one-act play."

Murtha stressed that the goal of three magazines a year depends on how quickly the remaining space is filled. "We would like to have an imaginative essay or two and some short stories of fair length," he mused.

Managing editor Tony Macklin remarked that "our appeal has had favorable results. One of the really surprising things is that, so far, no one has had more than one work accepted. This means that the LYNX won't be the collected works of Fred Murtz this year, but will contain the material of many writers."

Villanova Grad Speaks

George Flannery, a former Villanova student who is currently teaching at Upper Darby Evening School, addressed the Finance Society last Thursday during activity period.

Flannery, who is an instructor in the adult Investment course at Upper Darby, spoke on "The Phases of Brokerage House's Training and Employment Program."

The Society's officers have emphasized that through such informal talks at Flannery's, Villanova students "acquire a greater knowledge of today's financial world."

The BUSINESS WHIRL, official publication of the C & F School, will undergo a complete revamping this year, according to Editor-in-Chief Charles R. Presley, junior Accounting major.

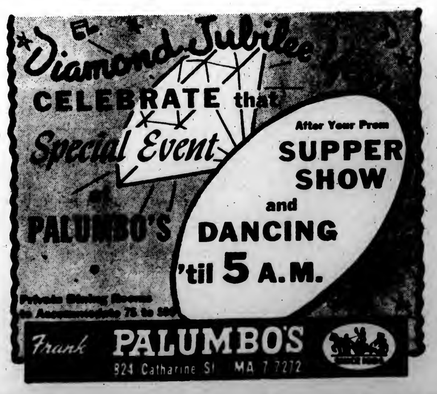
dle $5000."

Murphy declared that the council should not let this resistance completely deter them. "They should try a 'cut-down' budget for a year. if they feel that they cannot handle this larger one", said the 5N engineer.

Murphy, although he has no voting privileges, attends the council meetings and takes an active part in all discussions.

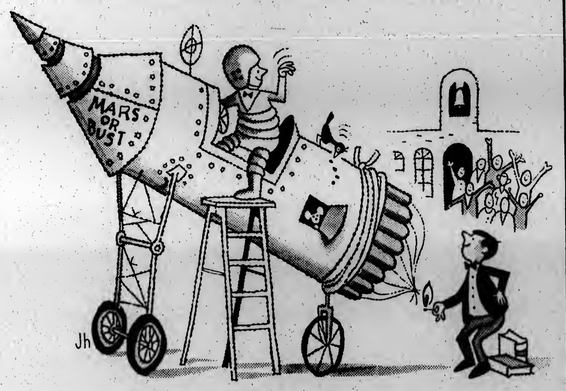
The A.S.C.E. To Attend Classes At Drexel



The A.S.C.E. held its first important meeting of the year on Oct. 27.

Two important announcements were delivered at the meeting. The first was that an invitation has been received from the Bethleham Steel Co. to attend night classes at Drexel on Nov. 2, 9, 16, 23 and Dec. 7 and 14, 1959. The lectures will concern the practical applications of plastic design in steel. Fees will be compliments of the Bethlehem Steel Co.

The second announcement concerned a dinner to be held at the Engineers Club at 1317 Spruce Street on Nov. 10. The guest speaker will be George S. Richardson, consultant engineer, who will speak on the construction of the Fort Pitt Bridge. Tickets will be two dollars.



Further information may be obtained in the Civil Engineering Office.

The meeting was ended with a film on the construction of the Walt Whitman Bridge.

Richman, Glueck, & Aceto Quarterbacks of The Future

Three frosh quarterbacks bolster Villanova for future season.

By John Duffy

The Villanova freshmen football team has the good fortune to be led by, not just one, but by three outstanding quarterbacks. A rash of injuries has prevented these boys from obtaining victories in their first two games, but their third engagement, against a rough West Chester team, promises to be a real dandy.

Richie Richman, a 5'11", 175 lb. ballplayer, is 18 years old and hails from Overbrook High in Philadelphia. In high school Richie played not only football, but also basketball and baseball.

He was an All-Public selection in each of these sports, and captured eight varsity letters. A southpaw all the way, Richie had numerous offers from various colleges, including such football powers as Duke and Miami.

Richman, a C & F student who plans to major in accounting, also excells in other fields. He was president of the student body at Overbrook, and maintained a scholastic average of 90 percent.

Rich has no immediate plans upon graduation, but indicates that he wants no part of pro football.

Larry Glueck, the quaterback of the white unit, is 18 and hails from Lansdale Catholic. Larry, who is 6'1" and 180 lbs., is such a fine runner that there is a great possibility that he will be shifted to halfback to take up some of the slack left there by the many injuries recently received.

Glueck, like his roommate Richman, also played basketball and baseball in high school while earning 10 athletic letters.

Impressed Scouts

One of Larry's many feats, which attracted Villanova, Penn State, Wake Forest, and many other scouts to his door, was an 85 yard touchdown run with a punt, to lead Lansdale to a 19-13 victory over previous undefeated Lebanon Catholic.

Glueck is an Education major here at V.U. He maintained an average of 85 in high school. As of the present, he has no plans for after graduation.

With Glueck moving to halfback and Richman running the blue team, the whites will move under the guidance of Ted Aceto. Ted, a six-footer from Gloucester, New Jersey, was graduated from Gloucester Catholic in June of 1957.

He spent the next two years tearing up the prep school league while starring for St. Francis Prep of York, Pa. Ted was named the outstanding athlete of St. Francis last year. He is also an education major, and like his colleagues, has no immediate plans for his future upon graduation.

Coach Bill Brannau said that the loss of several players, due to injuries has greatly handicapped the efforts of the team toward victory thus far. However, with the fine play of their outstanding quaterbacks to lead them, the Villanova frosh are a formidable football team.

Sack of Troy

One Way or The Other

Tom Troy

We've Got Trouble

Well, we finally won a game after seven weeks. In just six short weeks an awful lot has happened. And all that has happened has been terrible.

The finest football team, material-wise, in years has lost six consecutive games. In only the first game were they still in contention as the second half started .

Several hundred students lost their collective minds (or found them, depending on your personal view) one Sunday night and hanged the coach in effigy. Result? The team lost three more games.

Several players were suspended for a couple of weeks; 14 others lost the privilege of eating at the training table as coach Frank Reagan cracked down. Result? Boston College smashed Villanova, 39-6.

Reagan, stating that he had "tried every possible means to solve the situation" resigned his position as head football coach. Joe Rogers, backfield coach since 1955, was appointed as head coach.

New Coach Not Solution

Rogers promptly used psychological tactics by reinstating the suspended players, restoring the others to the training table, declaring that the team's record, as far as he was concerned, was 0-0. Result? Miami handily defeated Villanova 26-6.

In a word, the football situation at Villanova is rather a mess. And not just this year. In the past five and one-half years, Villanova's football record is a gaudy 16-37. Gentlemen, Villanova football is in trouble.

You can appreciate the dire straits it is in when you read that Father Klekotka has had to deny that Villanova will follow Fordham, Duquesne, and other eastern Catholic colleges in dropping football.

You can appreciate the trouble Villanova football is in when you read the account of the games in the Sunday papers and the football writers declare that Villanova had little defense, little offense, little at all; that Villanova was completely outclassed; that Villanova didn't look like a team at all; that Villanova, with the exception of a few players, wasn't putting out.

(These same papers devoted one and one-half pages of written commentary and a complete page of pictures to Penn football when the Quakers were being trounced every week. And there was never criticism of Penn. Villanova gets about one column and one picture).

No One Person Responsible

You can appreciate the terrible position of Villanova football when people in your neighborhood ask, "Who's going to beat the Pussy Cats today?" Or when Villanova students say, "There's always the basketball and track team."

Who's to blame? Certainly the players themselves must assume a part of the censure, particularly this season. With a few exceptions, practically every member of the team played better football last season. That's what makes this year so hard to take.

The coaches have to share some responsibility for the shoddy performances. I feel the three biggest jobs of a coach are to recruit players, teach them a few things, and then get the maximum from every player. I don't think this last requirement has been accomplished nearly as well as the first two.

But the largest part of responsibility must be attributed to those people who decide the policy behind Villanova football.

Villanova On A Teeter Board

For the past several years, Villanova has been teetering back and forth between a "large" policy and a "small" policy.

You can't tell from season to season whether Villanova is attempting to become a football power or to retreat to a position similar to Colby or Tufts or some other small football school.

Villanova has stopped scheduling teams from the big conferences (Southeastern, Southwestern, Big Ten), for Villanova was usually required to travel several thousand miles in order to meet these teams.

But this move is completely nullified by scheduling big time powers in the East (Army, Navy, Holy Cross) and schools, which though little heard of, are nonetheless concentrating on football. Miami of Ohio gives 65 scholarships!

It's not feasible that Villanova which gives 15 or 20 scholarships is going to defeat one of the service academies or a school that gives 65 scholarships.

And if you consider this, then you must postulate that Villanova is going to be mediocre.

Re-evaluation Needed

Thus, I think there must be a reappraisal of the policy of Villanova football. There should be a goal established, and then there should be no variations of that goal. Certain means to the goal should be decided on, then no deviations from the means permitted.

Let's be brazen, like Auburn or L.S.U. or Miami, say we're going to recruit, give 70 scholarships, schedule Army, Notre Dame, Ohio State.

Or let's continue giving 15 scholarships, schedule Detroit, Dayton, Marquette.

We'll be forgotten by many people, but at least we'll be playing in our class.

But no mediocrity, please. Let's get Villanova football off the see-saw.

whistling "Villanova killed a Little Ram".

Unable To Move

The third quarter action saw West Chester unable to move and Villanova hampered by penalties when they got deep. Finally the Frosh took over on the West Chester 45 and marched to 16 on the hard runnig of Cropke, Merenda, and Rettino. to the airlanes and hit Bill Barbaro again, this time for a nifty six-pointer. Barbaro got into the act again as he booted the extra point. VU 25, W.C. 6 and the Teachers were wondering when recess would come.

West Chester made the only real drive in the waning minutes of the third quarter. The Ram's recovered a fumble on the VU 42 yard line.

Ron Simpson, the West Chester quarterback, threw to Kline for a first down on the 19. A run and another simpson pass spotted the ball on the one yard-line. Simpson sneaked for the TD, and John Harnish kicked the extra point.

March 60 Yards

Villanova took the following kickoff and marched sixty six yards for their fifth touchdown. The drive was highlighted by the fine running of Lou Rettino and Jim Cropke. The drive was capped by a one plunge by Merenda for the score. Barbaro's attempted conversion was blocked.

The Kittens followed that touchdown with another one. On the sixteen Richman scored just to prevent any thought the Teachers might have had of keeping them after school.

Villanova took the ball on the 48, and failed to gain in three downs. On the fourth down Glueck scooted for 31 yards to the 17. A penalty after a ten yard by Thomas, spotted the ball on the eighteen.

A pass by Ted Aceto and a 13 yard run by Burton put the ball on the one. Burton carried it over from there, for the final score. Burton then kicked the extra point, and the scoring was over.

Coach Bill Brannau, beaming from ear to ear, in an interview after the game, said. "This was definitely a team victory, they gave a 110% effort out there and I am proud of them".

This was Villanova's last freshman game of the season. They lost in two previous games with Army Plebes and Bullis Prep. Friday they played the game they were capable of. In all it was the beginning of a wonderful weekend for the Wildcat football.

J. Blackburn A Track Star Looking For A Comeback

By Henry Schultz

Does he or doesn't he? Not even his coach knows. That's right, not even his coach knows if Jim Blackburn, Villanova track mainstay, has that certain something it takes to overcome all obstacles and become another of Villanova's all time track greats.

He has always been one of the most dependable runners on the Wildcat squad, and has never ceased to amaze coach Elliot with his stamina and courage.

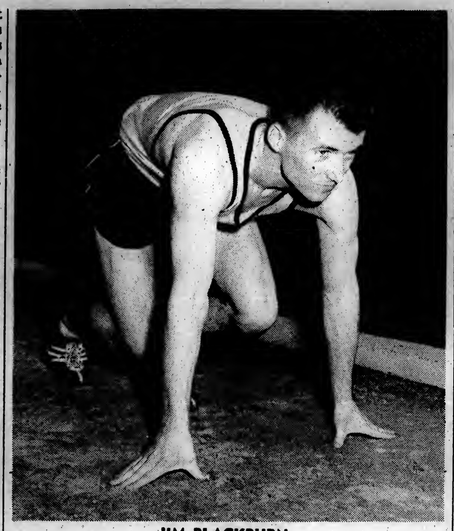
After four highly successful years at Sommerville (Mass.) High School, he brought his talents to Villanova, one of the many schools which made bids for his services. His showing as a frosh both amazed and encouraged his coaches, and great things were expected of him as a sophomore.

Early the next year, however, the ax fell. While running in practice, he stumbled and fell, landing on his left arm. He was rushed to a Bryn Mawr physician with a badly broken arm. Although the doctor tried his best, the arm healed minus an inch and a half of bone. The cast and sling naturally prevented further participation for some time, and when they were removed, his balance was seriously hampered.

Junior Year

However, with the coming of his junior year, he displayed the spirit Villanova athletes have become famous for, and doggedly tried a comeback. From the results, it would seem he was highly successful. Running the quarter mile in dual meets to build himself up for the more important Mile Relays, he consistantly won points for the squad. Several meets he ran the 100 yard dash finishing an encouraging second-encouraging in that he was beaten out only by Villanova's All-american, Ed Collymore.

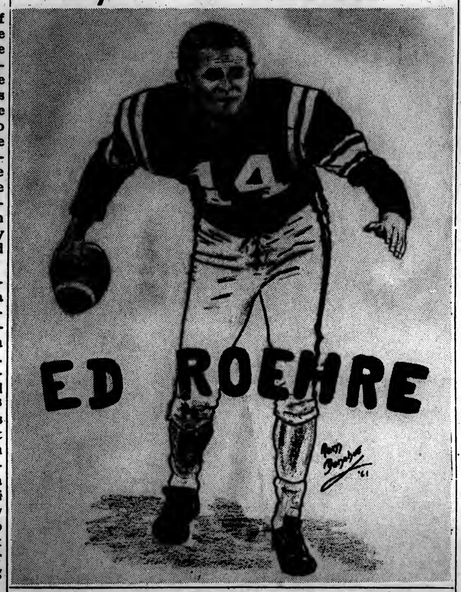
His outstanding accomplishment, however, was being a member of the Penn Relay winners, and he also ran in the Milwaukee Indoor Meet, in which the Wildcats set a new record.



In the midst of this remarkable season, he often noticed recurrences of the pain in his arm. He also thought that his balance was not all that it should be. With these facts in mind, he decided to have something done about it, and as a result, this past summer had bone specialists operate. They decided the best bet would be to take a bone graft from his left shin Within a few weeks after the operation, he was working out for the coming season

What's the Effect?

Just how much this will affect his running remains to be seen, but it is the opinion of Coach Tuppeny that in view of his past record for overcoming obstacles, this operation will hamper him very little. Jim himself is even more optimistic, saying, "I really think that the operation will improve my running, as I will now have the necessary balance.



Coach Tuppeny says of Jim. "Jim has always been a dependable runner, and both Coach Elliot and I have great confidence in him. He can do it if he works. That is the most important point. He has to work at it."

Work is nothing new for Blackburn, possessor of a 2.7 cumulative average, and Dean's list student for the first half of last year; and he expresses his determination to come through for the team.

Player of Week

Intramural Soccer New Campus Sport

Starting December 1st a new sport will be inagurated at Villanova. It is to be the popular European and South American game of football (known in the U. S. as soccer). At the moment Fernando Galatas is forming teams for the intramurals. Mr. Galatas hopes that in the near future there will be enough interest to play a few games with local colleges.

A meeting will be held in Alumni Gym on Nov. 5 at 3:30. All those interested should attend. Those who haven't signed the roster can do so by attending this meeting or contacting Fernando Galatas, 354 Sheehan Hall or calling LA 5-9340.

Bowlers Wanted

Anyone interested in participating in the Intramural Bowling program is asked to attend an organization meeting tomorrow at 10:30 in 210 Vasey.

Sports Chatter

Let It Pour

Tony Macklin

It doesn't rain often enough.

But when it does the 'Cats splash about like champs. Saturday the weather was sloppy, the skies were leaden and a spitting rain fell all through the game. Through the rain drops Villanova played its best game of the year.

The Wildcat line knocked the Flyer forward wall back on its heels time after time. They drove more holes in the Dayton dike than Coach Bud Kerr could possibly repair. They plowed through to drown the Dayton backs in the backfield.

Strong On Ground

Saturday's game showed the value of a ground attack. The 'Cats slogged out 158 yards to 50 for Dayton on the ground. Fullback Leon Horin was tremendous. Running, tackling, punting, he was the outstanding player on the field.

Surprisingly, the 'Cats threw only seven passes and completed two. But one was a 53 yard scoring shot from Ed Roehre to soph sea horse Mike Pettine. The 'Cats also scored the extra points that put them ahead, 16-13 on a tricky torpedo from Roehre to Sam Gruniesen.

Dayton had the best of the passing statistics. They made 124 yards to VU's 47 but the 'Cats have the slightly soggy game ball. They won a good one.

Actually we should have known the 'Cats would win. Dick Dunkel was right again. He picked them in his notorious ratings. Mr. Dunkel, please, take it easy this week-end.

Parents Help

Combined with Dunkel's daring and the rain, Villanova won Saturday because of its excellent mudders—and fodders (it was Parents Day).

The appreciative crowd of 7,000, backed by the Villanova band, was spirited and made itself heard.

One thing about football fans though, you never can please them. When the 'Cats ran, they should have passed; when they passed, they should have run; whey they ran they should have kicked; when they kicked, they should have run.

When Roehre was in there, Langone should have been in there. When Langone was in there, Roehre should have been in there. When both Roehre and Langone had played, Kautter was the one they should have used.

New Quarterback

They wanted a new quarterback, a new coach, a new everything. In general, the grandstand quarterback was rather wet Saturday. His counterpart on the field did a much better job.

This Saturday Villanova plays Army at West Point. Unless the Wildcats do something about their pass defense it is going to be a dismal afternoon.

Army has one of the top passing quarterbacks in the country, if not the zenith flinger, in Joe Caldwell. His receivers are swift and shifty. Villanova can expect more passes than May Britt Saturday.

Halfback Bob Anderson is back in the lineup and scored both Army's touchdowns in last week's tie game with the Air Force Academy. He was racked up by the 'Cats early in last year's game and will be out for revenge.

Dangerous Option Play

Anderson, a rugged linecrasher, runs the pass-run option play deftly. Watch it, 'Cats.

Air Force coach Ben Martin has said that Army's passing attack has reached a point of perfection.

To add to this, the 'Cats in the last two games have given up two downright easy TDs on long aerial strikes. The receivers have been shaking loose all season long behind the 'Cats secondary.

Previously weak-passing Dayton found a lethal air wing against VU. It wasn't until the end of the game when they got desperate that it failed.

Trickery Necessary

Villanova is going to have to use every possible effort and trick to stay with Army. They must increase the clever faking in the backfield that fooled the Dayton Flyers.

A weapon that might add to the 'Cats chances is the quick kick, something we haven't seen all year.

Probably the best thing that could happen to the 'Cats is rain. It would slow the Cadets air arm and would be to the 'Cats liking. The 'Cats play their finest ball in the mud. Remember the Wichita game two years ago, the Richmond game, the Dayton games?

The Big One

Rain or not, this is the big one. The 'Cats should be up. They are Army's breather before Oklahoma, but Army wants to smash someone after last Saturday's frustration. Army is (3-2-1). Villanova is (1-6). VU can't do anything, or can they?

One thing more, despite critics or policy, (barring a slaughter) I personally feel that Villanova going up to play Army is a pretty thrilling thing. It should be a great trip.

Will it rain, will Villanova rein Army, or will Army reign?

Let it pour!

Wildcats Down Flyers For First Win

By Jim Murray

Well, No. 7 proved lucky for the Villanova Wildcats Saturday as they downed the Dayton Flyers 22-13.

After six straight defeats, the 'Cats finally realized their preseason potential by playing great football before a Parent's Day crowd of about 7,000 (There's that 7 again!).

Coach Joe Rogers sent his charges on to a muddy field still fired up from a fine game against V.P.I. the week before. Rogers had said he was close to finding the right combinations and Saturday the Team really was a team.

Reggie Rides Again

In the first quarter the 'Cats showed they were out to make their own luck when Reggie Powe scooped up a fumble on the 34, after a vicious tackle by Nick Langone on a lateral play forced Flyer Ed Monahan to throw wide. After the ' Cats moved the ball to the 17—Big Leon Horin carried the ball 7 straight times for the first score. (Notice all these beautiful 7's!) Leon carried the ball in for the two point conversion.

The Dayton Flyers came right back in the second quarter when fullback Frank Griazdowski capped a 79 yard march with a one yard plunge for their first six pointer. The P.A.T. was no good and Villanova held a slim lead 8-6.

That Home Run Again

Then in the final moment Dayton struck again with Villanova's old nemesis the long pass play or home run. Ralph Harper faded back on first down lofted the ball 50 yards to Bob Cyphers for a T.D. The placement by Ted Kramer was good and Dayton led at halftime 13-8.

The third quarter was scoreless with both teams defense showing up real well on the muddy turf. In the fourth quarter Villanova's mudders came alive.

With less than a minute gone in the final period senior quarterback Ed Roehre rifled a line drive pass to sophomore halfback Mike Pettine who flew past the Dayton secondery for a touchdown. Overall the play covered 53 yards—20 by air and 33 on the ground. The P.A.T. was good and Villanova led 16-13. (Incidentally the pass was V.U. 2nd completion) (they were 2-7 while Dayton was 6-17.)

After a punt by Dayton hit guard, Tony Sperandeo, the ball was put on the 28 and Villanova took over.

It took 10 plays before Nick Langone took the ball into the end zone for the final scoring of the day.

The game was a real team effort with special mention going to Ed Roehr, Bill Craig "who has found himself" . . . mostly in the Dayton backfield and Henry Gotaro a soph center who's first full game was outstanding.

So, coach Joe Rogers and Villanovans are in seventh (7) heaven this week but its back to earth next Saturday against Army when the 'Cats stay up for two in a row.

Nick Langone, soph quarterback, comes over the top of the heap for final score in last quarter of Dayton game.

Frosh Whip Rams 38-13 Avenge Varsity Loss

by Dan Grove

Villanova's underrated frosh football team slammed out a 38 to 13 victory last Friday over the previously undefeated West Chester frosh.

The Kitten's big line contained West Chester's pony backfield, and the much improved pass defense limited the Teachers to four completions.

In all, West Chester could only scrape-up four first downs. Offensively the Kittens featured a razzle-dazzle passing attack, and a group of hard running backs.

High Gear

West Chester started off in high gear, and scored before the crowd got settled. A host of Teachers broke through and blocked a Villanova punt on the 48 yard line.

Tezak grabbed the ball and scored unmolested. The P.A.T. was blocked, and West Chester led 6-0 (Shades of Sept. 19).

The score remained 6-0 until early in the second quarter, when Richie Richman intercepted a West Chester pass in Villanova territory. Cropke carried the ball to the 47 and then VU was penalized twice, being pushed back to their own 32.

Two plays later Richman opened up his air game and Jack Mount made a circus catch on the 46. A penalty and a five yard run moved the ball to the 36.

At this point Richman threw one of his southpaw strikes to Rettino, who followed his blocking beautifully for the T.D. Richman's run for the extra point failed.

Kittens Take Over

Shortly thereafter the Kittens took over on the West Chester 38, after a fake punt failed to net a first down. On the second down Richman completed a hook pass to Bill Barbaro who lateralled to Cropke.

Cropke scampered down the sidelines for a razzle-dazzle 38 yard TD play. Rettino failed on the run for two points. 12-6.

The Teachers didn't take this object lesson very seriously though, as V.U. scored again on the same hook-lateral play. The 'Cats took over on a West Chester punt and marched to the twelve yard line, but were penalized back to the 34.

With the third and thirty-two situation, Richman again hit Barbaro who pitched out to Larry Glueck (a quarterback converted to half). Glueck ran the remaining thirty two yards for the TD.

The try for the extra point failed. As the halftime whistle blew, Villanova led 18-6 and the loyal Wildcat rooters were

Can 'Cats Contain Caldwell?

By Mike Donahue

It will be a pair of status seekers in the best Vance Packard tradition who will square off against each other on the Michie Field gridiron Saturday at West Point.

Villanova's Wildcats will be going all out to post a prestige win at the expense of Army's Cadets. Army, on the other hand will be anxious to regain some of the prestige they lost last Saturday when the upstart Space Cadets from the Air Force Academy held them to a tie, 13-13.

Two Losses for Cadets

Coach Dale Hall's cadets are not unbeatable as evidenced by their not-too-gaudy 3-2-1 record to date. Granted that Illinois and Penn State, early season conquerors of the Black Knights, and the aforementioned Air Force are much stronger teams than the likes of West Chester, Dayton, and Xavier; nevertheless the concerted offense displayed by the Wildcats against Virginia Tech and Dayton, if "revved up" a little more could make Saturday's tussle an interesting game from a Villanovan's point o fview.

The 'Cats major task appears to be devising a passable pass defense that will be able to contain the Army air arm.

Pass Defense to be Tested

The Wildest pass defense will face its stiffest challenge of the season in the person of Joe Caldwell, brilliant Cadet quarterback. Prior to the Air Force Academy game, Army's field general was the second leading passer in the country from a yardage gained point of view. In five games Caldwell's accurate right arm had accounted for 789 yards and six touchdowns. His accuracy percentage, .627, racked up through 64 competitions in 102 attempts, was tops in the nation.

Caldwell's prime target is that most publicized of all college football players, the original Lonesome End, Bill Carpenter. The Army captain has snared 28 passes for 369 yards and two touchdowns.

The Caldwell-Carpenter combination makes Army the number one passing team in the country, averaging over 200 yards gained aerially per game.

Anderson's Injury Hurt

An injury to brilliant Bob Anderson in the Illinois game has put a severe crimp in Army's running game. The Cocoa (Fla.) Comet, a first team All American in his sophomore year, played second fiddle to peerless Pete Dawkins last year. As a result he had to settle for a 2nd team All American berth.

Nevertheless, though he played in Dawkin's shadow, he still managed to lead the Knights offensive attack in both rushing and total yardage. He saved his most outstanding performance for the climatic service clash with Navy.

Wild Offense

When the Middies jitterbugged their defense in Dawkins' direction, Anderson ran wild offensively and scored 16 points, aiding and abetting Navy's eventual demise no end.

Caldwell, Carpenter, and Anderson are not the only returnees from last year's Eastern champs, one of whose toughest foes was in inspired Villanova eleven. (The 'Cats succumbed to the Black Knights, after outplaying the deeper Cadets in the first half. The final count was 26-0.)

Don Usry, the "other" end in Army's offensive juggernaut; Steve Waldron, 6-0, 200 pound halfback, who played behind Dawkins; and Don Bonko, second string fullback last year were monogram winners in 1958.

Eighteenth Game in Series

Saturday's game will be the eighteenth in the series which dates back to 1908. Army has won fifteen of the seventeen games, losing only in 1915 and 1951.

The most impressive win was posted in 1944 when the Cadets of the Doc Blanchard-Glenn Davis era pummeled the Wildcats, 83-0. Villanova's most recent win was posted in 1951, when the scandal-ridden Cadets bowed to the Main Liners, 21-7.

32 Chosen For Who's Who

Thirty-two Villanova seniors have been named to the annual National Collegiate Who's Who.

All three of the male undergraduate divisions have representatives among the honored group of Villanovans, who will be pictured in the directory of outstanding college students published each year.

Arts & Sciences Lead

The Arts and Sciences division lead the Who's Who list this year, with 17 students chosen. Eight Engineers were selected, and the Commerce and Finance division and seven representatives.

The 32 men were selected from a group of approximately 80 nominees. The Student Council, the deans of the various divisions, and the moderators of all campus organizations submitted lists of outstanding students to the final selection committee.

Selection Committee

This selection committee was composed of Rev. Joseph Kemme, OSA, vice president of Student Affairs, Rev. Dante Girolami, OSA, dean of Student Activities, Rev. Norbert Whitley, OSA, university Chaplain, Rev. William Farrell, OSA, assistant to the chaplain, Rev. George McLaughlin, OSA, dean of Men, Tom Hoffman, Student Council chairman, and Ray Rafferty, senior class president.

Nominees were required to possess a minimum scholastic average of 2.5, be active in recognized campus activities, and be in "good standing" with university authorities.

First Announcement

The first public announcement of the men selected for this year's Who's Who comes in this issue of the VILLANOVAN. Winners and their accomplishments will be found pictured in the centerfolds.

The selection committee expressed its confidnce that the 32 seniors named to Who's Who represent "Villanova's finest." Hoffman and Rafferty both stated that the winners were "truly examples of the calibre of men that Villanova has to offer."

Belle Masque's First Musical Bows Tonite In Field House

Belle Masque drama society will stage its first musical production, "The Higher You Climb," which opens tonight in the Field House.

"This is quite a revolutionary thing for the club—singing, that is—but musical comedy is a real part of the theatre," said Link Hallowell, president of the society, who has a featured role.

Little Background

"By and large, none of the players has a singing background," he added, "but they have all adapted like professionals to their musical demands."

Performances will be continued through Sunday night, with curtain time set for 8:30 p.m. Tickets, which can be purchased at the box office, are $1 for Villanova students, and $1.50 for general admission. Tickets are now on sale in the Pie Shoppe.

Hallowell and Mr. Richard Duprey, director, are enthusiastic about the newly-discovered voice quality of the thespians.

"Tom McCoy seems to have the best male voice," said Hallowell. "He has that Sinatra ring. And if you must compare Ray Kantra's voice with a professional, I'd say he sounds like Eddie Fisher."

Adequate Voices

The group did conduct voice try-outs, but eventually awarded the roles to the regular cast members, whose voices turned out to be "more than adequate."

The score was written by George Herman, Professor of Theatre at Clarke College, Dubuque, Iowa, and lyrics were provided by Duprey. Sue Arnold, a graduate student of theatre, handled the choreography.

The group has no illusions of competing with Turf 'n Tinsel, the campus musical comedy troupe. "Music, in our production, takes a back seat to acting," said Hallowell. "We shoot more for art."

No Allotment

Belle Masque is also limited by funds, he added. "We make our own working capital, whereas T 'n T receives a budget from the school. Naturally, they can produce a more spectacular affair."

The performance of "The Higher You Climb" will be accompanied by an orchestra composed primarily of Villanova band members, under the direction of Lou Martucci.

Among the numbers to be presented are: "Where is the Single Man to Hide?" (sung by McCoy); "Fugue for Old Dolls;" "I Love Men;" and "The Courage Song."

The presentation is costumed and staged in the sixteenth century style. Its characters are comic representations of standard types. This Commedia del' Arte touch was prevalent in Spain when the play was written.

Jacinto Benavente y Martinez, who wrote the play from which the production was adapted, has been referred to as "the Bernard Shaw of Spain," and has won the Nobel prize for literature in 1922. It is adapted from "Bonds of Interest."

Nasty Types

"The Characters," said Duprey, "are all nasty types." Tom

Retreat Forms For Blackwood Ready Tomorrow

Beginning tomorrow forms will be available for those students who are planning to make weekend retreats at the Pius X Retreat House in Blackwood, N. J.

The scheduled retreats are set for Jan. 29-31 and Feb. 5-7 and the capacity will be fifty students at each weekend.

Forms will be made available in the Student Council Office and the arrangements will be handled entirely by the Religious Affairs Committee in co-operation with the Chaplain's office.

As stated earlier, attendance at a scheduled weekend retreat will fulfill the student's obligation to the university in its retreat attendance requirement.

Expense of the retreat and transportation to the Retreat House, although arranged by the committee, will be carried by the student himself.

Due to the limit of reservations, applications will be taken on a first-come-first-serve basis and should be taken care of before the Thanksgiving holiday.

Student Council Government Week Now In Progress

This week marks the third annual observance of Student Council Week.

Begun in 1957, under the Pat Nicholson-Don Kempf regime, the affair has enjoyed mild success at Villanova.

The purpose of the Week, said Chairman Tom Hoffman, is to stimulate student interest in student government; especially, that at Villanova.

As has been the procedure in the past, the week's activities will be under the directorship of the vice-president of the Student Council. This year Bob DeLisa will head up the affair with the assistance of the Council Treasurer—Bill Vincent, day hop.

Proceedings got officially underway Sunday night on the WVIL show—Digest, with a formal opening of the week by the Student Council officers.

Activities Planned

Yesterday, a Student Government forum was held in the C and F building, with the officers of both this year's and last year's Council conducting the activities.

Tonight, a Student Congress meeting will be held in the East Lounge of Dougherty Hall, at 6:30. The meeting will be an open one with the public invited to attend.

Tomorrow, a movie of the Villanova - Army game will be

Forms Due By Friday

Approximately 200 seniors have not yet turned in their history forms to the BELLE AIR office. Bill Rogers and Al Fisher, co-editors of the senior section emphasize that the deadline for returning these forms is this Friday.

Any form not submitted to the yearbook office on the second floor of Dougherty Hall on or before Friday will not be considered for publication in the 1960 BELLE AIR.

Junior Ring Mass Slated For Saturday In Chapel

Nick Cassetta, general chairman of the Junior Ring Mass and Breakfast Committee, has announced that the day chosen for this affair is Saturday, November 21.

Rev. Robert J. Welsh, OSA moderator of the Junior Class, will celebrate the Mass and bless the rings. The Ring Mass will be held in the University Chapel at 9 a.m.

Immediately following the Mass, breakfast will be served at the Radnor Ballroom of the new Treadway Inn, located on Lancaster Ave. in St. Davids, Pa., just west of Villanova.

Guest Speaker

The Very Reverend John A. Klekotka, OSA, president, will be guest speaker at the breakfast. Cassetta, who is secretary of the Junior Class, added that "it will be an honor and an invaluable experience to have the president of the university as a guest speaker."

"We hope", said Cassetta, "that this event will be well attended, since it is the first activity of the Junior Class as a whole."

Working with Cassetta on the various committees are Jim Strazzella, Mass; Jerry Carlin, Jack McDonnell, and Tony Intrieri, Tickets; Dick Keeley, Butch McNally, and Vince Kirk, Publicity; and Jim Palsir, Breakfast.

Tickets for the breakfast will be $2 and will be sold in the Pie Shoppe and the C&F Cafeteria. They may also be obtained from class officers and the ticket co-chairmen.

West Chester started off in high gear, and scored before the crowd got settled. A host of Teachers broke through and blocked a Villanova punt on the 48 yard line.

Tezak grabbed the ball and scored unmolested. The P.A.T. was blocked, and West Chester led 6-0 (Shades of Sept. 19).

The score remained 6-0 until early in the second quarter, when Richie Richman intercepted a West Chester pass in Villanova territory. Cropke carried the ball to the 47 and then VU was penalized twice, being pushed back to their own 32.

Two plays later Richman opened up his air game and Jack Mount made a circus catch on the 46. A penalty and a five yard run moved the ball to the 36.

At this point Richman threw one of his southpaw strikes to Rettino, who followed his blocking beautifully for the T.D. Richman's run for the extra point failed.

Kittens Take Over

Shortly thereafter the Kittens took over on the West Chester 38, after a fake punt failed to net a first down. On the second down Richman completed a hook pass to Bill Barbaro who lateralled to Cropke.

Cropke scampered down the sidelines for a razzle-dazzle 38 yard TD play. Rettino failed on the run for two points. 12-6.

The Teachers didn't take this object lesson very seriously though, as V.U. scored again on the same hook-lateral play. The 'Cats took over on a West Chester punt and marched to the twelve yard line, but were penalized back to the 34.

With the third and thirty-two situation, Richman again hit Barbaro who pitched out to Larry Glueck (a quarterback converted to half). Glueck ran the remaining thirty two yards for the TD.

The try for the extra point failed. As the halftime whistle blew, Villanova led 18-6 and the loyal Wildcat rooters were

Can 'Cats Contain Caldwell?

By Mike Donahue

It will be a pair of status seekers in the best Vance Packard tradition who will square off against each other on the Michie Field gridiron Saturday at West Point.

Villanova's Wildcats will be going all out to post a prestige win at the expense of Army's Cadets. Army, on the other hand will be anxious to regain some of the prestige they lost last Saturday when the upstart Space Cadets from the Air Force Academy held them to a tie, 13-13.

Two Losses for Cadets

Coach Dale Hall's cadets are not unbeatable as evidenced by their not-too-gaudy 3-2-1 record to date. Granted that Illinois and Penn State, early season conquerors of the Black Knights, and the aforementioned Air Force are much stronger teams than the likes of West Chester, Dayton, and Xavier; nevertheless the concerted offense displayed by the Wildcats against Virginia Tech and Dayton, if "revved up" a little more could make Saturday's tussle an interesting game from a Villanovan's point o fview.

The 'Cats major task anpears to be devising a passable pass defense that will be able to contain the Army air arm.

Pass Defense to be Tested

The Wildcat pass defense will face its stiffest challenge of the season in the person of Joe Caldwell, brilliant Cadet quarterback. Prior to the Air Force Academy game, Army's field general was the second leading passer in the country from a yardage gained point of view. In five games Caldwell's accurate right arm had accounted for 789 yards and six touchdowns. His accuracy percentage, .627, racked up through 64 competitions in 102 attempts, was tops in the nation.

Caldwell's prime target is that most publicized of all college football players, the original Lonesome End, Bill Carpenter. The Army captain has snared 28 passes for 369 yards and two touchdowns.

The Caldwell-Carpenter combination makes Army the number one passing team in the country, averaging over 200 yards gained aerially per game.

Anderson's Injury Hurt

An injury to brilliant Bob Anderson in the Illinois game has put a severe crimp in Army's running game. The Cocoa (Fla.) Comet, a first team All American in his sophomore year, played second fiddle to peerless Pete Dawkins last year. As a result he had to settle for a 2nd team All American berth.

Nevertheless, though he played in Dawkin's shadow, he still managed to lead the Knights offensive attack in both rushing and total yardage. He saved his most outstanding performance for the climatic service clash with Navy.

Wild Offense

When the Middies jitterbugged their defense in Dawkins' direction, Anderson ran wild offensively and scored 16 points, aiding and abetting Navy's eventual demise no end.

Caldwell, Carpenter, and Anderson are not the only returnees from last year's Eastern champs, one of whose toughest foes was in inspired Villanova eleven. (The 'Cats succumbed to the Black Knights, after outplaying the deeper Cadets in the first half. The final count was 26-0.)

Don Usry, the "other" end in Army's offensive juggernaut; Steve Waldron, 6-0, 200 pound halfback, who played behind Dawkins; and Don Bonko, second string fullback last year were monogram winners in 1958.

Eighteenth Game in Series

Saturday's game will be the eighteenth in the series which dates back to 1908. Army has won fifteen of the seventeen games, losing only in 1915 and 1951.

The most impressive win was posted in 1944 when the Cadets of the Doc Blanchard-Glenn Davis era pummeled the Wildcats, 83-0. Villanova's most recent win was posted in 1951, when the scandal-ridden Cadets bowed to the Main Liners, 21-7.

32 Chosen For Who's Who

Thirty-two Villanova seniors have been named to the annual National Collegiate Who's Who.

All three of the male undergraduate divisions have representatives among the honored group of Villanovans, who will be pictured in the directory of outstanding college students published each year.

Arts & Sciences Lead

The Arts and Sciences division lead the Who's Who list this year, with 17 students chosen. Eight Engineers were selected, and the Commerce and Finance division and seven representatives.

The 32 men were selected from a group of approximately 80 nominees. The Student Council, the deans of the various divisions, and the moderators of all campus organizations submitted lists of outstanding students to the final selection committee.

Selection Committee

This selection committee was composed of Rev. Joseph Kemme, OSA, vice president of Student Affairs, Rev. Dante Girolami, OSA, dean of Student Activities, Rev. Norbert Whitley, OSA, university Chaplain, Rev. William Farrell, OSA, assistant to the chaplain, Rev. George McLaughlin, OSA, dean of Men, Tom Hoffman, Student Council chairman, and Ray Rafferty, senior class president.

Nominees were required to possess a minimum scholastic average of 2.5, be active in recognized campus activities, and be in "good standing" with university authorities.

First Announcement

The first public announcement of the men selected for this year's Who's Who comes in this issue of the VILLANOVAN. Winners and their accomplishments will be found pictured in the centerfolds.

The selection committee expressed its confidnce that the 32 seniors named to Who's Who represent "Villanova's finest." Hoffman and Rafferty both stated that the winners were "truly examples of the calibre of men that Villanova has to offer."

Belle Masque's First Musical Bows Tonite In Field House

Belle Masque drama society will stage its first musical production, "The Higher You Climb," which opens tonight in the Field House.

"This is quite a revolutionary thing for the club—singing, that is—but musical comedy is a real part of the theatre," said Link Hallowell, president of the society, who has a featured role.

Little Background

"By and large, none of the players has a singing background," he added, "but they have all adapted like professionals to their musical demands."

Performances will be continued through Sunday night, with curtain time set for 8:30 p.m. Tickets, which can be purchased at the box office, are $1 for Villanova students, and $1.50 for general admission. Tickets are now on sale in the Pie Shoppe.

Hallowell and Mr. Richard Duprey, director, are enthusiastic about the newly-discovered voice quality of the thespians.

"Tom McCoy seems to have the best male voice," said Hallowell. "He has that Sinatra ring. And if you must compare Ray Kantra's voice with a professional, I'd say he sounds like Eddie Fisher."

Adequate Voices

The group did conduct voice try-outs, but eventually awarded the roles to the regular cast members, whose voices turned out to be "more than adequate."

The score was written by George Herman, Professor of Theatre at Clarke College, Dubuque, Iowa, and lyrics were provided by Duprey. Sue Arnold, a graduate student of theatre, handled the choreography.

The group has no illusions of competing with Turf 'n Tinsel, the campus musical comedy troupe. "Music, in our production, takes a back seat to acting," said Hallowell. "We shoot more for art."

No Allotment

Belle Masque is also limited by funds, he added. "We make our own working capital, whereas T 'n T receives a budget from the school. Naturally, they can produce a more spectacular affair."

The performance of "The Higher You Climb" will be accompanied by an orchestra composed primarily of Villanova band members, under the direction of Lou Martucci.

Among the numbers to be presented are: "Where is the Single Man to Hide?" (sung by McCoy); "Fugue for Old Dolls;" "I Love Men;" and "The Courage Song."

The presentation is costumed and staged in the sixteenth century style. Its characters are comic representations of standard types. This Commedia del' Arte touch was prevalent in Spain when the play was written.

Jacinto Benavente y Martinez, who wrote the play from which the production was adapted, has been referred to as "the Bernard Shaw of Spain," and has won the Nobel prize for literature in 1922. It is adapted from "Bonds of Interest."

Nasty Types

"The Characters," said Duprey, "are all nasty types." Tom

Retreat Forms For Blackwood Ready Tomorrow

Beginning tomorrow forms will be available for those students who are planning to make weekend retreats at the Pius X Retreat House in Blackwood, N. J.

The scheduled retreats are set for Jan. 29-31 and Feb. 5-7 and the capacity will be fifty students at each weekend.

Forms will be made available in the Student Council Office and the arrangements will be handled entirely by the Religious Affairs Committee in co-operation with the Chaplain's office.

As stated earlier, attendance at a scheduled weekend retreat will fulfill the student's obligation to the university in its retreat attendance requirement.

Expense of the retreat and transportation to the Retreat House, although arranged by the committee, will be carried by the student himself.

Due to the limit of reservations, applications will be taken on a first-come-first-serve basis and should be taken care of before the Thanksgiving holiday.

Forms Due By Friday

Approximately 200 seniors have not yet turned in their history forms to the BELLE AIR office. Bill Rogers and Al Fisher, co-editors of the senior section emphasize that the deadline for returning these forms is this Friday.

Any form not submitted to the yearbook office on the second floor of Dougherty Hall on or before Friday will not be considered for publication in the 1960 BELLE AIR.

Student Council Government Week Now In Progress

This week marks the third annual observance of Student Council Week.

Begun in 1957, under the Pat Nicholson-Don Kempf regime, the affair has enjoyed mild success at Villanova.

The purpose of the Week, said Chairman Tom Hoffman, is to stimulate student interest in student government; especially, that at Villanova.

As has been the procedure in the past, the week's activities will be under the directorship of the vice-president of the Student Council. This year Bob DeLisa will head up the affair with the assistance of the Council Treasurer—Bill Vincent, day hop.

Proceedings got officially underway Sunday night on the WVIL show—Digest, with a formal opening of the week by the Student Council officers.

Activities Planned

Yesterday, a Student Government forum was held in the C and F building, with the officers of both this year's and last year's Council conducting the activities.

Tonight, a Student Congress meeting will be held in the East Lounge of Dougherty Hall, at 6:30. The meeting will be an open one with the public invited to attend.

Tomorrow, a movie of the Villanova - Army game will be

Junior Ring Mass Slated For Saturday In Chapel

Nick Cassetta, general chairman of the Junior Ring Mass and Breakfast Committee, has announced that the day chosen for this affair is Saturday, November 21.

Rev. Robert J. Welsh, OSA moderator of the Junior Class, will celebrate the Mass and bless the rings. The Ring Mass will be held in the University Chapel at 9 a.m.

Immediately following the Mass, breakfast will be served at the Radnor Ballroom of the new Treadway Inn, located on Lancaster Ave. in St. Davids, Pa., just west of Villanova.

Guest Speaker

The Very Reverend John A. Klekotka, OSA, president, will be guest speaker at the breakfast. Cassetta, who is secretary of the Junior Class, added that "it will be an honor and an invaluable experience to have the president of the university as a guest speaker."

"We hope", said Cassetta, "that this event will be well attended, since it is the first activity of the Junior Class as a whole."

Working with Cassetta on the various committees are Jim Strazzella, Mass; Jerry Carlin, Jack McDonnell, and Tony Intrieri, Tickets; Dick Keeley, Butch McNally, and Vince Kirk, Publicity; and Jim Palsir, Breakfast.

Tickets for the breakfast will be $2 and will be sold in the Pie Shoppe and the C&F Cafeteria. They may also be obtained from class officers and the ticket co-chairmen.

Fred DeMarra, the "Great Imposter," and Melvin Belli, the "King of Torts," at Friday's Law Forum. Belli is currently representing DeMarra in a libel case.

King of Torts Uses De Marra

"Impostor" Surprises Law Forum

The decorum of the second session of Villanova's Law Forum was momentarily upset by the appearance of the audience of Fred DeMarra, the "Great Imposter."

Melvin M. Belli, the forum's speaker, introducted DeMarra to a thoroughly amazed audience in Garey Hall last Friday evening. The "Imposter," who has posed as everything from a surgeon (he actually performed operations)to a trappist monk, has engaged Belli in a libel suit against a prominent writer.

King of Torts

Belli, known as the "King of Torts," spoke on "The Law Is Alive—How About The Lawyers?" His major premise was that, in a given legal case, the determining factor will not be apparent facts, but the amount of research done by the lawvers.

Common law has sufficient precedents to support almost any argument, Belli insisted. He added that whichever lawyer digs deepest to substantiate his arguments will win the case.

Belli, a graduate of the University of California and its law school, is a controversial figure in the field of law. He has collected larger amounts in damage and personal injury suits than any other lawyer in history.

Law Changing

Drawing on his experience from damage and injury suits, Belli commented on the fact that the law is changing in many aspects involving liability. He cited the matter of consumer liability.

Belli stated that there is a trend o flegal opinion toward the principle of "absolute liability," such as applies to injury resulting from bad or inferior food products. In "absolute liability" case, the plaintiff is not required to prove negligence, but only that he has been injured by the faulty product.

Lawyers everwhere will have to adjust to this trend, said Belli. Another trend he noted was one by California jurists, who originated an idea for a Personal Injury Commission.

The proposed Commission would set standard damage rates for, say, the loss of a leg or the blinding of noe eye. Belli, who has earned both fortune and fame by collecting massive damages for his clients, objects to the idea of the Commission.

He insists that the "value" of a personal injury is strictly determined by the circumstances of the individual case, and that the Commission idea is basically unfair in that regard.

A third type of case whish Belli mentioned, and for which he is noted, is the medical malpractice case. He said that he "sympathized with doctors, who must endure difficult training and circumstances,' yet when they injure a patient through malpractice, they must be prepared to pay the consequences.

Belli further related a number of other experiences he has had, among them the fact that Errol Flynn was slated to play Belli in a movie, "The King of Torts."

DeMarra is to be the subject of a movie, "The Great Impostor," starring Tony Curtis. Concluding his "act" at the beginning of Belli's lecture, DeMarra quipped, "I always thought I looked like a chubby Tony Curtis."

Spanish Club To Present "Noche Espanola" Dec. 4

The Spanish Club will celebrate its annual "Noche Espanola," Dec. 4, in the Vasey Hall Auditorium with a literary-musical program.

The program, which was initiated by the late Rev. Lorenzo Lozano, OSA, will consist of two parts.

The first segment will include popular Spanish songs sung by members of the Spanish Club, as well as two solos: Judy Rodriguez of nearby Cabrini College will sing EL CAMINO VERDE and Robert Anthony, a member of the Spanish Club, will sing SORRENTO.

The guest soloist will again be Rev. Policarpo Oroz, ORSA. Instrumental soloists will include John Tedeschi, concert pianist, who will play "Clair de Lune," and Dennis Sheehan, who will play "The Jolly Caballero" on the accordian.

One Act Comedy

The second part of this literary-musical program will consist of a one-act comedy entitled "Esgrima y Amor" ("Fencing and Love"), written by the famous Alvarez Quintero brothers of Spain.

The cast will include five students: Judy Rodriguez and Vesna Mohorovicic from Cabrini College, and three Latin American students from Villanova, Severo Lanza, Temistocles Fernandez, and Alfredo Salazar.

The guest speaker will be the Spanish Counsul in Philadelphia, Dr. Jose Ramon Sobredo, and also in attendance will be several consuls representing such Latin American countries as Ecuador, Mexico, Panama, Venezuela and Colombia.

Supervise Activities

Mr. Vito J. Di Vincenzo, moderator of the Club, and the officers Don Ropain, Severo Lanza, Edward Dowling, Victor Martinez, and Salvator Di Blasio, will supervise the activities of "Noche Espanola."

Moritz To Speak To Accountants

William Coyle, president of the Accounting Society, announced recently that John Moritz, Villanova Placement Director, will discuss the topic: "The Accounting Field; Its Opportunities and Advantages" at their meeting tomorrow in 210 C&F, at 10:30 a.m.

Mr. Moritz will discuss what the firms will be requesting from the prospective employees. After his informal talk, there will be a question and answer session.

Portrette

Tom Hoffman Ubiquitous? Yes.

Tom Hoffman is undoubtedly the man of the hour. In the midst of Student Government Week, with a $3000 budget recently acquired, and with an unprecedented program of extra- and co-curricular activities in the offing, Hoffman is attracting a great deal of attention.

An admitted "late comer" in the field of student activities, Hoffman came to Villanova from Aquinas Institute in Rochester, New York, where he was an editor of the school newspaper.

Tom Hoffman

In activities at Villanova, however, he has been anything but a late comer. In the middle of his freshman year he was elected to the Student Council, where he has remained ever since.

As a sophomore on the Council, he served as chairman of the Student Activities Committee, and secretary of the Spirt Committee. He was also chairman of the Blazer Committee as a soph.

Hoffman was elected to a two-year Council term at the end of his sophomore year. At the beginning of junior year, he was elected vice chairman of the Council. By virtue of this office, he served as chairman of the Student Cabinet and as co-chairman of the Orientation Committee with Bob DeLisa, who was then sophomore class president.

This year, Hoffman became chairman of the Council and president of the student body, and as such, inaugurated what promises to be "Villanova's greatest year for student government."

He quietly set in motion an unprecidented plan—the budget program. Last year and during the summer, the Council's officers had worked out every detail of the program.

Unanimous Approval

When he and his fellow planners felt the time was exactly right Hoffman placed the budget before the Council, where it was unanimously approved and submitted to the Administration. With Administration approval, the budget became a part of student government history.

With the budget, Hoffman plans to do many things. First among these is the already proven series of Student Council

"Great Bunch of Guys"

Hoffman emphasized that the budget and the Council's many other programs "could not have been possible without the help of a great bunch of guys—the members of the Council and other organizations. I've never met any people like them. Come graduation time, I will be sad to leave Villanova."

"Nikita A Social Climber" - Huntley

Chet Huntley, top newscaster for NBC television, branded Nikita Khrushchev a "social climber", at the annual convention of the Associated College Press, held in New York last weekend.

"He's the foremost social climber in the world," said Huntley, addressing a gathering of college journalists from all parts of the country.

Interiority

"Khrushchev has an innate inferiority complex, which was compounded when he visited the United States and saw our wealth," he said.

"He wants to join the most exclusive country club in the world — the free nations with high standards of living."

The VILLANOVAN was represented by four at the convention: Editor Tom Wolf, Sports Editor Jim Murray, columnist Tony Macklin, and format staffer Ford Prime.

The BELLE AIRE sent Editor sent Editor Tom Peretti, Associate Editor Bill Celentano, and undergraduate Editor Bill Boufford.

"Khrushchev has a compeling desire to have his word accepted by the nations of the world," said Huntley. "When his word is apparently disregarded, he takes it as a personal insult."

With Brinkley

Huntley shares a nirhtly newscast with David Brinkley for the National Broadcasting Company. He has been cited for his television coverage of the Puerto Rican juvenile delinquency problem a few months ago.

Chet Huntley

Huntley also expounded on his conception of the college newspaper's vital functions. Explicitly he stated that the college journalist has the "first and formal obligation of telling the truth."

They are further encouraged, he added, to give serious consideration to world and national events. "The college press can fill a major role in formulating student political opinion."

Reprimand

Huntley had sharp words of reprimand for the actions of Charles Van Doren, in the question-answer period that followed his talk. Van Doren has admitted quiz-fixing.

"The American television public was actually "hoodwinked," he asserted. "This is symptomatic of the increasing moral laxity of today, along with the quest for the almighty dollar."

Huntley himself received his start in journalism from editorial work on the newspaper of the University of Montana.

Rev. Joseph Kemme, OSA, vice president of Student Affairs, and Timothy John Finan, winner of the City Line Optimist Club Award.

Handicapped Student Awarded Optimist Citation

Timothy John Finan, a graduate of Overbrook School for the Blind and presently a student at Villanova University, received a special youth award from the Optimist Club of City Line last Tuesday evening.

Presentation of the award was made in observance of Youth Appreciation Week and goes annually to someone who best symbolizes some basic characteristics which are representative of American Youth and serve as an example to others.

Honor Graduate

Finan is an honor graduate of the blind school and is enrolled as a freshman Liberal Arts student here. He continues to maintain the high academic level at Villanova that he did at Overbrook where he finished his five year course in four years.

In addition to scholastic achievements, Finan has won extra - curricular awards. In 1955 he received a citation as "Boy Scout of the Year". He is an excellent violinist and has given public performances in Philadelphia, Boston and elsewhere. He is attending Villanova on an academic scholarship.

German Self-Taught

When the handicapped youth learned that Overbrook was considering enrolling a student from Germany some years ago, he was concerned because the German boy would not be able talk to other students.

Finan, therefore, undertook to teach himself German. Not only did he succeed in his ambition to befriend the foreign youth but developed an interest in the language and has continued to work with it to the point where he speaks German with virtually no accent.

A Popular Student

At Villanova, Tim is a popular student who is thoroughly determined to make the best possible use of both body and mind and invests himself freely and spontaneously in his new academic surroundings.

Life has not been easy for Timothy John Finan but at least his grit and determination have not gone unnoticed. Presentation of the Youth Award was made during dinner at the Tavern in Bala Cynwyd.

Juniors To Fete Johnnies; Plan Annual Charity Ball

The annual Orphan's Weekend sponsored by the Junior Class under the chairmanship of Neil Vaughey, Junior C&F resident, will be held December 5 and Tuesday December 8.

The Charity Ball, ordinarily an integral part of the weekend, will take place a week later than usual on Friday, December 11th.

The date of the dance has been pushed back because on Friday December 4, the basketball team plays Scranton in the Field House.

According to Vaughey the outing will be held on Saturday the 5th, and the party will take place on Tuesday the 8th.

The Weekend Johnnies Benefit, long a traditional Junior class function at Villanova, is held for the benefit of the boys at St. John's Home in Philadelphia.

The proceeds from the dance and the money collected in religion classes during the week prior to the Orphan's Weekend are used for the party.

According to Jerry Carlin, junior Math major, who is co-chairman of the outing along with Harry Wolfington, junior C&F, the only detail remaining to be ironed out is designation of several restaurants to provide luncheon facilities for the Orphans and their escorts.

All of this year's activities will center around the 69th Street area. In the past the Johnnies shopped and lunched in center city and then journeyed out to 69th Street for a movie.

Although holding the outing in 69th Street might not allow one central lunch spot, Carlin felt that the time saved in having everything in one general area would make for less driving.

No Buses—He Hopes

On the subject of transportation, Carlin declared that he hopes that no buses will be needed to transport the Johnnies and their escorts from place to place.

"If we can get enough dayhops to drive, there will be no need for buses," said Carlin.

Wolfington, the outing co-chairman is in charge of the transportation committee whose task it is to provide as many automobiles as are needed.

The caravan will leave from Villanova in time to pick up the Orphans at 49th and Wyalusing Sts. in Philadelphia at 9:30. From there the party will proceed to Gimbels on 69th St.

Neil Vaughey

The general chairman of this year's Orphans' Outing has sent out an urgent plea for cars to transport Johnnies to 69th Street, and for presents for the Orphans' Party.

There the orphans will tour toyland. At that time each Johnny will be presented with a gift by his escort. After lunch at a nearby restaurant (yet to be determined) everyone will be the guests of the 69th St. Theatre for an afternoon matinee.

Maps and itineraries will be distributed befor the weekend. Chairman Vaughey emphasizes that although the outing is sponsored by the Juniors, it is not limited to that group.

He said that in past years all the classes have participated in the event and he expressed hope that this year will be no exception.

Arizin and Roberts

The party on Tuesday the 8th due to its expense, is closed to football players, chairman, and those who have worked on the weekend.

Bob Bohn, Junior Arts, party chairman, announced that tetative plans call for Santa Claus to arrive in a helicopter at the orphanage after which he'll distribute gifts to the tots.

However, as of now, Bohn does not have enough presents to give to the orphans. "I'd appreciate it if anyone who might have contacts with wholesale candy distributors or who might be able to get discount rates on toys would get in touch with me at 315 Sullivan or LA 5-9050.

As for entertainment Bohn said that he has written letters to Robin Roberts and Paul Arizin requesting their presence at the affair.

The Charity Ball to be held on December 11th will feature the music of Lou Denison. This was announced by Chet Buttonow, junior C&F, chairman of the dance.

Villanova Hosts Forum For Local Accountants

Villanova was host to the Seventeenth Annual Accounting Forum sponsored by the Philadelphia Chapter of the Pennsylvania Institute of Certified Public Accountants last Thursday afternoon.

The forum program, held in Vasey Hall, was presented in cooperation with various colleges and universities in the Philadelphia area who are members of the local chapter of P.I.C.P.A.

Rev. Joseph C. Bartley, OSA, dean of the Commerce and Finance division, delivered the invocation and welcomed the delegates.

Douglas G. McArthur, president of the Philadelphia branch of the P.I.C.P.A. presided at the forum.

"Today's Challenge to Accounting" was the topic of the principle address delivered before the assembly.

Carman G. Blough, Director of research for the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants, gave the lecture.

Sophs Hear Lanin

The first class social weekend of the semester commenced last Friday night as the Sophomore Cotillion got underway at 9 p.m.

Howard Lanin's orchestra provided music for "El Baile de Los Amores" (The Dance of Lovers) which continued until 1 a.m. The Coachman Trio played during intermissions.

On Sunday afternoon a Jazz Concert, benefiting the Augustinian Seminary Guild, was held in the Field House. J. J. Johnson and the Ramsey Lewis Trio, both progressive jazz proponents, were featured at the concert.

Who's Who Problem

The greatest tragedy of this year's final selection of Who's Who members is the regrettable number of worthy students who missed the list. Villanova University was somehow alloted only 32 berths in the national selections, and a large number of the students that you might have expected to see chosen were necessarily excluded.

Admittedly, the selection must be somewhat of an arbitrary thing, and deserving students who went unmentioned must find their own satisfaction in their consistent performance

Even though several favorites may have been apparently overlooked, it must be generally agreed that nearly all of the actual selectees do belong in the company of the national honor students which Who's Who recognizes.

Our only complaint can be that, for the size of the university, Villanova should have been allowed a greater number of candidates.

Retain Rogers?

Tuesday evening next, the Villanova football team will be feted at a testimonial banquet. At that time it is rumored that Administration officials will name the 1960 coach.

According to those in the know, the Wildcat coach will be chosen from a list of five men: John McKenna, current VMI mentor; Terry Brennan, former Notre Dame coach; John Sandusky, line coach of the Baltimore Colts; Chuck Klausing, high school coach at Braddock, Pa.; and Joe Rogers, present coach of the Wildcats on an interim basis.

McKenna and Sandusky rate consideration, not only for their coaching feats, but also because they are both Villanova graduates. Klausing's name crops up because of his remrakable record (54 wins in a row) and his expressed opinion that he would be more than willing to try his hand at molding the 'Cats into a winner.

Brennan, the most widely-known of the group, is reported to be the choice of a large bloc of alumni.

This leaves only Rogers. Significantly enough, his name is at the bottom of the list. Apparently, his efforts are being judged on what is considered to be a strictly objective basis, namely, one win in five games.

An official's oversight in the Army game prevented him from effecting one of the season's biggest upsets. At Rutgers last week, his frustrated charges came within six yards of a win, only to have the lack of time pressure them into a crucial fumble.

The team has looked progressively better each week under Roger's direction. From this corner, it seems that the best and only expression of confidence that can be shown in Rogers' demonstrated ability is a new contract. He deserves the chances. M.D.

New York Hotels

The editors of this staff made their annual excursion to the Collegiate Press Conference, this year held in New York City.

They encountered a bit of trouble when applying for hotel reservations at the Hotel Sheraton-Atlantic, formerly the Sheraton-McAlpin, troubles which might be worth repeating. Villanova matric cards were met with a hostility which rather unsettled the editors at first. "Not after last week's Army trip!" said the desk clerk, his lip beginning to quiver.

He swiftly referred the editors to the assistant manager, who in turn referred them to the security officer. The security officer cleared up the problem after a ten minutes of litigation with the desk clerk.

"You can't blame them for being careful," he told the editors. "The hotel had to be remodeled after last weekend. You boys smashed TV sets, ripped out sink fixtures, dropped ash trays down the mail chutes, and stole mattresses out of the hall closets, etc., etc."

After a pledge of civility at the main desk, the editors were finally awarded rooms. Enough said.

Student Council Operations Appear Mysterious, Useless

In answer to "From a Faculty Member".

"False Measure of Manhood"

What is the student-council? I can answer quite honestly after four years of undergraduate life that I do not know. To my knowledge it operates in the same manner as most bodies of ruling men—slightly mysteriously and often uselessly.

The important point in the drive for self-rule is the approach the council has taken which will add "prestige." It is certainly a sign of the times. Creeping Socialism. Men are so indoctrinated in the paying of taxes that we have reached the point where we request them. Why should a student pay a tax?

Liberalism

Let us not confuse the issues by tying the self-rule of council to other complaints. Liberalism does not extend to all Catholic principles. I am happy to have received a "truncated seminary curriculum." I wish I could have always said my student days were "quasi-seminarian." If any complaint is to be leveled at Villanova, it should be that the curriculum is merely "truncated."

There are those who believe that change means progress. There is a university at Salamanca, Spain which still offers an almost medieval curriculum. Its administration refuses to change in order to be "modern." They claim that their curriculum is directed towards the true purpose of education. Can we dispute their word? Have our curriculums brought us more light than the "dark ages"? If they have, where is another St. Francis, St. Dominic, or St. Thomas?

Yeasty Group

The laity is always a pretty "yeasty" mob. They always cry for participation. Let them participate in the manner of laity. Catholic Action does not mean usurption of priestly duties. The true measure of a Catholic man is his mental, as well as, his physical bending of the knee. Manhood is not a commodity we purchase with self-rule. Rather, it comes when we submit to properly designated and justly functioning authority.

Oil Your Guns And Fight, Day Students

Letter to Day-Hops:

In reading the Villanovan of October 14, 1959, I was stunned by the comments of a certain student spotlighted in the article "Campus Camera". This student's opinion of why there is a lack of school spirit is, "one-half of the enrollment is comprised of day-students, who for the most part, lack the interest and spirit of the residents." This is something, you as day-hop should be ashamed of!

This writer, in being fair to the previously mentioned student, must quote, "More interesting activities for the day-hops is a possible solution." This is agreed upon by all. Do you remember two-gun Pete in the old Westerns? He always fired both pistols to be assured of conquering his opposition. The residents are firing, but the day-students are on the other hand, just sitting there rusting. We will add oil to get you in condition with our campaign, then you must climb out of your holster. Together, residents and day-students, we can aim at making Villanova a still greater university.

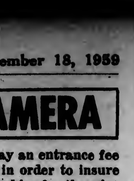
Would you be willing to pay an entrance fee to the intramural department in order to insure proper refs., equipment and trophies for the winning teams in the different intramural activities?

DEFINITELY NOT . . . We pay a $25 Student Activities Fee each year. This should insure us of an adequate Intramural Department with proper refs. and trophies for the winners. To stimulate an even greater interest, I feel that an Intramural City-series Tournament with Penn, La Salle, Temple, and St. Joe's, with the Intramural Department sponsoring the local champs, would go over very big.

Nick Casseta, '61, Political Science



I wouldn't mind paying the fee since I think it would add to the quality of the leagues, induce more students to participate in intramurals and make them more popular. As long as the fee was reasonable I don't think anyone would mind paying it. A good fee might be a dollar for each participant.

Joe Pentony, '60, Arts

I feel that such a fee for better equipment, trophies and referees in the intramural department should not be placed on the student. It is true that there is need for improvement however, this responsibility is that of the administration. When a student enrolls into a university, he expects adequate recreational facilities. If these are lacking, it is not the student's responsibility to provide them.

Andrew Piscatelli, '61, Psyc

Primarily, I believe that a fee, such as has been proposed, would prove only to be an additional burden to the already overtaxed student. Moreover, I believe that the official staff has proven to be adequate for our needs and therefore would not require any modifications or alteration as such. As to the institution of a system of tokens such as trophies, for which the money would also be appropriated from this fee, I believe that this is not a necessity.

William Faccidomo, '61, Psyc

Although it is not a necessity at this time, I believe an intramural fee would be a step forward for the students of Villanova. With this fee officials could be hired to referee the games and thereby clear the now present problem of arguments. The fee could also be used for trophies to be presented to the winners, thus giving teams an even larger incentive than they now have. Taking these benefits into consideration. I would be willing to pay a small intramural fee to participate in the different sports at Villanova.

Belle Masque Traces History To Gay Nineties

By Josephine Morello

"ALL THE WORLD'S a stage, and the people are its players." The role of life is a difficult one for many people to play. Imagine hom much more difficult it is for actors to convincingly portray roles which are part of the lives of others. Yet, every year, the thespians go on attempting to do just that: to project the "larger-than-life" to the audience. Villanova, too, has its dramatic society, which is known as the Belle Masque.

Although Belle Masque was not begun until 1929 ,its predecessors date back almost to the beginning of the school. The Dramatic Club of Villanova College presented a play at the Walnut Street Theatre as early as June, 1896 entitled "More Sinned Than Sinning".

The Dramatics Club went through the years as a small, loosely-organized group. It was not until January, 1927, that the first definite organization of dramatics occured. The club was called the Dual Mask because of the two masks of drama: tragedy and comedy. This club was given its impetus by the success of "Vision," a passion play by Rev. John F. Burns. Father Burns became moderator of Dual Mask, and the outlook was extremely optimistic. When Father's health failed, unfortunately, the club failed too.

Dramatics was not to die so easily, however. Mr. Joseph T. Jonas arrived during the late twenties and took up where Father Burns had been forced to leave off. He originated the debating society known as Book and Gavel in 1928, and when he called for a meeting of students interested in dramatics, he found that the response consisted largely of debaters. The wisest move seemed to be a merger; thus, the Villanova Literary Society was formed.

THIS SOCIETY consisted of two chapters: the debating chapter and the dramatics chapter. The debating division had a name, but a new problem had arisen: what to call the dramatics chapter. It was agreed that "Villanova" should not be repeated, since this was the name of the entire society. Someone suggested "Belle Air," for such was the name of the locality at the time. This thought, coupled with the idea of the Dual Mask, resulted in the present title, Belle Masque.

Book and Gavel now decided to change its name to something more in keeping with the trend set by Belle Masque, and it selected the Greek letters for its initials. Since then, it has been known as Beta Gamma.

Two outstanding members of the Villanova Literary Society at this time were Al Severance, present coach of the Villanova basketball team, and Marty Gill, a former faculty member.

The first play given by Belle Masque was held at St. Thomas Hall, Rosemont, in 1929. It was a variety show known as "Sun Up". A revue in five scenes, "Shakespeare Goes Modern", was given on April 1, 1932, to celebrate the opening of the Villanova Field House.

One of the principal restricting factors was the fact that no females were permitted to participate in any Belle Masque production. Consequently, the men were forced to impersonate females. At no time, however has there ever been any connection between Belle Masque and Turf & Tinsel.

Belle Masque was beginning to achieve a degree of success and recognition, and began to give performances off campus. The organization also had a radio program on radio station WHAT each Wednesday from 8:30 to 9:00 p.m. This arrangement lasted from 1931 until 1933. One-act plays and excerpts from other plays, such as two Belle Masque standards, "Macbeth" and "Richelieu", were given. The actors received a great deal of experience from this venture.

BILL ROURKE WAS the first dramatics major at Villanova. Since he entered the college before such a course was offered, Father Griffith, who was then college president, and Mr. Jonas worked out a special program for him. He never finished his schooling here, for in his third year he was accepted by the American Academy in New York on Mr. Jonas' recommendation. Under the stage name of Hayden Rourke, he played opposite Lucille Ball in one of her early Broadway successes. During World War II, he toured with the Army's European Company which entertained our troops overseas. Later, he played opposite Ancouria in "White Cargo," a show which he also produced and directed. More recently, he has been working in radio and television.

The Villanova Literary Society was disbanded in 1935. Debating continued in 1941 under Mr. Anthony Frayne, and is now moderated by Mr. Richard McDonough. Father Krupa became the post-war moderator in 1947, and remained in this capacity until the arrival of Mr. Richard A. Duprey in 1956.

As head of the Graduate School Dept. of Theatre, Mr. Duprey is well-qualified for his post of Instructor of Drama and Theatre, and director of Belle Masque. He received his MA in Theatre, and is the regular drama critic of the Catholic Standard & Times.

Mr. Duprey is assisted in his work with Belle Masque by Mr. Bernard Coyne, technical advisor and by the Belle Masque officers: Link Hallowell, president; Mike Keating, treasurer; Connie Donohue, secretary; Jim Lynch, social director; and John McGarry, student council representative.

This year, Belle Masque has begun to write a new page in its history, as it prepares to present its first musical. The comedy, "The Higher You Climb," is an adaption of Jacinto Benavente's "The Bonds of Interest."

The play selection committee will meet after "The Higher You Climb" closes to choose Belle Masque's next production. "The committee would like, if possible, to find a contemporary serious play—something as exciting as possible," stated Mr. Duprey. "We have two or three good scripts in mind, but no definite selection has been made as yet."

Mediocre "Fiorello" Seen Headed For Long Run

By Thomas Quigley

"FIORELLO!" will open in New York this week, with a cast reminiscent of most John Wayne epics. After seeing its run at the Erlanger last week, we concluded that while the large and somewhat obscure company do their best, the result is a stop-and-go process which may or may not eventually "jolt" to success. At this writing, the necessary element of continuity has been avoided.

Tom Bosley appears in the title role as Fiorello H. LaGuardia, former congressman and mayor of New York. Mr. Bosley is perfect as the indefatigable friend to all. Disregarding inappropriate lyrics to his entrance song, Bosley makes LaGuardia believably ambitious.

Ellen Hanley, who gained recognition last season in the ill-fated "First Impressions", is lovely and charming as the first Mrs. LaGuardia. Miss Hanley scores with "Till Tomorrow", a song with highly commercial possibilities; and a ballad, "When Did I Fall In Love?".

Much of the show's burden falls on Pat Stanley, a refreshing gamin who handles herself extremely well. She provides the show with its only consistent bright spot. Her show-stopping "I Love A Cop" is a gem. Miss Stanley is graceful and suitably hoydenish in both of her all-too-brief dance numbers.

Howard DaSilva, perennial bad man of Barton MacLane elorts, gives a creditable performance as Ben Marino, political czar of New York. He and his cronies provide the show with "Politics and Poker", a rousing chorus, and the finale. The group's harmony can best be described as unusual, although some may prefer the word, strained.

The word "strained" brings to mind the performance of one Patricia Wilson, Fiorello's long suffering secretary. Miss Wilson undoubtedly had a major conflict with the orchestra. Few of her lyrics were audible and she managed to stay at least one-half tone below key. Her gestures were remarkably wooden, although she had close competition in the same respect from Bob Holiday as the office clerk. Mr. Holiday plays his role with the abandon of a wet sneaker.

With such an enormous cast, it is almost unthinkable that someone would play a dual role. However, in accord with the rest of the confusion, Del Horstmann gives three brief, but notable characterizations.

COLUMBIA RECORDING star, Eileen Rodgers, scores with "Gentleman Jimmy", a brassy, lively song which should set the show's general tempo. Unfortunately, it is precisely in this respect that the show fails. The uneven scoring detracts from the overall enjoyment of the production.

Peter Genaro, who handled the successful Andy Williams Show during the summer, creates two vibrant dances which almost bring the show to life. The number, "The Name's LaGuardia", is marvelously staged and handsomely costumed, but it is only through Mr. Genaro's expertly executed choreography that the song becomes, in some small way, memorable.

This conglamoration of assorted talent has definite potentiality, but is reduced to secondary importance by the fantastic amount of scenery created by William and Jean Eckart. Two revolving stages are utilized constantly in an effort to maintain the dizzying pace. Due to lack of space, the scenes were not listed in the program, and it is impossible to even venture a rough estimate. Hesitant applause greeted most of the sets, mainly because the audience was not sure what was happening most of the time.

During these many interludes, the orchestra plays various selections, all remindful of the grand old song, "That Old Gang of Mine". With all due respect to composer Jerry Bock, who does admirably well most of the time, Sheldon Harnick's lyrics are constantly superior. In addition to the aforementioned songs, "Till the Bootlegger Comes" and "Home Again" are notable. The reprises were slightly overwhelming, as there were five in all and naturally, a completely new set was needed for each.

All in all, the production was too ambitious an undertaking. LaGuardia's life is interesting and vivid and an excellent book has been provided by Jerome Weidman and George Abbott. The music is uniformly good, but never great. If the two were combined more successfully, a long run could be predicted.

At present, it's as if a Fourth of July festival replete with rockets and color was planned—and the matches were wet!

"HE'S OUR POINTS-AFTER-TOUCHDOWN SPECIALIST. WE GIVE HIM THE BALL AND FLING HIM OVER THE GOAL."

NROTC Exec Featured In Wilder Play, "Our Town"

Commander Claude Frazier, USN, executive officer of the Villanova NROTC unit, will star in the Theatre Department's presentation of Thornton Wilder's "Our Town," to be presented on December 10 to 13.

Master's Degree

Frazier is currently studying for his Master's degree in Theatre in the graduate Drama department. He is the first faculty member ever to star in a dramatic production at Villanova.

The play, recently described as the "finest American play ever written," in a nationally published article by Clifton Fadiman, is currently enjoying popularity as an off-Broadway production, as well as having been the subject of a recent television show starring Art Carney.

Coyne To Direct

Directing for the first time at Villanova will be Mr. Bernard Coyne. Coyne joined the Department of Theatre faculty this summer after graduating from Catholic University with a Master of Fine Arts in Theatre.

The production will take place in Vasey Hall auditorium which is to be adapted with a full stage and lighting set-up to facilitate the three-act production. The production's stage manager is Paul Buckley, theatre student and graduate of Villanova. Featured with Frazier in the cast is Suzanne Bruni, a senior at Rosemont College, who plays the role of Emily, the young heroine Miss Bruni, a former "Miss Atlantic City" and now president of Rosemont's Jest and Gesture, acted in numerous roles at Rosemont, her last being that of the Princess in LUTE SONG.

Newcomer To Stage

For the demanding role of George, a new-comer to the stage, Stanley Moore, sophomore at Villanova, has been cast.

Jeanne Miclot and Sue Arnold, both graduates of Clark College in Dubuque, Iowa, play Mrs. Gibbs and Mrs. Webb, respectively.

Miss Miclot, presently studying in the Department of Theatre, majored in Drama while at Clark, and has a strong theatrical background which includes two years of Summer Stock work at Cripple Creek Playhouse in Cripple Creek, Colorado.

She was also a member of the cast which represented Villanova at the National Catholic Theatre Conference at Notre Dame last August.

Sue Ahrold, also a theatre major while at Clark College, has spent three summers in stock work at Sturbridge, Mass., where she filled a variety of roles. Miss Ahrold, now studying theatre here at Villanova, is also doing the choreography for the present Belle Masque Production.

Dennis Cunningham and Michael Tanney, graduates of LaSalle College and students in Theatre at Villanova, fill the roles of Doc Gibbs and Mr. Webb.

Literary Club Officers Named For This Year

John Dagney, newly elected president of the Literary Club, has announced his fellow officers for this year.

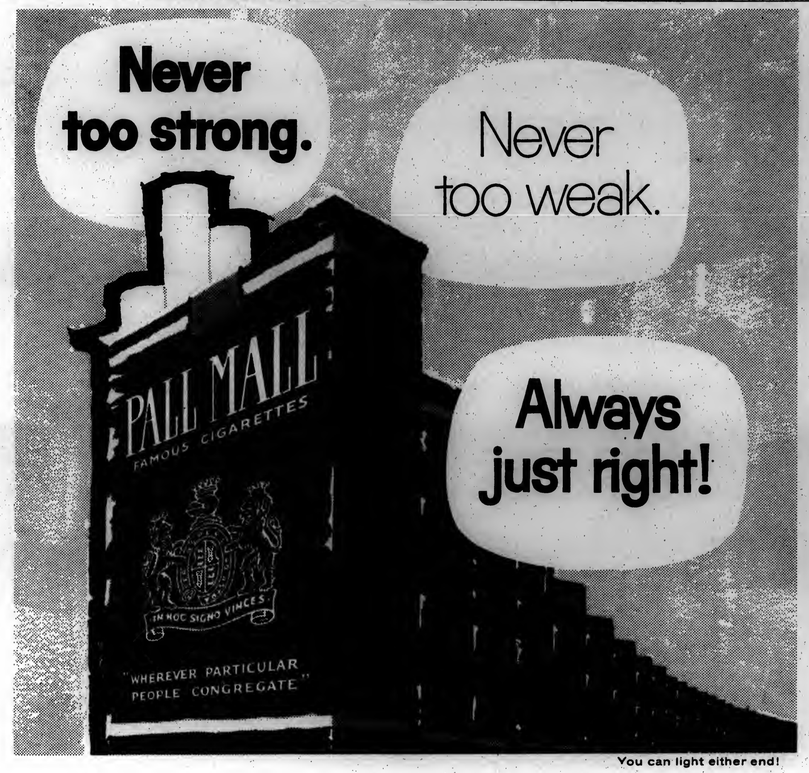
Thomas Quigley has been elected vice-president, secretary-treasurer is George Matey, and John Maurer is program director.

At the Club's first meeting following the election of officers, Dr. Albert H. Buford of the English department spoke on "A Re-evaluation of Sir Walter Scott." Buford's reputation as a speaker attracted a considerable crowd to the lecture.

In commenting on the success of the club so far, Dagney said "Up to now, student response to the Club's speakers has been most gratifying. The continued success of the Club depends on active participation by students."

Dagney further stated that he hopes to have an undergraduate address the Club at each of its meetings. The next meeting will be held on Tuesday, December 1, at 3:30 p.m. in room 203 Vasey Hall.

Chem Seminar Presents Special Lecture Series



The Chemistry Department will present a series of three scientific meetings as part of the Chemistry Seminar, announced Dr. Bernard J. Downey, director of the program.

The first lecture of the series will be delivered this evening at 8 p.m. in room 215 Mendel Hall. Dr. Allan R. Day of the University of Pennsylvania will speak on "The Nature of Unsaturated Carbon to Carbon Linkages."

Tomorrow evening, Dr. Carroll Johnson of the Institute of Cancer Research, Fox Chase, will deliver an address on "X-Ray Studies of the Packing of Polypeptide Chains." The series will conclude on Friday evening with the showing of two films secured through Dr. James Markham.

Tomorrow's meeting is the regular monthly meeting of the Crystallographic Society of Delaware Valley. Both tomorrow's and Friday's meetings will be held in the East Lounge of Dougherty Hall at 8 p.m.

Fabian In The Flesh Better Than Fabe On The Celluloid

tony macklin

Last Wednesday night this writer went to a Fabian dinner. This dinner was not in honor of the society, it was in honor of the possessor of the pompadour—the fabulous one.

Fabian is a six foot, sixteen year old sing—, vocal—, lad. The young rock 'n' roller flew in to Philadelphia from the West Coast for the premiere of his first motion picture, 20th Century-Fox's "Hound Dog Man". He was to appear at a "poptail party" for a select group of high school newspaper editors and 99 winners of radio station WIBG's most kissable lips contest.

Fabulous Fabian

Fog held up "Fabe's" flight and erased a planned parade. When Fabian finally arrived he had gone 48 hours without sleep, but he was still able to completely capture his wide-eyed audience.

After the initial swooning had died down and I had brushed the heel marks off my jacket, Fabian offered to answer any questions that anyone might have.

Perfectly at ease, he spoke thoughtfully, in a well-modulated voice choosing his phrases carefully. He is tall, broad-shouldered, with blond-brownish hair and chameleonic eyes. He flashed an easy smile, and a confident wit.

After the usual high school girl questions this writer ventured to raise his hand and ask, "Is rock 'n' roll garbage?" Ninety-nine plus girls closed in with unlady-like murmurs.

"Is that what you think?" Fabian asked.

"Oh no," I grinned sickly.

"I can't really speak for others, but I like it." Fabian declared.

Ninety-nine plus girls and one rather shaken reporter sighed.

But the reporter was not to be intimidated. He asked "What about the baloney in movie magazines?"

Fabian handled that sordid sortie as deftly as the athlete he wanted to be and appears to be. He made it clear that most of the interviews were personal, although sometimes they were written with just a five year old biography. You know, it wasn't until just now that I realized he didn't answer the question.

Did you ever watch a movie in a riot? At the premier at the Fox Theatre, Dick Clark and Tommy Sands appeared in person with a supporting cast of noise. There was also a band that played like "the pomp" sings. And Fabian did two "numbers" from the movie on stage to records.

The film itself reminded me of a good TV "Lassie" story.

Seriously, Fabian is an impressive young man. He is extremely good-looking and has a great deal of poise and restraint. He is very definitely well-coached but he is also genuinely charming. He can not sing but has gained fame on the merits of his personality.

Singer or not, Fabian possesses that intangible quality known as class.

Now comes the deluge.

Shoving Herd In New York

bill speers

We realize it's a delayed action, but we don't think that the Army weekend should escape without any comment. We have in mind, chiefly, the fiasco that took place the night before the game at the Statler-Hilton, in New York City.

A screaming, shoving mass of humanity crowded the hotel's lobby for more than four hours seeking entrance to the Terrace Room, where it was rumored that some sort of party was going on. Everybody was seeking entrance and nobody seeking exit so we accept this rumor as true. But the fact remains that many out-of-towners were stranded with tickets to this affair because more tickets were sold than could be accommodated.

We were approached personally by at least five people who were attempting to sell their two dollar tickets. And from what we could observe people were falling all over themselves in a panic-stricken attempt to dispose of the tickets on some of the more unwary souls. Finally, about twelve o'clock, lines were formed at the right as the "hosts", obviously saddened, refunded the stranded patrons' money, that is the ones that hung around long enough.

From what we could gather, the whole effort was run by a group on campus, with the able assistance of another group from Fordham University. (They were the fellows in the yellow flowers) Now this wouldn't seem like a bad idea on the surface, after all, situated in New York, Fordham would have all the connections. But apparently, there must have been no control over ticket sales.

We heard from more than one individual, that tickets were being sold in New York high schools by high school students. It was probably here where the account of tickets being sold was lost since the majority of those left with tickets were high school girls.

We never did find out what went on inside the Terrace Room, but I hardly think it topped what went on in the lobby. When the "hosts" saw that it was inevitable that they weren't going to get the lost herd into their party, they sent somebody, who was probably their leader, to a P.A. and he, obviously under fire by the management, blared into the microphone over an hour that a riot squad was going to appear on the scene in "fifteen minutes". And darned if they didn't—not in fifteen minutes, but they appeared.

There's a lesson to be learned here somewhere, but since we understand the same thing happened last year, it's probably not worth looking for.

Student Government Gaining at V.U.

By Bill Speers

STUDENT GOVERNMENT has been a part of Villanova practically since the very beginning of the University itself. This week has been set aside to commemorate the institution of student government at Villanova.

Although the history of "Student Government Week" goes back only two years, its meaning and principles have a long history of student responsibility in working along with the administration in building a better Villanova.

"The Student Council shall be the student governing body of all undergraduate students of Villanova University"; so states Article III, Section II, of the Student Council constitution. And it is this governing body along with the University administration, which shapes the college lives of some 4,000 Villanovans.

The Student Council of Villanova, its official title, is organized and run similar to our own Federal Government. It is a bi-cameral legislative body composed of a Student Senate and a Student Congress.

The Senate is made up of fifteen students. The four Student Council officers, (chairman, co-chairman, secretary and treasurer,) who function also as the Senate officers, the three class presidents, and four seniors, two juniors, and two sophomores, all of whom are elected from the voting members of the Student Council. It is this branch which originally deals with all Council proposals.

A proposal (or motion) is ordinarily made through a Student Council member but any member of the student body may make one and will be processed the same as all other proposals.

THE SENATE ALSO handles all financial matters that pertain to the Student Council, and makes judicial decisions concerning recognized campus organizations who violate the Constitution, its by-laws, or university approved rulings of the Council.

A proposal can be killed in the Senate if it is voted against by a three-fourths majority, however, a Senate member may ask the Student Congress to reconsider the motion at a future meeting. A motion cannot be passed in the Senate but is either referred to a standing committee for implementation or recommended for either passage or defeat in the Congress.

The Student Congress is the final governing body of the Student Council. Besides reviewing the activities and proposals concerning all recognized campus organizations, it is the duty of this body to establish all committees deemed necessary to carry on efficiently, the work of the Council. The Congress is also permitted to declare one free day a year.

All Villanova undergraduate students are entitled to speaking privileges within the Congress, but only members may cast votes or present proposals.

The Congress membership is composed of one day student and one resident from each the freshmen and sophomore classes; and six students from each the junior and senior classes; and the representatives of all campus organizations and the editors of all campus publications. By virtue of their official capacities, the respective presidents of the senior, junior, and sophomore classes, the National Federation of Catholic College Students senior delegate, and the senior class Alumni representative, also serve as Congress representatives.

ALL CLASS representatives are elected to their office by their respective classes. In the case of the senior and junior delegates, one day student and one resident are elected from the three undergraduate schools —Commerce and Finance, Engineering and Arts and Sciences. The Nursing Division has one representative who must be a junior during her term of office.

In the Congress a proposal may be either passed, tabled or defeated. If it is passed it goes on to the administration for approval. When a motion is tabled discussion and voting on it is withheld for a future meeting. If defeated, the proposal dies; but may be brought up again for future consideration if the motion is voted against by its proposer.

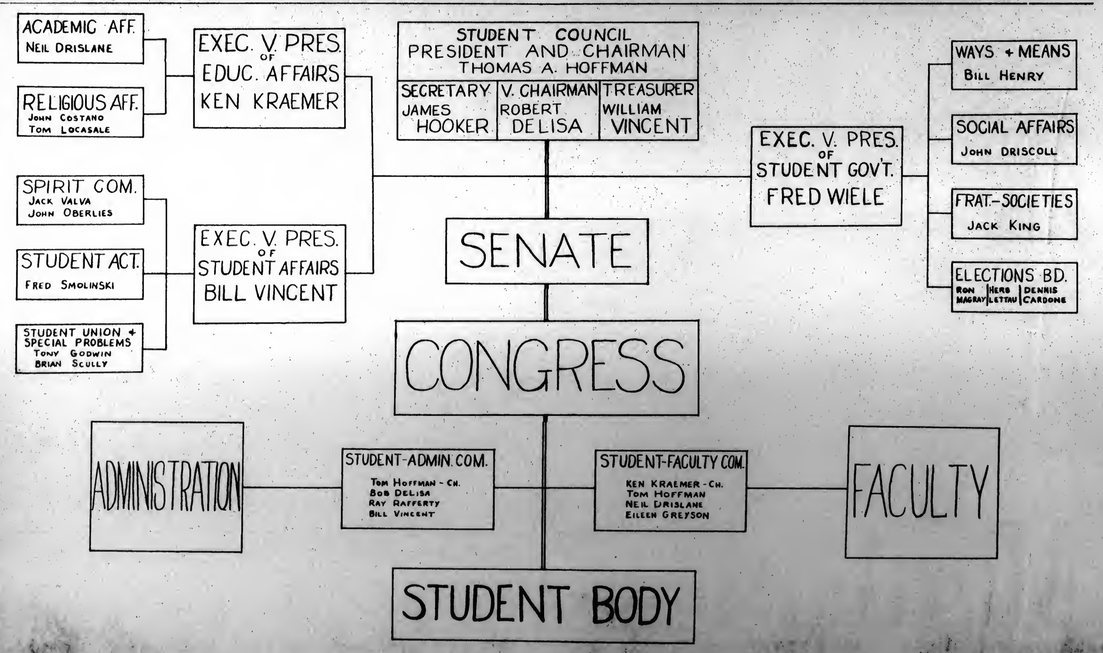
The Dean of Student Activities serves as the moderator of the Student Council. As the diagram below shows, the chairman heads all the Council workings. Directly under him are the other three officers—vice-chairman, secretary, and treasurer.

Branching out from this main official body are what are probably the most important offices below the Chair; they are the executive vice-presidents. Under these three offices are nine standing committees. It is the duty of each of these vice-presidents to see that the committees under his directership carry out their responsibilities efficiently and effectively.

Two committees that are directly answerable to the Student Council are the Student-Administration and the Student-Faculty committees. These two meet regularly once a month with the administration and faculty, respectively, and discuss the proposals and other happenings that have come up in the Council during that past month. It is here where the Student Council performs its most important task, that is, in the words of vice-chairman Bob DeLisa, "to close the void between the university administration and the student body."

ONE BRANCH OF Villanova's Student Government not shown on the diagram below, and many times one of the most forgotten, is the Student Cabinet. Under the chairmanship of the Council vice-chairman, the Cabinet is made up of the other three Council officers, the three executive vice-presidents, and the chairman of the Ways and Means committee. It is the job of the Cabinet to keep a close check on campus organization affairs and to closely study their monthly reports.

Presently, there are about sixty Student Council members. "It was a real 'green' Council in the beginning," says Chairman Tom Hoffman in describing this year's membership, "but it has come along steadily and is now one which Villanova can surely be proud."



For the past two years, the Council has been operating under a new Constitution which was adopted on December 11, 1957, when the almost legendary Pat Nicholson was at the Council helm. This Constitution has permitted the Student Council to take bigger strides forward and to take onto itself responsibilities that befit a university student council.

This year has especially personified the new Council spirit of progress and big thinking. A new $3,000 budget has been granted to the Council, which stands as the first bonafide treasury it has ever had. "With this new treasury, we hope to come of age," states Hoffman, "but it will go right down the drain unless every Villanovan finally realizes that this is not my money, nor the Council's, nor the administration's — but theirs. Their ideas and suggestions on worthwhile ways in which we can spend this money are sorely needed."

To assist the student body in this respect, secretary Jim Hooker had a motion passed which will require each Council representative to hold regular office hours, in hopes that the student can offer his suggestions and opinions to the Council through his representative, more readily.

And that is a general outlook on student government at Villanova. But there is more, much more. "And that is why Student Government Week was established in the first place, explains Bill Vincent, Council treasurer, "to inform the student on just what student government is and how it works, and to stimulate his interest in its affairs. For after all, the affairs of the Student Council are those of the student himself."

Tonight there is a monthly meeting of the Student Council, in the east lounge of Dougherty Hall, at 6:30. The public is invited to attend.

Dr. O'Shea Blames Public For T.V. Quiz Scandal

Concerning the recent disclosure of deceptive television quiz practices, involving such personalities as Charles Van Doren,, Dr. Robert O'Shea of the Philosophy Dept. has definite opinions.

O'Shea is an authority on ethics, a course which he teaches here, and he notes that Van Doren's action has all sorts of ethical ramifications.

"The public was led to believe that what it was viewing was honest and legitimate entertainment," he says. "The public was duped."

Guilt of Public

O'Shea never blamed Van Doren specifically for what was referred to in the popular press as a "tragedy." Rather he lays the guilt on the TV industry and the viewing public at large.

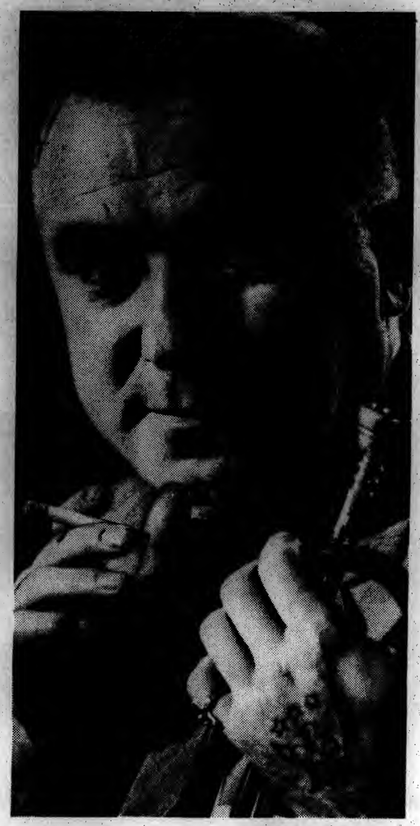
"The viewers never should have allowed themselves to become over-awed at the encyclopedic memory feats of the contestants. The intellectuals have gradually allowed the quantitative and factual to take precedence over the qualitative and integral," he says.

He deplores the fact the contestants had to be walking encyclopedias.

"These events of the past few weeks should stimulate the institutes of higher learning. Does even the Catholic college, with her talk of uniting all knowledge under the directive influence of Christian culture, combat with success the preference of practical worth over speculative understanding?" asks O'Shea.

Never making specific reference to Van Doren personally, O'Shea makes an important distinction between a learned man and an educated man.

Learned Man



"A learned man," he says, "is a man who does not always realize the full implications of his actions, for he doesn't see the difficulties of free intellectual life.

"An educated man, on the other hand, fully understands the satisfaction which is truth, the chief value of the educated man.

"In reference to these contestants, was . . (Van Doren) . . , a learned man or an educated man?"

Although this may seem to be a chastisement, O'Shea feels that it is not for us, as members of an academic community, to "judge these men, but rather judge ourselves and our attitude toward the real meaning of knowledge."

"The whole affair is an unfortunate one," he concludes.

Psych Majors and Dates Hear Local Prof. Lecture

Last Friday evening, the Villanova Society for Psychological Investigation was host for a lecture given by Mr. Joseph Romasco Experimental Psychologist of St. Joseph's College.

Mr. Romasco spoke on "The Problems of Catholic Scholarship, Particularly in Physchology".

Dr. Romasco addressed an audience composed chiefly of Psychological majors and their dates, and guests from the Moore Society of St. Joseph.

He defined Psychology as a Science, and examined the contemporary problem of the sparseness of intellectual achievement among the catholic laity.

Refreshments were served at intermission and the affair was concluded with an open forum on the topic.

Dr. Robert O'Shea

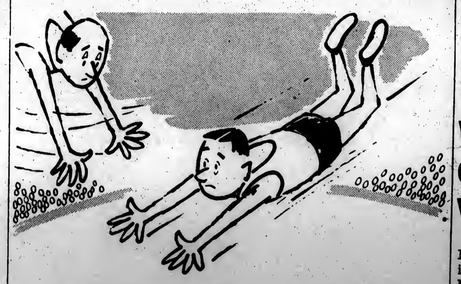
The open forum that followed the lecture arrived at the common consensus that the initiative for improvement is chiefly the responsibility of the laity.

The next lecture in the series will be given on Friday evening November 20th, by Dr. Frank C. J. McGurk of Villanova University, at St. Joseph's College.

Another facet of the club's activity is psychological investigation films. Several of these are due in three weeks.

Villanova Nurse Attends Rally

The Careers in Nursing Committee, Division of Southeastern Pennsylvania sponsored a Future Nurses Rally at Abington Senior High School on Saturday, October 31. Representatives from one, two, three, and four year nursing schools outlined their respective programs in a panel discussion presented to some 800 interested High School students of the Pa. area.



Alice Burlington, a Junior Villanova nursing student, represented the four year Collegiate Program on the panel. She also participated in a parade with nurses from 60 other schools and hospitals displaying their student uniforms.

Indian Professor To Speak Before Opera-Classica

Mr. Venkatarama Krishnan will speak to the Opera-classica Society Thursday night at 7:30 in the East Lounge of Dougherty Hall.

Mr. Krishnan studied at Madras University and at Banaras Hindu University, both in India, and also at Princeton, where he taught until the fall of 1958 when he joined the Electrical Engineering Department at Villanova.

Various aspects of Indian music, its origin, its place in Indian culture, and its relation to world music, will be the topic of the discussion. His lecture will be supplemented with demonstration records of Indian music.

Do you crave excitement in your work? Want challenge and the rewards that go with it? Are you the kind of guy who despises dullness and routine humdrum?

Well, you'll get all the excitement you need by working with a Pennsylvania electric company. There's nothing more thrilling—or rewarding—than helping a company double its output in ten years. And that's just what you'll be doing.

MORAL: If you could fall for a challenging assignment, why not have a chat with the electric company interviewer when he visits the campus? Or write to:

Father Klekotka Delegate To Cooper Union Meeting

Very Rev. John A. Klekotka, OSA, President, was official delegate from the university to the academic convocation held by The Cooper Union for the Advancement of Science and Art in New York on Nov. 2, its 100th anniversary.

More than 300 representatives of colleges, universities, libraries, museums and learned societies throughout the world attended the all-day meeting at the nation's first private, tuition-free undergraduate college of engineering and art which Peter Coper, New York industrialist, founded in 1858. The theme of the convocation was "New Values in Science, Art and Society."

Free Forums

The sessions took place in Cooper Union's historic Great Hall where Lincoln, on February 27, 1860, delivered his famous "Cooper Union Speech," and in the Grand Ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria. The hall is also known for its free Forum lecture series, a part of Cooper Union's century-old adult education program.

Speakers at the convocation included three Nobel Prize winners: Sir John Cockcroft, of the United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority; Dr. Harold C. Urey, of the University of California; and Lester B. Pearson of Canada, former president of the United Nations General Assembly.

Other speakers were Sir Kenneth Clark, chairman of the Arts Council of Great Britain, and Dr. Laurence M. Gould, president of Carleton College.

Faculty Wives Meet

The Villanova Faculty Wives Club held its monthly meeting on Thursday, November 12th in the east lounge of Dougherty Hall.

Dr. Robert S. O'Shea, of the Philosophy Department, was the guest speaker. The topic of his speech was "Music and its Meaning."

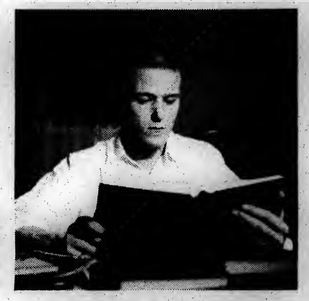
Raymond Quits Spirit Committee For Council

Dave Grenon Publicity co-chairman of the Spirit Committee, announced at a publicity meeting last week that his former co-chairman, Tom Raymond, has resigned to handle publicity for the Student Council.

Raymond's place in the publicity department will be taken by Bernie Senger, sophomore I.A. major. Grenon made the announcement in conjunction with a statement that "The Spirit Committee's goal during the basketball season is winning the Palestra sportsmanship trophy.

Both Grenon and Senger emphasized that the Committee activity throughout the year is based on plans made by the publicity department. They declared their thanks to Committee chairmen Jack Valva and John Oberlies, who put their plans into effect, and to Hugh Leitch and Fred Fagin.

Alumni Club of New York Plans Dance At Roosevelt



The New York Alumni Club has planned its annual dance for the Hotel Roosevelt in New York City on November 27.

Music for the dance, which will begin at 9 p.m. will be provided by the Hotel Roosevelt Orchestra. Tickets may be purchased in room 310 Sheehan Hall any day after 6 p.m. Price of the tickets is $5.00.

Walt France, the club's liason officer, emphasized that all Villanova students are invited to the dance, regardless of whether or not they are from the New York area. France also suggested that tickets be bought in blocks of five, to facilitate sales.

Chem Engineers To Have More Varied Curriculum

Dr. Robert White, Chairman of the Chemical Engineering Department, has announced the inauguration of a "more diversified curriculum for the Chemical Engineering Student".

In line with the recent demands of the field, and increased Graduate School requirements, marked changes have been effected.

The new Senior program provides, said White, an "Engineering Science Division" for those who wish to engage in advanced studies. It also provides an "Engineering Design Division" for the student who will enter industry.

Advanced Sections

Within the Engineering Science Division, the student will find four advanced sections in Physics and Mathematics.

And the Industrially oriented student, in the face of his specialized needs, will be principally exposed to Engineering Design courses.

Grad School Enrollment Up

A 118 percent increase in the Graduate School registration for Fall Semester, 1959-60, over last year's figures, was announced by the Reverend dean of the Graduate School, Rev. Louis A. Rongione, OSA, today.

A total of 760 different students is enrolled in 106 courses taught by 93 professors of whom more than 50 per cent hold the doctorate degree. Total class enrollment is 1483; the students in these classes in the diverse areas of graduate study include 632 departmental majors, 41 specials, and 87 in the N.S.F. program.

The growth of the Graduate School, Father Rongione added, indicates that Villanova is meeting student needs—personal, scholastic, cultural and professional. The Graduate School is attracting greater numbers, many of whom seek work at the doctoral level.

To meet this educational challenge, the Reverend dean, stated, intra-departmental studies have been initiated, and in several departments preparation for doctoral degree programs is underway.

Scholarship Stressed

Emphasis will continue to be upon quality in scholarship and excellence in professional contribution. Father Rongione stressed the maintenance of high standards as the scope of graduate offerings broadens and deepens to meet the demands for trained scholars.

Father Rongione identified the Graduate Departments — Applied Statistics, Biology, Chemical Engineering, Chemistry, Civil Engineering, Classics, Education, English, History and Political Science, Library Science, Mathematics, Modern Languages, Philosophy, Religion, Psychology, Sociology, Theatre, Secondary School Science and the new programs of graduate work in Electrical Engineering and Mechanical Engineering leading to the Master of Science Degree.

New Program

The new programs are conducted at Moorestown, New Jersey, and on campus. The classes are open to Missile and Surface Radar Division employees of the Moorestown Engineering Plant who can satisfy the academic entrance requirements.

LUCKY STRIKE presents

Dear Dr. Frood:

DR. FROOD'S MORAL OF THE MONTH:
Make the most of your college days. (The nights will probably haunt you the rest of your life.)

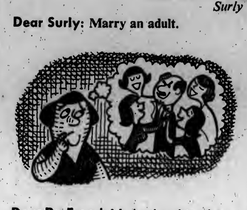
Dear Dr. Frood: Is it all right to study with the TV on?
Distracted

Dear Distracted: Better not. You might miss some of the story.

Dear Dr. Frood: The Dean is trying to force me to go to classes. I think this is unfair because last season I scored 16 touchdowns, intercepted 18 passes and kicked 22 field goals in 23 attempts. What should I do?
Letter Man

Dear Letter Man: I fail to see how going to classes will help. Better practice your kicking.

Dear Dr. Frood: I am a very plain girl and I don't have much personality. All I want is a man who will love me. Why can't I find one?
Sad



Dear Sqd: You're too particular.

Dear Dr. Frood: I want to get married, but I don't like children. What shall I do?
Surly

Dear Surly: Marry an adult.

Dear Dr. Frood: My husband teaches at a girl's college. I know it's silly, but since I'm middle-aged and stout, I am very jealous and worry all the time. What should I do?
Plump, Tired

Dear Plump, Tired: Keep worrying.

Dear Dr. Frood: How can I keep people from borrowing my Luckies?
Pestered

Dear Pestered: Put them in a Brand X pack.

DR. FROOD ON HOW TO BE A BEATNIK

I've drawn up instructions for becoming a Beatnik: Let your hair grow until your hearing is noticeably impaired. When beard covers your tie, discard tie. Hang your shoes and socks in effigy. Sell your sink for scrap. Stock your room with cigarettes—because you won't be allowed on the street any more. (Better make 'em Luckies and enjoy your isolation!)

Pequinot Cites Homecoming Spirit

Mr. George J. Pequignot, Executive Secretary of the Alumni Association, has expressed his desire that the student body be thanked for its "enthusiastic display of spirit" during the Homecoming Events.

He said: "Even though the parade of floats and the band exhibition did not come off, the efforts were not made in vain.

"The underlying flow of spirit neither went unnoticed nor unappreciated," he said.

V.U. Singers At Allentown Hospital

The Villanova Singers gave a concert before the student nurses of Allentown Hospital last night. This was the second concert tour of the Singers during the semester.

Mr. Herbert Fiss, director of the choral group, lead the Singers through various religious, secular, and novelty selections: "Gloria," "O Bone Jesu," "Brothers—Sing On," "Every Day Is Ladies' Day," "Stout-Hearted Men," "Amo Amas," and "Cindy."

Following the concert, a social was held for the nurses, the Singers, and other Villanovans who had travelled to the presentation.

Jim Hooker Moves For Office Hours

At the last Student Council meeting, November 4th, the motion to have the Student Council Dance on February 26 was approved.

During the session the Congress also affirmed Jim Hooker's motion that class representatives be required to hold an office hour once every two weeks, and that a list of these representatives, their hour, and their location, be made up, published in the Villanovan, and posted on all the main bulletin boards on campus.

It was also announced that a special committee has been designated to evaluate a motion by Sheldon Pollock concerning a new Merit Award System.

According to Pollock, a student would receive a point for each recommendation of a merit award. For every three recommendations, the student would be entitled to a merit award.

When the student had progressed to the last semester of his senior year, the number of recommendations would be totaled and he would receive the appropriate number of awards.

"Heard Bullets Flying Overhead"

The recent riots in Panama were of particular interest to at least two Villanova students.

Brian Cox and his sister Kathy live with their parents in the Canal Zone proper, as distinguished from the Republic of Panama.

Their father, Richard, is an executive in the administration of the Canal Zone.

Naturally enough, Brian and Kathy were quite concerned for their family when they heard of the recent disturbances.

Other Violence

According to Brian, these have not been the only displays of violence in the strategically important Central American country.

"There have been at least two other riots in recent years, one in January of this year and one back in May of 1958."

Both Brian and Kathy emphasize the role of one Aquilino Boyd in these riots. To further his political ambitions, Boyd prodded students last January to parade into the Zone from the Republic and plant national flags in various places.

Demonstrations Out of Hand

"The demonstration got out of hand and some shooting did take place, although not in the Zone," said Brian.

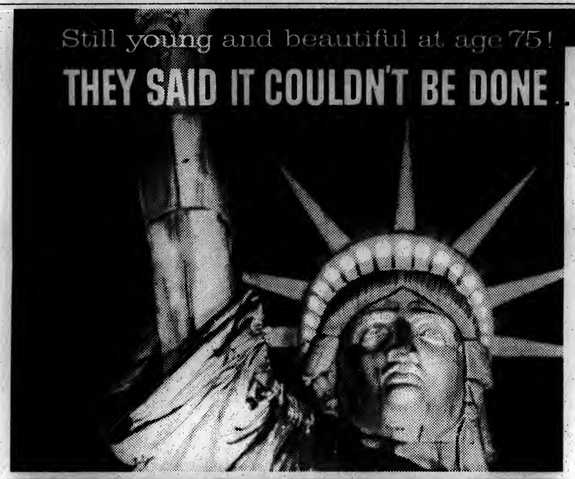
The issue then and now seems to be a manifestation of the usual nationalistic feeling. Yet the presence of the U.S. Zone is generally tolerated by most of the Panamanians. It it only with the politicians and the students that there is antagonism.

"The Panamanians and the U. S. personnel get along very well," Brian emphasized.

Hair Raising

When asked whether they have ever been personally involved in the strife, Brian and Kathy related several incidents, hair-raising in comparision with U. S. events.

"I wasn't shot at," Brian said, "but I could hear the bullets flying overhead." Kathy actually saw two people shot.



Brian and Kathy Cox of the Panama Canal Zone consult news reports of Panama riots.

Brother and sister both feel that the disturbances will subside. Credit must be paid to the Canal Zone governor, William Potter, who put down the riots last week, asserted Brian.

Brian is currently a sophomore majoring in social studies. Kathy is a freshman nurse. Their first opportunity to return home will be next summer.

Seventeen Wins For VU Varsity Debate Club

Villanova's varsity debating teams have managed to post a respectable winning record early in this young debating season by virtue of the fact that they have triumphed in all of their last 17 debates.

Most recent of the wins came in the St. Joseph's Tournament, held last Friday and Saturday, when Joe Liggera, Gene D'Aquili, Joe Remy, and Tom Pfeifer turned in a 6-4 overall record to finish ninth out of twenty-six teams in the contest. Both the negative and affirmative teams dropped their first two debates on Friday, but they snapped back to emerge victorious in all six debates the following day.

Last Thursday evening another Villanova team of Larry Kelly and Frank McCormick on the affirmative and Bill Gazi and Jim Strazella on the negative avenged a season opening loss to the University of Pennsylvania by easily downing a Red and Blue team here on the Villanova campus.

In addition Frank Murtha, Jim Rhodes, Dom Costa, and Mark Quinn represented Villanova at a practice tournament at St. Joe's on November seventh. Rhodes and Murtha made the best showing, winning two and dropping a tie which the judge broke in favor of the other team.

Flynn is a scoundrel servant (Crispin) to Ray Kantra (Leander.) McCoy, as the conceited poet Harlequin, and Tony Provenzano, a braggart soldier, are actually cowards at heart.

An avaricious banker, Pantaloon, is portrayed by Allan Willig, and John Barlas is Polinchinelle, a cutthroat grown wealthy. Hallowell is the pompus judge whose part readily fits in with the scheme.

Carole Miceli plays Sylvia, the beloved of Leander, and Connie Donahue has the role of a faded old woman who is a matchmaker.

Two Swindlers

The story is about two swindlers, Crispin and Leander, who are travelling one step ahead of the police. They come to a city, and Leander poses as a noble to whom Crispin is a servant.

They begin to live on credit, but their whole scheme becomes complicated when Leander falls in love with Sylvia, the daughter of a wealthy man.

As a result, the plot comes tumbling down about the ears of the swindlers, and the balance of the play shows them facing justice.

"The fun of the play is in watching these men try to extricate themselves," concludes Duprey.

Soccer Comes To Villanova; Can Bridge Be Far Behind?

by Hank Schultz

Ed Geisz has announced another first in Villanova intramurals—a soccer league. More than 8 entries have been filed, and there is promise of more. (Any one interested in entering a team should contact room 112 Alumni Hall for information.) The first game is scheduled for Dec. 2, providing the regulation field has been completed by that date. Work has not been started at the Austin Field site, as this field is still being used by the touch football leagues.

The final game in the touch football playoffs now going on will be held Nov. 24. The seven teams presently competing for a place in the finals are: The Dukes, (See, that extra length does make a difference); The Spearchuckers (Watusi, take notice); The Old Men (Life begins at 4:30); The Rebels (Northerners all); P.B.E. (Don't ask me what it means); The Blitz's (The Awful Awfuls still don't know what hit them); and the Cowboys (Always wondered where Dougherty Hall got their meat).

Almost before football is out of the picture, basketball moves in. Intramural basketball starts Dec. 1. Entry blanks have been spread all over campus, and are due in Fri., Nov. 20. Several entries have already been returned, including one from the "Pixies", featuring a 5'5" center, and having no men over 5-8.

Although there is no lack of players and teams, the Intramurals office stresses a great need for officials. A clinic of rules for officials and team managers is to be held in Alumni Gym on Dec. 1, prior to the first game. Anyone interested is asked to contact the office as soon as possible.

For all deadeyes, there will be a foul shooting contest Nov. 23, from 2:30 to 5:30 in Alumni Gym. In this contest, each contestant gets 50 shots, and high score wins.

Also due to start soon is the already organized bridge tournament. Have no fear, men, none of those professionals from Rosemont are eligible. All matches will be held Tuesday evenings at 7:30 in Dougherty Hall. For those interested, practice is held Sunday afternoons at the Tea House.

On Fri., Dec. 14, the annual amateur night will be held. This night has long been a source of great entertainment for all. Several halls have already started plans for this event, and this year's show promises to outshine all previous years. And this show is not rigged!

The winners and scores of the Hexathon held a few weeks ago have been released. The winner was soph Bob Benson, with 550 points, followed by Dick Schnieder, 511, and Cecil Richardson, 509. This year was Benson's second in competition, having finished third in his Freshman year.

Also released were the scores for the Nick Basca Memorial Awards. In first place was Simpson Hall, with their "Genie Comes to Villanova" rating 24 out of 25 possible points. Sullivan's "On Land and On Sea" rated 23 points, and Austin's version of "Carry them Back to Old Virginia" scored 22. Austin declared themselves winners on a technicality. It seems that the nurses won 12 points for their "Gobbler in the Pot", giving Austin Hall a total of 34. However, they were ruled down, and the trophy went to Simpson.

A bowling tournament is already underway, with 26 teams competing. All matches are rolled at the Rosemont Bowling Lanes on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights. Last year's championship team, Boss Choice, has entered, and promises to repeat as leaders.

Within a few weeks, the Department hopes to release entry blanks for checkers and chess. The Intramural department will furnish sets for these matches, which will be held at Dougherty Hall, on soon to be announced nights.

What's In A Name?

By Tom Troy

"What's in a name? That which we call a rose
By any other name would smell as sweet."

The old Bard was a pretty keen student of human nature and rarely blundered when he spoke on anything, be it psychology, shipping, ghosts or what have you, but when Billy put these words in Julie Capulet's mouth, he really goofed.

What's in a name? Why, everything! There have been all kinds of theories of history posited, from Macauley's hero to Turner's frontier to Henry Adam's dynamic. I herewith posit the NAME theory.

This theory maintains that, considering all the other aspects (i.e. physical, intellectual, psychological, etc.) of people being equal, those who have a name which is considerably unique will, almost of necessity, dominate.

The name theory is particularly applicable to sports. As a matter of fact, using the sports world as a laboratory, I have virtually proven the thesis.

Talent + Name = Greatness

Observe, if you will: can anybody seriously doubt that one man named Paige Cothren would not be a better field goal kicker than another with the ordinary tag of Bob Walston?

Quarterbacks come and go, but people with monickers like Yelberton Alberton Tittle, Tobin Rote, and Norman Van Brocklin stay for years.

Since the war, Northwestern University had been the doormat of the Big Ten until they stopped fooling around with coaches named Joe Smith or Bill Jones and hired one called Ara Parseghian.

Iowa University had nothing until they brought Forest to that campus. He immediately obtained noteworthies like Randolph Duncan and Olen Treadway. Olen Treadway—that might be the most fabulous monicker ever recorded.

Notre Dame has contributed much source material for establishing the validity of the theory. The latest asset is Montgomery Stickles, he of the big foot.

Every Sport Contributes

Football definitely produces the largest number of unique handles. Besides the above, we have Theron Sapp, Dale Hackbart, Wahoo McDaniel, Kyle Rote, Doak Walker, Erwin Rommel, Milton Plum, Linden Crow, Lamar Lundy, et al, et al.

But every sport contributes its share. Swimming has Lance Larson, Murray Rose, Carin Cone, Chris von Saltza, Dawn Fraser. The first four of these won National A.A.U. titles in 1958; Miss Fraser is 100 meter world champ.

I don't want to get too carried away, but how 'bout Hamilton Richardson, Ashley Cooper, Gardnar Mulloy, Neale Frazer, Basil Ince, Ira Davis, Klaus Fuchs, Joel Landau, Crawford Kennedy, Ira Murchison, Vladimir Kuts, Emil Zatopek? Oh, brother!

For anyone who questions, doubts, or has reservations, I would like to recommend a book, The Influence of Name Power on History, co-authored by Samoth Yort, Euthanasia Agincourt, and Charles Van Doren. Cheap.

Dell Basketball

The preseason basketball publications are beginning to appear on newstands. Thus far, I've seen two: one simply entitled BASKETBALL, the other DELL SPORTS: BASKETBALL.

The first is nothing at all. A lot of pictures, few comments, a very predictable "All-American" team.

The Dell Publications magazine is much better, although it too has faults, mainly because it was compiled last spring.

Villanova is picked to be among the top 20 teams this year (18th, to be exact), but the prediction is based on spurious information.

The starting team in Dell is composed of Jim Huggard, George Raveling, John Driscoll, Hubie White, and Jim Kenny. Too bad it's impossible.

In a comparable summary, the editors state: "Balanced scoring, good rebounding and a great soph in White at Forward."

St. Joe's Best In East

There is a rather unusual All-American first team selected in Dell. Unusual in that besides the "surelets"—Jerry West, Oscar Robertson, Tony Jackson, Darrell Imhoff—the editors nominate a candidate who has never played in a varsity game—Jerry Lucas of Ohio State.

Lucas of course, is rather well-known nationally despite his sophomore status. He received over 150 scholarship offers when he graduated from high school.

Dell selects Cincinnati as the number one team in the nation. St. Joseph's is picked as best in the East and number four in the country.

Brannau Cites Teamwork, Spirit Displayed By Frosh

Dan Grove

When coach Bill Brannau started his first year as freshman football coach at Villanova he has a three-fold job: to indoctrinate the team with the system they would use while on the varsity; to keep the flame of the spirit, that is typical of college freshmen, burning; and to make a unit out of a group of athletes, who had never played together before.

Approximately thirty-six men reported for the first week of practice forty less than had promised to turn out. Out of these 36 men Brannau, assisted by Ed Michaels Jr., turned out a team. True, they lost two of their three games but who will remember their record when they are seniors.

Three Wildcat players are seen completing their arduous trek against LaSalle. Angelo Sivieri (top) finished second in race. Lanie Huglemeyer (bottom foreground) and Hank Neill finished 7th.

The freshmen were a success because they did what was their job. They gradually learned the system and had it down pat by their closing game. They found out that a team effort was needed to win games, when they encountered the Army Plebes. In that fray the Kittens lead in almost every department of statistics, (including fumbling) and lost 27-6. They used this lesson as their stepping stone to unity. In their second game they met a giant Bullis Prep team lead by a gutty little quarterback, and were defeated again 23-6. This time the team learned that the breaks can hurt any club. In their final game against West Chester the Frosh jelled as a team. Instead of zigging when they should be zagging, they zagged right. The final score was 38-13, but it could have been much worse .

Team Had Spirit

The spirit that was mentioned before was great. They played hard every minute. Brannau, commented that, "These boys had a wonderful attitude all year. The first day of practice I asked Jack Mount, who was originally a quarterback, if he would be interested in playing end. Mount replied, 'Coach if you need an end I'll try it'. Try he did, he terrorized every backfield that faced the Frosh. He continually dropped opposing quarterbacks for losses." This spirit typified the whole team, in a year that spirit was hard to come by.

Besides the three things before mentioned, the real purpose of the freshman team is to be ready for the varsity come the sophomore year. Certainly this year's team will help fill up the gaps in the ranks, left by graduation: a group of hard charging backs like, Jim Kroupke, Lou Merenda, Dick Burton, and Jim Thomas three fine quarterbacks in Richie Richman, Larry Glick, and Ted Aceto; ends like Mount, Bill Barbarro and Joe De Lane and interior lineman like Jim Grady, Arnie Buben, and Al Callgaris. These frosh and others should give the varsity a battle for their jobs.

A Future Here

Before finishing the eulogy of the Freshmen of '59, and dreaming of things to come, there is another item that should be brought out. Another duty of the freshman team is to set up offensive, and defensive patterns used by the varsity's opponents from week to week. These patterns are usually different, and are an extra chore for them to do. They used Army's plays so effectively that varsity was ready for everything that the Kaydets used. Even though there are no more freshman games this year, they are still assisting the varsity in preparing, a very thankless job.

In two short months thirty freshmen became a team, built up a spirit, aided the varsity, and in general became an asset to Villanova's football program. Coach Brannau summed the hectic days of practice, of defeat, and finally the joy of winning, when he said, "These men found themselves against West Chester. I was proud of them and I wish them the best of luck for the rest of their stay at Villanova University."

Wildcat Harriers Lose To Strong LaSalle Team

by John Duffy

The La Salle College Cross Country Team ran the Wildcats right out of their lair, last Wednesday afternoon. The Explorers ran as if they were hurrying to catch a train. Pete Walheim, a senior from La Salle High kept his unbeaten record intact as he swept to victory in the time of 26:20.5.

Our own Angelo Sivieri, a sophomore, from West Catholic was second in 28:13.5, 5.5 seconds ahead of Pete Walsh, a La Salle soph from Saint Thomas More, who was a close third.

Outside of Sivieri's good showing, La Salle completely outran the 'Cats as the 19-38 score indicates. Jim Sumner, Tom Lynaugh, and Dick Flint, all of La Salle were fourth, fifth and sixth respectively. All ran the course under 29 minutes.

Huglemeyer 7th

For the Wildcats Lance Huglemeyer, a junior from Sayville, N. Y., was seventh, and Henry Neill, was eighth. In 10th place was Jon Dante, a soph from Union, New Jersey. Gerald Hanket, a sophomore from New York City, and Tim McNamar, a junior from Tulsa, Oklahoma were next in that order. All did the course in less than a half hour.

Nick De Angelis, the ex-Bonner High ace was the last to place in the large field of 25 The junior from Upper Darby was 15th in 30:24. John Mannion, a soph from Malvern Prep just missed placing. John ran in the time of 30:24.

The main difference between the respective teams was that the La Salle squad consisted mostly of seniors, while not a single senior wore the Blue and White of Villanova. This was La Salle's fourth successive triumph in as many outings. Villanova has not come out on top in three engagements. But as they said in Brooklyn, "Wait until next year."

Through The Hoop

On The Way Up

by Mike Donahue

The little guy pounded the ball once, twice, three times, moving sideways as he dribbled. He barked a number, a set play developed, and a defender was "picked." A swift figure flashed across the court, took the pass from the little guy, dribbled once, stopped dead and in the same motion jumped to a point just shy of the stratosphere and released his shot. It went on a line like a trolley wire down (!!) toward the basket and cut the cords cleanly.

"Nice one, Hubie," somebody yelled at the leaper.

"Good feed, Hug", the coach complimented the little guy.

Scene: Field House

The scene was basketball practice in the Field House one day not long ago and the dramitis personage were two key figures in Villanova's 1959-60 basketball plans, Hubie White and Jim Huggard.

"Get up, Tweedy, get up," barked coach Al Severance at the red headed giant who had just been outrebounded by a player several inches shorter than the big guy's six feet eight inches.

"You were out of position," Severance explained to John Driscoll, the Wildcat's 'big man'.

Tough Tap-In

At this point White took another jumpshot. It spun in around and out of the hoop, but another spring-legged high jumper leaped above the basket and tapped White's errant shot down through the hoop.

"Atta baby, George, way to tap", burst an ebullient spectator from the balcony. George Raveling, 6-6 Wildcat captain har a smile on his face as he cantered down to his defensive position.

In this brief flurry of action an onlooker could get a pretty good dope sheet on the Villanova basketball team

If coach Al Severance's 24th season at Villanova is to match or surpass his 23rd, he'll be able to point to White, Huggard,, Driscoll, and Raveling as the reasons for success.

White is the sophomore sensation who some experts believe has the potential to become the best player to don a Blue White uniform since Paul Arazin hung up Number "11" eight years ago.

Hubie Another Sihugo?

A glance at Hubie in action prove these to be no idle words. As a 6-3 leaper he reminds you of Sihugo Green, Duquesne great of a few years back and now a member of the pro St. Louis Hawks. He's as picturesque a rebounder as there is in the game today, Wilt Chamberlain and Bill Russell notwithstanding. When he leaps to get off his jumper and his feet are somewhere between his defender's chest and belt . . . well, you have to see it to believe it.

Huggard, a 5-10 junior is the 26 year old backcourt ace whose task it will be to keep the Wildcat offense on the move. Hug handled the quarterback spot as a freshman but relinquished the "bring-it-up" job to Jim Kenny last year. With Kenny a notable absentee from the squad because of scholastic difficulties, the job is once again Huggard's. Judging from the practice scrimmagges the change suits the West Catholic grad fine. He seems to get a bigger charge out of getting an assist on a White basket than popping in one of his own shots, be it a two hand set from way out, or a jump shot from the vicinity of the key.

Raveling, a 6-6 senior is expected to carry the major brunt of the rebounding although White should be able to help him out. He's 16.2 caroms per game average last year put him among the leaders in rebounding and barring injury George should be good for that many again. Add to his retrieving ability a competitive spirit that is infectious and a constant hustle—hustle—hustle approach to the game and it's not hard to see why Raveling is the Wildcat captain.

Driscoll: An Enigma

The enigma on the team is Tweedy Driscoll. At 6-8 he gets his share of rebounds, and plays a respectable scoring and defensive game. A pretty versatile man is Tweedy. Only one catch. Tweedy Driscoll has that not uncommon basketball malady, personal fouliitis. An able defender with a good sense of timing (he blocked four shots early in the St. Joseph's game last year) Tweedy has the tendency to commit unnecessary fouls. If he can correct this glaring defensive fault there's no telling how far the Wildcats can climb up the basketball ladder.

In order for the 'Cats to duplicate or better their 18-7 log of a year ago White will have to live up to his advance notices, Huggard will have to regain his freshman form to offset the loss of Kenny; Raveling will have to be a virtual vacuum cleaner off the boards, and Driscoll will have to cut down on his propcensity to foul.

Also needed will be consistent play on the part of the fifth man in the lineup. At this writing, junior Dick Kaminski seems to be the man whose task it will be to replace Jim Kenny. Kaminski, a 6-2 leaper, first drew attention to his play when he fired in 16 points to pace the Main Liners in their win over St. Francis last February.

Kaminski's chief opposition would appear to be 6-1 Joe Zawacki, transfer from St. Louis University who played his high school ball in the city at North Catholic.

Bench strength will also be a factor. First line subs will include 6-6 Joe Walsh, 6-3 Jim McMonagle and 6-3 Bill Penney, sophomores; Dick LeFevre, 6-1, Tom Samuelewicz, 6-5, Dave Severance, 6-4, and Don McGinley, 6-1, all juniors.

The first three games on the docket are Princefon, away on December 2, Scranton in the Field House on December 4, and Gettysburg in the land of Charley Weaver on December 7. No West Virginias they, but all stumbling blocks on what will probably be a rocky road to recognitionville.

Army and Rutgers Stymie Wildcats

'Cats Lineman Clears The Way

Joe Luzzi (65) Wildcat guard prepare to take a Rutger lineman out of play. Bill Craig (76) moves in from distance and Sam Gruneisen (88) watches Wildcat back being stopped after a short gain.

For the past two Saturdays Villanova football fans have seen an underdog Wildcat team "almost" pull an upset.

On Saturday, Nov. 7, they lost to highly touted Army 14-0, before 21,000 fans at Michie Stadium. And, on Saturday Nov. 14, they dropped a 12-6 thriller to Rutgers University before a sellout crowd of 14,500.

In last Saturdays game the 'Cats were completely baffled by the Rutgers defense in the first half. They held the ball for only 15 plays as compared to the Scarlets 46 plays and two touchdowns.

In the first quarter Rutgers took over on their 26 and in 12 plays churned up ground yardage to the Villanova 26. From here Sam Mundie chucked a T.D. pass into the corner which nestled into the diving arms of Dick Peneek. The P.A.T. was no good when Munder fumbled the pass from center. In the second period Bill Wolf a halfback capped a 66 yard advance by shooting around end for 3 yards and Rutgers second score. His pass for the P.A.T. was blocked.

Second Half Team

In the second half the Villanova football team began to play football. They swelled their meager 2 first downs in the first half to 15 by the end of the game.

On defense the 'Cats were outstanding in the second half holding Rutgers scoreless. Villanova moved up and down the field but was able to score just one time in the third quarter.

With about five minutes remaining Leon Horn charged from one yard out for the 'Cats lone tally. This touchdown was set up by a short punt which the 'Cats took on the Rutgers 25.

Three for the Money

Villanova had three more chances to score — Paul Tomczyk's interception deep in Scarlet territory — a 59 yard drive halted on the three — the final pass barrage which carried the 'Cats to the six yard line in the final seconds of the game.

With about two minutes remaining soph quarterback, Nick Langone went to the air. He rifled a 36 yard shot to end Ron Meyers and then pigged 23 more to Frank Fuca. Again, Meyers was the target with a pretty 15 yard grab.

And that's all she wrote — with Langone back to throw from the six a swarm of Rugters lineman swallowed him, the ball, the team, and the ballgame.

At the U. S. Military Academy two weeks ago the 'Cats again were close to a big upset but could only take home a moral victory.

Army Stand Shy

Army started off like they were going to take the 'Cats into camp as they marched down the field early in the first period. After this the game was marked by great defense plays by both teams.

Villanova's lineman refused to believe they were 35 point underdogs and spent the cold, rainy, afternoon in the Army backfield.

The Villanova backs contained Army's passing and outside attack. Halfback John Daniels came as close as you can get to interrupting two Army passes during the first half.

Army scored at the start of the fourth quarter on a fluke pass play which was marked by an illegal manuever downfield for the Cadets. Instead of the penalty they got the T. D.

Villanova's best game of the season by far—to error human—35 points and refuses take note.

Cats End Season Saturday C. J. Burke Trophy At Stake

And then there was one. The Wildcats have only one more chance to nab victory number two and that's at Detroit Saturday against the Titans.

Last Saturday's action saw the Titans defat Western Michigan in the snow 14-0 while the 'Cats just missed pulling out a cliffhanger win over the Scarlet Knights of Rutgers in the rain.

The week prior to the Western Michigan game the Titans crushed Dayton, 33-14. They did so by piling up a 27-0 halftime bulge and then withstanding a second half surge, by the Flyers, very similar to the rally that almost deprived the 'Cats of their lone win of the season several weks ago.

Coach Jim Miller, a newcomer to the Detroit scene this year, was fortunate in having three All-Americans to serve as a nucleus for his squad. Bruce Maher, halfback; John Dingens, tackle; and Dick Kennedy, guard; were named to the mythical team in 1958.

Dingens, a 6-3, 225 pounder is big and has good mobility for a man his size. The Chicago Bears thought enough of him last year to draft him for 1960 delivery.

Unanimous Selection On All-Opponent Team

Kennedy is a 5-9, 197 pound "hard-nosed" smasher whose forte is defense. Jim Grazione, Wildcat quarterback in 1958, said of Kennedy, "He plays as if he doesn't have a friend in the world." The squat guard was a unanimous selection on Villanova's All-Opponent team last year. Only one other player was grudgingly accorded such a distinction. That was Army's Mr. Everything, Pete Dawkins. In both his sophomore and junior years Kennedy made honorable mention All-American.

Maher is probably remembered by Villanovans more readily than the two linemen. It was the stocky (5-11,187) speedster who was a thorn in the Wildcats' sides last year when the 'Cats eked out a 7-0 win here. Endowed with a pair of piston-like legs, Maher is a quick starter and a great breakaway runner. If he happens to get past the 'Cat secondary it's curtains, since none of Joe Rogers' backs can match his speed.

Cyril Burke Trophy at Stake

As has been the custom since 1953 the Cyril J. Burke trophy is at stake in this the twenty-seventh game in the series. The trophy was established in honor of Cyril J. Burke, graduate of Villanova's class of 1917, who did so much to further the cause of Villanova athletics in the Detroit area. He died in 1956 at his home in Crosse Pointe, Michigan. The trophy in his name was donated by his sons, Thomas, John and Michael who currently are distributors of construction equipment in Detroit.

A Remark In Passing

Saturday's game might well be Joe Rogers' last at the helm of the Wildcats. Despite the 'Cats excellent showing against Army, the names of possible successors continue to be bandied about. Names most frequently mentioned are John McKenna, Villanova alumnus now coaching at VMI; John Sandusky, another alumnus, who went on to pro fame after establishing himself as one of the all time great Wildcat linemen and who is now an assistant coach with the Baltimore Colts; and Terry Brennan, late of Notre Dame, who is reported to be the fair-haired boy with a large bloc of alumni.

High School Coach Being Considered

The latest man to throw his hat in the ring is 34 year old Chuck Klausing, a high school coach extraordinaire. His record is comparable only to Paul Brown's fantastic achievements at Massilon, Ohio during the Second World War. Klausing's Braddock (Pa.) Teams have won 54 consecutive games.

However, Klausing's great record, McKenna's local appeal, Sandusky's pro experience and Brennan's popularity notwithstanding, it would seem on the basis of the last five games that the Administration could do a lot worse than retaining Joe Rogers as football coach for the 1960 season.

Noche Espanola Program Slated For Friday Night

"Esgrima y Amor," a one-act farce about love, fencing, and confusion, will be the featured presentation at the annual Noche Espanola, to be presented in Vasey Hall Auditorium on Friday.

Mr. Vito DiVincenzo, Spanish Club moderator, explains that the "Spanish Night" presentation concerns a father's confusion when he mistakes his daughter's suitor for a fencing student.

Spanish Authors

The playlet, written by the Alvarez Quintero brothers of Spain, stars Judy Rodriguez as the daughter Obdulia and Severo Lanza as the suitor Federico. Temisocles Fernandez stars as Don Amadeo, the father; Prudencia the maid is played by Vesna Mohorovicic and Alfredo Salazar is Salvador the fencing student.

Fernandez, Lanza, and Salazar are students at Villanova; Miss Rodriguez and Miss Mohorovicic attend Cabrini College.

Prior to the play, members of the Spanish Clubs of Villanova and Cabrini will present musical performances. Judy Rodriguez will sing "Camino Verde," Robert Anthony will sing "Sorrento," and the guest soloist, Rev. Policarpo Oroz, O.S.A., will sing "La Dolorosa."

Instrumental Soloists

Instrumental soloists are Irma Torquati of Rutgers University at the piano, playing "Danza del Fuego," and Dennis Sheehan playing "Espana Cani" on the accordion.

Dr. Jose Ramon Sobredo, Spanish Consul in Philadelpia, will be guest speaker. The consuls of various other Spanish-speaking countries will also be in attendance.

DiVincenzo, in commenting on Noche Espanola, declared that "special thanks are due to Ed Dowling and Russ Dodge, the decorations chairmen, to Sal DiBlasio, refreshments chairman, and to everyone who has worked on the program."

Guests Will Attend

Spanish Club president Don Ropain declared that, in addition to all interested Villanovans, guests would attend from Rosemont, Immaculata, Chestnut Hill, and Cabrini Colleges, and from Malvern Prep, Valley Forge Military Academy, and the Notre Dame High School in Moylan.

DiVincenzo also stated that on December 3 at 10:30 a.m., Dr. Francis Manno of the History department would speak to the Spanish Club on his recent trip to Spain. This address will take place in room 204 C&F.

Basketball Issue

The VILLANOVAN this week presents its first special sports supplement. a Basketball Preview for 1959-60. Contained therein are thumbnail sketches of opposing players, and short biographies of team members.

Orphans' Outing Saturday Opens Johnnies Weekend

The annual Orphans' Weekend consisting of an outing for the tots and a party at the orphanage will be held under the auspices of the Junior Class Saturday, December 5 and Tuesday, December 8.

Neil Vaughey C&F, is general chairman of the weekend. Jerry Carlin, math major and Harry Wolfington, C&F, are co-chairmen of the outing. Bob Bohn, English major, has charge of arrangements for the party.

Unlike other years the entire agenda of events will take place in the 69th street area, with Gimbel's department store serving as the center of activity.

Leave School At 9

The 204 orphans will be picked up on "a first come, first served" basis at the orphanage at 47th and Wyalusing sometime around 9:30. Carlin said he hopes that no buses will be needed.

"If we can get enough day hops to drive, though, we'll have no other choice." The caravan will leave Villanova at 9:00."

Four stores in the 69th street area will open their toylands to the orphans. After the shopping excursion lunch will be served in two sittings at Gimbel's employees' cafeteria, 11:30 and 12:30.

At 2:00 the Johnnies and escorts will see "Moby Dick" at the 69th street theatre.

Carlin stressed that although the outing is primarily a Junior Class function, it is open to all classes. "Any one wishing to take an orphan can sign up in either the Pie Shoppe or the C&F cafeteria."

Santa by Helicopter

The party to be held next Tuesday at the orphanage will be highlighted by a helicopter visit from Santa Claus, Bohn announced.

Other entertainment will be provided by Bob Redmond, a junior arts major who will play his guitar and by a professional magician.

The party is closed to those who have worked on the outing and also to junior football players. The list of those invited will be posted on the junior bulletin board.

The Charity Ball to be held on December 11th will feature the music of Lou Denison. This was announced by Chet Buttonow, junior C&F, chairman of the dance.

The general chairman of this year's Orphans' Outing has sent out an urgent plea for cars to transport Johnnies to 69th Street, and for presents for the Orphans' Party.

Queen Contest Photographs Now Being Accepted

Entries will be accepted starting today for the Senior Prom Queen contest, according to Bud Carlock, queen chairman.

Contestants' pictures are to be turned in to Carlock, 101 Sheehan. Along with the photographs the constestants' height, color of hair and eyes should be supplied.

Perry Como will pick the winner after five finalists have been selected by the June McAdams modeling agency.

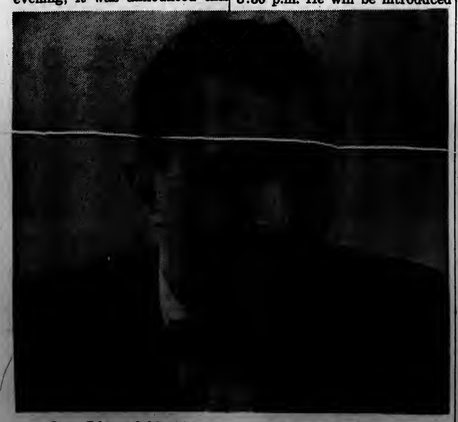
The contest closes January 14th.

'60 Fund Raising Campaign Begun At Hotel Dinner

Villanova University marked the opening of its 1960 fund raising campaign last week when it served host to nearly 400 campaign contributors at a dinner in the ballroom of the Sheraton Hotel.

Very Rev. John A. Klekotka, OSA, President of Villanova, served as official host during the formal dinner which was attended by corporate representatives and private individuals who have made donations to the University during the past five years.

A goal of three and a half million dollars was set for the 1960 phase of the University's twenty year fund raising program. Villanova is seeking twenty million dollars overall to offset a tremendous expansion program which was begun in 1953.



The general campaign is conducted on a year to year basis with rotating chairman and an immediate goal. Funds this year will be sought to finance the construction of a huge new science and research building.

Senator From Maine

Muskie To Address Law Forum Tonight

Honorable Edmund S. Muskie, United States Senator from Maine, will be the speaker for the third session of the Villanova University Law School this evening, it was announced this week by William B. Ball, Forum Chairman.

Muskie will discuss law and politics in his talk to Villanova law students in Garey Hall at 8:30 p.m. He will be introduced by Dr. Harold G. Reuschlein, law dean.

Sen. Edmund Muskie . . . . . at Forum Tonight

Now in his second year as a senator, Muskie will be the third speaker of the year presented by the Forum.

Third Forum

Earlier sessions presented Judge Robert Morris, formerly counsel for the Senate Internal Subcommittee and Melvin Belli, prominent San Francisco attorney.

Senator Muskie is a graduate of Bates College and Cornell University law school. In 1954 after serving in the Maine House of Representatives, Muskie became the state's first Democratic Governor in 20 years.

He won reelection in 1956 and two years later was chosen by the voters of Maine as their United States Senator.

Villanova's Law Forum sessions are held primarily for University students but are open to the public when space permits.

Muskie served as Governor of Maine for two years, and prior to that was a member of the Maine House of Representatives from 1947-1951.

Spirit Committee Plans Big Princeton Invasion

Tonight, in conjunction with the opening of the basketball season, the Spirit Committee will sponsor a trip to Princeton.

A pep rally will precede the buses' departure from the Field House at 6:30.

Concerning the tickets and the bus fare, committee co-chairmen Jack Valva and John Oberlies announced that admission to the game is $1.75. and the round-trip bus fare is $1.50.

When Al Severance's charges take the floor tonight, they will be greeted with a great deal of clamor from a weirdly-garbed student body.

Valva and Oberlies ordered several hundred Ramar-like pith helmets to be decorated with Villanova decals. These will be distributed to the members of the entourage at a nominal charge.

WVIL Carries Meeting

Council Split Over Vincent Move To Open Committee

The Student Council's debut on WVIL radio at the last meeting set the stage for a colorful exchange between Chairman Tom Hoffman and Bill Vincent over the legitimacy of a proposed constitutional amendment.

The entire meeting was broadcast through the facilities of the campus radio, but a quick poll by the VILLANOVAN revealed a sparse listening audience. In Sullivan Hall, which houses 454 residents, only 12 radios were tuned to the meeting.

Enlarge Committee

Vincent, Executive Vice President of Student Affairs, is trying to enlarge the Student Union and Special Problems Committee to include non-council members.

This he is doing on the advice of Tony Godwin, chairman of the committee, who feels that the work load is too great for six-member committee as it now stands.

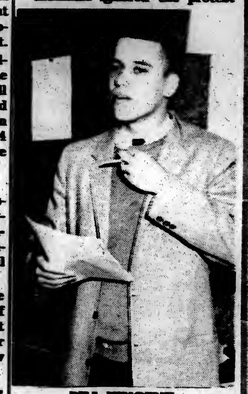
Prior to the meeting, Hoffman, according to observers, expressed disapproval of the idea because he wants to assure that the Council give the motion adequate consideration, and not push the motion through hurriedly.

"An amendment is a serious matter," said Hoffman.

Hoffman had interpreted the constitution to allow discussion at that particular meeting, rather than defer the discussion to tomorrow night's meeting, as Vincent had wanted.

His efforts to have the motion discussed were thwarted, however, by an overwhelming majority vote. Hoffman contended that he merely wanted the council to have more time to deliberate.

Vincent claimed that the constitution prohibited discussion until the next meeting and he was backed strongly by Fred Wiele and the Council majority vote. Vincent wanted the delay to give him time personally to familiarize the Council with the amendment.



Hoffman appeared dismayed at the vote supporting Vincent.

Railroad Motion

"According to the vote," he said, "we will now wait until the next meeting, at which time we will railroad the motion through."

Immediately, a number of delegates rose as a body in protest to the chairman's remark, including Vincent, who appeared distraught.

Hoffman ignored the protest

and passed on to the next business. He later apologized to the Council for the "railroad" remark, but added his appeal that the members give the motion due consideration.

Gallico Tale Featured In Book Club Choices

A Paul Gallico tale of a wondrous cow and an even more wondrous St. Ludmila is one in a duo of selections by the Catholic Digest Book Club for December.

Delightfully illustrated by Reisie Lonette, Ludmila "will be read with equal delight by young and old," says the Catholic Digest reviewer.

Second December selection is But with the Dawn, Rejoicing, by Mary Ellen Kelly. The author, totally crippled for 17 years, gives a joyful answer to the why of suffering. Miss Kelly overcame her handicap to be family breadwinner as columnist and as editor of a small newspaper. Founder of the League of Shut-Ins she has traveled all over the world, although confined to a stretcher.

As a fifth anniversary gift from the book club, both books are offered at a combination rate of $2.95. To join, write: CD109, 100 Sixth Ave., New York.

Music and Shuffling Hurt Show

Belle Masque "Folds in Philly"

Since the usual Wednesday night critique of "The Higher You Climb," Belle Masque's musical adaption of Jacquinto Benavente's "Bonds of Interest" was omitted we have been asked to give a belated review of that show.

First of all, let us emphasize that the whole cast and everyone connected with the show deserve much credit for the many hours of effort they devoted to putting together the show.

Also, a musical generally has a ten week out-of-town run to shake down which this show did not. In fact, the first time that the orchestra and singers got together was on Monday, two days before opening night. This was evident in the show's slow pace.

As Benavente wrote "Bonds of Interest" it was commedia dell' arte, a highly stylized form. Adding music and some shuffling to it injured the show.

Score Excellent

Actually, George Herman's score was excellent, but in this case detracted from the play. The music, eighteen numbers, was not integrated smoothly into the show. The lyrics which were inferior to the score, contained slang which seemed out of place in the seventeenth century setting. They were often not audible.

The large cast on the whole worked hard, although at times it appeared that certain members did not entirely believe in the show.

Tom Flynn worked hard and deserves much credit, but as Crispin, the pivotal character, he was miscast. He had a very lengthy role but this is no excuse for delivering every speech the same way, without pauses or reactions.

Crispin's lines are full of clever subtleties and nuances, but they were lost in Flynn's machine-gun delivery. Crispin should be rapier-like; Flynn used a bludgeon.

Connie Donahue, who played Donna Sirena, has a pleasant voice but was lacking in projection. Her number with Marian Brennan and sultry Judith Rodriguez, Fugue for Old Dolls, was hindered by this.

For us, the outstanding actor on stage was Tony Provenzano in the role of the cowardly Captain. His characterization bordered on the hilarious. Provenzano and John Barlas provided the majority of what laughs there were.

Barlas portraying Signor Polichinell with a raspy voice, and comic gestures brought life to the proceedings. However, he and Miss Donahue fell out of character to take glimpses of the sparse audience on occasion.

Rosemont's Carole Miceli contributed a sweet voice and glittering person as Silvia and Ray Kantra was a very agreeable Leander.

The finest male voice was supplied by Tom McCoy in the part of Harlequin. He fit in well with Provenzano's Captain, particularly in the delightful "The Courage Song." McCoy at times was too hasty with his repartees.

Tom Reilly was sufficent though he showed inexperi-

True Beatnik Resents Beat Title

bill speers

Twelve days ago on the Penn campus, we attended a poetry reading given by three members of the beat generation. Preluded by a fine modern jazz group the bard trio made its entrance.

Ray Bremser, 25, was the first to appear. Dark deliberate, dressed in a pea-green corduroy jacket with the collar turned up and a tieless black shirt and unshined rippled-sole shoes, he took his seat at the make-shift coffee shop table provided on stage.

SPEERS

He was followed by a tall, boyish looking figure — Marc Schleifer — a 1956 graduate of Penn; and a husky, bearded negro, Leroi Jones.

Bremser read first. Lengthy and redundant, his poetry was a constant cry against the injustices and Machiavellian niceties of organized society. His not infrequent use of four and five letter words and his vivid phrasing sent couples scampering for the exits. At the conclusion of the first reading, a third of the capacity crowd had left.

Schleifer's verse was brief and most of the time deranged and obscure. Of the three, Jones, who will soon have a one-act play produced in New York's Living Theatre, appeared to be the most poetic. His work was solemn and at times delicate.

After the first reading (there were two) we went back stage and spoke with Schleifer. He stood alone in the wings and this seemed to personify him—solitary, simple, exiled. Even though he was on his old stamping grounds, he showed no affinity toward Penn; nor it for him.

Obviously sincere, Schliefer explained the derivation of the word—beat. Like most beats, he scorns the term "Beatnik;" denouncing it as "a sad journalistic term."

He, like the beat poet Allen Ginsberg, describes "beat" as a shortened form of beatitude.

"The term is correct only when used historically," stated Schleifer. "It came into being in 1949, when Kerouac and a few of his buddies, after a few drinks, were discussing the world and philosophy and decided on the word beat to describe the post-war generation."

At this point Bremser came over and in a low,brandied, monotone asked Schleifer's advice on a matter dealing with the police. "See the legal aid in the Village," he said. "But the offense was in New Jersey." They conversed a few more minutes and Bremser went back on stage.

Do you believe in education, Marc? "I believe everybody should get a university education, no matter how. But not just so he can get a job at G.M. What do you have against G.M.? "I don't have anything against G.M.; it's what they are doing, that I'm against. People in such corporations become myraid. Men become machines, and they know it and accept it, and the only way they continue to exist is that they become psychopaths. This I believe is a sad commentary of society."

You must be only about 25 or 26 . . . "I'm 24." What do you expect to be doing, say, twenty years from now. "All I want to do is to write the best I know how, live sucessfully, and survive."

This paper is dedicated to one of the finest who ever entered Villanova: Scholar, Athlete, Gentleman—

Debators Win Tournament

The Villanova debators won their first novice tournament of the year in their first intercollegiate debate, at the University of Delaware, November 21.

The topic of debate was: "Is the Supreme Court guilty of legislating?"

The Villanova affirmative, consisting of Tom Kennedy and Chuck Ward, scored victories over Delaware, American University and Penn. The Villanova negative, consisting of Terry Stratman and Frank Battaglia, won over Morgan State, St. Joseph's College, and Maryland.

The final record in favor of Villanova was six wins and no losses, which awarded them a first place.

Going into the final round both Villanova and Penn were tied for first with identical records—five wins and no losses. The debators did not know the standings at this time.

But the affirmative team met and defeated Penn's negative team and gave Penn its only loss.

The problem was whether or not the Supreme Court was justified in engaging in this so-called "legislating."

The affirmative stated the premise that Congress should be given power to reverse decisions of the Supreme Court, perhaps by a two-thirds majority vote.

They cited the famous desegregation case—Brown vs. the Board of Education—as a classic example of Court usurping the powers of the Congress.

The Negative contended that the Courts were not overstepping their authority, and that the Constitution intended to give the power of Judicial Review to the Courts alone.

ence as the innkeeper.

Some quite clever intermission clowning was offered by Pete Allard, Margaret Kent, and Jack Milton at the back of the "theatre."

The third act was livened by the appearance of Link Hallowell as the pompous Magistrate and Bill Friend as the secretary. Each offered a song and their deliveries more than made up for any vocal lacks. Friend's number was imaginative in a rather unimaginative evening.

"The Higher You Climb" was a financial failure chiefly because of unfavorable word of mouth publicity after the opening night performance. Still, the lack of student support was a disgrace.

The show had some good moments but not nearly enough of them. There were brilliant costumes and a very good set. But the orchestra was a drawback except for the playing of pianist Lou Martucci and violinist Wanda Costanza. The dancing was almost non-existent.

The play lacked in interpretation and some confusing blocking. What stylization there was was choppy.

"The Higher You Climb" was an incongruous potpourri of slang, commedia dell' arte, music, and rock 'em sock 'em. It proved that these ingredients when mixed rather curdle.

The director should have tried to capture the audience with a gossamer thread, instead he used a rope.

With their original show Belle Masque initiated a new form — commedia dell' top-heavy.

In conclusion, it is unfortunate but "The Higher You Climb" must go down in the record books as a show that "folded in Philly."

New German Chief Topples Traditions

Germany's new president is fracturing many unwritten rules of German tradition.

Heinrich Leubke, says the Catholic Digest, was born on a farm in a remote German village; most German heads of state have come from aristocratic families. He is unassuming, even shy; the Germans are accustomed to looking upon their leaders with awe and reverence. He is a Roman Catholic; this is the first time in history that both the German president and chancellor are Catholics.

Father Welsh Made Assistant To Arts Dean

The Very Rev. John A. Klekotka, O.S.A. president, has announced the appointment of Rev. Robert Welsh O.S.A. as assistant dean of the Arts and Science School.

The appointment, made on October 19, was announced on October 21 at the Communion Breakfast following Junior Ring Mass Ceremonies.

Father Welsh, also moderator of the Junior Class, stated that his duties as such are yet to be determined. He and Rev. Robert J. Sullivan O.S.A., dean of the Arts and Science School, plan to meet in the near future to determine what the duties of the newly founded office should entail.

As to the nature of his office, Fr. Welsh commented that he will be given permanent assignments. His work in the future will not extend beyond these. "My position as assistant dean," said he, "will not be one of general responsibility."

Fr. Welsh also stated that he will continue his present role as Junior Class Moderator. Whether or not he will continue to teach will not be known until his assignments are made.

'Name' Band Soon To Ink Contract For Senior Prom

"The signing of a 'big name' band for the Senior Prom is in the offing," announced senior class president Ray Rafferty. The band will be disclosed later.

"The band fills all of the requisites; it has appeal and it plays very danceable music," he added.

Work has already started on the prom and dinner dance, February 19th and 20th. Tickets for the prom will be $6.00, the dinner dance, $12.00.

The senior officers have been planning a "Welcoming-In" type party, in cooperation with the Alumni.

It is Rafferty's contention that this event will lead to better cohesion between the Alumni and the undergraduates.

There has been difficulty in assigning a definite date for this affair, however. Tentative dates offered are May 7 (Blue-White Day, if there is one), May 21 (week after Father's Day), and Wednesday, May 24 (before Ascension Thursday, IC4A's Friday).

If an adequate site can be found, there is a possibility that it might be held later this month.

Beauty Queen To Play Major Role In Graduate Production

Suzanne Bruni, Miss Atlantic City of 1958, will play a leading role in the Villanova Theatre Department's coming production of the American classic, "Our Town."

A history major at Rosemont College, Miss Bruni returns to the stage after just recently completing a supporting role in the Belle Masque musical, "The Higher You Climb."

Besides being the president of the Rosemont theatrical society, Jest and Gesture, Suzanne also captains the Rosies' basketball team.

Presently a resident of Ventnor, Miss Bruni has been chosen hostess for the 1961 reunion of all the previous Miss Americas to be held in Atlantic City, next September.

Suzanne is elated at performing in the Thorton Wilder drama, the first effort of the graduate department. "It has been my ambition ever since I can remember to play the part of Emily," declares the brown-eyed beauty.

Opposite Miss Bruni

Performing opposite Miss Bruni, is Stanley Moore a Villanova sophomore who is making his debut as an actor.

Dennis Cunningham, a graduate of LaSalle College, will be seen in the role of Doc Gibbs. At LaSalle, Cunningham worked extensively under the direction of Dan Rodden and was best remembered for his portrayal of Og, the Leprechaun, in "Finian's Rainbow".

Appearing in the role of Mr. Webb is Michael Tanney, also a LaSalle graduate and like Cunningham a student in Theatre at Villanova. During the past summer, Tanney appeared in six shows with the Tuft's University Arena Theatre group.

Supporting Roles

Supporting roles in "Our Town" include other students from the graduate school. Gilda Spurio, former president of Immaculata's Cue and Curtain and last seen in its production of "Victoria Regina", plays an important minor role. Owen Klein, graduate of numerous Belle Masque show pieces, appears as the play's milkman, Howie Newsome. Klein recently directed a one-act play that appeared at the Middle Atlantic National Catholic Theatre Conference in New York.

Tom Sines and Richard Harshburger, both of whom studied under Jasper Deeter and Marvin Stephens at Hedgerow, will also appear in supporting roles.

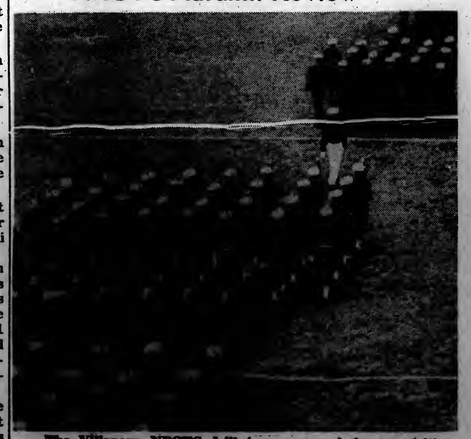
The Wilder play, said by many to be the greatest American play ever written, will be produced, according to Bernard Coyne, as the playwright wrote it. "We will present the play without any of the sophistication and superficiality which has characterized recent versions," said Coyne. "This is a story of plain, ordinary people and that's just how they will be portrayed."

High Confidence

The show's cast universally believes that their presentation will be a highly successful one. Paul Buckley, a theatre student who is filling in a dual capacity as stage manager and assistant director, simply states that the production is going to be "great."

Opening night will be next Thursday in Vasey Hall, and will continue until Saturday. Details concerning the purchase of tickets will be announced within the week.

White House Needs 'Man Of Vision' for 1960



"We do not need a presiding officer in the White House. We terribly need a Constitutional leader," says a Catholic Digest excerpt of a new book, "Candidates for 1960," edited by CBS news analyst Eric Sevareid.

"What the American people now deeply want and need," says the article, "is to be formed to the views, the faith, the working vision of a great man . . . because he has the capacity to call up their best instincts."

J. Stanley Morehouse, Dean of the Engineering Department, informs the VILLANOVAN that the degrees of senior engineers elected to Who's Who were incorrectly reported. Bachelor of Science degrees in Electrical Engineering, Mechanical Engineering etc. have not been given since 1936. Currently engineering graduates receive Bachelor of Engineering degrees.

Hoopsters Open Tonite At Princeton

Jim Brangan, Princeton ace is Tigers' chief scoring threat.

Princeton University's basketball team, runnerup to Dartmouth for the Ivy League crown last season, will host Villanova's ambitious Wildcats tonight in the hoop lid-lifter for both clubs.

Coach Cappy Cappon of Princeton finds himself in the unenviable position of trying to replace four starters from last year's strong club.

Al Severance, Wildcat mentor, has three starters from his 1958-1959 five back. John (Bird) Driscoll, 6-8 center, Jim Huggard, 5-10 'quarterback', and George Raveling, 6-6 rebounding ace and team captain, will lead the Main Liners into tonight's fray.

Ballyhoo for White

Completing the starting five will be Hubie White, 6-3 sophomore, and either Tom Samuelewicz, 6-5, Dick Kaminski, 6-1, or Bob Liberatore, 6-1, all returnees from last year's 18-7 squad.

The Wildcats' potential greatness has been recognized by most of the early season prognosticators. Dell Magazine rates the Cats 18th in the nation and 7th in the East.

This Week magazine was even more optimistic. After citing

White as one of the sophs in the country, the magazine designated Villanova as third best in the East, giving ground only to St. Joseph's and St. John's.

Brangan Tigers Big Threat

Princeton has received no such accolades. Nevertheless, Cappy Cappon, wily dean of Ivy League basketball coaches, manages to come up with a respectable team year after year.

Also, the home court advantage, a decidely important factor in basketball, will be with the Tigers. They are paced by first team All-Ivy performer Jim Brangan, a 6-1 resident of Lansdowne.

Brangan, a senior, already ranks as one of the most prolific scorers in Princeton history, and bids fair to boost his point total over the 1000 mark before the season is over. His biggest nights last year were against Army and Temple when he shredded the cords for 32 points.

Tiger Sophs Good

The other four starting spots will probably be filled by holdover reserves Drew Hyland, Lynn Oxenreider, Mike Burton, and Don Swan.

Two sophomores who have a good chance to make the starting five are Pete Campbell, a 6-1 shartshooter from (seriously) Ho Ho Kus, N.J., and burly 6-5 Al Kammerlen who led Haverford High to a state championship two years ago (Campbell averaged 26.8 points per game for last year's frosh, while Kammerlen, a rugged rebounder hit at a 20 per game clip).

Scranton Here Friday

The remainder of the Wildcat squad comprises two juniors and five sophomores, Don McGinley, 6-1 guard, and Dave Severance, 6-4 rebounder are Coach Severance's third year men.

Bill Penney 6-3 Jim McMonagle, 6-3, Joe Walsh, 6-5, Dick LeFevre, 6-1, and Joe Zawacki, 6-1, are sophs.

Friday night, Scranton University, minus Little All-American Ed Kazakavich, will journey to the Field House to meet the Wildcats. Prior to the varsity game, the Blue and White freshmen will meet the Scranton yearlings at 7:00.

Disaster At Detroit Closes Grid Season

Cyril J. Burke Trophy

A vastly superior Detroit University team blasted the Villanova Wildcats right out of the stadium in the first four minutes of the Cats' final game of the season, and easily defeated Villanova 40-6 two Saturdays ago.

Recovery of two Villanova fumbles within a minute of each other greatly facilitated the Titan's chor. Before all of the delighted partisan crowd had settled, the score was 21-0. After this the Detroiters breezed in. The Cats didn't tally until the scoreboard read 40-0.

Detroit was paced by the running of Bruce Maher who scored three touchdowns and the passing of Bob Lusky. Villanova's bright spots were halfback Frank Ficca and guard Ed Lemkin.

But the Villanovan who most represented this year's team in the Detroit game was Nick Russo. Russo a sohomore halfback, broke a Vilanova record when he intercepted two passes and raced 140 yards with the stolen passes. (Rich Sapienza held the former record).

Dismal Season

On the first one, he ran 48 yards — then fumbled the ball over to Detroit. The second time, he raced 92 yards to the Titan four-yard line. In four plays, Villanova moved nowhere!

Yes, Russo's fine defensive play was completely nullified by the poor play of the majority of the Villanova team. And that is the story of Villanova's entire football season: the good play of the few was not enough to compensate for the poor play of the many.

Beginning with West Chester, continuing throughout the year, and merifully ended by the Detroit disaster, the Villanova football season was dismal, dismal, dismal.

Maybe it's best to let sleeping dogs lie, and try to forget the football team that represented Villanova in 1959. But this issue of the Villanovan is supporsed to be a memorable one.

Remember this:
West Chester 13—V. U. 7
Xavier 43—V. U. 20
Holy Cross 20—V. U. 0
Boston College 39—V. U. 6
Miami 26—V. U. 6
V.P.I. 26—V. U. 13
Dayton 13—V. U. 22
Army 14—V. U. 0
Rutgers 12—V. U. 6
Detroit 40—V. U. 6

Wha' Happen?

Villanova played well against V.P.I. and Army. They were thinking of Xavier when they played West Chester; they were thinking of West Chester when they played Xavier.

The were thinking of the coach who resigned because he promised a winning team, then couldn't deliver, when they met Miami.

They weren't thinking of anything when they journeyed to Rutgers and Detroit.

Let's be honest: Villanova's football team was hurt by a few injuries, by some bad breaks, by a messed up coaching situation.

But this year, the main reason Villanova had a poor season was because of the Lethargic action and blase attitude of the majority of the team.

A blanket condemnation isn't a good policy, we know. And somebody is sure to say, "What about Bill Botch in the Farguhar game?"

Each week some individuals woke up and played as they could and should have. But never was there a real team on the field. For this reason, we on the Villanovan feel cheated. We're sure we speak for the entire student body and for those few members of the football team who put out every game.

Football Banquet Dec. 8

Speaking Tonight

Mayor Charles S. Witkowski to address players and team at Banquet tonight.

The Villanova football team and coaches will be honored at the 38th annual football banquet of the Villanova club of Philadelphia.

The dinner will be held next Tuesday night at the Penn-Sherwood Hotel, 39th and Chestnut sts. in Philadelphia. Jim Bonner, WRCV sportscaster will be toastmaster.

Joseph A. Hegarty, chairman of the banquet announced that Mayor Charles S. Witkowski of Jersey City will be the principal speaker at the dinner.

Witkowski is a Villanova alumnus who played three seasons of varsity football under Harry Stuldreher in 1928, 1929, and 1930. Following graduation in 1931 he served as football coach at Dickinson High School, Jersey Cit yfor seven years before leaving the teaching field to practice law. He has been mayor of Jersey City since 1957.

First Award To George Emma

George Emma, fine all around athlete and a star on last year's basketball team, has been selected as the first recipient of the Chuck Drizin Memorial Trophy to be presented this riday night before the Scranton game in the Villanova fieldhouse.

The Chuck Drizin Memorial is an award to be presented each year to the basketball player who, in the opinion of a panel of experts, best represents the ideal qualities of an athlete—he who best combines athletic, scholastic, and spiritual abilities.

The award will hereafter be presented at the basketball banquet following the season. The ceremony on Friday night is to introduce to the student body of Villanova the trophy and the idea and ideals behind the trophy.

Emma, a native of Long Island, N. Y., was a prominent member of the basketball team for three years at Villanova, and also starred on the baseball team, being selected to the N.C.A.A. All East team.

George signed a major league contract with the New York ankees after graduation last June, and played the remainder of the season in the Yankees' minor league organization.

As a basketball player, "Dutch" was a coach's dream. Possessed of a keen eye and quick reflexes, his greatest assets were his coolheadness and self-sacrifice.

His great relief work in the Duke and Seton Hall games enabled the Wildcats to prevail in those contests last year. George's finest career game was probably the spectacular three-overtime LaSalle game of two years ago.

George Emma is a wonderful choice to be the first recipient of an honor like the Chuck Drizin Trophy, for George Emma is a first-class man.

CHUCK DRIZIN . . . gives name to trophy.

Memorial Trophy Honors C. Drizin

The Villanova athletic department has announced the inception of a new basketball award, the Chuck Drizin Memorial trophy.

Herman (Chuck) Drizin, a Jewish boy attended Villanova during the early years of World War II. He was a well liked member of Al Severance's basketball team at that time.

After leaving Villanova, he entered the service and distinguished himself on the battlefield just as he had done on the basketball court. Just two days before he met his death, he was decorated for his bravery in leading a patrol through enemy lines, knocking out two tanks enroute.

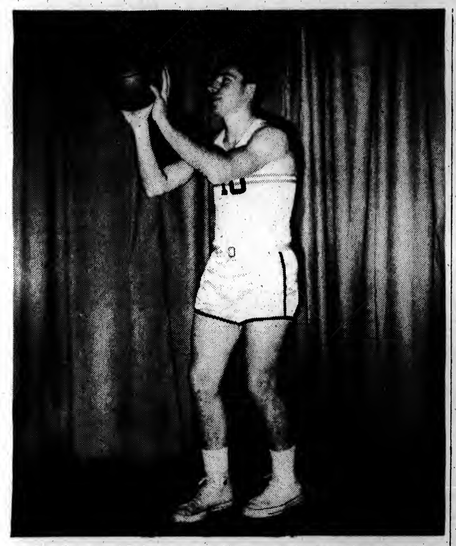
Accordingly to coach Al Severance who was the figure most instrumental in securing the award, a replica of the trophy will be given annually to the Villanova basketball player ". . . who possesses the intangibles—never complains, is a self sacrificing guy, clean-cut and loyal—in short, the guy you would be proud to call a Villanovan."

Trophy To Be Displayed Prominently

The Drizin award winners's name will be inscribed on the large original trophy each year which will be displayed in a prominent place on campus, possibly in the Dougherty Hall display case.

A personal token in recognition of this honor bestowed on the player will be to the annual selectee in the form of a small replica of the Drizin trophy.

Committee To Select Winner



The winner wil be selected by a committee comprising the basketball coach, the student council president, the VILLANOVAN sports editor, the varsity basketball manager and an administration official. All members of the committee will cast one vote for their designee except the basketball coach who will receive two votes.

The first annual presentation will be made to a member of last season's court squad in the Field House on Friday evening immediately before the varsity game with Scranton.

The VILLANOVAN will be in charge of the presetation and the ceremonies which will precede the bestowal of the award.

The VILLANOVA ROTC color guard will stand at attention while taps is played in memory of Drizin. Immediately following the military ceremony, Jim Murray, sports editor of the VILLANOVAN, will introduce a member of the Jewish War Veterans from the Chuck Drizin Memorial Post will make the presentation of the first annual Drizin award to a member of last year's five, George Emma.

Mentor Alex Severance, Dean of Local Coaches In 23rd Year at Villanova

When Villanova's basketball Wildcats take the court against Princeton tonight, the Cats will be under the direction of Alex Severance. A gray-thatched, middle aged man, the voluble Severance is beginning his 24th year as cage mentor here.

The dean of local coaches, Severance's teams have amassed an enviable 385-182 record over the years. Four of Severance's teams have competed in NCAA tournaments, the most recent being the Bob Schafer-led Cats of 1954-1955. That year the Main Liners defeated Duke and Princeton but lost to Canisius in the regionals held at Penn's Palestra.

Villanova's first trip to the post-season basketball wars was the 1939 NCAA tournament. Brown was defeated 42-30 but Ohio State took the measure of Severance's minions, 53-36. Ten years later Peerless Paul Arizin and Co. defeated Yale in the post-season classic but lost to eventual winner, Kentucky, 85-72. In 1951 the Cats lost in the first round to North Carolina State, 67-62.

First Trip to NIT

Last year's trip to the NIT marked the first time a Severance-coached team or, for that matter, any Villanova team had competed in the Ned Irish hoop extravaganza. The Cats were clipped in the first round by St. John's, who later went on to take the title, 75-67.

The loss was tempered, however, by the fact that three of the starters in that game are back to occupy their customary positions. John Driscoll, 6-8 center, George Raveling, 6-6 forward and captain of the team, and 5-10 Jim Huggard are once again starters for Severance. Along with these three, Severance will call on Hubie White, highly touted 6-3 soph and either Tom Samuelwicz, 6-5, Dick Kaminski, 6-1, or Bob Liberatorre, 6-1, all juniors to complete the starting five.

Second To St. Joe's?

Local sportswriters see Severance's outfit as runner-up to an experienced St. Joseph's five. It is undoubtely a cherished Severance hope that his team can knock off the high and mighty Hawks and walk off with the Big Five Title.

Al Severance entered Villanova as a student in 1925. A native of New York City and an outstanding athlete and student at Regis High School (which named him to its Sports Hall of Fame last year) he embarked on his long athletic career by making the varsity basketball team at Villanova as a freshman. He was also a member of the varsity track team, running the half mile and becoming one of the first of a long list of fine half milers who have run for the Wildcats. No poor pugilist he, either, as evidenced by his copping both the school welterweight and middleweight boxing crowns.

Valedictorian of His Class

Severance was no academic slouch however. He graduated as valedictorian of the Class of 1929 and enrolled in Temple University Law School, receiving his law degree in 1935. While at Temple, Severance was appointed Villanova's graduate manager of athletics and also served as freshman basketball coach. He assumed head coaching duties in 1936, succeeding George "Doc" Jacobs.

Severance has served on the United Press Coaches' Board since 1951, rating the nation's top college teams weekly. He has been a popular political figure along the Main Line fo 12 years and retired just last year as magistrate of Tredyfrin Township, Chester County. Shortly thereafter he accepted a position on the Villanova faculty as an instructor of business law, a position he still holds.

"They're overloading the other side of the zone. Watch the guy in this corner," warns a perceptive Severance.

Another protege of Ed Scullin at North Catholic, Joe payed freshman basketball at St. Louis University. When Ed Hickey left St. Louis, Joe dia also andcame to Villanova. A sound play maker and a good left handed shot maker, he is quick and agile and is one of the prime candidates to team with Huggard in back court operations. An arts and science student Joe also is a jazz disc jockey with his own program on station WVIL, Villanova's campus radio station.

George Raveling, Senior 6-6 Wash. D.C.
The first member of his race to serve as Villanova's basketball captain, George was one of the pleasant surprises of the 1958-59 season. A great team player who saw little action as a sophomore, he was determined to make the starting team as a junior and worked to perfect his game during the summer months. By hard work he developed into one of the nation's better rebounders as he collected 405 for an average of 16.2 which rated him 19th in the country. He established a new Villanova record by pulling down 27 rebounds against Gettysburg at the Wildcat ield House and then later got 28 against Wagner to tie for a new high during regular season competition at the Palestra. His best games were against Wagner when he added 27 points to his his 28 rebounds and against Muhlenberg when he scored 26 points to go along with 20 rebounds. A ball player with plenty of desire he is one of Villanova's most loyal students and supporters. Although not an exceptional scorer he ranked 21st nationallyin field goal shooting with a 500.6 percentage. Along with Driscoll he was mainly responsible for his team's 7th place rating in national rebounding statistics in 1958-1959. He is the only senior on the present squad. 1957-58 18 games; 18 field goals; 12 foul goals; 89 rebounds; 48 points. 1958-59 12 games; 125 field goals; 69 foul goals; 405 rebounds; 319 points.

David Severance, Junior 6-4 Berwyn
The youngest of Coach Al Severance's three sons, Dave is an aggressive rebounder and a good spot player who gives a good accounting of himselft when he gets to play. A keen competitor he has the ability to move up to being one of Villanova's top reserves especially when thge big men get into personal foul trouble. Dave is a member of Villanova Marine Platoon Leaders Corps and spends several weeks each summer taking training courses at the Marine Corps Schools at uaQntico, Va. 1958-59—11 games; 4 field goals; 1 foul goal; 21 rebounds; 9 points.

Robert Liberatore, Junior 6-2 Bristol
Although he saw little action last season he is developing into a steady backcourt player and is battling his roommate Kaminski for the othe play making position along with Huggard. An uncanny dedaeye from either corner he is also very effective on the drive. As a freshman he gave indications of becoming another great offensive star in tradition of Arizin, Hennessy and Schafer. Bob was an All American High school selectee at Bristol High where he also competed in football, baseball and track. 1958-59—10 games; 7 field goals; 6 foul goals; 5 rebounds; 20 points.

Their coach in conference . . .

Hubert White Soph 6-3 Phila., Pa.
One of the best sophomores to come in a long time. Hubie carries a "can't miss" tag attached by most everyone who has seen him play. An All Public star for two years at West Philadelphia High under coach Dough Connolly, he moves up to the varsity with great potential and can be the one to lead the Wildcats to an oustanding season. He has great reflexes, moves with lightning speed and can leap one foot over the rim of the basket. But despite all o f this, Coach Al Severance warns that fans might be expecting too much from Hubie. "After all, he is only sophomore, playing his first year of college basketball" says Severance. Hubie's best offensive weapon is a tremendous jump shot which accounted for most of his 28.7 point average as a freshman last year. His best game was a 48 point effort against St. Joseph's Colege freshman squad.

Richard LeFevre, Soph 6-1 Riverton,
One of the top scorers for Moorestown High's greatteam of two years ago, Dick is a valuable backcourt reserve for Coach Al Severance. He has a good outside shot and has been improving ever since coming to Villanova. After picking up experience in this his first varsity year he could develop into one of the best offensive threats on the team.

John Driscoll, Junior 6-8 Phila. Pa.
A key performer whose play could well dictate the fortunes of the Wildcats for the 1959-60 season. The second leading rebounder on the squad as a sophomore last ycar he collared 305 for a 12.2 average which made him one of the east's leaders in this department. Fitted with contact lenses this summer, they could result in more effective scoring for this former West Catholic star of Philadelphia. He is a good outside shot for a big man and can run with the smaller squad members to make the fast break effective. Played his best game in Villanova's four overtime loss to Providence at the Palestra, scoring 22 points and getting 23 rebounds. 1958-59—25 games; 103 field goals; 47 foul goals; 305 reb.; 253 pts.

William Penney, Soph 6-3 Phila., Pa.
The third highest scorer on last season's freshman squad averaging 10.8 points a game. He has good jump shot and can rebound efectively against players several inches taller. Bill was selected on Philadelphia's All Catholic team for two years while at Father Judge High where he was a three letter winner and co-captain in his senior year.

James McMonagle, Soph 6-3 Phila., Pa.
A regular on last year's freshman squad he averaged 9.6 points a game and was one of the top rebounders on the squad. A product of LaSalle High, Jim is an engineering student and maintains a dean's list average, while also being a member of the Naval R.O.T.C. He is a strong rebounder who will be able to relieve any of the Wildcats big men. Coach Severance is counting on him to come through later in the season after he gets some experience under his belt.

Donon McGinley, Junior 6-1 Rosemont
A promising backcourt performer who will be used chiefly in reserve roles once again this year. A hustler from the word go, he is a good ball handler and plays a steady defensive game in the front of Coach Severance's zone. Possesses a good set and jump shot and can drive well. Was a baseball and basketball player at Monsignor Bonner High and continues to play both varsity sports at Villanova. 1958-59—11 games: 1 field goal; 2 foul goals; 10 rebounds; 4 points.

Their coach in anguish . . .

Thomas Samulewicz, Junior 6-5 Phila.
A good pivot man with an unusual two handed jump shot. Sam with a bit more experience can develop into a solid collegiate court player. A good rebounder, he is another one of coach Ed Scullin's products from Philadelphia's North Catholic. He scores well from inside while battling off the boards. A dean's list student with a near perfect scholastic average. 1958-59—16 games; 7field goals; 3 foul goals; 32 rebounds; 17 points.

Their coach in contemplation . . .

Jimmy Huggard, Junior 5-10 Phila. Pa.
A standout floor general with amazing speed and reflexes. Plays a dogged defensive game forcing opponent into committing ball handling mistakes. Takes advantage of speed to drive for twisting goals. Second leading scorer on the team last year with 379 points just 5 behind the leader. Playing the backcourt he scored better than 20 points in 8 games with a high of 26 against Brandeis and 25 against Buffalo. Jimmy never played highschool basketball but was a standout Philadelphia area A.A.U. star for several years attracting college scouts with his sensational play in national A.A.U. playoffs in Denver, Colorado several years ago. A tremendous competitor who never gives up, he hates to leave a game no matter what the score. 1958-59—25 games; 153 field goals; 73 foul goals; 88 rebounds; 375 points.

Joseph Walsh, Soph 6-5 Trenton, N.J.
Joe averaged 9.2 points as a freshman regular last year. A good rebounder he requires a lot of experience before becoming a mainstay on the varsity however. Joe was a co-captain and a 2nd team All State player at Trenton High of New Jersey. He also was a member of the tennis team.

Richard Kaminski, Junior 6-2 N. J.
Dick saw limited action in 19 games last year but got his chance to start against St. Francis (Pa.) when backcourt start Jimmy Kenny was injured against Duquesne. Dick came through in great style scoring 16 valuable points mostly on clutch field goals. At St. Aloysius High he was a star performer scoring a record total of 1290 points in his three seasons there. He is a good ball handler and can shoot from 25 feet away with consistency with a one hand set. He also drives well and is a battler off the boards. During the spring he performs for coach Jim Jumbo Elliott's track team as a javelin thrower. 1958-59—19 games; 22 field goals; 29 foul goals; 34 rebounds; 73 points.

Cats Meet Best In Country

The Villanova Wildcats will meet several rough customers in their efforts for a successful 59-60 basketball season. Listed among their intended victims are the following institutions of learning and their playing personnel who hope to do battle with our vicious 'Cats.

PRINCETON: . . . The Princeton Tigers are the first team to get a crack at our Wildcats, when the 'Cats open their season on December 2nd, at Princeton. The Tigers will have only one starter returning from last year's team which tied for the Ivy League Championship. 6'1" Jim Brangan, an All-Ivy choice, is the returner. Two sophomores, 6'4" Al Kammerlen, a local boy and a rugged rebounder, and 6'1" Pete Campbell, a frosh scoring sensation will be expected to help carry the load. Drawing on his veterans, Coach Cappon will probably use 5'9" Drew Hyland in backcourt with either Don Swan or Mike Burton, both 6'3".

SCRANTON: . . . Scranton, from the MAC and coached by Fiore Cesare, is the first guest in the main line fieldhouse this season. This team has good scoring potential with the offensive load likely to be well distributed among all hands. Scranton's cohesive force will be 5'11" senior Bob Meckwood, a take charge guy on both offense and defense. Meckwood, who is quick and aggressive, owns a damaging set shot and drives as though he owns the court. Joining him as guard will be 5'11" junior Mike Abdalla, giving Coach Cesare a dependable back court combination. The forwards will be 6'1" junior Bill Francis and Ed Gromelski, and at center the choice will be between 6'7" junior Joe Stulgis and 6'3" John Glynn, best of the sophs.

CLEMSON: . . . The 'Cats open their Palestra season with a December 12th date with Clemson. Coach Press Maravich faces the future with a squad whose main stays appear to be 6-3 senior George Krajack and his brother, 6-4 junior Ed, probable starting forwards; 6-6 junior Earle Maxwell and 6-7 soph Tom Mahaffey, who will compete for the center assignment; 6-0 senior Dutch Shample and 6-0 soph Larry Patterson guards—with 6-4 senior Don Carver and 6-3 senior Bill Warren very much in the picture, too. The team leader is Krajack, a vigorous competitor who was top scorer last year with a 20 ppg average and best rebounder. Much however is expected of new comer Patterson, who accounted for a nifty 22.4 ppg on the frosh team.

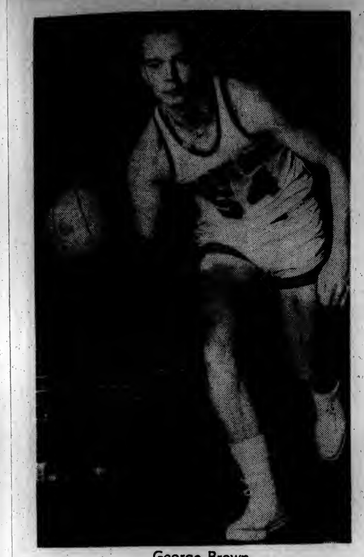
WEST VIRGINIA: . . . The date with West Virginia will be played at Morgantown, W. Va., before National T.V. Audience on January 16th. West Virginia will be led, for the third straight year by All American, Jerry West. West is a ballplayer who packs all his perfection in a 6-3 frame. There is also a nice supply of additional talent on this club. The definite starters, along with West, are 6-5 senior Willie Akers and 6-5 junior Jim Ritchie, both of whom can give West lots of rebounding and defensive support, and 6-1 junior Lee Patronè, a dynamic backcourt man who many astute observers feel will develop into a star of major consequence. The fifth spot probably will go to 6-7 junior Joe Posch, unless Coach Fred Schaus is willing to sacrifice Posch's height (he's the biggest man available), move West from guard to forward and Ritchie from forward to center and thus make room for a newcomer of note 6-0 Paul Popovich, about whom much will be heard. In reserve are Butch Goode and Bob Davis, veterans, and Dick Dubois and Ed Bode, sophs. Last year's season record was 29-5, which gave Coach Schaus a very impressive five-year score of 120 victories and 32 losses.

ARMY: . . . The Army game will be played at West Point on January 27th. Four returning lettermen from the nucleus of a Cadet team that will be physically rugged and defensively strong. The varsity holdovers are led by 6-5 junior Lee Sager, one of the best ever to wear the Army gray, at forward with 6-4 senior Jim Klosek at center and pair of seniors in backcourt—6-0 Joe Bobula and 5-11 Fred Kaiser. Fifth starter will probably be 6-5 Bob Strauss, a junior who showed well in reserve last year. The best of the sophs moving up are 5-10 Stu Sherrard, 6-0 Al DeJardin and 6-3 Jim Shibley. The schedule is a tough one, includes four teams that went to the NIT and two that went to the NCAA tournament last season.

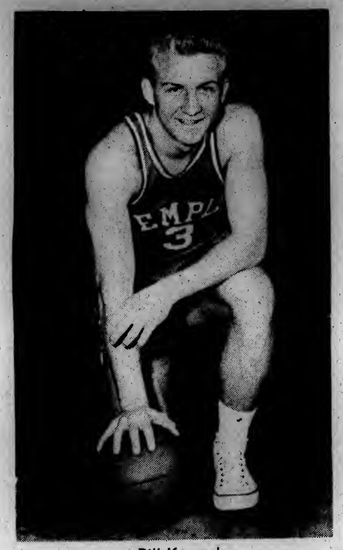
Dan Englehardt

Bob Slobdnik

Bob Mikvy

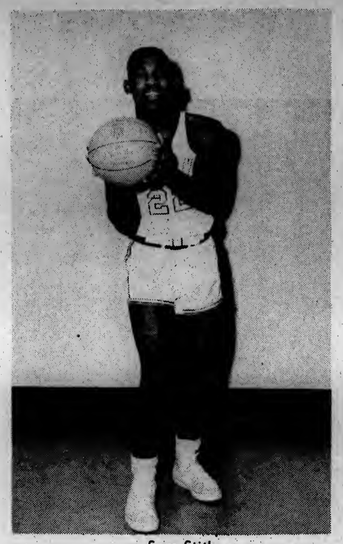


CANISIUS: . . . Canisius has a new coach this year but fortunately, a veteran team. Coach Bob Mac Kinnon expects to put 6-5 Larry Sarafinas at center with 6-5 John Gabbey and 6-2 Frank Rojek at the forwards. The guards, who gave very little scoring help last year, are 6-0 Ray McGuire and 5-11 Dick McCann with a promising soph in 6-3 Bill Slicks who could move into the lineup. Rojek carries the scoring burden, for the club hasn't shown much speed or defensive skill.



MANHATTAN: . . . The Manhattan Game at Madison Square Garden will be one of the toughest the Wildcats will play all year. What Ken Norton's club will do this year if it stays healthy is anyone's guess. Ours is that it will be the team to beat in New York City. Returning for another campaign, and in good shape are the three seniors, 6-5 Pete Brunone, 6-6 Bob Mealy and 6-3 Joe Dougherty, making up one of the strongest shooting and rebounding front lines in the century. Mealy, of course, is All-American material. In reserve is 6-6 Tom Leder, a junior who can help out in the pivot or the corners. In backcourt, Norton may not be as overpowering as up front but he still has two classy veterans in 6-1 Bob Cleary and 6-3 Charles Koenig. (Did we mention that Koenig sprained an ankle last year?) In reserve are two 6-0 juniors, Charles Sharkey and Jim Boyle, and a raft of talented sophs, 6-3 John O'Connor, 6-5 Alex Osowick, 6-2 Kevin Haggerty and 6-6 Larry Byrnes. In short it is an experienced team well drilled in Norton's deliberate patterns on offense. It also has the rebounding to make the fast-break even more of a threat.

PITTSBURGH: . . Our last game of the year at the Fieldhouse will be against the Don Hennonless Panthers on February 11th. Now the mighty Hennon is gone, and there's little help coming from last year's frosh, so the chances of bouncing back to a winning season seem remote. Coach Bob Timmons will rely heavily on 6-5 junior John Fridley, last season's number two scorer with an average of 12.2 ppg and top rebounder. He'll start with 6-5 senior John Mills, 6-3 junior Darwin Smith, 5-9 senior Billy Mauro and 6-1 junior Dick Falenski. All of the starters have solid working experience, but it's interesting to note that the total of their field goal attempts last year scarcely added up to Hennon's total alone. The main reserves will be 6-2 junior Howie Lockhart, 6-4 junior Paul Lazor, 6-6 Senior Francis Kondrad, 5-10 soph Ralph Shutterly and 6-4 soph Bob Sankey.



NEW YORK UNIVERSITY: . . . NYU game will be played on February 13th, at the Palestra. Coach Lou Passini has gotten the Violets in hand and he has another All-America in 6-6 Tom Sanders heading a talented group of veterans. Flanking him up front will be 6-5 Al Borden, a rangy lad who got hot in the stretch last year, and 6-4 Mike DiNapoli, who missed last season because of academic problems. In backcourt 5-8 Russ Cunningham returns, and his play in the NIT leads us to believe that he has finally become a mature soph back from army service, 6-0 Ray Paprocky. The bench isn't particularly strong but that first unit can run shoot and play a strong defense when it has the mind to.

WAKE FOREST: . . . Wake Forest Coach Bones McKinney is faced with a problem that's not likely to win any sympathy. The problem: with a locker room full of talent both old and new, whom do you start? Well, you can start 6-6 senior Dave Budd, top scorer and rebounder the past couple of years, and 6-8 soph Len Chappell, just about the top prospect in the conference. After that, the choices become more difficult. Aspiring to be Budd's running mate at forward are 6-8 junior Jerry Steele, 6-6 senior Winston Wiggins, neither of whom did much last year, and two more excellent sophs, 6-5 Frank Loeffler and 6-7 Gene Compton. In the backcourt, the selections involve 6-0 Charlie Forte and 6-0 George Ritchie, starting guards for the past two years, and again, two outstanding soph prospects, 5-11 Dave Wieldman and 5-10 Billy Packer (son of Tony Packer, Lehigh's basketball and baseball coach). The prize newcomer, of course is Chappell, a Pennsylvania High School sensation who came within 12 points of matching the three-year total of 2,252 points amassed by a Phila. schoolboy named Wilt Chamberlain.

ST. BONAVENTURE: . . . The Bonnies from upstate New York promise to be tough this year. They have the Stith brothers, Tom and Sam back from last season's 22-3 team. Coach Eddie Donovan hopes that 6-9 sophomore Bob McCully will be able to take over the center slot so that 6-5 Tom Stith will be able to go back to his natural position at forward. If McCully lives up to expectations Stith should improve on his 18.3 scoring average of last year. The other forward spot will be held down by Bill Connery. 6-2 senior Sam Stith who averaged over 14 points a game last season, will be at guard along with Whitey Martin. Two sophomores 6-3 Tom Hannon and 6-0 Mike Connelly give Donovan added bench strength.

BOSTON COLLEGE: . . . The Eagles have only one starter back from last season's team, he is 6-1 Chuch Chevalier, a guard. Teaming with him at guard will be 6-3 Ray Falvey. 6-4 soph sensation Jim Hooley will hold down one forward spot, and could prove to be the scoring punch the B. C. club needs. His running mate will probably be 6-0 Jack Shoppmeyer. Frank Quinn a 6-6 senior is the starting center. Several sophomores could give these boys quite a tussle for a regular position. 6-2 Bill Foley, 6-3 Paul Jamin, 6-0 Bill Donovan, and 6-4 Bill Fitzpatrick should all see plenty of action.

DuQUESNE: . . . Last year's club won thirteen and dropped twelve. This year coach John Manning should have a better record if 6-9 junior Bob Slobodnik improves and becomes more aggressive. 6-7 senior Frank Grebowski and 6-4 senior George Brown give the Dukes plenty of height under the boards. Manning's main problem will be replacing his graduate backcourt star Bernie Mathews. He may use 6-5 Paul Benec or 6-2 Bill Strom, or 5-9 Bill Stromple, all sophomores. 6-4 junior Ron Cygrymus, and 6-6 sophomore Clyde Arnold.

MUHLENBERG: . . . Coach J. Birney Crum lost two men who scored over 800 points between them last year. Coach Crum still expects to put five lettermen from last years third place M.A.C. team, on the floor. 6-5 Dick Sekunda last year's number two scorer should be the Mules top scoring threat. 6-7 Don Robbins, and 6-4 Ron Drunkenmiller should round out their front line. Back-court starters should be 6-1 Joe Berghold and 6' George Gilfillan. 6-8 Herb Leffler could be a suprise starter. The best sophs are 6-2 Chris Hiotis 6-2 Jack Superka, and 6-6 Dick Hunt.

SETON HALL: . . . The Pirates struggle to reclaim national recognition rests mainly on three sophomores' shoulders. Coach Haney Russell plans to use 6-5 Art Hicks, a transfer from Northwestern and a spectacular Chicago high school star. He will be in the front line with lettermen Jack Rowley, 6-5, and 6-7 sophomore Hank Gunter. The guards will be sharp-shooting Al Senavitis 6-1, who scored 18.6 for last year's club. Experienced 6-0 Ken Walker will round out the five. The bench strength is impressive with nine of eleven lettermen returning from last year's thirteen and ten club.

WAGNER: . . . Coach Herb Sutter lost only one lettermen through graduation. He expects to start five seniors: 6-4 Fred Blackwell, 6-6 Hal Junta, 5-10 Milford Pierce, 5-10 Harry Orlando, and 5-11 Pete Worth. 6-7 junior college transfer, Bobby Larsen could be the Staten Island club's answer to their height problem. Pierce graduates at mid-year and should be replaced by lightning fast Ron George a 6-0 sophomore. Walter Brooks a 6-1 sophomore should help out the depths of the situation.

NORTH CAROLINA STATE: . . . The Wolf pack who posted a 22-4 season's record last year, have been hurt by graduation. Coach Everett Cast lost 4 of last year's starters. Only 6-0 senior Dan Englehardt remains from last year's starting quintet, however, as usual Case has a wealth of talent to draw from. 6-6 center Bob DiStefano, 6-4 Don Gallager and 6-6 Bruce Headley will make up an impressing front line. Bob McCann and 6-5 Harold Atkins could well be the other two starters. They all will be pushed by 6-5 Larry Lakins and 6-10 Larry Ranta. This year's sophomore crop which should get better later in the season includes: 6-8 John Key, last year's frosh high scorer; 6-0 George Finnigan; 6-6 Russ Marvel; 6-3 Dan Wherry; 6-2 Anton Muelhbaure and 6-1 Denny Lutz.

TOLEDO: . . . Coach Ed Melvyn has 4 double figure point producers returning from last years 11-13 team. Returning are 5-9 junior Bob Pawlak and 6-4 junior Jerry Garlicki at guards; 6-3 senior Willie Newson, a forward, and 6-5 senior John Papcun, a center. The Rockets have much experience to choose from in their quest for a fifth man. Either 6-2 senior Ron Oranski, 6-4 junior Paul Macy or senior Bernie Cavey. Three sophomores will comprise the rest of the bench string: 6-1 Ralph Lewis may crash in to Melvyn's give-and-go system: Jim Miller and Don Gasey also show promise.

SIENA

Coach Dan Cunha, who has established one of the finest collegiate records with 189 victories and only 153 defeats will be starting his 16th season at the helm of Siena College's basketball team.

Cunha has had only six losing seasons at Siena. His best seasons were in 1949-50 when his teams won 27 and lost five, including the National Catholic Invitation tournament championship, and in 1951-52, when the Indians won 25 of 31 games.

GETTYSBURG: . . . will be forced to rely heavily on sophomores and juniors to try to improve their 13-13 record of last seasn. He's got two notshot soph backcourt prospects going for him in the persons of 5-10 Ron Warner and 6-0 Bob (Wheaties) Parker. Warner and Parker averaged 28 and 22 points per game respectively as frosh in leading the Bullet yearlings to an 18-3 record.

Bob Parker

THE BIG FIVE — BIG QUESTION

Some of the greatest basketball in the country will be played by Philadelphia's Big Five this season. The Big Five, comprised of St. Joseph's, Villanova, LaSalle, Temple, and Penn will try to gun down the top teams in the country, and will battle for supremacy in the powder keg City Series.

At the moment the experts have picked St. Joe's at the top of the Big Five and Penn at the bottom with Villanova, LaSalle, and Temple warring for the runner-up spot.

In looking at the city ball clubs in their quests for national ranking, there are a lot of questions that remain to be answered. Will St. Joe's be able to dispel the jitters in the clutch? How much will the Hawks miss Joe Spratt?

Can Villanova replace Jim Kenny? Is John Driscoll still ashamed of his elbows? Is too much expected of Hubie White?

How Strong Is LaSalle?

Will LaSalle get some solid scoring up front? Can Bob Alden stay with the opponent's big men? Will Joe Heyer be more consistent this year?

Can Temple get a fast break attack rolling without much height? How much will inexperience hinder the all important sophs? Have the Owls finally come up with someone to work with "Pickles" Kennedy?

Will Penn show up this year?

Each team seems to have question marks but St. Joe's definitely has the fewest. The haranguing Hawk fans should have plenty to shout about this season.

Jack Ramsey's Birdmen seem to have everything: experience, depth, shooting, height, speed, and balance. Minus Joe Spratt, this is the same team that got nipped by West Virginia in the NCAA tourney last year.

Spratt Most Valuable

We feel that Spratt was the Hawk's most valuable player last year, however both Frank Majewski and Vince Kempton are supposed to be competent replacements for him. Right now, Majewski seems to have the starting spot won because of a hot shooting hand in practice.

Along with Majewski, Ramsey will start an all-veteran quintet. At the other forward spot will be 6-5 junior John Egan, a rugged rebounder and shooter, who shattered Villanova last year.

6-9 Bob Clarke, a distinct scoring threat will be the center. The stringy senior is a big man with a potent jump shot.

The Hawks real artillery is in the back court. Senior guards Joe Gallo and Bobby McNeill have been playing together since high school, have assumed a lot of polish and are murder on the fast break.

McNeill All-American?

McNeill, the Hawks' captain, is being boosted for All-American by the rabid fans of St. Joseph's. He is a deadly shot and averaged 16.4 points a game last season with sharp left-handed sets and jumpers. He is the leader on the court and handed off 175 assists.

McNeill played below par in the NCAA tourney last year and with the rest of the Hawks will be aiming for another chance. He seems to have but one weakness, a weak right hand.

The Hawks have so much talent that Ramsey cut some players that would be welcome additions to many clubs, among them veteran Jack Hoffacker and soph Dan Bugey. Only one member from the freshman squad made the team, Harry Booth, 5-9 guard.

Another team with a wealth of veterans is Dudley Moore's LaSalle Explorers. This may be the surprise team of the east. The Explorers have their five top scorers back and they may be able to shoot down the high-flying Hawks.

Philadelphia should be known in basketball circles as the city of guards, LaSalle is an important contributor. Senior backcourt specialists Joe Heyer and Ralph "Chink" Bantivoglio make up one of the city's three top duos.

Heyer has a sharp jumpshot but is somewhat erratic. Bantivoglio is LaSalle's clutch man. He has a quick set and is the team's zone killer, playmaker, and defensive standout.

The LaSalle starting forwards Hugh Brolly and "Herky" Herdelin are tough and strong but need to improve on their "outside" shooting. Herdelin was fourth in the country in field goal percentage with 56 per cent, mostly from underneath, but was weak on foul shooting.

The key man for the Explorers is center Bob Alden who must toughen up if the Explorers are to excel.

"Pickles" Best

The best player in the city is Bill "Pickles" Kennedy and Temple has him. The Cherry and White had him last year and only managed to win six of its twenty-five games. 5-11 Captain "Pickles" averaged 19.5 points a game and handed out 125 of the 192 assists credited to the entire Temple team.

He would have had a great many more except that his teammates were often unable to hold onto his dazzling passes.

The blond Temple terror is a sure shot All-American and is the possessor of a multitude of shots, keen reflexes, and guts (time after time he drives down the key with up to 600 lbs. hanging on him).

The Owls should be able to avoid the chaos that was last year's season. They have come up with two little men who can handle the ball in 5-10 Bruce Drysdale and 5-11 John Koskinen.

Drysdale is an excellent ball handler and a hard driver and should give Coach Harry Litwak a running back court. Drysdale was high scorer on Temple's once beaten freshmen team.

Koskinen was the second high scorer on the Owlets with an 11.8 average and will probably spell Drysdale without weakening the Owl backcourt much.

Litwak has said that he will start four sophs with "Pickles." Along with Drysdale, Litwak has selected 6-4 Russ Gordon to play center, with 6-3 Ed Devery and 6-3 Earl Proctor at forward.

Gordon, Devery, and Proctor are supposed to be strong rebounders and capable shots.

Ivens Important

We feel that it won't take long for Bernie Ivens to work his way back into the starting lineup. Ivens, who was Temple's No. 2 scorer last year, has a great jump shot and it will be sorely needed.

The Red and Blue are green. Their playing at times will probably make Coach Jack McCloskey a little green. Penn has one part-time starter and three reserves back from the team that compiled a 12-14 record.

Bob Mlkvy is Penn's only bright spot. At 6-4, he is a rugged rebounder and a stellar shot. But one man can't do it all, as Temple found out last year.

The other starters will probably be 6-4 Joe Cook, a slow, unwieldy individual; Stu Greenleaf, probably the best shot outside of Mlkvy; John Canzano and Dave Kwait, both junior guards. 6-5 sub Hugh Aberman should help off the boards.

How does Villanova compare? It appears too many people have short memories. There have been a lot of very zealous predictions around campus. Those close to the scene have their fingers crossed and their mouths shut. One thing though, team work is the key here.

Graduate Theatre Opens Tomorrow With 'Our Town'

Navy Commander Appears In Lead

The Theatre Department's production of Thornton Wilder's "Our Town" will open tomorrow evening in Vasey Hall Auditorium. This will be the Department's first major production since its inception last year.

Tickets for the production may be obtained in the Pie Shoppe and from cast members. They may be reserved by telephoning extension 391. Price is $1.80 for general admission and $1.25 for students.

The play's cast includes both graduate and undergraduate students. Commander Claude Frasier, executive officer of Villanova's NROTC unit, will play the lead role of the stage manager.

Frasier, currently studying for his Master's degree in Theatre Arts, has been in the Navy since 1941. He was graduated from Bowdoin College and became a Navy aviator.

Fighter Pilot

During World War II, the Commander served as a fighter pilot. Since then he has been stationed in many parts of the world, and has served as navigator of the USS Forrestal.

Since last April he has been stationed at Villanova. He resides currently in Stratford, Pa.

Stanley Moore, a former navy man, now a sophomore at Villanova, is featured in the role of George, the young Grovers Corners boy around whom much of the play is written. The role of Emilie will be played by Suzanne Bruni, a Rosemont senior. Miss Bruni is president of Jest and Gesture, Rosemont's dramatic society.

Sue Ahrold of Des Moines, Iowa, and Jeanne Miclot of Davenport, Iowa, play Mrs. Webb and Mrs. Gibbs, respectively. Both Miss Ahrold and Miss Miclot previously played together in 12 productions at Clark College in Dubuque.

Other Players

The role of the laconic, "New England" Doc Gibbs is played by Dennis Cunningham, formerly of LaSalle. Michael Tanney, also a LaSalle Graduate, plays Editor Webb.

Completing the cast are Owen Klein as Howie Hewsome, the town milkman, Gilda Spurio as Mrs. Soames, the town gossip who "just loves a wedding," Thomas Sines as Simon Stimpson, the town drunk who conducts the church choir, and Richard Harshburger as the rambling professor.

In a dual capacity is Paul Buckley, who is playing Constable Warren and serving as assistant director.

Suzanne Bruni (Emily) and Stanley Moore (George) as seen in wedding scene from "Our Town". In rear is Comm. Claude Frazier.

Fr. Klekotka Will Speak At Council Forum Tonite

The Very Rev. John A. Klekotka, OSA, president, will address the student body tonight at the third in the series of Student Council forums.

Father Klekotka will speak on "Villanova University — Past, Present, and Future," at 8 p.m. in the Day Hop Cafeteria in Dougherty Hall.

Neil Drislane, Chairman of the Academic Affairs Committee of the Council, declared that "because of the unusual nature of the forum, we expect it to be attended by faculty and administration as well as student body.

Outline Development

"We expect Father Klekotka to outline development of Villanova, to explain its current aims, and to indicate plans for the future.

"Also we hope Father will answer questions from the audience when the address is concluded."

Because the committee expects a great deal of interest in the question-answer period, it will not follow the customary format for forums.

Instead, Tom Hoffman, chairman of the Council, will serve as moderator of the forum to assure that the questions put to Father Klekotka are of general nature and do not deal with petty or personal grievances.

Father Klekotka

"The purpose of coming so close to home in this forum is two-fold:

"One, we feel that the students are genuinely interested in the university and its future.

"Two, if the students realize what the administration is trying to accomplish, they will cooperate more fully with what appear to be trivial regulations, which up to now have seemed directed toward some larger goal."

On Sale Today

Death Theme Pervades Lynx

Death is the pervading theme of the 1959 edition of the LYNX, Villanova's literary magazine which goes on sale today.

Seven of the articles in the publication treat of death.

"The writers," said Editor Frank Murtha, "just seemed to be pre-occupied with death. Perhaps the articles don't speak for the student body as a whole, but perhaps they do."

Sudden Death

Pictures of death range from the sudden death of an automobile crash to the drawn out agony of fatal illness.

The tone departs from the macabre in one humor article by Dave Cutts, the story of a sheltered youth of 24, initiated into the ways of alcohol. "The tale is significant as it regards this campus," said Murtha.

Out of ten poems, only one deals with romantic love, the traditionally popular theme of college poets. The others vary from death, religious supplication, to melancholy.

"Perhaps," said Murtha, "the world that modern youth lives in allows us little time for romantic thoughts of love and heroic accomplishments."

Questionnaire

A questionnaire has been included in this issue to determine student preference for a college literary magazine. Murtha asks that they be filled out and deposited in the publications office, second floor Dougherty.

The LYNX may be obtained for 25 cents in either the Pie Shoppe of the C and F Cafeteria.

Police To Tag Parking Lot Violators

By James McAteer

Capt. Murphy

Disciplinary action will definitely be taken against any individual violating the rules in the parking lot, announced Tony Godwin, chairman of the Student Union and Special Problems Committee.

The parking problem has come to a head in recent weeks as Fred Smolinski and a special committee revealed numerous abuses of parking privileges.

Three weeks ago, Smolinski delivered a report before the Student Council in which he announced that the areas presenting the most difficulty are " the lots on either side of Ithan Avenue, where Arts and C & F day-hops try to fit their cars into the same spaces."

Ample Room

"There is ample room for parking, both on the newly-opened section of the Field House lot and toward the rear and center of the main lot. But students just won't drive the few extra feet."

Smolinski further stated that the reason for this appears to be that "everyone wants to be the first one out of the lot after class, so everyone tries to park as close to the exits as possible."

At the last Student Council meeting, when the problem was discussed further, both Bill Henry, Council parliamentarian, and Sheldon Pollock, Alumni representative, declared that they had been informed of abuses by a number of students.

Correct Situation

To correct the parking situation, Godwin, Rev. George McLaughlin, OSA, Dean of Men, and Capt. John Murphy, chief of campus police, plan to issue parking tickets to violators.

Students who have been ticketed twice will be subject to diciplinary action. No penalty has yet been set for parking violations, but some sort of fine is being considered.

Godwin, in commenting on his committee's action on the problem, declared that "both Father McLaughlin and Captain Murphy have been thinking as the committee has in this matter.

"We are sure that, with students aware of the problem, parking abuses will stop, but if they continue, the campus police and the discipline office will work with the committee to curtail violations.

"No penalty has been finally decided on because we are all sure that everyone is going to be reasonable about this. However, Father McLaughlin and Captain Murphy have given their assurance that a penalty will be immediately enforced when someone has received two warnings.

"Maybe if people are hit in the pocketbook or in some other way, they will realize the seriousness of the parking situation."

Officials Support Loyalty Demands For Loan Program

Villanova, in offering the recent national Student Loan program which has been attacked for its strict loyalty provisions, feels that the government is justified in exacting such a pledge.

In applying for a loan, a borrower must 1) swear allegiance to the U. S., and 2) file an affidavit that he does not believe in or support the Communist party.

Several colleges have refused the generous loans because of the loyalty requirements, including Harvard, Yale, Bryn Mawr, Haverford and Swarthmore.

Small Thing To Ask

Rev. Harry Erdlin, who is administering the program on campus, states that "it is a small thing to ask of the students to take such a pledge. Even a bank requires collateral when it makes a loan."

This also represents the viewpoint of Rev. John Klekotka, OSA, president.

In order to qualify for the loan, a student must show definite financial need and must be a superior student. Special consideration is given to prospective teachers and math. and science majors.

Tried Repeal

Several Senators tried to repeal the loyalty provision of the program and on the basis of unfairness, including Sen. John Kennedy (D-Mass.) and Sen. Edmund Muskie (D-Maine).

Muskie repeated his opposition to the provision in response to a question at the Law Forum last Wednesday.

"It's completely unfair," he said. "I receive membership cards in the mail every day, and I might be in a hundred subversive organizations and not know it. On this basis I'd be refused a loan."

Chemistry Professors Speak At Seminars

Dr. Kenneth F. O'Driscoll and Dr. Bernard J. Downey of the Chemistry department were Seminar speakers last week at two neighboring colleges.

O'Driscoll was the guest speaker at the Bryn Mowr College Chemistry Department Seminar on Friday, December 4. He spoke on "Lithium Initiated Vinyl Polymerization."

Far From Extinct

T'n'T To Spoof TV Quiz Scandals

Turf 'n Tinsel is planning to spoof the rigged TV quiz situation in its 1960 musical show, scheduled for May 1.

According to Rev. Henry B. Syvinski, moderator of the troupe, the show has been titled "I Remember Mummy," a title which he feels is amply indicative of the satirical nature of the show.

Auditions for non-chorus actors are scheduled for next Wednesday evening. Chorus line candidates will try out in January.

Full of Life

Father Syvinski scotched rumors that Turf 'n Tinsel was clinging to its very life, on the verge of extinction.

"These tales were false from the beginning," he asserted. "Turf 'n Tinsel is a strong tradition at Villanova. Only four other colleges have anything that compares to it in the student musical field, and we're not about to give it up."

Two of the other schools he mentioned were Penn, with its Mask and Wig, and Harvard, with its Hasty Pudding group.

He also took the occasion to deny that T 'n T is supported by the Administration, as was quoted in the VILLANOVAN.

"We're supported completely by admissions and patrons, and we even have our own checking account."

Father Syvinski

The story of "I Remember Mummy" is woven around a mummy factory, which is the sponsoring concern for a beauty contest to discover the Queen of the Nile. In competition are Misses Babylon, Pheonicia and Egypt.

The plot thickens when the mummy factory rigs the contest so that Miss Egypt wins. Pharoh demands an investigation and thus the satire on quiz rigging.

Sincere rehearsing will get underway after the semester break. The group is now working on the possibility of musical accompaniment.

Bob Whelan will write the music and George Pequinot is supervising production. George Naoke, who has been with T 'n T from the beginning, will be director, assisted by Miss Betty Gren, who puts on shows in Philadelphia high schools.

Arts Seniors Favor New Fine Arts Course Here

A poll taken last week by the Academic Affairs Committee of Student Council disclosed that an overwhelming majority of polled students favor introducing a fine arts course into Villanova's academic curriculum.

The survey was conducted in four of Dr. Robert O'Shea's senior Ethics classes. Of the 108 students who filled out the Council's questionaire, 95 expressed interest in some phase of the plan.

The program, as originally submitted by Eileen Greyson to the Congress, would include art appreciation, music, and sculptoring, and would be offered as an elective course for upperclassmen.

Overwhelming Support

Ken Kraemer, executive vice president of educational affairs for the Council, said the tabulated vote was broken down as follows: "85 of those interviewed said that they would be willing to take the course and furthermore that they could work it into their schedules next semester.

"Seven expressed interest in the program but said they couldn't fit it in. Of the seventeen who dissented, three said they would not be interested in the course but would be willing to take associated field trips to the Museum of art, Academy of music and other cultured spots."

Miss Greyson said that she will present these figures to the Student - Faculty committee meeting tomorrow evening. "At the last session the faculty members expressed interest in our plan but said that when the course was taught at Villanova several years ago, a few students took the course.

Enough Interest

"We feel now though that there is enough student interest in such a program to merit the Administration's consideration to incorporate it into the curriculum."

Miss Greyson further stated that there are several faculty members who are qualified to teach fine arts.

Concert Band To Open Season With Singers Tomorrow

The Villanova Concert Band will open its season when it joins the Villanova Singers in a Christmas Concert at St. John's Orphanage tomorrow.

The second scheduled musical presentation will be a combined effort on the part of the Villanova Band, the Singers, and the Rosemont College Chorus.

This will be a Christmas program presented in the Filed House on December 15. It is open to all Villanova and Rosemont students, faculty, and staff members.

Charity Ball To Be Held Friday In Field House

The Charity Ball, usually an integral part of the Orphans' Weekend, but this year a separate Junior class event will be held Friday night in the Field House.

Lou Denison's orchestra will supply the music for the affair. Tickets are priced at $2, which can be purchased in the Pie Shoppe.

In past years the dance kicked off the Junior class's orphans' weekend, the outing and party being held subsequent to it. This year, however, a basketball game was scheduled for the night before the outing (last Friday) hence the ball had to be pushed back to Friday night.

Christmas Motif

According to Chet Buttonow, general chairman of the dance, the theme will have a Christmas motif. Buttonow's chairmen include Ron Grasczyk, refreshments; Phil Sheats, decorations; Andy Stenicky, tickets; and John Vaughey and Mike Pilla, publicity.

Bob Scalia, president of the Junior class, announced that the proceeds from the dance will underwrite the costs of the Orphans' Party held yesterday at St. John's orphanage in Philadelphia.

Anything left over will be channeled into the Orphans' Scholarship Fund. This plan provides money to defray expenses of Orphans from St. John's Home who intend to matriculate at Villanova.

Library Displays Now Available

The display cases in the Library are available to all recognized campus organizations, announced Bohdan Procko, of the History Department.

Procko, head of the Publicity Committee of the Faculty-Library Committee, has stated that organizations wishing to erect displays in the cases should contact Miss Mary Dorrian, reference Librarian.

Dr. Khouri's Article To Appear in WHIRL

Dr. Fred J. Khouri, professor of political science at Villanova, has written on world economic conditions for the forthcoming issue of the Business Whirl,

In this article, Khouri probes the American foreign aid program in undeveloped countries and the reasoning behind it.

He notes the danger of Soviet influence in these countries and the mounting importance of the United States in keeping an upper hand in these areas.

Khouri received his B. S., M. A., and Ph.D. from Columbia University. He is a recognized authority in the field of International Relations, Law, and Organization of Middle Eastern Affairs.

While traveling through the Middle East for three months in 1958, Khouri personally investigated the economic and technical assistance programs of both the United States and Russia.

LYNX Editor Murtha Ponders First Novel

Today marks a high point in the college career of one Frank Murtha. For as editor-in-chief of the campus literary magazine, Murtha will finally bear the fruits of his labors as the LYNX goes on sale today in the Pie Shop.

Besides being editor-in-chief, Frank reefers to himself as an "occasional contributor" to the LYNX, and a "sometime columnist" for the VILLANOVAN. Frank is also captain of the Villanova Rifle team and a member of the French Club, of which he was president in his sophomore and junior year.

Frank is even a sportsman of sorts. He was a member of the V.U. track team in both his second and third years. But one of his chief interests and one in which he has been especially successful is the Beta Gamma Debating Club.

The debating society last year, awarded Frank a special plaque for individual spaking honors. A consistant member of the dean's list throughout his four years at Villanova, Frank was the salutorian for his graduating class at St. John's Prep in Brooklyn, where he also starred as an All-City halfback.

Presently working towards his bachelor's degree in English, Frank intends to enter law school upon graduation. But second only to law, his greatest love is writing. The students of Villanova have seen much of Frank's literary efforts via the LYNX and the VILLANOVAN. But one faucet of his writing talents which few people are aware of, is that of a novelist.

FRANK MURTHA

Frank is currently working on his first novel, which he began about five months ago. This is one aspect of Frank Murtha that refuses exposure.

Frank, eventually hopes to put himself through law school with the royalities from his novel. He ultimately hopes to make a career in the Judical branch of the federal government.

Jeanne M. Ward Becomes Research Associate Here

The Communities Research Institute of the School of Law of Villanova University has announced the appointment of Jeanne M. Ward, an attorney, of Merion, as Research Associate.

Miss Ward, a member of the Pennsylvania bar, is a graduate of Rosemont College and the Villanova University Law School. She served as law clerk for United States District Court Judge Francis L. Van Dusen and was Associate Counsel to the National Accident and Health Insurance Company of Philadelphia.

Fulbright Fellow

During the year 1958-59 Miss Ward was a Fulbright Fellow, studying at University College, Dublin, where she undertook a comparative study of the United States and Irish Constitutions.

Villanova's Communities Research Institute, founded in 1959, conducts programs of research upon legal topics relating to community and regional planning, development and zoning.

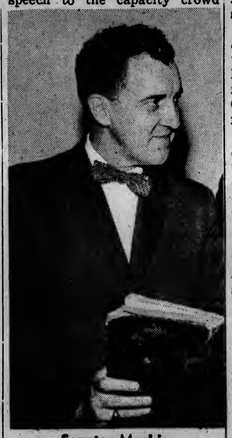
Senator at Forum

Muskie Against Birth Control Aid

Senator Edmund Muskie of Maine, speaker at the third Law Forum last Wednesday night, emphasized President Eisenhower's dictum concerning the government's attitude on dispensing birth control data to overpopulated nations.

"I agree with the president's words of today on the subject," he responded to a question on the subject.

Muskie was implicitly touching on the problem of Sen. John Kennedy (D-Mass.), leading Catholic presidential candidate, who was being hammered by elements to certify whether or not he would allow Church doctrine to interfere with his office if elected.



Next Question

Muskie dropped the subject immediately and proceeded with the next question, apparently satisfied that his answer was sufficient.

(Pres. Eisenhower had stated Wednesday in a press conference that as long as he was president, the U.S. would have no part in the dissemination of birth control literature or aid. Kennedy had contended that the U. S. should adhere to a policy of non-interference in the matter.)

Muskie himself has been discussed in some corners as a potential Democratic vice-presidential candidate. He is Maine's first Catholic senator.

The topic of the Senator's speech to the capacity crowd was his recent trip to the Soviet Union.

Senator Muskie

Russia Plodding

Russia is plodding farther and farther into the lead in technocracy, missiles, teaching and hydroelectric power, he said. "But it's not time for us to start predicting our doom. Of course they'll be producing more washing machines, but they have many more housewives who need them."

Muskie was impressed with the amiability of the Russian people. "Never did we encounter a person who wasn't friendly and curious about our way of life," he said.

The predictions by some U. S. experts that Communistic Russia is bound to crumble from within because of the faulty system was sharply refuted by Muskie.

Little Discontent

"There is little or no discontent among the citizens. They have never known freedom, and so they don't miss it. They know where their government is headed (toward a better standard of living) and they are willing to support and follow it."

The late Secretary of State John Foster Dulles was one of the experts who Muskie cited as having erroneously held that we merely have to wait until the Communist nation deteriorates from within.

The situation was completely different in Poland, he added. "These people once knew freedom and are now longing for it once more."

Free Mind

The United States has one possession which the Russians, with all their technological achievement, can never match, he said.

"They might have their missiles and their hydro-electric plants, but in America we have a free mind—of immeasurably more importance in the long run. America had better not ignore the true development of the free mind."

Following the talk, Muskie allowed himself to be questioned in an informal coffee gathering. He took the occasion to detail the chance for a Catholic in a presidential race.

"Prejudice is definitely breaking down," he said. "People are more and more accepting candidates on their own merit. Take a look at Pat Brown of California, McCarthy of Minnesota, Lawrence of Pennsylvania, and myself in Maine."

Kennedy in Lead

Muskie felt that Sen. Kennedy was definitely in the lead in the Democratic race. "But, believe me, the big hurdle for Kennedy will be the convention, not the election. The politicians will be extremely selective about choosing a possible winner," he said.

He became rather insistant in a quick defence of the American Public School System in argument with one man who bemoaned the fact that Catholic school get no preferential treat-

USSR Federation Wasn't Voluntary, Procko States

"Without exception, the inclusion of states within the U.S.S.R. was definitely forceable," said Mr. Bohdan Procko of the History Department in an address before the I.R.S. last Thursday.

Bohdan Procko

The lecture, entitled "Unusual Problems of American Diplomacy in Eastern Europe," was an approach to common misconceptions about the U.S.S.R.

Procko developed his lecture along two points; the first, an explanation of the source of difficulty in terminology, and the second an exposition of common myths about the Soviet Union.

He presented several points as examples of these myths. Russia is only a unit within the U.S.S.R., which is definitely not a voluntary federation. And, as he emphasized, "To call a Lithuanian a Russian is like calling an Irishman an Englishman."

He went on to say that 'even American historians, journalists, and statesmen are confused."

Empirical Influence

Causes of this are extensive, Procko said. They range from the empirically influenced St. Petersburg school, which brought Eastern European history to America, to the favorable U.S.S.R. propaganda of the World War.

"Unless U. S. foreign policy is realistically re-oriented to existing conditions, adverse psychological problems will breed within colonies of the U.S.S.R." he concluded.

That Insult Factor

Loans are getting harder to receive. The last Congress enacted an extremely generous loan service for students, generous by any standards, with but ony two stringent provisions: A borrower must not only swear allegiance to America, but he must also file an affidavit that he is in no way a Red or even a Pink, and that he would never entertain the thought of becoming one or the other.

Fourteen of the so-called liberal colleges in the country promptly refused the aid, moaning with their characteristic sophistication that the affidavit is insulting. The vast majority of institutions, including Villanova, were in no position to turn back thousands of dollars in federal funds. Villanova certainly can't boast of the lavish endowments of Harvard and Yale.

The loyalty clause does present us with one enigma: Would a Communist hesitate to sign such an oath? Senator Muskie at the Law forum didn't seem to think so. In fact, he, a prominant Catholic stateman, voted to repeal the loyalty provisions along with Senator Kennedy of Massachusetts. (Kennedy is probably suffering nightmares of his own about Protestant clergymen forcing him to sign an affidavit against papist influence.)

We might pose another rhetorical question: What would we lose by loans falling into the leftist hands of a subversive? It would seem that an education never did a Communist any harm. In fact, an education in any one of the subsidized schools, especially in a Catholic school, might even serve to neutralize some degrees of Pinkism.

Muskie also felt perturbed at the insult factor of the affidavit. The government seems to say "Of course we know your not a Communist, of course we trust you; but just sign this affidavit anyway so we can clap you in jail if we find you're lying."

Naturally we must admit that Communists of any shade could possibly sabotage a liberal institution if running around loose. And the loyalty requisite might be the safest and surest insurance against that. But that insult factor (to say nothing of the thought-control factor) somehow lingers.

Park It Proper

Few school newspapers allow a year to pass without taking at least a token slap at the poor parking practices of car-driving students in the parking lot. The usual editorial will berate the student for a variety of malpractices, flinging such bromides as "discourteous," "inconsiderate," "tactless," "thoughtless" at the culprits.

But feel relieved that the VILLANOVAN will no longer find it necessary to condemn the grotesque habits of poor parkers. It's evident by now that past warnings by newspaper and Administration officials have received no effective reaction. Even the usual appeal to common sense has been lost in that jungle of automobilia across the pike.

So at last the campus police force has taken its own editorial stand which will hardly require any further elaboration in this journal. Where persuasion has failed, they have introduced coercion. Block an entrance now, driver, and your car will be quickly tagged by an officer of the law, rendering flagrant discourtesy on your part an expensive mistake.

A story related at the Student Council meeting last week on the subject was poignant indeed. One student was blocked in his parking space for an hour, causing him to be an hour late for work, causing his employer to deal him a harsh reprimand. This isn't an isolated instance, we are told.

Captain Murphy has a year's supply of parking tickets and is eager to dispense them.

Kennedy Fights Lost Battle; Church Dealing Lethal Blow

By Bill Speers

Recently a Jesuit theologian stated that "it would clearly be wrong" for a Roman Catholic president to support any program that would promote birth control. This is obviously in reference to the recent trumped-up plan to send birth control aids to underdeveloped and overpopulated areas of the world.

In referring to a "Roman Catholic president" the moralist undoubtly means democratic hopefuls, John Kennedy of Massachutts and Pat Brown of California—in particular Kennedy.

Lately, the blocks thrown in Kennedy's path, in his drive for the presidency, have been greater and more numerous. We heard one news report state last week that a vast anti-Catholic offensive will soon be launched in the Midwest and from there branch out through the rest of the country, in an all-out attempt to halt the possible election of a Catholic president.

Statements by prominent Church leaders in political affairs serve only to add more fuel to the ever popular American belief that if elected to the presidency, a Catholic would finally be controlled by the Church.

We don't know whether Kennedy's the right man for the chief executive post; nor do we care. The question argued here is whether the Church as a religious body, know its place? Does the Church have a right to involve itself in the affairs of any of its members except those dealing with faith or morals?

One may point out, and rightfully so, that birth control is a moral issue. But the Church's stand on this point has been known for centuries, why bring it up when it has been introduced as a political question and not a moral one; especially when every statement made by a Catholic clergyman in the heat of the presidential campaign will be go against Kennedy since he will be seen, to the confirmation of all anti-Catholics, as a myrmidon of the Church.

An explicit statement such as that made by the Jesuit scholar seems, to us, to be at the least entirely unfair to Kennedy as a presidential candidate and insulting to him as a Catholic. Unfair because it forces him to wage, a two-fisted battle; convincing the people of his capabilities as a world leader on one hand, while attempting to harness the people of the United States into accepting his Catholicism, on the other.

An insult because as a mature man, from one of America's foremost Catholic families, he is not permitted to take a stand of his own on an important political question of the day.

We wonder why the Protestants of this country, continue to differentiate between a non-Catholic and a Catholic presidential candidate?

Food Solution

There seem to be two answers to the sore problem about the food being served in the cafeteria and the dining hall. One faction maintains that the food is of poor quality to begin with, while another group maintains that the quality of the food is satisfactory but the method of preparation is at fault.

I propose to solve the problem by the process of elimination. Since the Student Council is looking for programs to offer to the student, Isuggest that they procure the services of an established chef from one of the leading restaurants or hotels for the purpose of preparing a Sunday dinner.

If the student notices an improvement in the meal then the logical conclusion will be that the method of preparation has been at fault. If no improvement is noted then the quality of the food will be the obvious answer to Villanova's food problem.

William Sabo

CAMPUS CAMERA

Question: In recent weeks, certain Protestant clergymen have tried to corner Sen John Kennedy (D-Mass.), to allay their trepidation about a Catholic using the White House to disseminate the Pope's ideas on Birth Control. Kennedy maintained, in defense, that giving out aid to promote Birth Control in foreign countries would be unjustly interfering in their internal affairs. What do you think of Kennedy's stand on the matter?"

I agree with Senator Kennedy that we should let the countries regulate and control their own population the way they see fit. This is also in agreement with President Eisenhower who stated that the U.S. would not interfere in the internal affairs of other countries. The foreign aid given to these countries is not expressly stated for any one purpose therefore they may do anything with it that will help solve their problems.

Ed Fittipaldi, Soc. Studies '61

Under the conditions it would be impossible for Senator Kennedy to take any other stand. As a Catholic he could not back any resolutions that are condemned by the Church. As a potential presidential candidate he had to side-step and redirect any questions that would hurt his candidacy. No Catholic can put political aspirations over what knows to be morally right Kennedy, even if it cost him the nomination cannot back down from his anti-birth control stand.

Pat Foley, Psych. '61

Senator Kennedy's statement is similar in type to his other recent remarks; it is seemingly calculated to assure non-Catholics that his religion would not influence his policies if he were elected president. In his anxiety to appear unhampered by his religion Kennedy may be painting himself as a man with little forcefulness. Admittedly the Senator is on a political tightrope, but if he hopes to lead the country he must convince her people that he will fight for what he feels right—and certainly his moral beliefs contribute to these opinions.

Jim Strazzella, Arts '61

Kennedy did what was expected, and he will lose the nomination because of this. His only defense is a factual offense. The point is, really not birth rates themselves, but population density vs. development. And the fact is that dense India's development compares very unfavorably with more developed countries of greater density—like the Netherlands, Great Britain, Italy, Belgium, and Switzerland. Furthermore, Japan has one of the highest densities and yet is supporting her people the bst of the and yet is supporting her people the best of the first problem is not desity but adequate development. Kennedy could have made birth control advocates look like a union for old-maid alarmists, if he had prepared a good solid development program.

Pith-Helmet Plague Palpable; Princeton Pedants Probable

natalie attired

Iconociasts and clam connoisseurs . . . let's go to press! ! !

WE GOT FLICKS . . . The Student Council sponsored another motion picture Monday evening. The picture starring Audie Murphy about Audie Murphy was donated by Mrs. Murphy. While many students watched "To Hell and Back", many students went to hell and back to see the 'Cat five cage Gettysburg.

DIAGNOSIS PLEASE . . This writer strongly recommends more detailed prognosis for infirmary patients. It is rumored that a "slow to learn" freshman stopped in the other day at the local house of mercy to inquire about the location of the nurses' lounge. We understand he left fifteen minutes later with a penicillin shot, three aspirins, some red pills to be taken every four hours. (But then he must have been sick . . . look where he wanted to go.)

WHO NEEDS WORK . . . Last Thursday several seniors learned of many advantages of college life and the disadvantages of the "working world". A few cynical seniors stood at the doors as the conference let out passing out application blanks for graduate school and orders for mourning cloths for liberal arts students.

FILLING SPACE . . . Checking a certain display "en la biblioteca" (library) we wonder if they were celebrating the recent goblins, night or were pushing local Mau-Mau membership.

DEAD IVY . . . Weren't you impressed by the Ivy Tigers at P.U.? The subtle student body in north Jersey found no use for Brook Brothers, but are eagerly supporting fire sales at such reputable clothing houses as I. Goldberg & Sons, and Army and Navy surplus. The attitude of the orange and black rooters was certainly given a basis by the Tiger five.

SENIOR PIX . . . The Prattle Prevaricator has it on good authority that senior portraits will be handled entirely by the Daily News. Samples of their group pictures were passed around campus earlier this year.

TRADITION . . . The first of the two annual Witch Trials began last week. It is the sincere hope for this writer that the contest will be actively supported; even though we have tablishing tradition.

BIRD-TALK . . . it was found that the mention of turkey today-hops brought many greenish leers. A big turkey lasts and lasts and lasts.

NO MORE TWAIN . . . Backed by reliable information we find it necessary to inform our tele-viewing readers not to be alarmed if "Wagon Train" is taken off the air. It seems that Jimmy Hoffa has threatened to unionize all wagon drivers.

THAT'S WHAT THEY'RE CALLED . . . Jack Valva, co-head of the Spirit Committee, in trying to show the possibilities connected with the thrill of owning your own pith-helmet", has suggested among other roguish and genuine ideas that the school seal be imprinted on the top, along with your fraternity initials, a big "V", the telephone number where you can be reached off campus, and your girl's name. Gee, I'll say!

PRATTLE PROVERB . . . "The quality of mercy is not strained" . . . so what?

Colleges Cultivate Cocky Ivy Clubs

JIM McDONOUGH
Guest Columnist

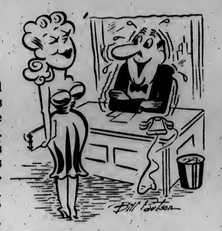
FROM TIME TO TIME it is wise to ponder gingerly upon the "what" of a college education. If we do, we come to realize that college is four years of relatively burdenless time.

What I mean to say is, that we have at our disposal a great amount of time free from the routine responsibilities

College is that period in our lives when we evaluate and test the sturdiness of our society's foundations. As students, we are obliged to dissect and probe for an understanding of our kaleidoscopic world.

The opportunity is presented to us to lay open the matrices of our community for an intelligent appraisal. However, this has not been true, for we have shirked our educational responsibilities and have formed a wall between us and society.

BECAUSE OF OUR immaturity and child-like fear of responsibility, we have created the Ivy club. The Ivy club is an exclusive, bigoted, intolerant big boys' organization. And in the true American spirit we have rallied around and have jumped right in without even a thought about its restricting regulations on speech, dress, thought, and conduct.



Regulations which tend to engulf and suffocate like a great Ivy plant. How cocky we are in our neat button-down society—men to be envied and emulated! Here we stand smug and sure in our Pinnochio playground. We have done the exact opposite of what we should, and instead of becoming doctors of society we have become its patients.

WE ARE TREATED like children with the attitude being that we are o be put up with until we have matured. We cannot escape the fact, however, we have failed in any communication with our community. Why is it that every time we venture out into the world we are met with sarcastic comments like "didn't they teach you that at college?", or "you don't learn this at college sonny boy"?

It is simply because the community as a whole has no respect for us as young men, and can you blame them when we don't even have respect for ourselves? In our small fabricated world we live denying reality. We live the lie. Our society is designed to ward off any undesireable responsibility; and the price we pay is complete frustration in understanding our fellow Americans.

College should be the commencement of the full active life not the last stronghold of childhood. We must get out and meet with the people.

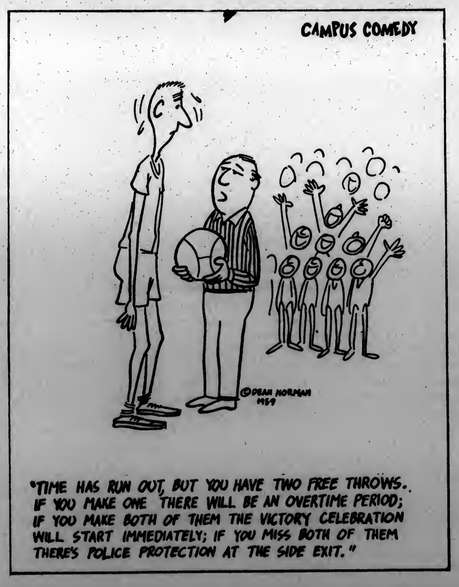
Student Support Required To Insure A Successful Season

tom hoffman

WITH THREE GAMES under our basketball belt, and still an unblemished record, the spirit along the Main Line might make up for the lack of spirit during the football season.

The Princeton game was especially encouraging to us because of the tremendous group that followed the team to New Jersey. This potent demonstration clearly evidenced the strong support for our team and the student body's desire that the '59-'60 version of the basketballing Wildcats, will carry themselves into national prominence.

However, the student body must give their wholehearted support to the team before this wish can be realized. This year, we of the Student Council wish to show the citey of Philadelphia the true Villanova spirit.



The Spirite Committee under the very capable coleadership of John Oberlies and Jack Valva, will be doing their best to stir the entire student body to action. We now seem to finally have something to "hoot and holler" about.

STICK WITH the Spirlit Committee and come to the rallies and games; the Players need your support. Let's all make an earnest effort to attend as many games as possible this season and "rally round the flag."

Compliments go to Neil Drislane and the Academic Affairs Committee for their fine Student-Tutor Program. This was the first year that it was tried on a full scope and nearly 100 students were signed up.

They have already been assigned to their tutors and at the end of the semester, we will publish the results of this program and see how much this program is helping our students.

John Driscoll and Bob Benson have been named as the chairmen of the newly initiated Student Council Dance to be held February 26, the night before the infamous St. Joseph's - Villanova game at the Palestra. Benson and Driscoll are looking for interested students to assist them in making arrangements for this dance. Students may contact either one of the chairmen in the Student Council office, the second floor of Dougherty Hall.

LYNX Reflects Wary, Unsure And Disconsolate Generation

bill speers

Today the first issue of this year's LYNX went on sale. And with it twenty-two of supposedly the finest literary efforts produced by Villanovans through the first half of the year.

This is all the magazine claims to be and this is just what it is—the best Villanova has to offer. But is Villanova's best any good. With a few reservations the answer here is, yes.

As observed by LYNX editor Frank Murtha, the predominant theme, of this autumn publication, is death and melancholy.

The significance of this first LYNX is typified by these two themes and the writer's intense desire to find meaning and reasonableness in life. No less than seven of eleven poems and half of short stories exemplify these dual themes of depression and searching, emblematic of today's disenchanted generation.

J. McDonald's "Ordeal", John Pedisich's "Twilight", and "Last Chance," by Gus Susnjars head the list of vignettes which uphold these themes, while poetry such as "The Debt" by J. Sapone, "Rain" by Frank Murtha, T. E. Owen' "Summer Scene", and Jim Merikangas' "The Ice-Cream Truck", are symbolic of despair and introspection.

Oddly enough, though, the best of the short stories, seems to be two that deal with the persons outside, instead of within. They are George Matey's "Impressions" and Dave Cutts' "The Initiation of Roland Tilsoe."

Matey emp'oys intricate description and a Washington Square setting to relate a fleeting meeting of two completely different peop'e on equal ground. In "Initiation," Dave Cutts has probably the most entertaining work in the book. It is the only piece in the publication which offers, humor and presents the most pleasing and veritable character study.

"Ordeal" and "Last Chance" are also notable works that bear definite similarities. Both picture an unrelenting world, a world that takes but rarely gives.

One of the most interesting works in the LYNX is H. Patrick Voelcher's "These I Can Fight". Written in the "stream of consciousness", this Joycian style is complicated by an early western dialect, but overcomes its awkwardness with a twist ending. Here again the motif is death.

If the magazine falls off anywhere, it is in its poetry. Their unifying theme makes for interesting reading, but taken individually only Matey's "Leaf" and possibly "Summer Scene" by Owens, seems to equal the quality of the other works.

J. Michael Wesley's "Karamazov" shouldn't go unmentioned. An entity in itself, as the only bona fide essay in the issue, the work is a fine philosophical analysis of the great Russian author, Fyodor Dostoevsky.

On the whole the periodical is a little rough in places but stands out as a genuine declaration of the conflicts and unsureness with which today's youth face the world. Single out George Matey and Dave Cutts as the most outstanding contributors.

WVIL: Voice of Villanova and Its Students

By Dave McDevitt

WVIL, THE CAMPUS RADIO station, has a history that reads like the wonderings of Aeneas. Shunted from one obscure place to another through its existence, it has only recently attained its present quarters in Dougherty Hall.

It all began in 1946, when a group of students from the engineering, chemical engineering, and physics departments, completed construction of a radio transmitter.

Broadcasts began in November of 1947, from the third floor of O'Dwyer Hall. At this point, the station's facilities were valued at $150. Two major problems still faced the infant station. Federal Communications Commission's approval for broadcasting and a half-decent place from which to broadcast.

FCC approval was finally procured, and a relatively make-shift station was set up in an unobtrusive, unused broom closet in Austin Hall.

WVIL's first moderator was the Rev. Ralph Handran, O.S.A., under whose guidance the station was officially opened on Tuesday, December 9. The initial words spoken over the new station were by the Rev. Edward Grimes, O.S.A. They were: "This is the radio voice of Villanova College."

DURING ITS EARLY STAGES a three hour programming schedule was employed—8-11 p.m. "Music to Study By", one of the first shows to be aired, took up two of these hours, while world and campus news used up the rest.

On March 2 of the following year, morning broadcasts were begun, 7:30-9.

Thirty students manned the "green" station. Tom Sullivan was the first station manager and Brian McLernon, first chief announcer. Others linked with the embryonic venture were Ray Muench, John Rosica, Mike Polgar, John Kane, Matt Kearney, Bob Resnick, and Joe O'Brian.

All disc jockeys must schedule their own records for their own shows well in advance of broadcast time. Here two D. J.'s do just that in the WVIL newsroom, the of all the station's working.

In 1949, WVIL moved its facilities to the rear of the barber shop (which no longer exists) in the Classroom Annex.—a step forward? New equipment was installed raising the station valuation to $2,000. The move to the Annex was significant in that it served to take the station out of a campus "club" class.

THE YEAR 1950-51, saw the increase in "live" shows under its new moderator, the Rev. Louis Rongione, O.S.A. The present WVIL moderator is Mr. Charles Smith of the English Department, who took over the post in 1956.

Henry Wu headed a group of engineering students who in 1952, undertook a complete redesign and reconstruction of the transmitter. A revamping of the entire organization took place in 1955, when the station was divided up into departments, similar to those of professional stations. Also in this year, commercial advertising was instituted for the first time, as the number of broadcasts were increased from 16 to 35 hours a week. A year later WVIL successfully negotiated for promotion records from larger distributors.

In 1956, WVIL made its final move into the second floor of Dougherty Hall. Today it boasts a staff of over a hundred. These include the indispensable D.J.'s, engineers, salesmen, librarians, copy and production men, as well as newscasters and sportscasters.

The station is presently assessed at about $13,000. This large amount is due mainly to the addition of a new console last year and a $1,500 tape recorder just a few weeks ago.

THE PRESENT station manager of WVIL is Dan O'Mara. Dan, whose home is in Staten Island, New York, where he attended Augustinan Academy, is an Accounting major. He has done much in bringing the station to its present standards.

WVIL's basic purpose is to present programs aimed at the college student. To accomplish this end, many features have been programmed that both inform and entertain the listener. Among some of the more outstandng shows are Saturday's Request Show; the Jazz Suite, featuring the best in modern jazz; Digest which is broadcast Sunday evenings from 7:30-10:45 and features campus news and interviews a la Mike Wallace; Waxworks where the "cultured" can enjoy the music du jour; and Rebel Patrol for those that prefer the sound of Dixieland.

WVIL's news and sports coverage is as complete and up-to-the-minute as that of any professional radio station. This is possible because of a teletype machine that has been leased to the station by the American Tobacco Company in part payment for advertising one of their cigarette brands.

LOCAL, national and international news is relayed to the station via the central office of the United Press International. It is key-punched in code on a tape. This tape is placed on a machine that converts the holes on it to an electrical signal. These signals are transmitted over ordinary telephone wires. As the signals reach the WVIL newsroom, they are decoded automatically by the teletype machine. The machine then types the news on a roll of paper ready to be reported over the air.

"There not heavy, Father, there're my records. A library of over 5,500 recordings are maintained by the station.

The present fine programming and anticipated improvements certainly merit the support of every student on the Villanova campus. Why not give 645 a try!

Dan O'Mara, station manager and his "assistant" prepare the new $1,500 taperecorder for operation during one of the evening broadcasts. Recorder enables WVIL to tape programs days in advance.

The station has an extensive record collection that numbers in the thousands. Included are 4,800 45's and 1,000 LP's. All 45 r.p.m. discs are sent to the station free of charge by the individual record companies for promotional purposes. Long-playing albums must be purchased, however.

Still growing and improving, WVIL plans to extend its coverage to the Cabrini and Rosemont campuses this year. Presently underway is a plan to have the station "go FM" in the near future. Such a move would increase tremendously, the size of WVIL's audience, reaching far off campus for its listeners.

Lauren Bacall, Enlivens "Goodbye Charlie"

By Tony Macklin

If you are looking for an evening of delightful entertainment, full of chuckles and laughter, you still have four days to find it. The Walnut Street Theatre is the place to go, the laugh provider is George Axelrod's new play "Goodbye Charlie."

The plot of this bizarre new comedy (which has absolutely nothing to do with Mr. Van Doren) is a beaut. Charlie, a brash Hollywood wolf (wolf being the polite term), is reincarnated in the body of a girl after his sudden demise. He was shot trying to exit out a porthole of a yacht cabin by a jealous husband.

The play opens with Charlie's friend George ,played by Sydney Chaplin, attempting an unsuccessful eulogy for his miserable deceased buddy.

After the service "Charlie," portrayed by Lauren Bacall, enters. From this moment on the laughs come in profusion with the confusion.

Laren BaCall Excellent

Miss BaCall is perfect as topsy-turvy "Charley." She handles the changes from masculinity to feminity with the greatest sublety and humor.

She strutts about the stage with a cigar clenched between her teeth, she struggles with her new wardrobe trying to kick off her heels, she flounces about in a fire engineered dress "dressed like a chicken" giving a bibulous harangue, she assumes a supposedly seductive but hilariously inept pose.

Miss BaCall's performance of "Charlie's" losing battle is a gem.

Chaplin Dismayed

Playing beautifully opposite Miss BaCall is Sydney Chaplin. He captures all the amusement and dismay of the friend who is kept busy trying to keep the situation from becoming anything but purely Platonic. His nervous antics liven the comedy greatly.

Cara Williams is the other key member of the small cast. She adds appeal both visually and artistically to the crazy goings on as Rusty, Charlie's last "love."

The play's greatest asset is the author's extremely able direction. Mr. Axelrod has a vast imagination and milks the absurd situation for all it's worth.

He is very adept at curtains. It has been a long time since we've heard the audience buzz between scenes like it did.

Spell-bound Playgoers

The play weaves a spell and has the playgoer almost convinced that what is going on on stage is not only possible but is actual.

This making of the theatre into a place where one can just relax away from the realities and problems of the day for a few hours is an art.

The play does have some drawbacks. Some of the more dingy and ribald lines seem unnecessary. But then again one must suppose that "Charlies" of the play's genre do talk that way. Still at times it is a little too tasteless.

The ending of the play is a letdown. It is a sudden jolt back to reality. It sacrifices hilarity for plausibility.

Disappointing Finish

The playgoer may be disappointed at the sudden shattering of the spell for the mood is completely changed.

When considered carefully, the ending is not a bad one. It ties all the strings together in a neat little package. But perhaps it would have been better to have left them untied for the sake of humor.

The show may not receive much critical acclaim but it should be a large-type hit by word of mouth. If you have a sense of humor that needs some bolstering, "Goodbye Charlie" is a sure-fire remedy, if for only the first half.

Lo, the Poor Husband! Chatter Is His Fault

Husbands, if your spouse chatters about trivialities with nary an intelligent word interspersed . . . it may be your fault.

No, you don't have to send her to the nearest university for her Ph.D. But you should learn that the lady who sorts your socks, keeps the moths out of your dinner jacket and washes the spinach is capable of ideas about God, human destiny, art, music and love, declares the Catholic Digest.

"Many women are driven to make contact with their husbands by a stream of trivialities because . . . men secretly disdain women as lesser creatures," the magazine says.

This is especially true, the publication points out, among men whose parents were reserved with each other.

NEW PRODUCTS LEAD TO BETTER JOBS AT DU PONT

COULD YOU MAKE A BETTER BATHING SUIT?

The suits these girls are wearing are made of nylon, the first truly synthetic fiber. It is a product of Du Pont research. Pure research. Applied research. And research in manufacture, research in product improvement. All require many types of skills.

You may not discover a new fiber, but as a technical man you can profit well anyway. For once a product—any product—is discovered, hundreds of technical men go to work. Pilot plants are designed. Operating procedures are devised. New plants are built. Manufacturing methods are improved. Product quality is worked on, backed by Du Pont's policy: Let's make it better . . . still better . . . even better. Discovery is but the starting shot; these later activities are the game. The players? Men of every technical specialty.

You'll find a teamwork atmosphere at Du Pont. Others have. Maybe that's part of the reason half of Du Pont's profits today come from products unheard of twenty-five years ago.

If you join Du Pont, the men who have worked on new products and ways to make them are the men who will teach you. You will be given an actual project assignment almost at once, and you will begin to learn your job by doing it. Advancement will come as rapidly as your abilities permit and opportunities develop. For Du Pont personnel policy is based firmly on the belief in promotion from within the company strictly on a merit basis.

ment by "our inequitable tax system."

The man hit Muskie with the fact that the founding fathers never intended to establish public schools in 1776.

Muskie countered with the statement that "I would have it no other way than it is at present. I send my children to parochial school, with absolutely no misgivings about the extra cost."

The gentleman smugly suggested that the senator "think it over . . . think it over." Muskie seemed quietly amused and passed on the next question.

Loan Program

He had blunt words for the latest student loan program of the now-departed Congress, whereby a prospective borrower must sign an affidavit affirming his loyalty to America as a requisite for receipt of the money.

"Much too stringent," he stated. "We all know that a communist would have no compunction against signing such a statement. And besides that, it's unfair.

"Who's to judge just how a person is related to a communist organization? I receive in the mail membership cards every day, which I automatically throw into a desk drawer. I might be in more subversive organizations than anyone in America and not be aware of it.

"And on these grounds, I could be refused a loan," he said. But Senator Muskie washes his hands of the entire "legislative monstrosity." He noted with senatorial satisfaction that he voted against it.

Phi Kappa Pi Plans Orphans' Party Sat.

Phi Kappa Pi, Villanova's engineering fraternity will hold their annual orphans' party for the children of Catholic Charities Orphanage on Saturday afternoon.

The affair, to be held at CYO Hall, 1517 Arch Street, will feature a full length movie, refreshments for the tots, and a visit by Santa Claus who will destribute gifts.

Bob Cooney, junior ME, co-chairman along with Jay Stevens, junior CE, said that he "is counting on dayhop members of PKP to provide transportation to the orphanage."

C.C.D. Cares For Penhurst Retarded

by Frank McCormick

On a small hill about twenty miles to the West of Villanova there sits a state institution by the name of Penhurst.

Until recently even the existence of this institution was just about unknown to all but a few Villanovans, but with the advent of the Confraternity of the Christian Doctrine of this campus, Penhurst achieved a grave significance to the minds of many of us.

It is to pass on something of its signifance to the rest of Villanova that this article is being written.

Retarded People

Penhurst purely and simply is a home for retarted people. These people are not mentally ill, and the vast majority of them never have been nor ever will be mentally ill.

Their brains have simply failed to develop in much the same manner that a leg or an arm may fail to develop in a physically deformed but otherwise normal person. Consequently all of these people have a severe limitation on the level of intelligence that they will ever achieve. At Penhurst there are 4,000 of these people.

900 of them are bedridden and must be hand fed three times a day, because, even though many of them are fully grown human beings, they possess, because of their intelligence, only the capabilities of infants.

Seventh Grader

The rest range anywhere from this level up to that of a seventh grader. This, in brief, is a description of Penhurst. Now why should all this concern you? Most of you realize that such people existed and that there were institutions to care for them, although you probably were't aware that one was so close by.

But why, as Villanova students should you be particularly concerned about these people? Here is the reason.

There are at the present time about 1200 people at Penhurst who are listed as being members of the Roman Catholic Faith. Just four short years ago none of these people were getting any training whatever in their religion. Since then, entirely through the efforts of two Missionary Sisters of the Most Blessed Trinity and Father Laurance Kelly, the newly appointed Catholic Chaplain, giant strides have been taken in giving these people an appreciation of their faith.

Confirmation

One of the great things that they have helped to accomplish was the confirmation of 431 of these souls by Cardinal O'Hara in April of 1957.

But even with this, there still remains a tremendous amount of work to be done if these people are really to achieve an understanding of the faith which would benefit so many of them.

And it is all too easy to realize that three people can not possibly accomplish this great task.

It is for this reason that Sister Catherine Bernadette has asked for lay people to help them in their work, and why Villanova's chapter of the Confraternity of the Christian Doctrine has willingly offered its services.

Hence for the past several weeks more than twenty Villanovans have been traveling up to Penhurst to conduct Catechism classes for these people; there is not one among them who has not felt that this is deperately needed and tremendously worthwhile experience.

Scratching Surface

But still the surface is just being scratched. Despite the fact that the C.C.D., in its first year of experience at Villanova, has grown by leaps and bounds, there is still a need for many more to help in this valuable work. And the work is not easy.

All the teachers must be carefully trained in the methods of presenting the faith to these special students, and various teaching aids must be gotten for their use.

Behind all this is the great amount of organizational work which must be performed to make the operation function smoothly.

Extends Invitation

The Confraternity of the Christian Doctrine not only extends an invitation to new members, but heartily welcomes anyone from Villanova to join this organization and lend a hand in helping it succeed in performing the task it has set out to do.

Halecki To Lecture Today

Dr. Oscar Halecki, authority in the field of Polish-Lithuanian history, will deliver a special lecture this afternoon at 4 p.m. in room 110 C & F.

Dr. Halecki's address, which is sponsored by the Department of History and Political Science, will be on "Europe, Western Culture, and Christendom." The lecture is open to all students

Born in Vienna in 1891, Dr. Halecki received his Doctorate from the University of Cracow, Poland. He has been associated with the universities of Lyons, Montreal, Warsaw, Vassar, and is presently affiliated with Fordham and Columbia Universities.

Historical Societies

Dr. Halecki has been active in a number of hoistorical Society in Erile, and of the American Academy of Political and Social Sciences.

In addition to his academic achievements, he has been decorated Cammonder of the Polish Pestitula, Commander Hungarian Croix de Merte, Officer in the French Legion of Honor, and Papal Chamberlain.

Dr. Helecki has written numerous books and articles, among them "From Florence to Brest," "History of Poland," and 'Bordenland of Western Culture.

Old Dr. Sam has done it again—brought his dictionary up to date in terms of modern Winston usage.

Winston (win'ston), n. A cigarette with Filter-Blend on one end and a wise man on the other.

Taste (tāst), n. What decorators argue about and Winston smokers enjoy.

Filter-Blend (fil'tēr-blĕnd), n. A happy marriage of art and science. Light, mild, flavorful tobaccos are artfully selected, then scientifically processed for filter smoking.

Slogan (slō'găn), n. (e.g., Winston tastes good like a cigarette should). A statement of disputed grammar but unquestioned fact.

Front (frŭnt), n. (used in conjunction with the preposition "up"). The section of a filter cigarette where if it hasn't got it, it hasn't got it. Also, the section that counts, the section where exclusive Filter-Blend is to be found.

Boswell (bŏz'wĕl). Nickname for a guy who is always hanging around to cadge Winstons from you.

"There is nothing which has yet been contrived by man by which so much happiness is produced . . ."

VILLANOVAN Sponsors Game Ceremonies

The VILLANOVAN sponsored the pre-game memorial services prior to the Scranton basketball game last Friday night.

Jim Murray, sports editor, served as master of ceremonies and explained the threefold purpose of the event:

1) To introduce the new Chuck Drizen trophy, its significance and background;

GEORGE EMMA First Winner

2) To honor all the Villanova war dead who gave their lives in defence of their country;

3) To present the first award to last year's varsity basketball player, George (Dutch) Emma.

Coach Al Severance explained that the purpose of the trophy was to award the Villanovan who was most loyal and who best exemplified the character of Chuck Drizin, a member of the 1942 Villanovan basketball team later killed in World War II. Drizin, an orthodox Jew, was decorated for valor in the war.

Receives Award

Thomas Wolf, Editor of the VILLANOVAN, received the award for Emma who was unable to attend.

Rev. Norbert Whitley, OSA, chaplain, recited a prayer for all Villanova war dead, which was followed by a thirty second period of silence and the National Anthem.

Murray, who arranged the affair with Coach Severance, expressed gratitude to Major Rooney, USMC, of the NROTC unit, for supplying a color guard for the ceremony.

Serving on Murray's committee for the affair were Jim McAteer, Mike Keys, Mike Donahue, Bill Speers, John Duffy, and Dan Grove.

Dukes Tower Over Dwarfs In Intramural Playoffs

by John Duffy

The Intramural picture at Villanova has focused clearly in the month of December. Some activities have been completed, some are going on, and a few have just started. One very entertaining event is planned for the week preceding the Christmas holidays.

The touch football league wound up last week with such a close and exciting game that some of the pro-clubs could copy the script. The Dukes and Drawfs played to a thrill packed 6-6 tie, but then in accordance with a pre-game mutual agreement the Dukes were awarded the championship by virtue of having more first downs than their opposition, 6 to 5.

The grandaddy of all intramurals leagues, basketball, also commenced last week. As is par for the course the basketball program enrolled a greater number of participants than any other sport.

The bowling leagues under the able direction of John McCarthy convene each afternoon at the Mainline Bowling Center in Rosemont. The four leagues have approximately 32 teams in the well matched competition.

Spectators look on anxiously as Intramural titans battle for grid title.

Sack of Troy

Stassen Gets A Vote

By Tom Troy

If the Football coach situation isn't cleared up by the time this issue of the Villanovan is published, I hope the powers that are will attend to these few suggestions for a possible coach. I nominate:

Troy

1) Gil Thorpe: this fantastic combination of strategist and psychologist has everything a coach needs. In the short time he's been coaching, he's developed such stars as Bobby Watkins, Boomer Phelps, Zip Gust, Rod Simmons, and Fig Neuton. Gil is great.

2) Oliver H. Bair: this man has been in contact with quite a few people in his long and colorful career, and he certainly knows how to handle deadwood. With him as head coach, it would be hustle or else.

Dudley to Return

3) Harold Stassen: the "Governor" (as he is known to all drones) has the amazing ability to snap back from apparently disastrous defeats.

This ability consists mainly in blithely ignoring the defeat, carrying on as if it never happened. He would fit right in the swing of things around here.

4) President Eisenhower: after January 4, 1961, he'll be looking for a job. Make an offer now and everybody will benefit. He'll have a position, and Villanova will make all kinds of headlines and gain more prestige than any school in the country.

And don't forget he's a West Pointer. Everybody knows that anyone who graduates from West Point is an authority n football, as well as everything else.

5) Frank Reagan: his main fault was candidness. I think he's learned his lesson. Present coach Joe Rogers could be restored as backfield coach, and Reagan could become head coach once more.

To lessen Reagan's burden, Bud Dudley could be rehired as athletic director. Concomitant with this, Frank J. Malloy of the American Stores Baking Co. should be made publicity manager and director of ticket sales.

Liberty Bowl, 1960

Now that Bud Dudley, the leading sports entrepreneur in the East, has finally obtained two decent teams to play in this year's Liberty Bowl on December 19, I hope he has started thinking of next year.

I would like to see Dudley get the cooperation of the local colleges and professional teams and start something really big in Philadelphia.

He could arrange rather easily to have the Bowl game Saturday, an Eagles' pro football game on Sunday, and a couple of Warriors' games on the weekend.

Then a Big Five tournament could be organized, or else it could be arranged to just schedule several good teams and have doubleheaders on Friday and Saturday evenings.

Activities like these would enable all concerned to profit, and would make for a really great sports weekend.

A Basketball Dynasty

I saw only about ten minutes of the freshmen basketball game on Friday night, but if those ten minutes are an indication of things to come, then I think coach Al Severance has many happy days to look forward to.

He has built up what in Kentucky or North Carolina they call a basketball dynasty.

Severance's value as a coach is exemplified in the tremendous defensive play of Tom Hoover. I saw Hoover, a high school All-American, play in the Philadelphia League last summer.

Friday night, Hoover was a demon. He blocked about eight shots and grabbed every defensive rebound in the last ten minutes of the game.

Granted the talent of Scranton's frosh doesn't compare too favorably with that of the players who constitute the Philadelphia League, but the change in Hoover was astounding.

Big Tom deserves a lot of credit, but so does coach Severance. I don't know what he told Hoover, but it worked Friday.

Besides Hoover and Tom Galia (he scored 40 points), the most impressive freshman was Bernie Chavis. This chap has to be labeled "can't miss." He's fast, a good dribbler, a fine shooter with either hand, a strong rebounder, and a good defensive player.

The funniest statement I've heard in a long time was made by a Scranton rooter. Just after the Villanova varsity had broken the 100 point mark, he said, "Wait 'till next year!"

Galia Notches 40

Freshmen Dump Scranton 99-77

By John Duffy

The Villanova Freshmen started their 59-60 Basketball season off on the right foot Friday night with a 99-73 conquest of a hustling but out manned Scranton five.

Led by the oustanding scoring of two time All-Catholic Tommy Galia, the inspired defense and rebounding of Captain Tommy Hoover, and the all around great basketball of Bernie Chavis. The little Wildcats simply ran away from their purple clad foe.

Aside from the very outset of the game, the only time Scranton seemed to be around was at the beginning of the second half. The 'Cats switched from a zone to a man to man defense and without their big man Hoover who was hampered with personal fouls, the 'Cats were indeed-vulnerable to the Scranton offense.

Varied Shots

Galia with his varied assortment of shots led the freshmen in scoring with 40 points. The 6-1 backcourt ace scored 15 in the first half and 25 in the second stanza. Hoover, the biggest Wildcat in captivity at 6-9, was splendid on defense and rebounds.

As Coach Al Severance put it, "They (Scranton) were scared to death of him". Tom also chipped in with 13 points. Bernie Chavis, who played the whole game was magnificent in every phase of play.

The 6-3 Washington, D.C. lad played the corner, the backcourt, and the pivot, all with the greatest of ease. Bernie displayed a nice left handed hook in accounting for many of his 16 points.

Valuable Man

Another bright light in the Cats picture was the play of sub Joe Quinn. Quinn played a majority of the game and proved a valuable sixth man while contributing 12 points.

Richie Richman, the south paw slinging quarter back of the football team, also scored 12 points and displayed good ball handling and playmaking ability. Jim O'Brien, the other starter knocked in six points and came up with several rebounds.

It's up up and in as 'Cats cagers Bernie Chavis (above) in Freshman game, and George Raveling in Varsity contest wing jump shots goalward.

Riflemen Lose First Draw

The Villanova rifle team opened the season with a bang two weeks ago . . . unfortunately the bang was not loud enough and they bowed to Drexel Tech, unbeaten last year, by one point, 1377 to 1376. With less than a minute to go the last man on Drexel's squad fired a 7 which gave Drexel the narrow victory.

Lou Spevetz took a quick lead in the competition for the trophy awarded at the end of the year to the Wildcat rifleman who fires the high match average for the season. Spevetz fired a 278 out of a possible 300 to lead the Villanova scorers. Nat Coursey followed with a 276. John Garigliano, 275, Phil Saccacio, 274, and Ed Hogan 273, completed the list.

Fire on Fordham

That same week Villanova traveled to the big city to fire against Fordham University. Fordham attempted to divert the sharp eyed cats, by spreading a sumptuous feast beforehand, and to top it off, they sent the runner-up in the Miss Fordham contest to the firing line.

Luckily her firing corresponded with the rest of her being somewhat less than straight; and she did the most damage approaching the line.

Despite these nefarious schemes, Villanova emerged victorious, defeating the Rams rather handily, by a score of 1389 to 1356. Lou Spevetz again stepped out with a match leading 285. Capt. Frank Murtha placed second, registering a 281. Consistent "Tex" Coursey, 276; Charley Russell, 275, and Ed Hogan, 272 were the other Wildcat scorers.

Two matches remain before the Christmas vacation. The 'Cats play host to both Georgetown and King's College. These teams could knock off favored Villanova, but the real difficulties seem to await the sharpshooters next semester when Penn State, nationally ranked St. Johns, and Lehigh. Manhattan and Princeton all take their turn in trying to down the 'Cats.

Sports Chatter

The Big Difference

Tony Mecklin

The basketball team faced their opening game in much the same way that the football team did theirs. The Cat cagers were ranked 14th in the country by the Sporting News, 18th by Dell (which puts out comics and rated St. Joe's 4th), and 20th by the coaches in the UP polls.

Dick Dunkel predicted that Princeton would upset the Cats just as he had selected West Chester. The stage was set.

No Diaster Yet

The Cat basketballers have thus far avoided any unfavorable comparison with the pigskin performers.

They got off to a rip-roaring start with a solid victory over a sub-par Tiger team.

Then last Friday night they routed the Scranton Royals with a vengeance. Scranton had been promised that they would regret the 1958 fiasco at the upstate school and regret it they did.

The H-bombs, Huggard and Hubert, exploded. They dazzled the over-capacity ready-to-be-thrilled crowd with their flammable wide-open play.

When Scranton called time out after a run of VU goals that was climaxed by Huggard-Kaminski blitz the crowd rose and gave the team an ovation that shook the walls. It caused Coach Severance to remark that he hadn't seen anything like it since the days of Arizin.

Moved by Spirit

The team was noticeably affected by the tumultuous display of spirit.

Soph backcourt replacement Joe Zawacki put the feeling of the team into words when he emphasized, "The spirit was terrific, but be sure to tell them to cheer when we're down, "That's when it really counts!"

George Raveling, who is taking his captaincy quite seriously, was somewhat disappointed at the luke-warm reception on campus after the Princeton game but was elated by Friday night's throng.

He also stressed the need for unwavering support. "After the Princeton game we came back and heard people complaining. It hurt."

Ratings No Help

George was able to put his finger on a surprising factor in the team's makeup. He was amazed at the indifference shown by the team over the ratings but agreed that it was a good thing to realize "that ratings don't win ball games."

The whole mental outlook of the team appears good. For example, George related an important incident, from the Princeton game "Hug (Huggard) said to feed the ball to someone else because he wasn't hot. That's the way we feel. We know we're all going to have to sacrifice," he explained.

He felt the success of the season depended on "hard work and breaks." The team must agree, they worked out for five hours on Sunday.

The Cats have some problems facing them with Clemson game and in the future. To get the fast break working they must get the ball off the boards and underway in a hurry.

Tigers Get Boards

They weren't able to do so against Princeton. When a Villanova player rebounded he was surrounded and the fast break often sputtered. Also the Tigers outrebounded the Cats 49 to 46.

The Cats also have made too many ball-handling mistakes but part of this is due to the caliber of opponent so far.

On the affirmative side have been the surprising performances of Dick Kaminski and Tom Samuelwicz. Kaminski's driving has been sharp and Samuelwicz has become a scoring threat.

Center John Driscoll also appears improved. Raveling pointed out that some of the fouls Driscoll commits are really "somebody else's foul because none should ever come through the middle the way we have our defense set."

The team seems to be jelling as Hubie White becomes adjusted to varsity ball. He is sure to be a great favorite at the Palestra with his graceful leaping and soft shooting.

Like Wyatt Earp

Raveling commented that he is like "the fastest gun in the West. Everyone will be trying to outdraw him."

He compared White's debut with that of Ohio State sophomore Jerry Lucas. White had a shaky beginning in the Princeton game.

George related that Hubie was disappointed at halftime and that he had reminded White that Lucas had had only three points at the half in his debut the night before but had come back with thirteen key points in the second half to lead State to a victory over Wake Forest.

"I told him just to think how Lucas must have felt with only three points at halftime," George said. "He was picked on first team All-American and the whole country was watching him."

White Relaxes

The Villanova vaulter took the advice and emulated Lucas' second half performance to finish with the high point total of nineteen. It was just the beginning.

The Wildcats can go just as far as Tennessee William's Streetcar will take them. Next stop: Clemson.

Clemson Tigers Test Wildcats in Palestra Opener

By Dan Grove

Next Saturday night the undefeated Wildcats open in Philadelphia, at the Palestra, after a highly successful three game tryout.

This tryout saw the charges of Al Severance hold Princeton to four field goals in twenty minutes, and then rack up 110 points against Scranton.

Villain Role

Cast in the role of the Villain will be the Clemson Tigers. The Southerners', long the doormat of the Atlantic Coast Conference, have a 1-1 record.

Their loss being to a strong Duke club, 59-68. The Tigers were in the game all the way, and trailed by only three points with less than a minute left.

Returning from last year's 8-16 club are six lettermen, four of them from McKeesport, Pa. The Krajack brothers, George and Ed are the probable starters at forward.

George, a 6'3" senior, was the leading scorer for the Tigers last year with a 13 point per game average. Ed a 6'4" junior is much improved from last year and is usually counted on to chip in from 10 to 12 points.

Dan Carver and Walt Gibbons, 6'4" and 6'7", respectively are both experienced substitutes. At center coach Press Maravich has a problem: he hasn't been able to find a reliable scorer in the key spot.

Either 6'7" Earle Maxwell or 6'7" Tom Mahaffey will get the call. The guards will be 6 foot Dutch Sample and sophomore Chappy Patterson.

Hot Scorer

Patterson was a hot shot scorer on last year's frosh team, and could be tough this year. Overall the Tigers are a fast, good shooting club, looking for a pivot man to balance their offense, and to cover the defensive boards.

Villanova on the other hand is strong up front with Tom Samueliwicz and Joe Walsh, both 6'5", pushing hard for a starting job.

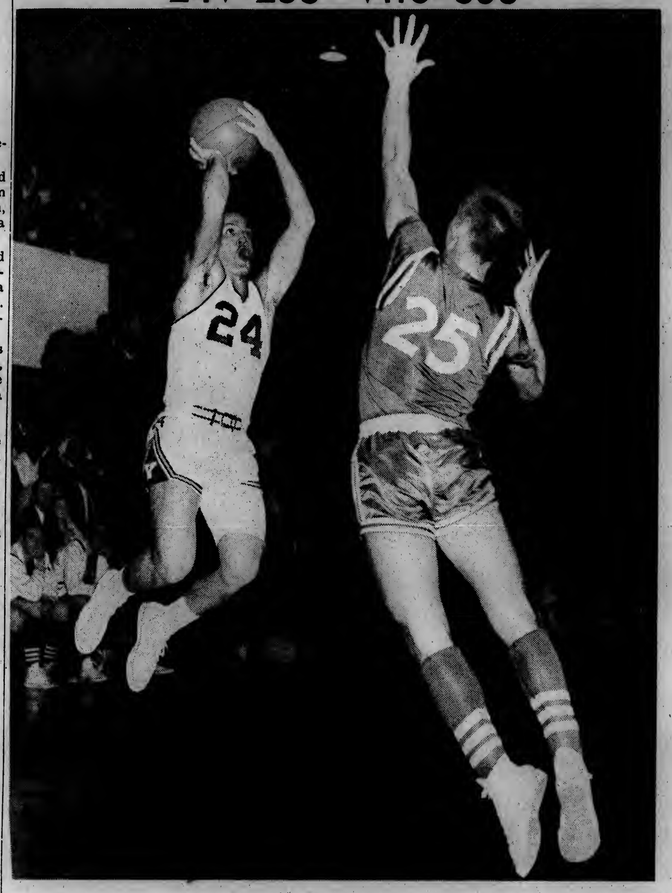
Sammy looked especially good against Sranton when he dropped in 15 points and played a bang-up game under the boards. Walsh only a sophomore is improving in every game.

The play of these two takes some pressure off of Severance, when John Driscoll or George Raveling get into trouble via the foul route.

Fast Breaks

With three games under the belt the 'Cats have smoothed out their fast breaks, and adjustable zone defense very well. Jimmy Huggard is becoming a fine court leader, and Hubie White is living up to his "can't miss" tag, averaging 25.5 points per game in the first two games.

Dick Kaminski teams with Huggard very well, the deadeye junior hit 7 for 7 from the field and 4 for 4 at the foul line against Scranton, and assisted Huggard very adeptly in moving the fast break.



Saturday's game will be the first meeting of the two schools. It should be the first major test of the early season for the 'Cats.

Big Games

There are still many critics who claim the 'Cats can't win the "big ones". This game is the first om many big ones, that face them this year.

It will also be Hubie White's first game before a crowd of Palestra proportions. The 6'3" whirling dervish, jumping jack, could well be the man to silence the 'Cat's critics.

Tigers, Royals, Bullets Shot Down By Wildcats

By Jim Murray and Mike Donahue

In a performance lacking the all around brilliance they displayed in their second game against Scranton, Villanova's Wildcats pulled away in the final minutes to methodically thump the small but determined Gettysburg Bullets, 78-56, on Monday night at the Ed Plank Fieldhouse in Gettysburg.

The Cats jumped into an early 8-0 lead coasted to 21-5 then made this early margin stand up when Gettysburg's sophomore backcourt sensations, Ron Warner and Bob Parker, began finding the range.

The closest Bob Hutton's five came to the Cats was a nine point deficit, 52-61, with about six minutes left.

At that point, Dick Kaminski, seated because of foul trouble, re-entered the game. Kaminski's return enabled his running mate, steady Jim Huggard, to break loose. Huggard was fouled twice on drives, then coolly made three clutch foul shots.

Team Victory

Spring-legged Hubie White then followed with three fast jump shots to put the game out of reach of the Bullets.

Gettysburg, who had upset Temple, Saturday night, and who possesses a distinct scoring threat in their backcourt aces, was paced by Wagner's 17 points.

Villanova's offense was four pronged. White scored 21, Huggard, 18, Kaminski, 17, and George Raveling, 16. It was Raveling's great offensive rebounding, White's five baskets in the closing minutes, and Huggard's tremendous play-making and clutch scoring, as well as Kaminski's fine all around play, which made the margin of victory comfortable.

In other words, it was a team victory.

Last Friday night the largest Field House audience (4000) since 1948 roared wholeheartedly in approval as the Wildcats, paced by streamlined Hubie White and dynamic Jim Huggard to an amazingly easy 110-68 win over Scranton University. In complete charge from the opening tap, Al Severance's hustlers had leads of 52-37 at halftime, 86-49 at the midway point of the final period, and 98-55 when White exited to a standing ovation with slightly less than five minutes left to play.

The stellar soph led the scoring parade with 32 tallies, most of them coming on his patented jump shot. Many of his twelve baskets were set up by irrepressible Huggard who was credited with 15 assists in playing the best floor game of his career.

Winning Combo: Huggard to Kaminski

Besides White the principal target for his deft ball handling and thread-the-needle passes was Dick Kaminski. At least four times in the second half Huggard pinpointed passes to Kaminski on two - on - three fast break situations which the junior guard laid up for two pointers, sometimes with two defenders guarding him closely. Even more incredible was Kaminski's 100% shooting accuracy, seven-for-seven from the floor and four out of four charity chucks.

The individual single out by coach Severance for most commendation was Tom Samuelewicz, surprise starter in place of John Driscoll. "Sam", who had the knack of being in the right spot at the right time scored 15 points, pulled off several sparkling defensive plays, and helped captain George Raveling sweep the boards clean.

Double figure scorers for the 'Cats were White (32), Huggard 14, Samueliwicz (15), Kaminski (18), and Driscoll, though he didn't get into the game until midway through the final period, ten.

Wildkittens Romp

In the freshman game, the Wildkittens easily outdistanced the Scranton frosh, 99-73. The game marked the debut of the heralded threesome of Tom Hoover, Tom Galia, and Bernie Chavis. All three lived up to their reputation. Hoover looked like a giant windmill as he blocked at least a dozen shots. At one point he "crammed" three in a row and after the third block winged the ball to a fastbreaking teammate for an easy "duck".

Galia was the offensive star the former St. James High gunner rifling in 44 points. Chavis showed all-around brilliance, rebounding, dribbling and scoring with either hand.

The 1959-60 Wildcat Cagers and highly-publicized soph, Hubie White made their debut at the hallowed halls of Princeton last week.

If it had not been for several hundred Villanovans it might have looked like the hollow hall of ivy.

The Wildcat fans were rewarded for their long treck by a spurting Wildcat victory 66-46.

The 'Cats piled up an 8-0 lead early with the help of Dick Kaminsky layups. With some timely jumps and passes from Jim Huggard the score read 14-9. The sophomore with a smile, reached over the rim and laid his first two pointer in and the 'Cats started to spurt again.

With Capt. George Raveling and big John Driscoll clearing the boards the score was 30-13 at halftime.

Zone Very Tight

The Wildcat zone 1-2-2 held the Tigers to 4 field goals in the half.

The second half in Coach Severance's words "saw the team get relaxed". They were unrelaxed when All-Ivy, Dick (Hawk) Brangan hit four jump shots. Back they spurted with Hubie White finding the sophmore shakes gone, having the game high of 19 points.

The bench looked impressive in their short appearances with special mention to Joe Walsh who looked great "peeling those boards".

Annual Concert

Singers Carol With Rosies

The first Christmas Concert of what will be an annual event at Villanova was presented last Tuesday evening in the Villanova Field House.

Featured were the Villanova Singers, Concert Band, and the Rosemont College Glee Club.

The prevailing theme of the Concert, Christmastide, was quickly revealed as the Brass Choir, a group within the band, opened with three seasonal numbers.

The Rosemont Glee Club then presented "Coventry Carol," "Joy to the World" by Handel and others.

The full Concert Band followed with the "Christmas Suite", a medley of varied compositions including "Ring Christmas Bells", "Willie, Play Your Little Drum", and "Twelve Days of Christmas".

A performance was rendered by the Madrigal Singers, a group of both Rosemont and Villanova singers. Madrigal singing is a music art-form dating from the 15th century.

Next on the program were the Singers. Their repertoire included compositions by Bach, Palestrina and Jan Mul, featuring such classical favorites as "O Bone Jesu", "Gloria", and "Break Forth". This was the first campus appearance of the Singers in the current season.

Lawyers After Moot Court Win

Henry C. Lucas, III, Catherine M. McEntee, and David H. Moskowitz, students at the Villanova School of Law, will represent Villanova and the Philadelphia district at the final round of National Moot Court competition to be held at the House of the Association of the Bar of New York today in New York City.

The team was recently winner of the Villanova National Moot Court competition.

Representing Villanova at the district competition, Lucas, Miss McEntee and Moskowitz took first place over contestents from the Law schools of the University of Pennsylvania. Pittsburg, Rutgers, Seton Hall, Temple. and Dickinson.

Macklin Review

'Our Town' Becomes Theatre Magic

By Tony Macklin

Prior to the opening of the Graduate Theatre Department's production of Thorton Wilder's "Our Town", certain members on our literate campus condemned the show because there was "no scenery, just ladders and chairs."

Ignored Magic

These critics ignored the magic that beautiful writing, solid direction, and sensitive acting can work.

The show was held Thursday through Sunday of last week in Vasey Auditorium.

The cast of "Our Town" is a large one but there was not one poor performance. Our favorites in the well-cast show were Jeanne Miclot and Stanley Moore.

Miss Miclot gave a stirring performance as Mrs. Gibbs. She has a tremendous stage appeal and provided us with the play's most moving moment in the first Stan Moore listens as Suzanne Bruni tells him of the character failings in the drug store scene. Macklin calls the scene one of play's best.

Villanova Braces For Large Future Enrollment Expansion

Father Klekotka Outlines Preparations to Meet Enlargement at Council Forum

By Denis Cardone

Enrollment in many colleges will double in the next fifteen years. What will Villanova University do to handle this situation, if and when it arises here?

The Very Rev. John A. Klekotka, OSA, university president, answered this question and many others at the Student Council forum last Wednesday evening.

Meeting Increased Enrollment

Accordin gto him the enrollment problem that is envisioned will probably be met with later class hours, Saturday classes, and, most forboding to future students, regular summer classes. The president sees these measures as necessary since there is a limit to the expansion of facilities and the role of the Catholic educator must be maintained.

"Let's not forget," he cautioned, "The role of the Catholic educator. Remarkable work has been accomplished so far and we should be proud of it. Be conscious of what Catholic education has done and especially of what Villanova has done."

The next step in the physical development of Villanova, Father felt, would be a university chapel. He pointed out that the new science building is the largest single project ever undertaken here.

WVIL Carries Talk

Father spoke to a crowded audience of students and faculty in the day-hop cafeteria in Dougherty Hall, and his address was carried over station WVIL.

Father's talk was revealing at times to the uninitiated; at all times he was cautious. However, throughout most of his exposition, he was frank and forthright, especially in the potentially treacherous question-answer session that followed.

Perhaps it was this question-answer period that generated the capacity turnout. Students lined the corridors outside.

Rev. John Klekotka

The first question from an underclassman concerned the possibilities of making all divisons co-educational. For a variety of reasons, Father felt such a move was not imminent.

Will Football Be Emphasized

The next question was more leading. Father was asked, in so many words, whether there was any merit to the idea of boosting the stature of the football team (re-emphasis) to give the alumni a "rallying point," which might give them impetus to contribute more to their alma mater. The questioner said that this income might be useful in improving the faculty which in turn might improve the finished product of the university.

Father Klekotka agreed that the alumni definitely needs something to latch onto, but he felt that it isn't necessarily a big-time football team.

"There are some alumni that have no interest in the sport whatsoever," he said, "and they want to further the school more directly. For example, some one was in my office the other day, offering to finance computer research. Things must be kept in proportion."

Costs of Education

Another vital question concerned the costs of education. Father pointed out that this was a universal problem, not isolated to Catholic schools. He revealed some pointed statistics. A recent survey among young parents showed that 65 percent of the group were going to send their children to college; but only 30 percent had made any financial plans to send them through. This modern conception that everyone must be educated, without financial support, does lead to financial difficulties.

Some shudders of trepidation went through the room as the next question was asked: "How is it that there were different punishments for the recent (liquor) violations?"

The president first pointed out that he was not completely familiar with the situation since it is the domain of the Vice-

Yearbook Rushes Toward Deadline

Peretti Irked By Missing Senior Histories And Pix

"Due to their own carelessness and failure to comply with our deadline, several seniors will not have their pictures in the 1960 BELLE AIR," declared an irritated Tom Peretti, editor-in-chief of the yearbook.

Peretti's comments on the progress of his publication ranged from castigation to commendation of his staff.

The editor took his aides to task on several counts, especially on the problem of meeting the BELLE AIR's first deadline of December 16.

"In the past," Peretti said, "deadlines have been considered jokes. Missing one was quite common. This year however, we are taking the matter quite seriously. Unless the staff member has a legitimate excuse, such as an unforseen technical problem, the late submitter will be dropped from our staff."

Peretti, obviously piqued at the lack of cooperation shown by some of his assistants, continued "This is not a folksy little club we're running, it's a $30,000 project. We can't afford to be lackadaisical in approaching our assigned work."

Tempering his statements, Peretti went on to commend his associates. "We have a very talented staff, hence I feel safe in saying that we have made more progress in the last few months than any yearbook staff in the last decade has made in a comparable period."

As for content of the 1960 BELLE AIR, the editor promised "the most comprehensive book since the centennial edition in 1943. We've tried to treat every aspect of campus life, and give complete coverage to every campus event."

Monastery Aide Spent Last Years With Aged Priests

There will be a special group of people who will not be celebrating Christmas as happily as the yhave in past years. These people are the nieces, nephews, and friends of Thomas B. Kelley.

For the last five years, he had served as a nurse and constant companion to the Augustinian Fathers in the Villanova monastery. He had no immediate family of his own, so every Christmas, Tom would buy gifts for the monastery help and for his nieces and nephews.

Tom, although a native of South Philadelphia, was widely known throughout West Philly. He wrote and produced variety shows for the many Catholic parishes in West Philadelphia.

When newer forms of entertainment began to take over, he retired and later came to Villanova in his capacity as a private nurse to Villanovan priests.

Well-Liked

Father John Dunne, OSA described Tom as "a hard worker, who worked untiringly for the priests; a man who was extremely solicitious in his care, kindness, and charity."

In the relative short period in which Tom served at Villanova, he became well-liked by the Fathers. Father Dunne recalls the many sleepless nights spent by Tom at the bedside of sick and infirmed priests whom he always feared would die alone.

"Tom always did give special care to the aged priests here, remembers Father Dunne.

On December 6, Tom journeyed into town to commence his annual Christmas shopping. He had just finished purchasing some toys, when he was stricken suddenly with a heart attack, and died instantly.

Tom Kelley—he had spent his last five years in a world of priests, and had taken care that the aged one would never die without the final rites. Tom Kelley in his final generous act, had died alone.

Fr. Svyinski Looks Forward To Fine Arts Course Here

One of Villanova's experts on Fine Arts is eager to see the addition of Fine Arts to the curriculum.

Rev. Henry B. Syvinski, OSA, received his Master of Fine Arts at Catholic University, and is currently being sent out by the Administration to inculcate Fine Arts at Cabrini College.

Nominal Background

"No college man is well-rounded until he has at least a nominal background in the Arts," he insists. "It's required in the world of today.

"Chances are, most students will go out into the world of business, and they'll discover that all significant business transactions are made over cocktails.

"They all start off with a drink being poured, and end up in a discussion of any of four subjects: Literature, Drama, Painting, or Religion. And some Villanova grads are sadly lacking in the ability to stay afloat in such a discussion," he said.

He did criticize, however, the finer points of the Student Council proposal: that such a semester course cover painting, sculpture, and music.

Field too Broad

"That's entirely too broad a field for only one semester," he said. "I couldn't begin to do any of them in that period of time. I would concentrate on art appreciation, injecting a touch of esthetics where I could. After all, of the fine arts, painting is the most discussed.

Father has been yearning for Villanova to establish not only a Fine Arts course, but a comprehensive fine arts school. "Villanova is a university and large enough to demand the addition of such a course," he said.

President Favors

The Rev. John A. Klekotka, OSA, president, expressed a strong inclination for the inclusion of fine arts in the curriculum at the Student Council forum last Wednesday.

He said he envisions a school of Fine Arts in the not-too-immediate future, but that he strongly favors the institution of a fine arts course in either of the next two semesters.

Father Syvinski finds time to dabble in the Fine Arts here at Villanova. An amateur painter, he has had several canvases on exhibition in Atlantic City, and is willing to display a few works he has done at Villanova.

Turf 'n Tinsel

He is also one of the prime movers of the Turf 'n Tinsel musical comedy venture on campus. He is enthusiastically beginining production of their April offering. "I Remember Mummy."

A poll taken two weeks ago by the Academic Affairs Committee of Student Council disclosed that an overwhelming majority of polled students favor introduction of a fine arts course into Villanova's academic circuklum.

The program, as originally submitted by Eileen Greyson to the Congress would be offered as an elective course for upperclassmen.

Russian Club Meets

Dr. Victor Krupitsch, proposed moderator of the Russian Language Society, was the featured speaker at the society's inaugural meeting. The function of this club is to acquaint interested students with the various phases of Russian life.

Logue Tells I.R.S.:

Peace Issue To Help Republicans

In an address to the International Relations Society last night, Professor John J. Logue of the History and Political Science Department discussed Foreign policy and the coming presidential race.

Stressing the fact that foreign policy may be a major issue in the coming campaign, Logue asserted that the peace question is presently reacting in favor of the Republican party.

He held out the possibility, however, that this favorable atmosphere could conceivably backfire by the latter half of next year in the event that Khrushchev becomes more threatening.

Foreign Policy

Elaborating on the influence of foreign policy, Logue declared that the Democrats would probably take advantage of such other issues as the missile gap and the increased rate of personal diplomacy. The professor stated: "Recent, current, and future trips of Nixon and Eisenhower have gotten favorable public response."

"In addition", he continued," the last of the Eisenhower visits—to Soviet Russia—would be particularly significant in light of the party conventions following shortly thereafter."

Logue added that Vice-President Nixon is apparently being helped substantially by the recent trend toward high level diplomatic visits.

Prof. Logue

He qualified the remark by warning that if the Democratic critique seems to win popular support, there is a real possibility that the Republican convention will turn to Governor Rockefeller . . . "a new face and a strong campaigner."

No Major Difference

In specific reference to the Democratic party, Logue stated that there don't seem to be any major differences on foreign policy among its members. "However, experience and knowledge in this area will be a definite asset in the Presidential campaign."

A new but particularly well-versed addition to the faculty, Professor Logue is slated to teach a graduate course in the "Role of the Political Party" next fall.

A short business meeting preceded the lecture in which President Joe Pultorak discussed the I.R.S. trip to the United Nations last Friday.

"A well-guided and interesting tour, a lecture, and attendance at a Security Council session highlighted the trip. It was a complete success," announced Pultorak.

Hooker Glum Over Card Players

Jim Hooker, secretary of the Student Council, last Thursday took a sweeping slap at the card-players in the C&F cafeteria who refused to take part in a 10:30 pep rally of the Spirit Committee.

"Those guys kept right on playing cards," he said. "They didn't even have the common courtesy to stop and listen to George Raveling."

Raveling, captain of the Villanova basketball team, made an appearance to highlight the rally.

Spirit Committee

The rally was conducted by the Spirit Committee specifically for the C&F day-hops. The committee was answering complaints that day-hops are not able to participate in nighttime affairs and rallies.

The rally, held during the activities hour, was only able to lure an estimated 40 students from card games, even with the presence of Raveling.

Hooker is presently campaigning to restore day-hop interest to the campus. He considered the rally, his first move, to be nothing short of failure.

He was disappointed at the "childish, immature, and discourteous attitude of the card-players," as he termed it. "Raveling came in and everyone knew he was there. But there they sat . . . playing cards."

The rally itself was criticized for the lack of any sort of public address system. Some felt that a decent microphone would have made a difference in the participation.

"It's extremely unfortunate," Hooker continued "that those card players—and they know who they are—had a large effect on the captain of the Villanova basketball team. It was evident that George (Raveling) felt disheartened."

Hooker . . . Glum

Day-Hop Disinterest

Hooker is a crusader who believes that "day-hop disinterest" can be eliminated by a sound program backed by the Student Council. He has formed his own small spirit committee, whose sole purpose is to fuse day-hop and resident relations.

He calls it the "Day-Hop Relations Committee." He asks that anyone who is interested in joining the group, contact Phil Ludlow in room 407 Sheehan Hall, or see Hooker himself.

His next move is to push for the introduction of an additional student activities period for Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. He feels that a student has too many conflicting activities to care for in only one, which is now held each Thursday at 10:30.

O-C Hears "Messiah" At Christmas Party

The Opera Classica Music Society will present its annual Christmas program and party this evening at 8 p.m. in the "Aquarium," the East Lounge of Dougherty Hall.

Featured will be a stereophonic production of Frederick Handel's "Messiah," as performed by the Mormon Tabernacle Choir and the Philadelphia Orchestra, Eugene Ormandy conducting.

Dr. Robert S. O'Shea, moderator of Opera Classica, declared that "This work is the classic of Christmas concert music, and incorporates intricate chorus fugues. Its famed "Hallelujah Chorus" is a standard number in the repertoire of almost all choruses of great repute."

O'Shea emphasized that, as in the past, the program will include the singing of carols and special refreshments, and that everyone is invited to join in the festivities.

Portrette

Drislane Leads Academic Affairs Committee

Portretting Neil Drislane is like trying to condense the varied aspects of a kaliedescope into one simple picture. Perhaps one could start by citing his achievements in student government.

Neil is chairman of the Academic Affairs Committee of the Student Council. Under his leadership the committee has inaugurated a highly successful forum program, enlarged the already successful student tutor program, and is instigating what will undoubtedly be a successful Fine Arts Course.

Neil Drislane

But then again, his career might be the logical point to begin. Neil decided to be an engineer while still a freshman at Briarcliff Manor High School in New York. If nothing catastrophic occurs between now and June, Neil will graduate with a mechanical engineering degree and with an impressive list of honors.

On Dean's List

He is on the dean's list, is secretary of Chi Epsilon Mu, the honorary engineering fraternity, and has received a student award from the A.S.T.M. He looks forward to graduate school in mechanical engineering.

His contributions to the class also offer a good starting point. A member of the Steering Committee for the last two years, he was on the ticket committee for the Charity Ball last year, and was co-chairman of the Mothers' Day dinner and Junior Prom decorations.

It might be expected that an engineering student would not have much time to "dabble" in the arts, but Neil is an exception. Besides his fine painting, and art work, he has written poetry for the LYNX which, to quote him, "expresses what I think."

Neil has been going with a girl from Rosemont, whom he has been teaching to ski in his spare time (oh yes, Neil is also an accomplished skier and a frequent visitor to Stowe, Vermont). Barring unforseen complications, they plan to be married after Neil completes graduate school.

Any of these accomplishments might be a good point of departure for a portrette of Neil Drislane, but most students are already aware of his achievements. They were noted under his name in the Who'e Who selection of a few weeks ago.

Mis-parked Car Tagged by Police

Villanova officer 'writes-up' a misparked auto in the university parking lot, enforcing Student Council's parking edict.

Parkers Still Ticketted

The program of ticketing improperly parked cars has been in effect for one week. According to all indications, the student body is being generally cooperative with the program.

Originated by the Student Union and Special Problems Committee, the ticketing system is operated by the campus police. The tickets themselves merely serve as a warning to the illegal parkers.

At first it was thought that some sort of disciplinary action would be taken against the miscreants. However, the Committee now emphasizes that, as was hoped, students are being reasonable about the matter.

As a result of this heeding of the warnings, it is expected that the entire problem will soon be solved, and that the system can be discontinued.

Rafferty Promises Top Name

Senior Prom Band A Big Secret

The senior class has signed a band for the Senior Prom. Class President Ray Rafferty has guaranteed that the band is a "top-rated band with a great band sound."

The identity of the band is a secret which is known by less than twenty members of the class. Even the majority of the class Steering Committee is in the dark about who is to supply "the swinging sound" for the affair.

Answers Complaints

Rafferty answered the complaints raised by some members of the committee at last Wednesday's meeting when he said, "We want there to be an air of mystery about the prom. We want a maximum amount of interest and curiosity."

Deadly serious, Rafferty demanded the complete support of the committee. He issued an ultimatum when he declared that any member who did not show up for the next meeting need not show up again—"ever."

"We must get rid of any negative attitude," Rafferty explained. "The most important thing for the Steering Committee to do now, is to boost the prom. There is no room for any half-heartedness."

Rafferty then issued an appeal to the students of Villanova. "There has been more time, effort and money spent on this event than you can imagine. You won't find a better dance. To ignore it would be a mistake."

Words for Seniors

Rafferty also had words for the seniors. He said that the Senior Prom is the social climax of their four years. "Don't let it go up in smoke," he declared. "We don't want decorations for the 19th (the dance is February 19) and black crepe on the 20th."

Tom McCoy, Co-Chairman of the dance, initiated a "talk it up" campaign at the meeting. He also commented that there would be no problem of a lack of refreshments. "There will be enough to swim in."

Dinner Dance

Among the other topics that were discussed were the Dinner Dance, Parting Festival, Senior Night, and the Augustinian Seminary Guild benefit performance of the Ice Follies on Dec. 28th at the Arena.

Rafferty also announced that Senior Queen pictures were being accepted.

He concluded with the statement that the band for the prom will be announced in the near future in the VILLANOVAN.

The "air of mystery" is still intact.

Como to Select Senior Queen

Perry Como

Entries will be accepted starting today for the Senior Prom Queen contest, according to Bud Carlock, queen chairman.

Contestants' pictures are to be turned in to Carlock, 101 Sheehan. Along with the photographs the contestants' height, color of hair and eyes should be supplied.

Perry Como will pick the winner after five finalists have been selected by the June McAdams modeling agency.

The contest closes January 14th.

Carlock emphasizes that the contest is an integral part of senior weekend and that he and his committee would appreciate that all seniors enter their dates in the contest as soon as possible.

Como, who succeeds Jack Paar as the man with an eye for beauty and charm, has said that he is anxiously waiting "his very pleasant responsibility" of deciding the contest's outcome.

Merry Christmas

The VILLANOVAN wishes to take this opportunity to extend to all students, faculty members, and Administration officials, the happiest of Christmases, and a most enjoyable holiday season.

It is our sincere hope that the coming year will bestow on all of you prosperity and will prove abundant in grace and wisdom.

Imagination, Please

The Student Council has been making promises that, come next semester, it will have the university standing in awe with its imaginative programs. It points with pride at a bevy of projects it has effected so far this semester.

But at the same time most Council members fail to consider one basic reality: that a large percentage of those worthwhile projects received birth in the minds of men who are no longer serving in that august body; that most of their programs were merely implementation of ideas originated in past Councils.

Even the much-heralded student treasury of November can trace itself back as far as the Nicholson era at least. Last year's Chairman, Bob Murphy, toyed with the idea, but avoided pressing the issue for very valid reasons of his own. This year's Council, however, may justly claim that it was the one which led the treasury from potency to act.

Previous Councils also laid the foundation for several other projects currently basking in newspaper headlines: the student forum, student tutor program, senior car privileges, the Student Council Dance, and on-campus movies.

We're the first to bestow accolades on this Council, since they did drag the programs out of the shade and into the sun. The present members are notable for their diligence and industry, and the vast majority make excellent followers. But whether or not, out of this eager band of followers, a more impressive array of leaders will emerge, remains to be seen next semester. We haven't seen it yet.

And this forthcoming initiative, to be really impressive, will have to manifest itself in the form of fresh, new, substantial ideas —departures from the familiar course of limp proposals which hit us only with their noveltv.

This semester wasn't totally devoid of originality, however, but some of the original proposals were real gems: like the bill which would have instituted a sign-up sheet for day-hops who needed rides home; like the grand debut of the lovely pith helmets, creations of the Council's Spirit Committee; like the idea presently being pondered to supply dictionaries in the Dougherty Hall lounges.

Don't get us wrong, we acknowledge that some of the proposals were significant. But each Council meeting seems to feature the aimless oratory of several members who apparently revel in the sound of their own voices. It must be that they have exhausted all ideas of substantial proposals. There can be no other excuse for some of the inanities they introduce.

We hope to see the Council assert itself next semester, and to see some of that latent leadership unfold. It could happen.

President's Christmas Message

"Christmas is for the Children." How often we hear the older folks say this. Perhaps we have often repeated it ourselves. The children are said to derive the most benefit and joy from Christmas. Indeed this seems to be true, for there are many of us who perhaps envy the children the anticipation with which they can look forward to Christmas, the joy with which they rush to the Christmas tree, the pleasure they derive from the toys and gifts they receive. It is not only the material things that please them. They do delight in the hearing the story of Christmas, the story of Our Lord's birth in Bethlehem, the journey of Joseph and Mary, the search for a room, the humble birth in the stable, the visit of the shepherds, the choir of angels. The children love to hear all this, for it is a b e a u t i f u l and touching story.

Past Childhood

For the rest of us who have grown past childhood, Christmas does not seem to bring such delight. The sordid facts of life, the hard knocks we receive, the disillusionments we suffer, take the edge off our Christmas spirit. In the language of the children we no longer believe in Santa Claus. We remind ourselves that it is more blessed to give than to receive and we try to make the most of the day by preserving for the children the great illusion for as long as possible before the battle of life drains their spirits.

Understand Christmas

But if our understanding of Christmas is only that it is a great day for the children, then we have missed the whole point of that holiday. This is really a day of joy for the adult. The important message of Christmas is found in the words of the Angel: "There is born to you a Savior, who is Christ the Lord."

Savior is Come

The Savior is come. What does a child know of a savior? The Savior is he who is to save us from sin. And what does the child know of sin? Even if he be old enough to be able to commit sin, how much does he realize of what sin can do to him or to those around him? What has he seen of the destruction to promising lives that has been wrought by sin—by drunkenness, by dishonesty, by ambition, by impurity, by greed, by selfishness? It is only he who has known sin and its effects who can really appreciate the need for a Savior—a Savior who can give us the help we need to avoid sin—a Savior who can blot out for us the sins we have committed—a Savior who can restore to us the Paradise we have cast away by our sins.

Approach Christmas

As we approach Christmas of 1959, therefore we must renew in our hearts a welcome to the Christ Child who has come not only for the children, but for each one of us.

To each student of Villanova University, to each faculty member, to each employee, to each friend of Villanova I extend the warmest greetings of Christmastime. May the Divine Child, Our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ make your celebration of the Feast of His Nativity a holy and a happy day, and may you enjoy with Him a happy New Year and Decade .

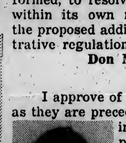
Parking Problem

Question: What do you think of the proposed parking lot fines here at Villanova?



If anything, the proposed method of dealing with parking violators is too soft. Carelessness in the parking habits of some of the students has had me quite incensed since the very beginning of the semester and, as I have previously expressed to many of my friends, I was in favor of deflating a few tires. I'm behind the new system all the way.

Michael C. Tighe, English Major '61

I am strongly opposed to the new policy of issuing tickets. First it is another imposition upon the Day-Hop; secondly, I queston the legality of the issuance of tickets by a private agency. It is my opinion that the Villanova student body is mature enough, if properly informed, to resolve this problem within its own ranks, without the proposed additional administrative regulations.

Don McCoy, English Major '60

I approve of moderate fines for cars as long as they are preceded by the proposed two warnings. Too often a student upon parking his car, will be obliged to back down a lane blocked by two cars. Moreover, many have had accidents in the lot due to the difficulty encountered in maneuvering. The two warnings will probably be enough to solve all the parking problems in the lot, but subsequent loss of money will probably frustrate further attempts to complete barbed-wiring of the campus.

Anne McCrea, Nursing '62

When we, violate the right of other students in regards to parking then some action must be taken. Sufficient warning was given to avoid the further inconvenience of blocked exits, impassable lanes, and even in many cases, creased fenders. The Parking Lot Ticket for violators will undoubtedly make those immature few conscious of their obligations to the other students, and should eliminate the problem.

Ronald S. Dobies, Elec. Engineering '60

While I cannot disagree with this program as such, I can find great fault at the way it was handled by Student Council. The students' citadel of noise once again handled a serious problem clumsily. When the problem was brought up before the council members, the majority of such were confused as to just what was going on. The program was finally passed without the respect that it deserved. It was another in the series of vagaries that our representatives stumble over.

Five Types Make Up "Villanovan"

bob brothers

There are five types of men on the Villanova campus. They can be classed in this order:

CLOWN—On campus he pops out of waste baskets or from behind buildings to greet all coeds as if they were long-lost sisters. He has the lowest Trendex rating at parties for his wild exhibitions. He does a headstand for half an hour and bets he is the only one at the party who can leap over the sofa without bending his knees. At 1 a.m. he has the table lamp down on the floor in a life and death struggle and is mumbling to it, "Say Uncle—and I'll let you up." He feels that he was invited to entertain, so most of the evening is spent beating out the Hawaiian War Chant on the bottom of a waste basket or a dish pan. He does an imitation of Elvis Presley (with a broom) and Marilyn Monroe (with a mop on his head) and if coaxed enough would probably dip himself in gasoline and set himself on fire.

Brothers

At least once during the evening he manages to call his buddy in Chicago, at the host's expense, naturally. He knows all the latest in records, fads and slang. Dancing, to him, consists of zooming around, ricocheting off walls, other couples, etc. His conversation consists of drinking bouts in which he took part, and yelling across the room like a tiny Tarzan for someone to sing "Roll Me Over in the Clover." Underneath this social gaitey there is an unrequited love which sounds veguely like True Confessions.

"INTELLECTUAL"—He's t h e f e l low walking across campus whistling Bach's Concerto No. 5 in F Minor. He knows everything there is to know about everything—he thinks. He uses five syllable words constantly. Although he has maintained a straight 4-point average he has never quite recovered from the A- he received in English Composition on his theme, "Freudian Decomposition." In class he wants to recite; he knows the answer. Once the instructor calls on him, the rest of you may as well go home, since he usually talks well into the next class.

After class he speaks to the instructor about extra assignments, doubles the required length of all papers, and confers excitedly with the instructor at each meeting on campus. During the lunch hour he solves world problems and then goes on to metaphysics, tossing Absolutes and Causes and Effects to everyone at his table. He dreads weekends because he misses his two favorite classes—the history of lower Slombovia, Chemical Analysis of Phycompeetes and the Law of Thermodynamics. He doesn't realize there is another kind so consequently has never dated.

VILLANOVA CASANOVA—He has just met the most wonderful doll in the world, and with a little financial help from you he is going to take her out tonight—and in return, tomorrow he will tell you what happened. (He has a faculty for elaboration and innuendo which can make an innocent date sound like a Dionysian orgy.) Just pick out any attractive female and ask if he knows her. Instead of just answering yes, he will roll his eyes and say, "Do I!"

He claims that he is the Ladies Home Companion and that his name is a household word among coeds. On a date he drives to small out-of-the-way restaurants where the shish-kabab is fabulous and where he converses with the head waiters in their native Syrian. On long winter evenings he entertains his date by reviewing his glorious accomplishments from age six to 20. He is found in classes only between 11 and 2 o'clock every other week or so (when he isn't table-hopping in the Pie Shoppe). He has his own page in the Belle Air with a ten-inch list o factivities. He doesn't graduate; he's just re-issued to his parents every year.

LE BOHEME—He became an existentialist as soon as he learned how to spell it. Dressed in wrinkled khakis, sneakers, and a purple shoestring for a tie, he comes to class unshaven and in need of a haircut. Since he inhabits the last row of every class and stretches out two rows in each direction he will get through Villanova at least, if nothing else, thoroughly rested. Of course he dreams of a garret for two in the Village with a Jug of Wine, a Loaf of Bread and someone who isn't inhibited, repressed, suppressed, a slave of convention, a puppet of automation or a conformist. "Russia," he says, "is going to throw up a Lunik the size of Rhode Island next June. We might as well drink and be merry. It'll all be over with us by the end of the year."

PSEUDO INTELLECTUAL—T h i s Jack of all Cultures is usually seen carrying a copy of the New Yorker (which is actually an old cover pasted on Mad). He claims to be an anti-materialist (that means he's stingy), and scorns all sports with the exception of chess and badminton. He professes complete ignorance of all football players and pretends he has never heard of Ron Delany. No matter what is said in a conversation this guy never shows surprise, for this would shatter the illusion that he knows everything worth knowing. Should it be necessary to express approval or amusement, he smiles sardonically while flipping the ashes from his cigarette (king-size). Anger or disapproval is expressed by removing the glasses (preferably heavy black-rimmed ones), giving a cold stare and replacing them on the nose.

When he does speak there is a liberal smattering of foreign phrases (which he learns from popular songs). He has memorized a list of assorted titles and authors so when someone mentions a book he can say, "I've only read the author's major works." If the authors name ends in "sky" or "stoy" his prepared comment is "Of course, it suffered in the translation." If cornered in a conversation he says, "Of course, I can't generalize," and then proceeds to do so. He usually ends a conversation with "It's all relative, you know." Or, in extreme cases, "Relativity itself s relative." Oh yes, he is constantly deploring the "attempt" to capture ballet on a two-dimentional screen.

Yuletide Remembrances

bill speers

Christmas means a lot of things to a lot of people. To the man that owns the corner variety store, the ring of the cash register signifies his most prosperous season; to the city cop the down-town traffic means a splitting headache when he finally gets home; to the theatre manager, his slowest season is felt; to the salesgirl, cigarettes fail to soothe her shattered nerves.

But most of all Christmas is the time when . . . mid-city streets take on a carnival complexion . . . an ordinary 50-week man becomes the most important man in the world just by putting on a beard and cardinal clothes . . . adults become children and children, cherubs.

The winter is warmer . . . the fragrance is evergreen, the feel is satin, the prime sight is tinseled lights . . . liquor is friendly . . . department stores become pied pipers . . . forgotten times are yearningly remembered . . . a slothful, colorless house becomes a glad, lucent home . . . love abounds, but romance withdraws . . .

S c h o o l is forgotten . . . nights draw closer . . . elegant carols replace tired, worn records . . . even newspapers are no longer black and white but sable and snow . . . families relove . . . faith is reborn . . . snow would be welcomed . . . the bus-driver smiles . . . a weather-beaten tree is given a home . . . a happy tear is shed at least once . . . the world is at peace.

Christmas Shorts . . . The ingenuity of our maintainence staff—will it ever cease. In decorating the group of trees in front of St. Rita's Hall, our resourceful workers have employed the use of, remember them hula hoops, to hold down the lights at the top of the trees . . . before the holiday is upon us, if you possibly can, be sure to catch John Wanamaker's "E n c h a n t e d Fountains" show in their mid-city store. This yearly production is supposed to be for children, but from what we can see the kids are out-numbered at these bi-hourly shows by about 25-1. The show itself is unique and utterly cap'ivating . . . Radio Station WVIL will conduct a special seasonal broadcast tonight. Many hours of work have gone in the preparation of this Christmas special . . . If you're in the market for a good Christmas album, give J a c k i e Gleason's "Merry Christmas" a listen. This has to be one of the most beautiful arranged Yuletide albums ever to be released ——— . . . 'til the next edition.

Gift Suggestions; Fence Indigestions

JUST AROUND THE CORNER—The Yuletide is here. You can sense it in the air. Look around. Local state stores are doing a thriving business; university professors are getting that Holiday look in their eyes; Frosh themes are, in the main, entitled "What I Want For Christmas"; nurses are talking to C&F students; and campus guards are letting out with the "Ho, Ho, Ho," as they tag improperly parked autos in the lot.

CHRISTMAS GIFT SUGGESTIONS:

(1) For the sport enthusiast—
A ten volume work on Touch Football by J. Rogers and Bob Menaphee, a Wildcat publication.

(2) For the study bug—
A life-size pin-up of Marion Lorne.

(3) For the man who has everything—
A woman who has everything.

(4) For the movie-goer—
Two tickets to Ben-Hur. One for Ben and another for Hur.

(5) For the hot-rod enthusiast—
His own police regulation roadblock and a pair of leather scuffies.

(6) For the pessimist—
A month's free advertisement in the lost and found column of a leading newspaper.

(7) For the Villanova nurse—
An application blank for a Johnson and Johnson scholarship or a date with Fabian.

(8) For Tom Moakley—
Seven thousand copies of the December 6th Philadelphia Inquirer.

(9) For the do-gooder—
A free fully paid winter weekend at the Norristown State Hospital.

DON'T FENCE ME IN—This seems to be the year for fences. The latest addition is a rudely, but effectively, constructed barrier near the library. While not a Cyclone production, it is of the Abe Lincoln vintage with a length of El Paso range barbed wire. (After all, isn't man an animal).

BIG BUSINESS—Rumor has it that Valva has a staff of clerks working around-the-clock to handle the orders for the Spirit Committee helmets. He even has a slogan, "Where there's a man, there's a pith-helmet." (Oh, come on, John!)

STYMIED—We were recently asked just what was included in the Activities Fee paid by every student every semester. We admit frankly that we don't know, but we have our entire staff of thirty-seven Watusi bushwhackers checking into it. Startling results in the next VILLANOVAN are forthcoming.

LOOK WHO'S HERE—The Forum with Senator Muskie two weeks ago was not without the attendance of two pseudo-interested Rosies. (Where some people won't go to get bridge players).

In closing we wish all of you a . . . Mike, Echo, Romeo, Romeo, Yankee . . . Charlie, Hotel, Romeo, India, Sierra, Tango, Mike, Alpha, Sierra . . . Roger, Out. (Way out).

Mercer, Arlen Score Not Up To Par In Sparkless Musical

By Stan Gogol

SARATOGA," a new musical, as viewed during the last week of its pre-Broadway tuneup, will never achieve the status of a "My Fair Lady" or even a "Fiorello." Our guess is that it will be received as a pleasant evening of musical theater and nothing more.

Based on Edna Ferber's novel "Saratoga Trunk" it tells the story of a fortune hunting young lady who returns from Paris posing as a French Countess. In the first act she shocks New Orleans society, which sent her to Paris, and meets a con man who agrees to be her accomplice. In the second act she travels on to Saratoga to find herself a husband with the help of her fast talking friend.

A considerable number of improvements have been made since the opening. A lengthy and boring prologue has been dropped and several new songs were added. Even with these improvements, the small spark of greatness is lacking.

The book is more than adequate and tells the story at a fast and amusing pace. Morton DaCosta deserves a great deal of credit for his adaptation as well as his direction.

Chorography is also fairly well done. One of the ballets—a railroad gang fight—is one of the most clever to be presented in recent years. During the action the hero is hit on the head with a board. All action among the fighting men stops and then resumes at slow motion as he comes out of his daze.

* * *

ONE OF THE biggest pluses which the show may boast, is its costumes and scenery. Some eighteen scenes take place in the two acts and most of these are full dimensional sets, rather than just backdrops. Ingenious use is made of the two treadmills and turntables which the show carries.

Howard Keel, playing the hero, Clint Maroon, returns to the musical stage after a number of years in Hollywood. His role is not too demanding and performance is adequate. One fault in an otherwise good job is his mixing of his Western, southern and Brooklyn accents. It was elating however, to hear a lead who can sing for a change.

Unfortunately the night that we caught the show, Carol Lawrence was ill. Her understudy, Gerianne Raphael, did a better than average job of handling the show's only demanding role; that of Clio Dulaine. If Miss Lawrence does half as good a job, the lead is in capable hands.

If any one thing can be pinpointed as the production's major fault, it is its music. The score was written by Johnny Mercer and Howard Arlen, a team which has given us such tunes as "Old Black Magic" and "One For My Baby."

In "Saratoga" there are "None For My Baby." All the music seems to be written for the popular market and not for the musical stage. There's a Frank Sinatra type, swing ballad called "Game Of Poker," that will probably be a big hit. This number, however, is not the best number in the show. That honor goes to a Dixieland item called "Petticoat High." A rousing production number helps sell it.

By the time you read this, "Saratoga" will have opened on Broadway and the critical verdict will be in. Once again our verdict is a pleasant evening and nothing more.

Maybe somebody should have left the trunk closed.

act when she sat stringing beans, telling Mrs. Webb of her fleeting dreams.

She sent a warm glowing simplicity to her role.

Moore Engaging

Stan Moore, a sopnomore, was perfectly sophomoric as young George Gibbs. Ideally suited physically for the part, he gave an uncanny performance. He had a fresh delivery and a nice flair for comedy. Surprisingly this was his first entry into dramatics.

Behind these two standout performers there was an abundance of fine acting.

Commander Claude Frazier had the key role of the stage manager. The commander had his anchor dragging a bit at times but with a little more spark he would have equaled the performances of Miss Miclot and Mr. Moore. His naturalness was pleasing.

Attractive Suzanne Bruni was a believable Emily although she had some difficulty in communicating with the audience, particularly in the last act.

Excellent Pantomime

Her soda fountain scene with Moore was one of the high spots. This was one of the examples of the fine pantomine throughout the play.

Peppy Kathy Harvey played Rebecca Gibbs with much zest and humor. Her scene with Moore on the ladder (at the window) with her wondrous rendering of the address was as good as any in the play.

Michael Tanney (Mr. Web), Sue Ahrold (Mrs. Webb), and Dennis Cunningham (Dr. Gibbs) all held up well in important roles.

Dick Harshberger (Professor Willard) and Owen Klein (Howie Newsome) gave particularly polished characterizations. Harshberger, in particular deserved more laughs than he received.

Youth Slight Handicap

Paul Buckley (Constable Warren) and Dick McIntyre (Joe Stoddard) came off well as old men although they were slightly handicapped by their youth. McIntyre is only a freshman.

Thomas Sines gave a strong portrayal as the tragic figure of Simon Stimson. Though Sines and Commander Frazier are older than the rest of the cast they did not stand out as such unfavorably.

Gilda Spurio, John Gartland, Bill DiPaolo, Jerry Paonessa, Edward Powers and the rest of the cast performed creditably.

Our only real reservation is the slow pace of the show, part of which was caused by a very critical first night audience. Complete blocking and evenness of style prevailed. But the show did lag at times.

Step Forward

Still, the Villanova Graduate Theatre Division, the department which sadly did not put on a single play last year, has taken a large step forward with the production of "Our Town."

They have gained respect heretofore missing.

With sensible play selecting, devoted acting, and able direction they made "Our Town" an effective and memorable production.

There was no slugging in Vasey Auditorium, just a good sound show.

Villanova Bell Is Sister To Famous Liberty Bell In Phila.

By Paul Crawford

ON THE SECOND floor of the Villanova Library, there is a bell which is now silent; but at one time proclaimed the indepedence of the United States. This clarion, now known as the Villanova Bell, hung in the State House, July 8, 1776, and along with the famed "Library Bell" proclaimed American freedom.

The better known Liberty Bell had its origin in 1751, when it was voted that a bell be provided for the State House. The bell, made in England, cracked and was recast in 1753 by Pass, and Stowe.

LIBERTY BELL

Meanwhile, another bell was sent to America to replace the cracked bell. It was decided that both bells would be retained; the recast one in the steeple and the new import in the cupola of the State House. It was the latter of the two which was to finally become "The Villanova Bell."

In 1796, Father Thomas Matthew Carr, an Augustinian, came to Philadelphia. While he was serving at St. Mary's in Philadelphia a need arose for an additional church in the northern section of the city. Thus it was that St. Augustinian's Church was built and completed in 1801. An interesting sidelight to this story is that George Washington donated fifty dollars toward its construction.

* * *

IT WAS decided in 1828 to secure a new bell for the State House. St. Augustinian's Church secured the bell that hung in the cupula and moved it to the tower of the church in 1830. Father Hurley succeded Father Carr as the only Augustinian in Philadelphia at the time.

In an unusual agreement dated June 16, 1835, Father Hurley turned over ownership of the bell to the mayor; but it was to remain in the church for the use of the parishoners.

Ill felling ran high in Philadelphia during the middle 1840's and as a result St. Augustinian's Church was burned and the bell destroyed. But the fragments of the bell were gathered from the ruins and in 1847 Joseph Berncast recast the bell. The newly formed bell was then brought to the recently opened Villanova College, where it became the College Bell, and served as such for half a century.

When the first edifice of the Church of St. Nicholas of Tolentine was built in Jamaica by the Augustinians in 1917, the "College Bell" was installed for the use of the Church. The bell was returned to Villanova for the centennial, where it rests but a few miles from its companion in history, the "Library Bell."

Dr. Fogg Gives Lecture to Biology Department

Dr. John M. Fogg Jr., former Dean of Arts and Science at the University of Pennsylvania and at present Professor of Botany, was the guest speaker for the Biology Department and Biology Club of Villanova, last Wednesday evening.

The subject of his discussion was "Exploring for Drug Plants in South Asia." Following a brief, but concise, report of his work abroad, Dr. Fogg then employed slides to illustrate his trip.

The purpose of this expedition was to become acquainted with the folk medicine of South Asia by studying the drug plants of this area.

FROM: THE CATHOLIC DIGEST:

Magi Journey Presents Ancient Puzzle to Bible Scholars

Every year, Christians throughout the world recall in hymns and liturgy the visit of the Magi to the crib of the Christ Child at Bethlehem.

But, says the December Catholic Digest, this event is one of the most controversial episodes of the Christmas story.

Historians have never been able to ascertain how many Wise Men came to Bethlehem, exactly where they came from, how long they traveled, or how old Jesus was when they arrived.

For centuries, one of the most puzzling aspects of the Magi story was the star which they followed. Until the 17th century, astronomers debated about the moving "star" mentioned in St. Matthew's Gospel. Was it really a comet? A meteor? A planet?

Finally, in 1603, the renowned German astronomer, Kepler, made a special study of the star of Bethlehem. His conclusions have been accepted as classic. "It was a 'stella nova'," Kepler declared, a star which suddenly increases in magnitude and brilliancy for no known reason, and then burns out.

"But that unexpected star was not an ordinary stella nova," Kepler explained. "By a special miracle, it moved in the lower layer of the atmosphere" and guided the first gentiles to Christ.

As for the Magi, explains the Catholic Digest, historians believe that they were high priests, not royal, from the sacred caste of the Medes or the Persians.

Probably more than three Magi came to Bethlehem, possibly as many as twelve, and their real names are not known.

One of the most amazing aspects of the travels of the Magi is the fact that they were undoubtedly journeying to Bethlehem, 1000 miles from their homeland, for at least one year.

"Status Seekers" Topic Discussed By Nuesse

Dr. C. Joseph Nuesse, of Catholic University, was the guest speaker for the Sociology Department last Friday evening.

Speaking before an audience of faculty members, seminarians, and social studies majors, Dr. Nuesse developed the topic, "Status Seekers and the Church."

Status Seekers

The various points of the lecture sprung from the analysis of Vance Packard's latest book, "The Status Seekers," and its inference that religion embodies more than the spiritual.

Grendel's Cave ...

False Patroitism and Blind Followers Characterize U.S.

Charles Baumis—Guest Columnist

IS THIS COUNTRY so repulsive that we have to be mesmerized in order to believe in it? Do we have to be "conned" into going out and fighting for it? Whey then, in a nation which is, more than any other, filled with principles worth fighting and dying for, does the possibility exist that many people are going to be expected to do just this because George Washington never told a lie, not even to dear old imaginary Betsy Ross? Why do we have to shroud ourselves in a cloak of phony patroitism where we have more valid reasons for being patroitic than any other nation in the world?

How many people during the last war actually realized why we were involved? Was it simply because the Japanese bombed Pearl Harbor? I sincerely hope and believe it was not, for if this were the case, and had Japan for some reason refrained from attacking us, then it is entirely possible that we might still be sitting around wondering when Hitler was going to run out of Jews. At a time when whole nations of people were busily engaged in decimating everything we stood for, did we really go to war to "teach that dirty little sap, Mr. Jap, a lesson?"

REGARDLESS of what some politicians may think, the majority of Americans are capable of understanding a situation such as the one posed by the last world war. Despite the fact that many of us have been subjected to American History through the mud puddle minds of the progressivists, we can still distinguish right from wrong. We do not have to be drummed, or sung, or talked into defending our country, nor de we have to wait until someone has hurt our pride.

The whole questions is one of truth, and it covers many more situations other than the military. Today, in this country, to ask for truth to be accorded to me at all times, would be asking for too much, for this would necessitate a complete change in our way of life. Instead, I am asking for complete truth in only only one instance. If I am ever asked, someday, to go to war, I demand to be told the real reason why. (And I simply won't accept the preservation of National Mustard Flavored Coffee Week as a reason.)

LUCKY STRIKE presents

Dear Dr. Frood:

Historic event! DR. FROOD REVEALS HIS ADDRESS
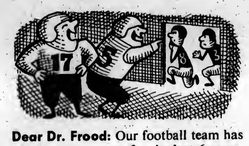
(See below)

Dear Dr. Frood: My roommate continually steals my Luckies. What should I do?
Sinned Against

Dear Sinned Against: The most successful defense is the traditional African one. Mold a small wax image of your roommate. Then, at full moon, insert half a dozen common household pins into the hands of the image.



Dear Dr. Frood: I was out with my girl and I saw this old lady and I laughed and I said, "Did you ever see such a worn-out old hag?" and my girl told me it was her mother. What can I do now?
Outspoken

Dear Outspoken: Take your left foot in your right hand and jerk sharply until it comes out of your mouth.

Dear Dr. Frood: If I were demented enough to want to write to you, how would I go about it?
Pen Pal

Dear Pen Pal: Address your letter to:

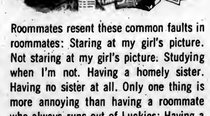
Box 2990
Grand Central Station
New York 17, N.Y.

No phone calls please. Thus far I've been unable to have a phone installed here in the box.

Dear Dr. Frood: Our football team has lost 8 games a year for the last 6 years. How can we improve our record without letting the old coach go?
Alumni Pres.

Dear Alumni Pres.: Schedule fewer games.



Dear Dr. Frood: I am a 5'1" co-ed with a figure exactly like the Venus de Milo's. Would you say I should be in the movies?
Lovely

Dear Lovely: I'll say anything you want me to.

Dear Dr. Frood: I told my fiancée we can't afford to get married until I finish college. She insists that two can live as cheaply as one. Is this true?
Dubious

Dear Dubious: Yes. If they take turns eating.

DR. FROOD ON HARASSING HABITS OF ROOMMATES

Roommates resent these common faults in roommates: Staring at my girl's picture. Not staring at my girl's picture. Studying when I'm not. Having a homely sister. Having no sister at all. Only one thing is more annoying than having a roommate who always runs out of Luckies: Having a roommate who doesn't smoke Luckies.

LYNX Successful With Fall Issue

"We are quite pleased over the success of the fall issue of the LYNX," said Frank Murtha, editor. "We now feel that we will be able to have three issues this year."

Murtha commented that the editors believe that winter issue and a fall one are very much in the realm of possibility.

Murtha also requested that contributors to the last issue pick up their manuscripts at his room 215 Sheehan Hall, and added that he would be glad to offer the collected criticism of the editors of any of the contributions. He suggested that contributions for the coming issue be left in his room or be brought to the publications office on the second floor of Dougherty Hall.

"It does no one any good to put off submitting material because sometimes the story or whatever has to be reworked." He emphasized that material be submitted now so that if work was necessary it could be done over the holidays.

Murtha expressed his thanks to the Villanovan, particularly Bill Speers; and all the people who supported the LYNX by purchasing the magazine.

He was also grateful to the promotion staff, "all those who sold the LYNX around campus."

Murtha confirmed the report that he was going to continue work on his novel over the vacation. "Perhaps there will be a chapter in the next Lynx," he threatened.

WVIL Celebrates Christmas With Special Holiday Shows

WVIL's traditional year-end spectacular will be broadcast from the radio station's Dougherty Hall Studios this evening, Station Manager Dan O'Mara has announced.

A joint tribute to the Christmas season and commemoration of the final day of broadcasting in 1959, the program will be a "quiet spectacular," according to O'Mara. He and Anne McCrea, an announcer on the Villanova Nurses' Program will be featured on the Christmas broadcast.

The six-hour program will commence at 5 p.m. today and run until the station's usual 11 p.m. sign-off time. It will consist of 12 half-hour portions, each of which relates one aspect of Christmas.

"We will present such features as 'Christmas Around the World', 'Christmas In the City' as contrasted to 'Christmas in the Country,' 'Christmas in the Cloisters' and 'Christmas in the Family,' and will close with a Nativity Presentation," O'Mara declared.

In planning the program, O'Mara, Miss McCrea, and the WVIL staff have selected appropriate Christmas music for each of the half-hour segments, and will blend these selections with brief dialogue to create a particular effect.

"All of us on the staff believe that we have put together the perfect show to end the 1959 broadcasting year," O'Mara emphasized. "We are sure the listening audience will be equally enthusiastic."

The quiet spectacular is the second of two major Christmas presentations on WVIL. Last Sunday night, the season was officially opened with the "Digest Christmas Party." Digest co-producers John Oberlies and Bob DeLisa featured live music and an array of personalities on their program.

The Villanova Singers, the Villanova Band, and the T-Tones, Rosemont musical group, provided the music, Rev. Norbert Whitley, OSA, Chaplain, delivered a special Christmas message, and Rev. Francis X. Smith, OSA, new Dean of Admissions was the Campus Personality of the Week.

Philosophy Club To Be Started On Campus

The newly-formed Philosophy Club will hold its first meeting on Thursday, January 7 at 2:30 p.m. in the Philosophy Office, basement of Vasey Hall.

The club will be under the direction of the Philosophy Dept. with Dr. Donald Gallagher acting as ex ogicio moderator and Dr. Robert O'Shea assisting in the organization.

All students are invited to attend this meeting. The club will afford the students the opportunity to hear noted philosophers speak on varied topics of pertinent interest during the coming semester.

Panel Discussion

It is designed to foster philosophical discussions on the intercollegiate level. The first panel discussion sponsored by this organization will concern itself with the topic, "The Futility of Philosophy."

Dr. O'Shea has stated, "This is the students' club. The program is theirs and the results will be theirs."

Father Klekotka

President of Academic Affairs.

As far as he knew, the reason that there were different punishments meted out because of the differing circumstances from individual to individual.

19th Century Discipline Rules

Father Klekotka earlier had interesting words concerning the Villanova of an older generation. He himself had been graduated from here in 1935. A campus leader, he was president of Phi Kappa Pi, the engineering fraternity.

The problems of modern education proved to be not altogether different from those of our elders.

Among the rules of discipline at 19th century Villanova were the banning of liquor, tobacco and snuff.

He related that our first athletic contest in 1872 was won by a score of 103. Not basketball, but a baseball score, as the Villanovans downed the Radnor Farmers. In a later contest before the NCAA we were trounced by the professional Philadelphia Athletics.

Villanova was closed down twice, once as a result of the "Know-nothing" riots in 1844, another time, because of the depression of 1857.

Despite these and other obstacles, Father Klekotka pointed out, Villanova stands strong today, in his estimation, with 3855 undergraduates, 6400 total part time and graduate students, and 13,000 active alumni, more than half of whom came here since 1950.

Halphen, Horin, Lemkin Honored At Banquet

The 38th Annual Football Banquet sponsored by the Villanova Club, was held December 8th at the Penn Sherwood Hotel.

Over 400 alumni turned out to pay tribute to the Wildcat football team despite its losing record.

Highlights

Highlights of the affair were the awarding of senior trophies, the loyalty award, the most valuable player and most consistent player awards. A special alumni award was also presented to Athletic Director Frank Reagan.

The Loyalty Award, as it was explained by Tom Shubert, president of Villanova Club, is an award given to the Villanova graduate who has contributed the most to the Spirit of Villanova by his life and his dedication to his school.

The recipient must have graduated at least 15 years prior to his award and he is selected by the past award winners.

Mr. Marshall J. Halphen, who received this year's award is a member of the Class of 1927.

Marshall Halphen

Marshall (mutt) Halphen was a lineman and played four years of football. He also played baseball and basketball and was a leader in campus activities.

For these achievements he received an award at graduation "As the student who had done the most for Villanova".

Since graduation, he has remained close to Villanova and the Augustinians as teacher, football coach, and athletic director at Malvern.

He has served on the Board of Governors many times and helped form the Villanova Club of South Jersey which sponsors the annual basketball banquet.

He has a son studying for the priesthood and a daughter studying nursing at Villanova. Mr. Halphen is prominent in many civic and church affairs in Gloucester City.

Joe Rogers with extemporaneous quips presented the football trophies. He also expressed his personal satisfaction and experience gained in his job as head coach.

Admires Rogers

Frank Reagan also expressed great admiration for Rogers and said "It would be a mistake for the university if they let this Irishman get away."

Reagan received an award from alumni and said after hours, days, weeks, and months of thought he could not give the reason for this year's bad season.

Very Reverend John A. Klekotka OSA, University President, said there would be no deemphasis of athletics at Villanova but rather the university would continue in its high level competition in all sports.

The award for the team's most valuable player was presented to Leon Horin. And for the most consistent player to Ed Lemkin.

Head football coach Joe Rogers congratulates Leon Horin before presenting him with Most Valuable Player trophy at Villanova Club football banquet.

Jim Bonner, who broadcasted Villanova games over WRCU, served at toastmaster for the dinner.

The pricipal speaker, honorable Charles S. Witkowski, Mayor of Jersey City, New Jersey, emphasized to the team the lessons to be learned and rewards gained from losses.

The mayor was a member of the Class of 1931 and spoke of his own football experiences and how a loss taught him much more than a win.

VILLANOVA MERMEN Upset Rutgers 52-43

Reminiscent of the heart-stopping wins of last year, which saw the charge of Ed Geisz win many of their meets by taking the final event, the 400 yard freestyle relay, the 'Cat swimmers swept from the Scarlet of Rutgers both that event and the meet last Wednesday in the Field House pool.

To add insult to injury, the Villanova man Bob Dow propels himself through the water against Rutgers by executing the difficult butterfly stroke.

relay team of Frank Dunn, Jim Donahue, Ed Jensen and Don Baemcke broke the old Villanova team record by one-tenth of a second, finishing in the time of 3:48.6.

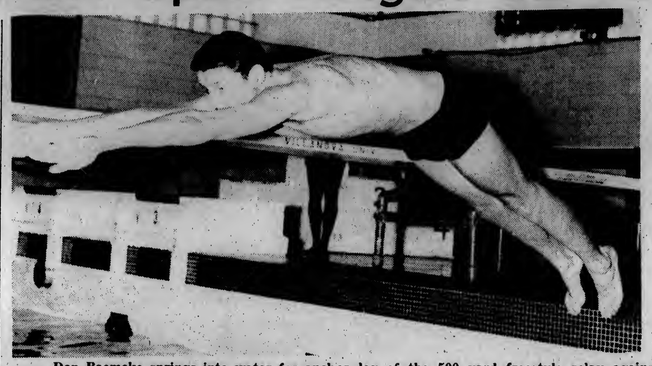
Individual Star

Baemcke was the individual star of the day as he took both the 220 yard freestyle in 2:25.3 and the freestyle in 56.7 in addition to his anchor leg in the relay.

In the first event of the meet, the 400 yard medley relay, the Villanova team of John Foley, Brian Reilly, Dan O'Brien and Jensen took first by virtue of Rutgers' disqualification due to their anchor man leaving the starting block before the touch of the third leg swimmer.

Baemcke Cops 220

This gave the Villanova mermen a lead which they never relinquished. In the next event, the 220 yard freestyle, Baemcke took his first event as second and third place were captured by the opposition.



Frank Dunn and Bob Donahue were niped by Joe Millstein of Rutgers in the 50 yard freestyle, who finished in the time of 26.6.

An addition to the dual meet events was the 200 yard individual medley, which consists of fifty yards each of butterfly, breast-stroke and freestyle. Sophomore Don Rud jumped out to an early lead and held it all the way to lead to the finish a Rutgers merman and co-captain Frank Keefe.

Rud turned in the very good time of 2:28.6 and showed promise of becoming a standout winner for the Wildcats all season.
